The acclaim she won by playing Billie Dawn both in Broadway and movie productions of Born Yesterday was a tribute to her acting ability. While Miss Holliday was a tall (five feet, seven inches) girl with a high IQ (172), she made Billie Dawn appear small and stupid. The real girl read Stendahl and Proust.

28 SEAMEN DIE

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Twenty - eight crew members were feared to have perished in an explosion which ripped the Italian oil tanker Luisa at Bandar-Mashour in the Persian Gulf Saturday night. Six others were rescued.

Girl Guides, Brownies Attend Service, Parade

More than a thousand Girl Guides and Brownies from the Belleville district paraded through downtown streets Sunday as they held their annual church parade and attended a special service at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School auditorium.

The Guides and Brownies formed up on the St. Michael's school grounds. Then with banners, and colors flying marched down Victoria Ave., past the reviewing stand outside Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, down Front Street and back up Bridge St. to the Collegiate.

TAKES SALUTE

Taking the salute at the reviewing stand were Mrs. A. W. Hare, Quinte Area Commissioner, Mrs. Daniel Stewart, Belleville Division Commissioner, and Mr. Major Bourgeaud, Salvation Army Girl Guide Commissioner. Heading the parade was the Salvation Army band.

Using a silent audience participation hand illustration to emphasize the point she was making, Miss Mainprize, captured the interest of her audience as she addressed district Guides, Brownies and Rangers.

She showed the girls how, although difficult it may be they can leave their home, family, job and friends, but they cannot leave God.

"God has a plan and purpose for each person and has created them as an individual," Miss Mainprize said. "During each lifetime decisions must be made and ideals developed without God life would be disorganized."

Caledon Hills Will Be Scene Of Festival

TORONTO (CP) — Producers of the Mariposa Folk Festival, which was barred from Mendonte Township near Orillia last year by a court order, have been assured by Albion Township that they can hold the festival in the Caledon Hills this year.

Joseph Lewis, a spokesman for the organizers, said Saturday Producer Randy Ferris would meet today with provincial police to discuss security arrangements for the festival.

Last year, festival organizers waged a bitter and unsuccessful fight in the courts against a Medonte Township bid to oust the festival from the Orillia area. After being barred from the township by court order, the festival was hurriedly arranged at Maple Leaf Stadium in Toronto.

This year, a letter from Carson Patterson, clerk-treasurer of Albion Township, assured the producers of official sanction.

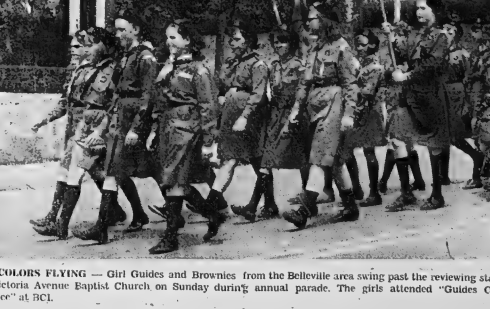
Burgess Wrote 15,000 Stories For Children

HAMPDEN, Mass. (AP) — Thornton W. Burgess, who wrote thousands of stories about Peter Rabbit and his friends in the old briar patch, died late Saturday night. He was 90.

Burgess wrote 15,000 stories for children and books which sold 7,500,000 copies.

Old Mother West Wind, his first collection of children's stories, was published more than 30 years ago. Since then Burgess became known to generations of North American children.



Born at Sandwich, Mass., on Cape Cod, Burgess began telling his son bedtime stories about what he had seen in the meadows and woods. When the boy went to visit a cousin in Chicago and missed the stories, his father sent him one each day so that he could keep up with the doings of Peter Rabbit and reddy fox and all the inhabitants of old briar patch.

Eventually the stories came to the attention of an editorial representative of Little, Brown and Co. who urged Burgess to submit his stories to the publisher.

Burgess sent 14 stories and from these came Old Mother West Wind, published in 1910.

LONDON (Reuters) — Eleanor Farjeon, who died at her London home Saturday night at the age of 84, was the author of 90 books and verses, most of which were written for children.

SPORTS SLICES

The don's magic lantern came up with two widely-diverged world championships Saturday afternoon. The Indianapolis "500" full-throated hum of the world's fastest racing cars was backgrounded with the roar of a quarter-milliing excited fans. The world's pocket-billiard championship was played in a hush punctuated by mild applause for a difficult shot before 2,000 fans.

The deft strokes of masters; the seeming magnetism a pocket holds for a ball; the wizardry of champions held a strange fascination, for me, at least.

Joe Balsis and "Wimpy" Lassiter gave masterful displays of a sport that rates low on the calendar yet demands from its champions all the concentration, practice and effort that top-ranking sports possess.

"Did the Russians invent this game when they pocketed the Light Brigade at Balaclava? asked a family friend.

A look at the 'archieves revealed that Antony and Cleopatra, tired of necking on the Nile, used to indulge in "billiards" according to one, Bill Shakespeare.

The history of Ireland says that an Irish king, one Conn Ceichathach stated in his will that "I bequeath to Drimoth fifty billiard balls of brass with pools and cues of the same material."

Actually billiards is the indoor development of lawn bowling. The grass keglers of an early century, disgusted at wet weather, moved indoors but found space limited. So they used sticks, and founded the game of croquet, but this too was cumbersome.

Then some laddybuck tried it on a table. It proved popular after the bevy whooped down one end of their new abode, thus originating the billiard cue.

The game has a strange but colorful background. A French prisoner developed the game while in jail rounding off the square tips of the cues to become the greatest trickshot fi the world.

In the 19th century a flunkey in a London billiard parlor discovered that by using chalk and hitting the ball in a certain way he could do strange things. This is perhaps the origin of "English" on the ball.

The flunkey, Jack Carr, was a "wise", one. He claimed the "twisting chalk" did the trick, and anyone possessing it plus a few Carr instructions could duplicate his performance.

Of course the chalk was the ordinary kind but Carr's trick sent undiscovered for many years while he was piling up a fortune and becoming one of the greatest players in the world.

The game developed many great champions and not a few trick stylists. Charles Peterson, one of the world's greatest players turned to trickshots following an accident—and became one of the best.

One of his favorites (try this on junior's table in the rec room) was the silver dollar trick. The coin is placed in a standing position between two pieces of cue chalk. You shoot at the dollar, driving it forward, even as you pull back the cue ball with reverse English without the ball touching the chalk.

The dollar is driven to the rail, rebounds, returns, and passes between the undisturbed pieces of chalk. Try it the night before—not the morning after.

The story is told that Hoppe, out for a walk on a rainy evening entered a billiards parlor, shook his umbrella and sat down to watch the games.

He was approached by a poolhall "shill" and asked if he wanted to play. Hoppe said yes and the shill named the stakes at $50 the game.

The money was put up and the shill generously gave Hoppe the "break." He sat down to watch the stranger and as far as Hoppe is concerned is still sitting there.

For the famous world champion, disdaining a cue, picked up his umbrella, ran out the full game, picked up the $100 and walked out. His opponent had not yet chalked his cue.

Hoppe, now dead, was a wonder man at balkline, three-cushion and billiards. He was known as the world's greatest miracle man with a cue.

Black Weekend

Leafs Drop Three Tilts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs couldn't hit with men on base and now they're 1½ games out of first place in the International League.

The Leafs lost all three games played during the weekend, leaving 22 runners stranded in the process, and fell into second behind the Atlanta Crackers, who won all three of theirs.

The fourth-place Jacksonville Suns stunned Toronto Sunday night with 4-1 and 3-0 defeats as 11 Leaf runners failed to score. Leafs left 11 on in a 4-3 loss to Atlanta Saturday.

The Crackers followed up Saturday's victory with 5-3 and 5-1 triumphs over the last-place Buffalo Bisons Sunday.

In other games Sunday, Syracuse Chiefs swept a pair from Columbus Jets 5-4 and 4-0 while Rochester Red Wings downed Toledo Mud Hens 6-2.

Outfielder Bob Tolan sparked Jacksonville in the first game by getting three hits and scoring three runs. Larry Stubing's 400-foot, two-run homer in the fifth capped the 'Suns' nightcap triumph.

Britain's John Surtees Wins "200"

★★★★★ Heimrath Top Canadian

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP) John Surtees of Britain, one of the four favorites in Saturday's international 100-mile race for sports cars at Mosport Park, won the race and the Player's Cup, but he had to come from behind to do it.

Jim Hall of Midland, Texas, came second in a race that he appeared to be winning. The other two favorites, Jim Clark of Scotland and Bruce McLaren of New Zealand, had to drop out with mechanical troubles.

The chief Canadian threat was Ludwig Heimrath of Toronto, who made a strong bid for first place but had to settle for third with his Ford-powered McLaren.

Surtees, reigning world champion, was one of four who did better than 100 miles an hour in qualifying laps Friday but his average speed for the race run in two heats of 40 laps each was 96.6 miles an hour.

Even at this, his elapsed time was two hours, two minutes, 17.6 seconds, breaking the record of 2:07:42.2 McLaren set here in the Player's 200 last year.

STAYS CLOSE

Surtees kept a record Canadian crowd of 25,000 in suspense throughout the race. He held his Lola T-70 Chev close behind leader McLaren and then Hall when the New Zealander developed transmission trouble on the 23rd lap of the 25-lap heat.

Surtees was in the pits when the flag dropped for the second heat and was late getting away but he worked through the field in the 15th lap to second in 22 laps.

Late in the race, McLaren was forced to give up his terrific bid to get back into contention when his Olds-powered McLaren Special had gear box trouble. Then the Briton went ahead and took the chequered flag.

Hall, whose Chaparral was the only car in the field of 28 with automatic transmission, won the first heat after following McLaren for 22 laps. He was in position to take the second heat when a loose carburetor and manifold and a stuck throttle forced a series of pit stops and lost him the race.

Before he went out, the Texan set a lap record on the 2.45-mile road circuit of one minute, 27.2 seconds — 3.3 seconds faster than McLaren's mark in the Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport last year.

CLARK HAS TROUBLES

Clark, fresh from his victory last Monday in the Indianapolis 500, took his Lotus 30 into the pits on the initial lap of the first heat and finally retired on the 30th lap with a broken universal joint. He was never in contention.

Of the $10,200 prize money, Surtees won $2,500 — $2,000 for his over-all victory, $500 for second place in the over-2,000 cc. class, $100 for fastest qualifying time, $100 for fastest lap and $100 for breaking the lap record.

Heimrath won $600—$500 for third overall and $100 for third in the over-2,000 cc. class.

CAR HEATS UP

Surtees' second pace might have been better had it not been for overheating troubles that plagued him throughout the race.

"I drove by the temperature gauge instead of the tachometer," he said in a post-race interview. "If I had gone faster I would not have finished."

An accident late in the race marred the strong bid Hugh Dibley, Britain's airline pilot was making for third spot with his Lola T70. Dibley touched a slower car on the back straight and plunged off the track, wrecking his machine. He suffered only a cut chin and a shaking-up.

The Canadian Racing Drivers Association, race organizers, announced the record crowd was made up of 47,813 who paid $3 each, an estimated 8,000 children admitted free, and 2,500 pass-holders. Previous record crowd was at the Player's 200 a year ago when paid attendance was 42,224.

Four Tied for Top

Trudeau Blank Madoc

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

MADOC — A four-way tie for first place in the Belleville and District Softball League was the result of Trudeau Motors' 4-0 shutout over the battling young Madoc squad here Saturday night.

All four top clubs see action tonight. Ellis Juniors meet Bloomfield in Picton and Trudeau take tackle Tweed Lombards in Madoc.

Bobby Wannamaker's three-run homer was the telling blow for Trudeau, coming in the seventh frame to end a tight 1-0 contest.

Plane tallied the game's first marker in the fifth. He singled, raced to third when the ball was bobbled and continued home as the throw-in got through the third sacker.

The seventh-inning damage started with Duggan's one-out single. The next man fanned but Locke doubled and Wannamaker cleaned the sacks with his home run to straightaway centre.

Madoc left ten runners on the paths. The losers almost tied it in the sixth when, with runners on second and third, they tried a delayed double steal. A quick play had the man at the plate but the runner at first was called out seconds earlier for leaving the base too soon. Trudeau played errorless heads up ball from the third inning out.

Bill Baldwin picked up his second consecutive relief victory, taking over from Bob Green with the bases loaded and one out in the fourth. Baldwin gave up three singles over the remainder, striking out five and walking two. Green gave up four hits struck out six and passed but one.

Darrel Kramp took the loss with an eight-hit effort. He struck out 10 and issued but one free pass.

Bob Wannamaker with a homer and single, Wally Duggan with a double and single, accounted for half the winner's hits. Rick Locke and Pete Weston had doubles, Bob Green and Ralph Plane singles.

All Madoc hits were singles, with Clayton Whiteman and Charlie Hamilton having two each, Albert Reid, Brian Stewart and Brennan Stewart the others.

Tresh Hits Three Homers In Twin Win

Any Help Will Be Appreciated

The end of the week John Lyris and Price Morris, national weightlifting champions leave for Regina for the Canadian championships.

As was noted in the sports column a few days ago, any financial help from sports-minded people will be gratefully appreciated by the boys and their manager-coach Ken Carr-Braint, 67 Boswell St.

The powers-that-be delray only half the travelling expenses. Some $200 will see the boys through.

Lewis has an excellent chance to make the all-Canada team and it seems a shame that a few dollars should deprive him of the chance.

All donations will be receipted. Any amount will be greatly appreciated by the boys and Mr. Carr-Braint.

Tom Tresh stepped up to the plate in the sixth inning Sunday and hit a ground ball through the infield for a single, driving in a run. The big Yankee Stadium crowd groaned.

Base hits haven't been as commonplace as all that with New York Yankees this season. But the situation was rather special.

The New York centre fielder had hit home runs in his first three times at bat in the second game of the Yankees' doubleheader against Chicago White Sox and the ecstatic crowd was pulling hard for him to make it No. 4.

He finished the game tamely with a popup in the eighth and had to settle for six hits in eight at-bats and five runs batted in as the Yanks swept the twin bill 6-1 and 12-0.

The double victory gave the defending American League champions a three-game winning streak for only the second time this season and moved them up into eighth place.

The second-place White Sox, meanwhile, fell 3½ games behind Minnesota Twins, who walloped Washington Senators 11-2 as Jerry Zimmerman hit the first homer of his five-year major league career.

Elsewhere, Cleveland Indians crushed Detroit Tigers 10-1, Los Angeles Angels blanked Baltimore Orioles 3-0 and Boston Red Sox split a doubleheader with Kansas City Athletics, winning 9-4 and losing 4-3 in 11 innings.

Saturday, Baltimore defeated Los Angeles 7-0, Boston turned back Kansas City 5-3, New York downed Chicago 4-3 in 10 innings, Cleveland took 10 innings to trip Detroit 2-1 and Washington and Minnesota were rained out.

Tresh backed Al Downing's three-hitter by homering right-handed against southpaw Juan Pizarro in the first inning and connecting from the left side against right - hander Bruce Howard in the third and fifth to bring his total for the year to nine.

In the opener, Whitey Ford allowed only four hits, including a homer by Ron Hansen, before giving way to reliever Hal Reniff in the eighth inning.

Jack Kralick and reliever Gary Bell held Detroit to five hits and Cleveland pulled away from the Tigers with five runs in the eighth inning, two on Max Alvis's seventh homer.

Left-hander Rudy May shut out Baltimore on five hits and the Angels gave him all the help he needed in the first inning, scoring on a walk, a catcher's interference call, an error by Orioles pitcher Jim Palmer and an infield out.

The Red Sox broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning of the opener at Kansas City on Felix Mantilla's run - scoring double and pulled out of reach with six runs in the eighth. Mike Hershberger's 11th - inning single scored Nelson Mathews, breaking up the nightcap and snapping the Athletics' seven-game losing streak.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (CP-AP)— Kathy Whitworth ignored a steady downpour Sunday to capture top prize in the $8,500 Bluegrass invitational golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 213. She won $1,350. Margaret Masters, an Australian native now living in Ottawa, shot a 76 Sunday and ended with a 222 total.

AHL Fails To Agree On Interlock

Shore Uncertain

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Eight representatives of the nine-team American Hockey League Sunday night failed to reach agreement on a proposed interlocking schedule with the Western Hockey League.

The AHL meeting recessed until 9 a.m. today, with 30 minutes before a scheduled joint session with the WHL is to be held to decide the issue.

The two minor leagues met in separate sessions prior to today's opening of the National Hockey League's annual meeting.

At least one club owner — Eddie Shore of Springfield — said he had not made up his mind. He said he did not like the fact the clubs in each league would play a different number of games.

WOULD PLAY FOUR

The agreement, if passed, would call for the nine AHL clubs to play four games each with the seven cities, while six clubs of the WHL would play six games each against AHL clubs—a total of 36 games for each league.

The subject of an interlocking schedule was first proposed by the WHL at last year's NHL meeting. Since that time, presidents Al Leader of the western circuit and Jack Riley of the American body, have exchanged visits to present their views to other league. governors.

A spokesman for the AHL said Sunday night his organization was "receptive" to the WHL idea, but that it was more positive, having come prepared to accept the proposal immediately.

Both leagues will propose rule changes to NHL President Clarence Campbell before the joint rules committee meets this afternoon.

The Western League would like to see adoption of a no-icing call for situations in which a penalized player returns to the ice while an iced puck is still in motion.

The AHL proposed that when equal penalties are called, immediate substitution be allowed thus enabling the teams to play at full strength throughout the penalty period. Montreal Canadiens' general manager Sam Pollock met with his New York Rangers' counterpart, Emile Francis, for more than an hour Sunday night.

Pollock said following the meeting that if any trades resulted from the meeting, they would be announced Tuesday.

Three Double Winners

Emlen Hanover Wins Feature

Sam "the Man" Multholland, who once was a six-to-five shot at a pro hockey player not too many years ago, is cashing off some of his speed on the harness jousting circuit with Diller's young trotter "Mighty Lass C.".

Sam was one of three drivers to score double wins at the Fair Grounds "Greenbine" Saturday night in the second seasonal meet of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club.

Nearly 700 (696 paid admission) saw Multholland take his mare under the wire in the three - quarter dash and mile heat to ward off the challenge of Brighter Days and Space pick.

Atomic Selka threw off the threats of Jacken and Alotta Gratton to take the dash and mile in the second and sixth events in 1.41, 2-5 and 2.17. It paid $4.60 and $7.00.

Luella Scott, the third double-winner, raced to victory in the 4th and 8th events defeating Double Star and Chuck's Delivery in 1.41.1 and 2.18.3. Prices were $5.30 and $4.10.

Reg. Bailey took Margaret Wann under the wire ahead of the five-horse pack in the mile opener in 2.18., and a $4.70 return to the backers. Nida Dillard and Eevon Way finished in place and show.

As was expected Bolley's R. Yankee Wann who finished a top double winner at last Saturday's opener was the fifth event dash in the fastest time of the night. 1.37, 4-5.

Yankee Wann finished in fron. of stable - mate Leo Wann with Lint making its debut here in the show spot. The winner paid $4.00.

But it was a different story in the ninth event mile race.

Parsons Win Over Dutchmen

Belleville Parsons outplayed the Flying Dutchmen by a healthy margin but settled for a 3-1 victory over the Kingston Club in a Kingston and District Soccer League fixture here Saturday night.

Parsons, now with a 2-1 record, make their next start at Zwick's Island next Saturday night, against Kingston Sports Club. Kick - off is at 6.30.

The winners ran into some fine goalkeeping by the Dutchman goalie, especially in the second half when they potted a single goal to clinch the decision.

Bob Main fired wide on a penalty shot early in the game and play remained at end to end for some time before Parsons moved ahead 1-0.

The goal came on a three - way play with Bob Rutherford heading the ball home after Jaeger had taken a pass from Graham Geldart and lobbed the ball into the goalmouth.

Kingston tied it minutes later when J. Hermson grabbed a loose ball and beat Herb Mosier with a high shot from in close.

Just before half time, Main good play started Rutherford away and his pass hit Alan Brown, through the defence and Brown slammed home what turned out to be the game-winning goal.

Jim Patterson finally combined the scoring after Rutherford lobbed the ball into the goalmouth and Peter Crowie pushed it back to his mate for the hard drive.

A bright spot for Parsons was the return to action of Norm Carter after a three - year retirement. Carter showed much of his old style and speed with some clever ball control in a good performance.

Dryadale First To Win 10

Phils' Callison Belts 3 Four-baggers

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

National League catchers, beware. The next time you throw out Maury Wills trying to steal, Jim Gilliam may hit a home run.

Los Angeles Dodgers unveiled that new weapon in maintaining their three-game league lead over Milwaukee in a doubleheader with the Braves Sunday. The Dodgers won the opener 4-0 before losing 8-4.

Wills, holder of the major league base - stealing record, and Gilliam, less than two weeks removed from his coaching job, worked their play to perfection once in each game.

Wills doubled in the third inning of the opener, then was thrown out by Joe Torre attempting to steal third. Gilliam swung at rookie Dick Kelley's next pitch and lofted it into the left-field bleachers for a home and a 1-0 Los Angeles lead.

In the first inning of the second game, Wills led off with a single but was not trying to steal second, again on a throw from Torre. Denny Lemaster was the Milwaukee pitcher this time, and his next pitch also wound up in the left-field bleachers for a home run by Gilliam and another 1-0 Dodger lead.

Gilliam, who started the season as a coach but was re-activated as a player May 28, collected four hits Sunday while scoring three runs and driving in three, rocketing his average to .310.

Elsewhere in the league, Cincinnati Reds blanked San Francisco Giants 4-0, Pittsburgh Pirates swept New York Mets 8-3 and 3-0, Philadelphia Phillies split with Houston Astros 2-1 and 10-9 and Houston Astros bombed St. Louis Cardinals 10-1.

In Saturday's games, Milwaukee downed Los Angeles 9-3, Pittsburgh thumped New York 9-0, Chicago edged Philadelphia 9-8, St. Louis defeated Houston 4-3 in 12 innings and San Francisco nipped Cincinnati 1-0.

Don Drysdale became the first pitcher in the majors to win 10 games, checking the Braves on six hits in Sunday's first game. He also clocked his 22nd homer of his career and the second this season.

Milwaukee's Gene Oliver drove in three runs with two homers in the nightcap.

Sammy Ellis won his ninth game against two defeats, stopping the Giants on five hits. Don Pavelitch singled home two runs in the Reds' three-run third.

Bob Veale posted his second straight shutout and drove in two runs with a single in the Pirates' first-game victory as well as extending his scoreless inning streak to 24.

Roberto Clemente homered in the nightcap against Warren Spahn after collecting two doubles and a triple in the first game, knocking in two runs.

John Callison drilled three home runs for Philadelphia in the second game, his two-run blast in the ninth inning proving to be the winning margin after the Cubs rallied for three runs in their half of the inning. The last two came on Billy Williams' home run.

Williams also homered in the opener for the only run off Ray Culp, who pitched a five-hitter. Gonzalez rapped two singles and drove in both Phillie runs.

Houston's Claude Raymond, a native of St. Jean, Que., made his first major league start after 140 games as a reliever and held the Cardinals to seven hits. Lee Maye, Jim Gentile and Jim Wynn backed Raymond with homers, Gentile's being his first as a National Leaguer and his 11th of the season.

Hits Homer With Broken Bat

CHICAGO (AP) — "There was a big whomp, and there I was with half a bat in my hand and not even knowing where the ball was."

That's how Johnny Callison described the first of his three homers in Philadelphia Phils' nightcap of a doubleheader against Chicago Cubs Sunday.

In the opening inning, Callison smashed a Larry Jackson pitch. The bat broke. The Phils' classy right fielder, who slammed 31 home runs last season, ran towards first base, clutching half the bat. The other half skittered down first base line and was fielded by Ernie Banks.

"Of course, I've never hit a broken-bat homer in my life, said Callison. "I hit the pitch on the meaty part of bat. All of a sudden there was a whomp, whomp and I had half the bat in my hand. There was no sting in my hands like there usually is when a bat breaks."

Phil manager Gene Mauch said it was the first time he ever had seen a broken-bat homer or even heard of one.

Callison collected two more homers and a single before the nightcap was over, with the Phils winning 10-0 to sweep the doubleheader.

Retains Trapshoot Title

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP)—Ed Wladichuk of Ancaster, Ont., retained the title he won last year by taking the Ontario all-round trapshooting championship at the St. Thomas Gun Club Sunday.

Wladichuk shattered a grand total of 373 clay birds out of 400 in the three-event competition which ended Sunday.

The three-day shoot, fired in perfect weather, established an attendance record as more than 200 shooters from many Ontario and United States centres blasted away for the honors with a variety of 12-gauge shotguns ranging in price from $85 to $2,000.

Runner-up to Wladichuk was Doug Norton of Cooksville, Ont., with 372. Norton emerged Saturday by smashing his way to victory in the 200-target, 16-yard singles with a 187 score. It marked the second successive year he won the title.

WINS HANDICAP

The three-day handicap title was won by Lloyd Moore of Ingersoll, Ont., who broke 95 of 100 targets at 27 yards. Moore won his crown after a 25-bird shoot-off against George Bulloch of Dundas, Ont., and Jack Gallpeau of Welland, to break a 96-all deadlock. Bulloch and Gallpeau then had to shoot off for the runnerup spot, won by Gallpeau.

Shooting down 99 of 100 targets, Ricky McGarry of Niagara Falls, Ont., captured the double title. Wladichuk was second with 98.

First Golfer To Score Buick Ace

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Archie Dadien became the first golfer in the eight - year history of the Buick Open golf tournament to score a hole in one when he aced the 204-yard third hole Saturday.

The Milwaukee native, in his second season on the circuit, used a No. 3 wood for his ace. It was the sixth hole in one on the tour this year.

THIEF WAS RELUCTANT

STANMORE, England (CP)—Radio personality Sam Costa came home from a three-week holiday to find his house had been burgled. The raider was evidently a fan—he left a note saying, "Sorry it was you"—but he still took £200-worth of antiques.

Pro Boxing Revival Big Flop

Six of the 10 boxers scheduled to appear failed to arrive at Maple Leaf Stadium. Their substitutes, many of them out of shape, at times were jeered by the crowd.

Schmidt, 150 pounds, defeated poor - conditioned Red Davis, 152, of Boston when special referee Willie Pep stopped the fight at 20 seconds of the second round.

Barazza, 210 pounds, defeated veteran Eddie Andrews, 196, of Boston, at 2:40 of the third round after Andrews was knocked down three times.

Michel Brule, one of a committee formed to organize the protest, said the petition would be presented to Canadian Ambassador Jules Leger Wednesday.

LAYMEN CONTROL SCHOOLS

VANCOUVER (CP) — In a step that may be unique in the Roman Catholic world, more than 29,000 members of the church voted Sunday to give laymen control over Catholic schools in the huge Vancouver archdiocese. The laity will elect parish and archdiocesan school boards and support the system with a monthly levy. The plan will cover 68 parishes of British Columbia.

Latta Loses To Read 7-3

Read snapped a 1-1 deadlock with five runs in the sixth inning when Latta committed six of the club's ten errors. Read errored four times for a total of 14 miscues.

Latta has another home game tonight, against Foxboro, at 6:45.

Frank Farrell pitched the route for Read, allowing only three hits but walking nine. He struck out four.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Are you a discontented housewife? Then listen to the saga of Phyllis Diller, who broke out of the kitchen at age 37.

That was 10 years ago. Since then she has become a leading figures of show business, a laugh - getter who can draw $500,000 a year.

How did it all happen?

"I was one of those life-of-the party types," she explained during a brief stopover between engagements. "You'll find them in every bridge club at every country club. People invited me to parties only because they knew I would supply some laughs. They still do."

Then her husband, Sherwood Diller, urged her to have a go at making laughs for pay.

She tried out for a job at San Francisco's Purple Onion and won it. But while other performers of the San Francisco scene—Kingston Trio, Mort Sahl, Smothers Brothers—found early success, Phyllis did not.

But after five years of playing places from coast to coast, her unique style began to click with night club and television audiences. She comes onstage with outlandish garb and a frizz of white hair, and talks about housewifery, learning to drive and other such things.

Lately she has been playing concert dates with amazing success. At Melodyland near Disneyland recently, she pulled in $95,251 for one week.

Beauty Contest Show Was Amateurish Say Critics

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The only prime - time special television program during the weekend was a beauty contest. Organized, fully sponsored TV glad watching is exclusively a warm weather preoccupation.

As all these years of photographing girls in swim suits and ball gowns, television has been unable to break out of a rigid production formula for this type of diversion.

As the Friday night's Miss U.S.A. program, there is a liberal quantity of celebrities, a dash of innocuous entertainment and close-ups of the girls. The contestants always seem jittery, the professional performers appear ill at ease and the whole show takes on an awkward, amateurish air. But the audience is there to look at the girls, so apparently the form the show takes doesn't matter.

After its long concentration on the Grand Canyon flight involving lavish use of money and personnel, the television networks must be having serious thoughts about handling future flights which will get fewer and less exciting to the public.

Inter-network rivalry was the single most important factor for TV's marathon coverage on the day of launching. The cooperative coverage after it had ceased to be a television story.

Preliminary audience sampling indicated that CBS and NBC wound up in almost a dead heat in the ratings and ABC trailed behind.

The most interesting story for the average listener after the flight was running smoothly was radio — conversations between the astronauts and their wives in space and their wives.

The Beatles will be on television every week starting this fall as well as a cartoon series aimed at the Saturday morning children's audience. The half-hour series on ABC will feature animated drawings of John, Paul, George and Ringo, plus recordings of the singing four.—o.e.

Chuvalo Fights Tonight

Chuvalo, who has won 30 fights, 26 by knockouts, is scheduled to fight Dave Bailey of Philadelphia, in a 10-rounder June 19 at Glace Bay, N.S. Chuvalo has been guaranteed $2,000 for tonight's match and $7,500 to meet Bailey.

Canadian bantamweight champion Jackie Burke of Saint John meets Roger Frechette of Lowell, Mass., in another 10-round bout tonight. Burke won a split decision over Frechette here in March.

Meanwhile, Chuvalo is awaiting word on an offer to fight Clay in a Sept. 5 bout in Toronto.

The offer was made Friday by the Canadian Boxing International Association of Toronto in a telegram to Bill Faversham, a member of a group of Louisville, Ky., promoters. The fight would net Clay a guaranteed $750,000.

Clay had said after the Leviston bout he wanted to fight former champion Floyd Patterson first, and then meet Chuvalo.

"A Clay - Patterson fight wouldn't draw peanuts," Ungerman says. "The people want Chuvalo and Clay."

Tops, Flops and Flukes Of Broadway Reviewed

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Highlights and footnotes of Broadway's just-completed production year:

There were 53 show arrivals, 10 fewer than during the 1963-64 season. Eighteen are still running, six palpable hits and the rest hopeful.

Of the 35 exhibits, three made money. Five other exhibits costing a total of $1,300,000 collapsed before they got to town. On the bright side of the ledger, 10 long-run completed engagements with a cool $7,300,000 profit.

So much for the arithmetic which angels, agents, playwrights and promoters can mull as they prepare premieres for the season starting in September. Adorning the statistical aspects an array of major and minor happenings staked claims to audience attention.

This is an aisle-seat selection of tops, flops and flukes to be remembered:

Biggest bomb: Kelly, setting a record loss of $650,000.

Craziest program credit: For some seaweed used in Luv.

Standout director: Mike Nichols, stager of two shows earned quite a bit more critical cheers, The Odd Couple and Luv.

Best named show: Fade Out-Fade In, which opened and closed twice.

Most hummed song: Who Can I Turn To? from The Roar of the Greasepaint—The Smell of the Crowd.

Biggest Rhobarb: The basic all-over change of command in the Lincoln Center Repertory Company.

Best play: The Subject Was Roses.

Best musical: Fiddler on the Roof.

Champion trouper: Maurice Chevalier at 77.

Biggest unanswered question: The meaning of Tiny Alice.

U. S. Missile Subs Now on Firing Stations

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States missile submarines have been on firing stations off the Chinese and eastern Russian coasts for six months—apparently undetected by the Communists.

Up to Saturday, none of the four Polaris submarines in the Western Pacific force had reported any approach by anti-submarine ships, submarines or aircraft which might be seeking to plot positions for use in event of hostilities.

The U.S. Navy also has anti-submarine forces, including nuclear - powered attack submarines, deployed in the Western Pacific. One of their missions is to warn of the presence of foreign submarines or ships.

Soviet craft and planes are seen in the closer-in Sea of Japan on occasions when U.S. ships operate in those waters, but the Russian ships and planes appear to be engaged in routine air and surface activities.

The tubes of the four Polaris boats already deployed are 64 missiles with a total destructive power of more than 64,000,000 tons of TNT. The range of these missiles reaches deep into Russian Siberia and covers all major targets in China.

The four submarines now deployed are the Daniel Boone, Tecumseh, Ulysses S. Grant and Stonewall Jackson. Later this year or early in 1966 the two remaining subs of the Western Polaris force will arrive. The two are expected to be the Kamehameha and Marianno G. Vallejo.

City Baseball Teams Win Over Cobourg

Belleville pewees and tykes scored victories over Cobourg teams here Saturday in minor baseball play at Park Dale.

No score card was turned in for the tyke game so figures are scarce.

Belleville had seven hits and one error for the eight runs, while Cobourg's three runs came on seven hits and four errors.

Ron McTaggart pitched the first six innings while striking out 11 and walking four. John Mulvihill got the side in order while pitching the last frame, striking out two.

The peewee Merchants scored three runs in pairs, in the first, third and fifth innings, while blanking the visitors.

Moe Thompson tossed four-hit ball to earn the victory, fanning six and walking two. Paul Hall did the catching.

Bob Burge and Bill Gadd gave up seven hits between them for Cobourg, whiffing seven and walking five. Randy MacGregor was their receiver.

All Belleville hits were singles with two apiece for Glen Carleton and Barry Culkin. Terry Meagher, Mario Venutti and Austin Wilson had the others.

The twin victories gave Belleville clubs a record of seven wins and no defeats against out-of-town opposition so far this season.

Senior Baseball

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Pontiacs waited until last Friday to open their senior Inter-County Baseball Association schedule, but already they're alone in first place.

The Pontiacs won their second game in as many starts Sunday by handing the Guelph CKOX a 5-1 defeat.

The loss, Guelph's first against two victories, knocked the CKOX into second. Saturday night Guelph downed Galt Terriers 5-3, scoring four runs in the last three innings.

Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers scored their first victory of the season Saturday night, turning back Brantford Red Sox 4-2 on a five-hitter by Howie Hupp.

George McGuire, who didn't play last season, made a spark ling return by stifling Guelph on six hits over the seven innings he pitched. He struck out six and walked one before giving way to relief pitcher Gary Newitt in the eighth.

Guelph's Don Tumbley led eight teams with three hits, including a triple.

Guelph had 14 hits in its victory Saturday, including a home run and two doubles by John Skinner. Larry Cunningham homered for Galt. Brantford helped Kitchener-Waterloo to its win Saturday by making six errors. Only one Panther run was earned.

MEILLEUR SCORES TKO

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Meilleur of Toronto scored a technical knockout over Lee Hall of Boston in a professional boxing match Sunday. Hall, who weighed in at 167, was unable to answer the bell for the fifth round because of a head injury. The win gave the 26th to a row for Meilleur, ranked second among Canada's middleweights.

Tom Rolfe Second

Hail To All Wins Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) —Hail to All's neck victory over Preakness winner Tom Rolfe in the $147,000 Belmont Stakes, with lightly-regarded First Family a closeup third and favored Dapper Dan fourth, proved one thing. It is going to take a lot more racing to decide the 1965 three-year-old championship.

When Mrs. Ben Cohen's son of Hail to Reason struck from behind Saturday at Aqueduct under the lash of comeback jockey Johnny Sellers' whip, he definitely moved into the running for the title won by Canadian - bred Northern Dancer last year. It left him sharing triple crown honors with Tom Rolfe and Lucky Debonair, winner of the Kentucky Derby.

Sellers, not a bowling success since riding to fame aboard Carry Back four years ago and taken off the colt in the Kentucky Derby, timed his stretch run just right.

He drew the line mighty fine but it was enough to earn $140,150 and boost his week's winnings to $191,065.

Ron Turcotte, the Grand Falls, N.B., jockey who rode Tom Rolfe in all three classics, had no excuses for the runner-up.

"We were in the clear all the way and when the real racing started through the lane we had the room we needed," said the 23-year-old rider.

"The winner went by me one time coming to the eighth pole and then little Tom came on again but he just didn't make it."

Hail to All was timed in 2:28 2-5 for the 1½ miles.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP) —Gallant Romeo, ridden by J. Grahma Brown of Louisville, took a five-length victory Saturday in the $28,460 Olympia Handicap before 29,504 horse-racing fans at Arlington Park in Chicago.

Gallant, Romeo, carrying 114 pounds, went the 6½ furlongs in 1:15 2-5. He returned $22.60 and paid $12.80, $4.80 and $3.60. National returned $3.40 and $3. Cosdave was $4.60 to show.

At Oceanport, N.J., Uncle Percy scored his fourth straight victory by taking the $17,525 Oceanport Handicap at Monmouth Park Race Track

Uncle Percy, the favorite ridden by Edward Melvor, opened a four-length lead on the turn and went on to win by 1½ lengths over Isaduchess. Lucky Turn was third.

TIMED IN :58 1-5

Uncle Percy ran the five furlongs on the grass in :58 1-5 seconds and paid $4.20, $3 and $2.60. Isaduchess returned $3.60 and $3.20 with Lucky Turn $4.60 to show.

At Stanton Hall Tradewood sped to a surprise victory over eight other three-year-olds in the $29,970 Kent at Delaware Park.

The son of Swaps, clocked in 1:44 4-5 for the mile, went to set the favorite, Gummo, with four lengths to spare and returned $20.20, $5.60 and $3.60.

Senior Lacrosse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brooklin Merchants waited until the third period to explode for nine goals and run their Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior series' unbeaten streak to six games Saturday.

The defending Mann Cup champions kept their hold on first place with a 16-9 victory over Port Credit Indians.

In other Saturday games Brampton held its grip on second place by defeating Peterborough 17-8 while Huntsville Hawks moved into a third-place tie with Galt by making six-place St. Catharines Athletics.

Don Craig, who left the game early with a misconduct penalty, scored three goals for Brooklin. Grant Heffernan, Garry Burrows, Ken Crawford and Bob Hanna added two apiece while Glen Ludlow, Ken Ludlow, Don Bruce, Doug Vipond and Mike Gray scored one each.

Port Credit was led by Heath Kreman with four goals. Judd Kowalski, Flory Tomchichen, Brian Abearne, Ross Oliham and Doug McCreary rounded the others.

Wins Buick Open

Tony Pulls the Corks!

It might also be a good idea for him to buy an interest in a winery specializing in champagne.

Champagne Tony treated the press and officials to some of the bubbly stuff Sunday after pocketing the $20,000 first prize with an eight-under-par 280 in the eighth annual Buick Open golf tournament.

Lema, the defending champion, became the first double winner in the tournament played over the rugged 7,280-yard course of the Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club.

Besides the $20,000 pot, first place also gave Tony the use of a new car every year for the next five years. He got the same in the Buick last year and a Ford in the Thunderbird.

This brought on his quip: "I may have to open a used car lot if this keeps up."

Johnny Pott took second money of $12,000 with a 282 total when Nicklaus ran into trouble and a final 74-place 284. Julius Boros, winner two years ago, finished third with a 283.

No Canadians survived the 36-hole cutoff.

Had Surgery On Feet

Not Through Yet—Kidd

TORONTO (CP)—Track star Bruce Kidd, both feet in casts following surgery, says he isn't through as a middle - distance runner. But he's not sure whether he will run in competition or only for personal gratification.

"I love the sport," he said in an interview Saturday, "but I don't know if I will have the time to treat it as more than a recreation."

He admitted as "half - true" New Zealand track coach Arthur Lydiard's assessment before the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo that Kidd was "burned out".

Kidd came in 36th of 39 finishers in the 10,000 metre race and was badly beaten in the 5,000 at Tokyo.

Since then he has had two operations to correct pulled tendons and remove scar tissue and bone from the heel of his left foot.

Lydiard said he blames Kidd's training program rather than his injuries for his showing.

DISMISSES INJURIES

Although he said in November, 1964, that his left heel was "always sore and aching" and he experienced "quite a sharp pain when he ran," Kidd has always refused to admit the possible effects of his injuries on his performances.

But he also dismisses Lydiard's analysis that over - strenuous physical conditioning caused his poor showing at Tokyo.

Most important, he says, were personal factors.

Yanks Blank Canada

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (CP) — Canada's hopes of getting off the bottom rung of the tennis ladder were dashed Sunday when the United States completed a sweep of five matches in American zone Davis Cup competition.

The Americans swept two singles matches from the Canadians Sunday after taking the doubles Saturday and two singles matches Friday.

Arthur Ashe defeated Harry Fauquier of Toronto 6-4, 6-4, 6-0 in the final match after Gene Scott had handed Keith Carpenter of Montreal a 6-3, 6-3, 7-5 setback in Sunday's opener.

Chuck McKinley and Marty Riessen combined for a 9-6, 6-2, 6-3 doubles victory over Fauquier and Carpenter in a doubles match Saturday to clinch the series.

Ashe defeated Carpenter 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 and Scott handed a 6-3, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 loss to Fauquier in the opening day's singles.

Canada had sent its best-conditioned team in years to the competition but managed to win only one set, Fauquier's 6-4 win over Scott in the third set of Saturday's match.

Retains World Title

MANILA (AP)—Flash Elorde of the Philippines retained his world junior lightweight title by knocking out Japan's Teru Kosaka in the final minute of their brutal 15-round fight Saturday night.

The 30-year-old Filipino dominated the bout, his fifth against the tough Japanese challenger, and floored Kosaka three times. The final knockdown brought a dramatic end to the bloody battle staged before 60,000 spectators.

A series of fights to the body put Kosaka almost out on his feet, then Elorde stepped back and whistled in a crushing overhand right to the mouth that dropped the younger boxer.

Kosaka got to his feet at the count of eight but before the fight could resume he toppled to the mat.

Elorde, making the eighth defence of the title he won five years ago and in his 89th professional fight, weighed the division-limit of 130 pounds, 12½ for his 24-year-old opponent.

Le Grand Charles Has Slogan

Frankreich Uber Alles His Policy

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP) — Under President Charles de Gaulle, it has been said (and only half in jest), that French foreign policy can be summed up in a single phrase: Frankreich uber alles.

This is a paraphrase of the old German slogan and can be translated roughly as "France first of all."

This is de Gaulle's creed and it shows in every move the French foreign ministry makes. A devotion to the nation-state has long been a hallmark of de Gaulle's character, and in France today foreign policy is strictly a one-man show with de Gaulle in all the roles.

A deeply mystical faith in his nation is the impelling force in de Gaulle's determination to re-establish France as one of he world's great powers.

In a recent television address de Gaulle waxed almost lyrical in praise of the nation-state as a vehicle for human progress. Many challenge this idea as having died with the two world wars and even de Gaulle compromises a bit to conform with current realities. But once his basic premise is accepted, de Gaulle's policy and purposes become at least understandable.

They are what might be expected from someone born in the last century and deeply stepped in his country's history, perhaps unduly attached to the glorious pages of that story and endowed with a sense of personal historic mission.

SEEKS DOMINATION

De Gaulle is simply following the footsteps of Richelieu, Louis XIV, Napoleon and Napoleon III in a drive to dominate Europe and then utilize this as his base for a big power role on the world stage. In this thinking, Paris would not merely be a member of the allied team, but rather a separate power centre to be reckoned with in Washington and Moscow.

For this reason de Gaulle has insisted on conducting an independent policy toward China, Viet Nam, the Middle East, South America, etc., in an effort to build or restore French influence in all parts of the globe. Hence, too, de Gaulle's insistence on having his own nuclear force which could be invoked without anyone else's permission.

And de Gaulle steadfastly opposes anything which can be construed as an infringement of France's full, complete sovereignty.

As to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, de Gaulle makes a distinction between the alliance as such and the organization which administers or implements it. He opposes the integrated command system because this interferes with complete control of France's own forces.

He doesn't want to destroy NATO, only to use it for his own nationalistic purposes.

PREVENTS COMPETITION

De Gaulle kept Britain out of the Common Market to prevent British competition for leadership and to insure that France would be the only member with a nuclear arsenal. De Gaulle signed the friendship treaty with West Germany to form an entity overshadowing the Common Market, with the Germans in the role of junior partner. After all, West Germany is still only half a country and is likely to remain that way for a long time. Italy and the Benelux countries (Belgium, Holland and Luxemburg), are almost forced to go along with whatever the French-German combine wishes.

At least, all that has been the theory. This is a sort of extension of the nation-state concept to Western Europe, with France very much in the driver's seat.

With control of Western Europe, France could then push its influence out to Scandinavia, the Iberian Peninsula, central Europe, and, who knows? But the big question is whether de Gaulle can really keep the Germans and the Italians and Benelux in hand. Thus far, he hasn't had too much success.

The president's ideas of French grandeur are hardly surprising in view of de Gaulle's background. He was born into a patriotic family of northern France in 1890, just 20 years after the great humiliation of 1870 at the hands of Bismarck's Germany, and he became of age in the years when all France was concentrating on revenge.

Ten-year Attack Prepared

TORONTO (CP)—A ten-year attack on alcoholism on a "treatment principle" rather than a "punishment principle" was announced in the Ontario legislature Monday.

Health Minister Matthew Dymond said the government has decided to recognize alcoholism as a public health problem and intends to introduce legislation regarding public drunkenness.

Mr. Dymond estimated that Ontario has 100,000 alcoholics.

The government program includes stepped-up high school education efforts, expanded advertising aimed at adults and industrial and community programs to recognize and treat alcoholics.

The Alcohol and Drug Research Foundation will begin immediately to establish in-patient centres of 250 to 400 beds each in the four or five university centres in Ontario where professional health training is now concentrated, the health minister said.

NEED MORE DOCTORS

He said at least four times as many specially-trained doctors, social workers, psychologists and nurses will be needed.

Mr. Dymond estimated that in 10 years, when the program is fully developed, it will cost $18,000,000 a year to maintain.

"No other province has yet taken such a step and, remember too, we do this alone, although I continue to press the federal government to support us in this program," Dr. Dymond said.

The Health Minister also announced that starting Sept. 1, 1966, students up to the age of 21 will be covered under the Ontario Hospital Insurance family plan.

Students who reach the age of 19 now must take out separate coverage. Students who earn

Firefighters Meet In City For Convention

Convention activity caught fire in Belleville today—and for the next three days all roads lead to the city for Ontario firefighters.

Close to 150 delegates are now in session in Belleville as the Provincial Federation of Ontario Professional Fire Fighters hold its 43rd convention.

The program was launched this morning as Mayor Jack Ellis formally bade the delegates welcome in the Hotel Quinte's Pinnacle Room—which will house most of the serious discussions up to Thursday when the convention ends.

No matter how rancorous the secret business sessions become, this morning's brief ceremonies at least started the events on a note of public good humor.

Mayor Ellis told the firefighters he looked forward to meeting them at tomorrow night's Club Casara banquet—the social highlight of the convention.

"Don't come tomorrow night. You'd better come Wednesday night," warned fire inspector Robert Fair, president of Belleville's Local 497.

"Unless I'm wrong, tomorrow night is Wednesday night," pointed out Mayor Ellis.

The inspector was only momentarily nonplussed.

"You see, ladies and gentlemen, when you're in your company the time passes so fast," he retorted as delegates and wives applauded his quick recovery.

Seriously, the mayor told the convention: "You as firemen have the lives of some six million residents of Ontario in your hands and I urge you to study hard and learn well at this convention."

Also welcoming the delegates were police inspector Ralph Blatchford and fire chief Ted Poste.

Immediately afterward, the delegates went into their first secret session.

After assembling for an official group picture on the steps of the Hastings County court house, they paraded through the downtown area to the city armory.

There they assembled around a plain, steel cross for a memorial service led by Salvation Army Major B. Burnett.

The procession was accom

Buddhist Centre Isolated As Viet Cong Cut Highway

DA NANG (CP) — Thirty - three American jets hit the Vinh supply depot in North Viet Nam again today and pilots reported heavy damage to the target despite intense anti-aircraft fire.

The raid on Vinh, 160 miles south of Hanoi, was the heaviest reported as American planes continued to hammer at targets north of the demilitarized zone. Spokesmen said all planes returned safely to their land bases or carrier bases.

Navy pilots said they destroyed 50-per-cent of the Co Dinh power plant about nine miles south of Thanh Hoa. Six air force bombers claimed they sank two barges and four sampans.

Guerrillas severed land communications between the main cities of Da Nang and Hue in northern South Viet Nam today in renewed attacks on the country's lifeline, Highway 1.

The Viet Cong cut the road by detonating an explosive charge under a bridge in the mountainous Aivan pass, 10 miles north of Da Nang.

The bridge explosion early today completely isolated Hue, the former imperial capital and centre of the Buddhist movement, from Da Nang, 60 miles to the south.

Other guerrilla sabotage attacks have kept the railway that runs beside the highway out of action for the last month.

Election Threats Fill Air

OTTAWA (CP) — Election talk and threats of a prolonged debate were tossed about in the Commons Monday as MPs sweated over the government's controversial proposal for a rule to permit debates to be halted.

The Conservatives, opposed to the guillotine proposal that they considered a modified form of closure, held the floor all day and fielded eight speakers to oppose the measure.

With the debate in its 11th day, the Commons atmosphere was reminiscent of the long, hot summer of 1964 when MPs drooned on for weeks about the flag issue.

Only a handful of spectators in the Commons galleries and the Speaker were attentive, as most MPs read newspapers, chatted or sipped iced water behind the curtains while their colleagues spoke.

The central figure in the talk was George McIlraith, the Privy Council President who was reported to have said a prolonged holdup on the bill could bring about an election.

REMAINS SILENT

He remained silent as a parade of Conservatives raked him over the coals and challenged him to call an election. The Conservatives and other opposition parties have accepted the bulk of the government's package bill to streamline House rules, but the Conservatives are strongly opposed to the debate-limiting provision.

The government has already amended it once to guarantee a minimum of six days debate on a bill, plus up to two days for any amendment, but this has not satisfied the opponents.

The reform includes an all-party business committee to attempt to reach agreement on lengths for debates. Failing agreement a cabinet minister could move a motion, debatable for one day, to set out limits for each stage of a bill.

The Conservatives have an amendment on the floor that would permit application of guillotine only if 60 per cent of the Commons members were in favor. In the present minority Parliament this would prevent the Conservatives, who hold 35 per cent of the seats, blocking the rule alone but also prevent the government applying it with only a simple majority.

Mr. McIlraith has argued that the amendment is unconstitutional because it infringes a British North America Act provision that says all Commons voting is on a majority basis.

Space Twins Active, Talkative, Cheerful

By YERN HAUGHLAND

ABOARD USS WASP (AP)—James McDivitt and Edward White, who won the admiration and affection of millions of people around the world during their historic four-day mission, faced further medical tests today while awaiting the special sort of welcome Americans reserve for their space heroes.

Reports from space doctors aboard this aircraft carrier—the recovery ship—were that the Gemini IV twins returned from their 1,609,684-mile journey not only safe but sound.

Dr. Howard Minners, the astronauts' doctor, said the pair apparently had encountered "no problems" as a result of their 97 hours and 57 minutes of weightlessness. They were "active, talkative and cheerful," he said.

Millions of viewers in the United States and Canada who stayed glued to their televisions during the dramatic landing sequence that ended with splashdown at 1:13 p.m. EDT Monday, were equally cheerful.

They included President Johnson.

"I just wanted to say to you and Maj. White 'well done'," Johnson said to McDivitt by telephone shortly after the two had been plucked from the Atlantic and landed safely on the deck on the Wasp at 2:00 p.m. in a thunderous ovation from the recovery ship's crew.

"We're all in this country very proud of you, and I think the entire world is grateful for what you've done and particularly for your safe return," Johnson said.

"You've both written your name in history and in our hearts."

Then the president invited White and McDivitt to his Texas ranch this weekend where he said he had been "saving a little something for you"—presumably some sort of award.

Mayor Robert Wagner of New York also invited them there

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Warm humid air that covered all southern Ontario has moved eastward. This will result in mainly sunny weather over most of Ontario today. Although temperatures will be little changed from Monday's 75 to 80 degree readings the humidity will be lower.

Cooler air pushing steadily eastward into extreme northwestern Ontario this morning will reach most of Ontario by late Wednesday. Considerable cloudiness with showers and thundershowers will precede the arrival of this cooler weather.

Cost of Living Index Up Slightly

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose three-tenths of a point in April to stand at an all-time high of 134.8 at the beginning of May, the bureau of statistics announced today.

The index, based on 1949 prices in all its components except for clothing. But the rise was less than the four-tenths of a point increase the previous month.

A reflection of living costs, the index for May this year compared with an index of 133.0 for May, 1964. This is an increase of 2.2 per cent in the year. Government economists say that ideally, prices should not rise more than about two per cent a year.

The largest increase was in food prices, up nine-tenths of a point to 134.5. Higher prices were reported for fresh and frozen fruits, most fresh vegetables, eggs, fats, beef and bacon. These more than offset lower prices for fresh tomatoes

Astronauts' Jubilant Wives Eagerly Await Reunion With Heroes Of Space

Both also had presidential invitations to visit the LBJ ranch with their husbands Friday or Saturday.

They talked jubilantly of a reunion near the weekend, of quiet and lively celebrations ahead and of their personal observations during the 98-hour ordeal.

"I can't tell you how proud I am," beamed Pat White as she hugged her two children, Eddie, 11, and Bonnie Lynn, 9.

Pat McDivitt struggled for words as she attempted to corral her three impish youngsters, then finally blurted:

"I'm speechless . . . I'm speechless."

"You never talked that loud before."

Recent Increase in Water Rate Not Due in Any Way To Proposed New Building

- - PUC Chairman

There may be misunderstanding but certainly there is no ill feeling or animosity between Belleville city council and the public utilities commission.

This was stated yesterday by utilities commission chairman Gerald B. Hyde as he gave details of the commission's proposed new building on Sidney street and the reason for recently adjusted hydro and water rates.

Two weeks ago in the absence of Mayor J. R. Ellis, council requested that a representative of the utilities come to council to explain what effect the new utilities building would have on hydro and water rates. Cost of the building is estimated at $300,000, exclusive of land costs.

Mr. Hyde assured council that the recent increase in water rate had nothing whatever to do with the new building.

GREATER EFFICIENCY

He said the new building would provide for much greater efficiency in utilities operation as it would consolidate utilities operations at one location instead of at the present five different sites.

Council in particular had questioned the $300,000 estimate cost of the new building, up $43,000 from the original estimate.

Mr. Hyde said, however, that the $255,000 figure had been only a preliminary estimate and that a later one revised upwards. Cost of the building had already been approved by council in its capital works budget, he said.

SOLD PROPERTY

However, industries in the area required additional property for expansion and the property had been sold. The property was sold for $20,000 which Mr. Hyde felt was good business, insist that the original cost had been but $500.

The utilities chairman said plans were going ahead for installation of fluoridation equipment.

Heating at the filtration plant would be converted to oil and the coal bin space used as a site for construction of a new chemical building.

And the utilities is really trying to do something about the objectionable taste in city water which residents complain about several times a year.

Plans are being considered for a pilot plant for treatment of water in an effort to improve the taste and odor.

Mr. Hyde said the pilot plant idea was being considered because the commission didn't want to take action which might result in waste of money.

Nicholson College Presented With Gift of Paintings

A presentation of paintings was made to the students and faculty of Nicholson Catholic College on Sunday evening.

Guest speaker, Mrs. D. Boyle, spoke on the importance of art for the modern man. Mrs. Boyle stressed the importance of the response of contemporary people to creativity in the fine arts, a response which should lead to appreciation and cultivation of integrity in every form of life.

Also arranged for the evening was an exhibit of art through the ages.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary and men's group committee of the 8th Belleville Cubs and Scouts was held at the home of Mrs. Smith, 22 Isabel St., with 12 members present.

It was announced that the Cub camp would be held on June 18th at Consecon Lake and the Cubs would meet at Queen Mary School at 6.30 p.m. with a pie and a lunch.

Junior Red Cross Presents Wheelchair

The pupils in the schools are organized into Junior Red Cross branches. By various methods these branches provide funds to finance the various projects that are carried out.

One of these projects just completed by the Senior Red Cross was called the "Wheeler-Dealer". Its purpose was to commemorate the birthday of Henri Durant, the founder of the Red Cross.

The funds provided by the Canadian Junior Red Cross children's wheel chairs have been purchased and presented to branches of the Senior Red Cross for use in the community.

The Belleville branch has just received one of these modern chairs and it is already in use by a child. The society greatly appreciates the gift of this chair.

Through the activities of the Canadian Junior Red Cross thousands of Canadian children receive aid in the form of dental care, eye treatment, heart surgery, orthopedic appliances and many others.

Philip Finkle Wins $1,000 Hydro Award

A former Belleville man, Philip Finkle, now first operator at the nuclear power development plant at Deep River, Ont., has received an award of more than $1,000 from Ontario Hydro under its suggestions plan.

Mr. Finkle's suggestion had to do with the relocating of ion exchange columns which had formerly been discarded when spent. The award was the largest suggested award made to date in the nuclear power field.

Implemented in 1957, the suggestion plan awards to the end of last year totalled more than $100,000. This in turn resulted in savings of more than $800,000 to Hydro.

Last year alone, 500 employee suggestions were adopted.

UEL Memorial Service to be Held June 20

Each year a special service is held in the Memorial Church of United Empire Loyalists at Adolphustown to commemorate the landing there of a party of United Empire Loyalists on June 16, 1784.

This year the service is to be held at 2.30 on the afternoon of Sunday June 20th. It is expected that many descendants of Loyalists and their friends from all over the province will attend, as this service draws closely on the heels of a 4-day meeting of the Ontario Historical Society at Picton.

Canon R. B. Wright of Christ Church Belleville is to be the preacher on this occasion and his new curate, Rev. Allan Lauder will also take part in the service.

The Rector of St. Alban's, Rev. D. F. Dunning, has also asked Captain J. A. C. Roper, a descendant of one of the notable U. E. L. families, to assist in the service and the choir of Christ Church, Belleville, under the direction of Mr. John Wilkes, will be there to ensure that the musical portion of the service does full justice to this anniversary.

Exchange Wants To Hear More About Act

Belleville and District Builders Exchange last night decided to approach the industrial standards branch in the Department of Labor for information regarding the implementation of the Industrial Standards Act in this area.

Bill Tatham was delegated to write to the department requesting a spokesman on the Act. The Exchange would then ask representatives of the different trades to decide whether the Act was enforceable here.

Reporting on the recent convention of the Canadian Construction Association in Ottawa, Exchange President Beverley Quinsey said he found that Ontario and Manitoba appeared as far as construction associations were concerned.

Reporting on the recent convention of the Canadian Construction Association in Ottawa, Exchange President Beverley Quinsey said he found that Ontario and Manitoba appeared as far as construction associations were concerned.

"The provincial government is behind the construction industry," he said, "have more teeth than we have. I believe one reason for this is because there are more people here and we are consequently more unified, but it is also because they are far ahead of us with regard to agreements, labor relations and co-operation between associations.

BUILDING BOOM SEEN

Mr. Quinsey referred to the anticipated construction boom which lies ahead. By 1970 construction volume in Canada is expected to reach $13.6 billion from $7.7 billion in 1963.

Bill Orvens of the Ontario Department of Labor addressed members on construction safety practices, from wearing of helmets to proper sanitation.

Mr. Orvens explained the provisions of the Construction Safety Act and said it meshed that adherence to them was essential to the safety and interests of all concerned with construction work. He said safety was a 24-hour business, which also extended to warehouse and office.

The safety inspector reminded his audience that the Act forbids the employment of anyone under the age of 16 on a construction site, instances where this provision had been contravened.

Alternative Is Suggested To Present Requirements In Providing Parking Area

Higher Hydro Rental Charge Is Approved

Builders of commercial premises in Belleville's downtown area may get the choice of providing parking space on their properties or paying the city to provide it for them. City council asked Belleville and Suburban Planning Board at its regular meeting Monday night to draft an amendment to present parking requirement by-laws to allow cash payments from downtown property owners in lieu of parking lots.

Mayor Jack Ellis said the request arose as a result of the fire which destroyed the West Robertson Block on Front street. Developers are finding it physically impossible to supply the parking spaces required for new buildings going up on the site, Alderman G. D. Joss added that merchants should share the cost of downtown parking with taxpayers, who now bear most of the expense.

The Planning Board will have a say in negotiations between the City and the CPR on removal of railway tracks from the water front. The Board asked Director P. J. Beavis to prepare a financial study of the proposed re-routing of the CPR tracks to the north of the city.

Before its regular meeting the Planning Board met with City Council in caucus. Purpose was to discuss planning problems and a possible study of the final plan of "old Belleville", that part of the city in existence before annexation of suburban areas in 1959. Mr. Beavis said a preliminary draft of the solution will be released for publication at a later date.

'Opportunity Shop' Will Use Weigh Scales Building

City council will spend up to $3,000 to renovate the old city weigh scales building on the market square for use by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary as their "Opportunity Shop" and at the same time will pay $1,285 to have the old police station building torn down.

But neither project got anything like unanimous approval from the city fathers yesterday as council held its regular bi-monthly meeting.

The contract for the demolition of the old police station building will go to Hugh McMullen who submitted the lowest of three bids for the job.

Several of the aldermen, particularly Enos David, felt the five-year old addition to the police station should be saved and the workers sanitized.

But Mayor Ellis pointed out that the building was condemned in 1958 and although a few localities were still charging $25.

But in return for the increased hydrant rental rate, the mayor said the utilities would pay for the fire fighting equipment and fluoridate city water supplies, and also would pay the annual cost for the fluoridation chemicals.

Mayor Ellis felt the utilities offer was a very fair one.

"We could spend up to $40,000 to renovate the old police station," the alderman said.

Later in the meeting when the matter of the weigh scales building came up for discussion, Ald. Deacon said the Hospital Auxiliary had agreed that this building would be suitable for use as their opportunity shop.

He said the building could be renovated for about 1/4 per square foot which would make the project an economically good deal.

The open part of the structure would be closed in; an attractive front be provided and the whole structure painted white, he said.

Higher Hydro Rental Charge Is Approved

After tabling the recommendation two weeks ago to allow further information from the public utilities commission on the request for the increase, city council yesterday agreed to a hydro rental charge of $40, up $15 from the previous $25 per hydrant.

Two weeks ago Alderman Bert Corke objected to the amount of the increase, claiming that the percentage hike in rate was too great be made.

But yesterday Mayor Jack Ellis pointed out that the hydrant rate increase was the first in the city in 25 years and stated the public utilities commission cost for providing adequate water for fire protection was much greater than the revenue received for hydrant rental.

In other centres he said the general rate for hydrant rental charged ranges from $100, although a few localities were still charging $25.

But in return for the increased hydrant rental rate, the mayor said the utilities would pay for the fire fighting equipment and fluoridate city water supplies, and also would pay the annual cost for the fluoridation chemicals.

Mayor Ellis felt the utilities offer was a very fair one.

Tenders for Pinnacle St. Work Soon to Be Called

Tenders for the installation of underground services required in connection with the re-building and re-surfacing of Pinnacle Street may be called within a week, city council learned yesterday.

The Pinnacle street project will be done in two stages. First, the installation of underground services and then the actual re-building of the street.

But when the work gets underway it will be one-lane traffic for Pinnacle street until the job is completed.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said he had been assured by the city engineer that the first asphalt laid would be laid this year.

Alderman Frank Murray asked if any consideration had been given to say change in the one-way traffic system while street rebuilding was underway.

CONTRACT AWARDED

It was suggested that the matter be taken up with the police department to get their advice on the matter.

The tender of the Hastings Asphalt Company in the amount of $34,165, was accepted for carrying out of surface treatment on city streets this year.

The surface treatment, to be applied to a number of city streets, will be the same type as carried out in other years.

A new type of cold patch repairs carried out during the winter months, had not proven successful and was still not paid for, according to Mayor Ellis.

The year's supply of ¾ inch stone chips will be purchased this year from Trent Valley Sand and Stone Ltd., at a cost of $2.25 per ton.

The stones will have to be re-washed but the cost of this work will still leave the cost of the stone about 75 cents a ton less than the $3.35 price quoted by the H. J. McFarland Construction Company in the only tender received. Council voted to reject the McFarland tender.

Local Men Seek to Buy Farm of Hastings Manor For Houses, Apartments

Possible sale of the county farm, operated in connection with the Hastings Manor on the western outskirts of the city is under discussion at this week's session of county council.

An offer to purchase up to 110 acres of the 138-acre county farm property, has been received by the county from a firm of local sub-dividers which would construct better-type homes in the $30,000 to $45,000 price range and also high rise apartments.

The offer from William Tatham, local contractor and engineer, acting for Ernst Koeisel and James Jenkins, was read at the morning session of council, and was laid over for further discussion.

Mr. Koeisel is industrial commissioner for the city.

The firm already has an option for the purchase of another 300 acres of farm property northwest of the county farm.

FARM DAYS NUMBERED

Whether or not the county accepts the offer, one county council realizes that the days are numbered for the operation of the county farm on the outskirts of the city.

Hastings Manor superintendent and county farm manager Kenneth York told council that already complaints are being received from residents in the built-up areas now surrounding the farm; this despite the fact that he is always careful about stable cleaning and disposal of farm manure.

He urged, however, that if the farm were sold, sufficient acreage be retained to prevent over-crowding at the Manor.

Mr. York also noted that the county home committee had been under certain pressure from the department to dispose of the farm operation.

The present county farm dates back to the early 1950's when the property west of the city was purchased as the site for a new county home.

Under an agreement reached at that time with the city of Belleville, the city was entitled to two sevenths of the rated accommodation designed for 175 residents. Accommodation at the manor is now rated at 216.

The agreement runs until 1972, with the city having the privilege of renewing for another ten years.

HOME CROWDED

But there is a serious overcrowding at the home and there are long waiting lists both in the city and in the county.

Three possible solutions have been suggested. One is to add to the present home raising its capacity to 250 patients. Another is to build a new home, possibly in the northern part of the county, and third is for the city of Belleville to build its own home.

With the projected growth of the city, the question was asked in county council whether the city might be in favor of taking over the present home, or whether it might prefer to continue under an agreement with the county.

Hastings County's Warden Is Converted to Support Of Proposed Regional Jail

Construction of a new regional jail to meet the requirements of the four counties of the Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac will get the support of Hastings county Warden Fred Beckett when the matter comes up for discussion this week.

Opening this morning's council session, Warden Beckett said that originally he had been opposed to the idea of a central jail but since had changed his mind.

One of the reasons for changing his mind was the high cost of bringing the present county jail up to standard, or the county constructing a new jail on its own.

"I now feel that the idea of a central jail is entirely feasible and I strongly recommend that council give its support," he said.

But while the warden is in favor of the idea of a central jail, he is not so favorable to the idea of regional government, particularly if it means dividing Hastings county.

OPPOSES SPLITTING COUNTY

Warden Beckett said that at the recent municipal workshop held in Belleville, there was a recommendation suggesting formation of a regional government taking in Belleville and Trenton, Prince Edward County and part of Hastings.

He said he refused to go along with the idea with result that the motion did not go before the meeting.

"I refuse to have anything to do with splitting the county," he said.

He said the county had been successful in governing its own operations and had also had good relations with the city in certain joint projects.

"If there is to be any change in county government let us make it on our own," he said.

UNHAPPY ABOUT CHEESE

Warden Beckett was also unhappy about the price of cheese received on the Belleville Cheese Exchange last week.

He noted that the government had discontinued the 3.6 cents per pound stabilization subsidy on cheese and producers were of the understanding that the board price would be increased accordingly.

But last week's price on the Belleville Exchange was "only one half a cent over the previous week's price. He charged that the price was "held down deliberately."

He said that both the provincial and federal governments were disturbed at the turn of events.

Also at this morning's session the county home and the agricultural and reforestation committee reports were read.

The agricultural committee recommended the county enter into an agreement with the department of lands and forests regarding maintenance of the county reforestation area at Birds' Creek.

After considerable discussion on the matter, council decided against the agreement and will continue to maintain the pine plantation as a county project.

Oppose Placing Scrapyard At Foot of Mount Pelion

TRENTON — Council members are agreed a suitable location for a scrapyard within the municipal boundaries is hard to find, especially when the piece of land desired amounts to two acres and most of the other property owners in the community cringe at mention of the idea.

According to James Pow, councilman for a delegation opposing the move of Jack Zigman's wrecking business to the Stanley Street area, council "can't hide a scrap yard," no matter how it tries. Mr. Pow, accompanied by six of his neighbors, gave numerous reasons for not wanting the establishment in their area.

Council needs Mr. Zigman's present location on Front St. for the proposed high level bridge. Expropriation was contemplated when the owner sought a price regarded out of line in comparison with current land values. Subsequently the town signed an option to purchase for $40,000 and agreed to provide the owner with another site. The other site turned out to be a two-acre tract situated on the north side of Mt. Pelion belonging to the corporation. Mr. Zigman has shown interest in the piece that has less value as industrial or park land, according to Mayor James MacDonald.

Mr. Power submitted that the town would lose pride by permitting a scrap yard to locate at the base of Mt. Pelion, recognized as a landmark and tourist attraction.

One of the delegates contended that council had "ruined the whole area" by its action. Another who owns eight rental units in the immediate vicinity maintained he expected to have more difficulty attracting tenants when the scrap dealer moved in. Another asked if council had considered an out-of-town location.

Before leaving, the delegates received assurance that council was sympathetic toward their problem. They were reminded that Mr. Zigman operates under a town license and must abide by them. Councilman Paul Tripp suggested exploring avenues with the purpose of acquiring another location for Mr. Zigman. The industrial committee would like to hold the area in dispute for future use, Mr. Tripp said.

Councillor Joe Gould said he was one of the instigators of Mr. Zigman's relocation after several other areas in town had been looked at. "I felt fewer people were being hurt than if it was put somewhere else, he explained. I tried to keep him out of the hair of the public as much as I possibly could. The site was not picked to the detriment of the area," he added.

Councillor Claude Graham advised the delegates they could go away confident that council would take another look for a place to locate a scrap yard.

SAVES MILLIONS

TORONTO (CP) — Since the inception of a suggestion plan in the federal civil service in 1963, more than $6,000,000 has been saved, the National Association of Suggestion Systems was told Monday at its annual meeting. These savings resulted from implementation of suggestions from all levels of employment, said George Jackson, assistant deputy minister of public works for Canada.

No Conflict Here

The first national conference on the convention prevention of crime was held at Toronto last week.

Main theme of the conference, we are told, was the conflict between the rights of the individual and the rights of society.

The conference got off on the wrong foot. There is no conflict between the rights of the individual and the rights of society. The belief that such a difference exists is the first step a society can take towards stripping itself of its most cherished rights. In every instance where society has placed its own rights above the rights of individuals, it has discovered it has been building its own prison.

The rights of the individual are the foundation on which the rights of society must rest. If they are to exist at all. How could it be otherwise? Society cannot exist without individuals, and if these individuals be without rights how can society itself have any rights?

"Cases of fraud, theft, assault (both sexual and otherwise) and vandalism to property are committed with impunity and depressing frequency in our modern urban conditions of living," Prof. J. L. Edwards, director of the centre of criminology at the University of Toronto, told the opening session of the conference.

We suppose these crimes were considered by the conference as infringing on the rights of society—and so they are. But they were also infringements on the rights of individuals, on the rights of the persons defrauded, assaulted or having their property damaged, and the weight of these crimes fell much more heavily on the individuals victimized than on society as a whole.

What the conference needed to study is how to reconcile the rights of the victims of crimes to protection from criminals with the rights of other individuals not to be inconvenienced by law enforcement methods unless there is a clear and valid reason to connect them with the crimes.

The danger is not, as Prof. Edwards said, that we may refuse "to consider any encroachment on our traditional rights of inviolability of person or property" until more drastic methods become necessary to halt crimes. Rather it is that we shall meekly accept a whole multitude of such encroachments, because we think they will not affect us, but only "the criminal classes," whatever they may be.

To accept such encroachments is to admit defeat, to choose what we consider, perhaps not accurately, the lesser of two invasions of our rights, the "legal" one by the law enforcement authorities rather than the illegal one by criminals.

Rights should be safeguarded. It is bad enough when our privileges are limited, when, for instance, the Belleville Parks Board feels it necessary to prohibit any person from entering the East Hill playground with a motor vehicle presumed some of those who have walked or sat there during the evening hours have damaged buildings, equipment or trees. This gives the vandals a double victory over the remainder of the law-abiding citizens, who must not only pay for the damage done by the law breakers but who are also denied the right to enjoy park property when the sun is down.

Let's Be Courageous

Adlai Stevenson, the United States ambassador to the UN, on a recent visit to Canada referred to this country's "wisdom and sobriety" in national affairs.

Some critics, though, have been suggesting that we have acquired whatever prestige we enjoy in this sphere by false pretences. We talk a good game, but decline to act.

Some of this criticism comes from those who think we are enjoying the benefits of courageous U.S. policies, without sharing in the risks.

Other critics, though, could be voiced with equal force by those with diametrically opposite views. We sometimes speak out—softly, to be sure—against U.S. policies but we never act.

There are those who are unkind enough to suggest this is because of timidity.

A special survey undertaken for the Ontario Department of Economics and Development suggests that this timidity is unnecessary, at least as far as actions which might meet with disapproval in the U.S. are concerned.

Over a third of Americans subjected to "depth interviews" thought that Canada was ruled by Britain.

So anything we do will be blamed by them on Britain, not on us. Under such circumstances, even a mouse would occasionally snarl like a lion.

Convulsions Caused by Exploding Nervous Energy

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes convulsions in children? Four months ago when my son was 16 months old he was fine in the morning. Began vomiting at noon about noon, and in an hour had convulsions. I was alarmed.

Then recently he had a cold and fever of 102, and looked as though he was about to have a convulsion. He has been healthy otherwise. — Mrs. S. B.

A convulsion is the end result of an explosive discharge of nervous energy, and the muscles contract suddenly and spasmodically. (In adults, twitching and jerking movements, especially when asleep, are believed to represent a very minor form of convulsion.)

Some children are more subject to convulsions than others. Some never experience them. Others may have severe ones. I have seen it happen to my own children, and I sympathize with your alarm.

Yet usually there is no need for such alarm. It can happen from causes which otherwise would not upset you — a simple injection, for instance. Fever then follows. Or a cold, measles or other common diseases can cause a fever and a convulsion. "Fever convulsions" are not at all unusual in young children under two years old. A study of several hundred children with convulsions showed that more than 90 percent had no more trouble after that age.

If convulsions persist beyond the age of two, some other cause should be looked for—low blood calcium is the possibility, pinworms another. Occasionally some birth injury or neurological defect may be indicated.

But the occasional convulsion accompanying a fever, scary as it seems to be, usually soon becomes a thing of the past. (In adults, a child seems to be the counter-part of a convulsion in a child.)

What to do when a child has a convulsion? Wrapping him in a blanket is as good first aid as any. Or if a bathtub is available, putting the child in tepid water, or sponging him with it (hot baking soda has been said to become chilled) will relax him. Or just hold him, until the convulsion passes, so he won't hurt himself.

Quite understandably, there is the temptation to call the doctor. As it virtually always works out, the convulsion is past before the doctor can get his hat and coat on!

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I am almost 18, have been menstruating since I was 11, but always irregularly. I have missed as much as 22 months at a time. My doctor has been giving me pills but they don't help!

Do you think I could ever have a child? Am I abnormal or is something seriously wrong? Do you think I could be straightened out? — C.C.

There are various possible causes: faulty nutrition, anxiety or other strong emotional elements, sometimes a glandular disorder (the thyroid may be at fault, or obesity, which can be quite important).

Perhaps it is time for you to ask to be referred to a specialist to make a thorough study. As to whether you can have children, that depends basically on whether you ovulate, and special tests can tell that.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Should a caruncle of the urethra, which causes a great deal of discomfort, be removed by surgery? Do they usually come back? My regular doctor says it should be removed but the urologist said not to do so. — Mrs. A. E.

Since these growths can be very distressing and may bleed, I concur (so far as I can, without knowing more about your case) with your doctor's advice. However. The next question is, what alternative does he suggest for relief? Letting you suffer is no answer at all, of course.

'The Big Needle' Jabs Where It Hurts Most

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "Chicken."

In a low stage whisper it drifted across the noisy Commons and floated to the Galleries of the House.

Nervously, Mr. Speaker Alan Macnaughton glanced over, waited an apprehensive couple of seconds in concerned expectation of something unpleasantly disturbing happening, and when all remained relative politeness and Parliamentary quiet, sighed in obvious relief and went on with the business of the day.

And the business at hand, it so happened, was the calling of the daily Opening Orders of the Day, the usually explosive, sometimes hilarious, sometimes creative and never, ever dull Question Period.

What had made Mr. Speaker momentarily edgy was the sure knowledge that what has become known as The Big Needle" had been about to be brought into play — and then, mercifully, somebody "chickened."

Years ago in the House, it was "Little Chicago," a ginger group of young Liberal MPs who delighted in unsurfing Parliamentary shirts with politically misdirected arrows.

Now it's "The Big Needle."

NAUGHTY NAUGHTY:

And it's still a ginger group of young Liberal MPs — but of another day and generation, of course — who spend their idle Parliamentary moments sharpening points on questions that seldom appear on the House Hansard record.

But when they do, they invariably set the Government's front benches squirming. Also — to either embarrassment or delight — and the Opposition benches almost deafened.

Just the other day, by way of illustration how The Big Needle" is applied, Richard Cashin, a precocious 28-year-old Liberal MP for St. John's West, with a flick of the wrist asked Justice Minister Guy Favreau:

"If there is any information about efforts to ascertain the present whereabouts of the Honorable Member for the Yukon and the Honorable Member for Bow River by way of Telstar or Early Bird, has the answer been supplied to fugitive Georges LeMay was located on his Florida yacht "

It just so happened that nobody in the Commons had to be reminded of it — that the Yukon's Erik Nielsen and Bow River's Eldon Woolliams have been two of the most active Conservative MPs in exposing political and Parliamentary life unhappy for the Liberals over the past while — including, very long, key scandal - in - High - Places witness Lucien Rivard and deposed Provincial Czar Harold Chamberlain Banks.

And while it also happened that the hapless Mr. Favreau and Mr. Woolliams have set any House of Commons attendance records, it was Favreau who took the sporting thing to do to make a Parliamentary joke of it.

It took Mr. Speaker those five minutes to get the House quieted down after that one.

CHICKEN:

Then when the Conservatives were pressing the Government for views on U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic, and Prime Minister Pearson was saying the Americans were justified in sending the Marines to protect their nationals at Santo Domingo, then The Big Needle" again was poised.

At that moment in international affairs, Canada-French relations were a bit strained over Quebec treaty-making, and Paris had rushed in the Ambassadorie to St. Pierre and Miquelon in the face of threatened insurrection.

So "The Big Needle" had Quebec Liberal MP Jean Chrestien, pictured — and rightly, he "chickened" — to ask the PM whether Canada was sending troops to Quebec to quell French islande in the St. Lawrence to protect Canadian nationals.

And during External Affairs Minister Paul Martin's recent excursion in Paris, he insisted on out this same business of treaty-making. Quebec MP Augustin Chouinette was "The Big Needled" to ask him: "By what constitutional-delegated authority the Federal Government was negotiating with the De Gaulle administration?"

The ginger Liberals like to point "The Big Needle" outside as well as in the House.

During last fall's royal visit when one member of the group asked what he should say to the Queen to make conversation when they were introduced, Gerry Regan, young "Big Needler" from Halifax, had a suggestion:

"Just ask her," he counselled, "if her boy still has a drinking problem."

This was a private "in group" question that never, of course, got asked, for that was just about the time Prime Charles was being reprimanded for grabbing a glass of brandy in a Scottish pub, and drinking was a delicate subject.

But it does give you an idea of "The Big Needle."

Policemen Are Human

Michigan Police Journal

Policemen, believe it or not, are human. They come in both sexes, but mostly male. They also come in various sizes. This sometimes depends on whether you are looking for one or trying to hide something. However, they are mostly big.

Policemen are found everywhere—on land, on the sea, in the air, on horses and sometimes in your hair. In spite of the fact that you can't find one when you want one," they are usually there when it counts most. The best way to get rid of one is to pick up a phone.

Policemen deliver lectures, babies and bad news.

They are required to have the wisdom of Solomon, the disposition of a lamb and muscles of steel, and are often accused of having a heart to match. He's the one who rings the doorbell, swallows hard and announces the passing of a loved one, then spends the rest of the day wondering why he ever took such a crummy job.

* * *

On TV, a policeman is an oaf who couldn't hit a ball fiddle thside a telephone booth. In real life, he's expected to find a little blond boy "about so high" in a crowd of half a million people. In fiction, he gets his help from private eyes, reporters and "who-dunnit" fans. In real life, mostly all he gets from the public is "I didn't do nothing."

When he serves a summons he's a monster. If he lets you go he's a dolt. To little kids, he's either a friend or a bogeyman, depending on how the parents feel about it.

He works 'round the clock, split shifts, Sundays and holidays, and if he's single, that's when a joker says: "Hey! tomorrow's election day. I'm off. Let's go fishing." Then he goes to work 20 hours.

When a policeman is good, he's a "grafter and that goes for the rest of them, too." When he shoots a stickup man, he's a hero except when the stickup man is "only a kid. Anybody knows a good shot."

Lots of them have homes, some of them covered with ivy, but most of them are with mortgages. If he drives a big car, he's a chiseler; a little car, who's he kidding?" But credit is good which is helpful because his salary isn't. Policemen raise lots of kids but most of them belong to other people.

The policeman sees more misery, bloodshed, terrible and sunrises than the average person. Like the postman, a policeman must also be out in all kinds of weather. His uniform changes with the climate but his outlook on life remains the same; mostly blank, but hoping for a better world.

Policemen like days off vacations and coffee. They don't like auto horns, family fights and anonymous letters. They also have an association but they don't strike. They must be impartial, courteous and always remember the slogan "At your service." They are human and a hard, especially when a character reminds him: "I'm a taxpayer and I pay your salary."

But sometimes the most rewarding moment comes when, after some small kindness to an older person, he feels a warm handclasp, looks into grateful eyes and hears: "Thank you and God bless you, son."

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Women's Committee of the Eastern Ontario District No. 2 was held at Napanee. Mrs. Harry Rollins of Belleville, chairman of the association, presided over the meeting. There were 30 women present from the district.

The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada" after which a two-minute silence was observed in memory of those who have given their lives in the war. After giving a welcome to all, Mrs. Rollins gave a talk urging that the women take a more serious part in politics since politics have come so much into the home. She said "our health, our housing and children, our old people, our whole state of life are affected thereby. Women have over 52 percent of the vote, therefore they must take their rightful place in politics and form the kind of government they want."

The stone ruins of the old brewery on the north side of Dundas Street East, near Albert Street, are being removed.

House Attendance

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

We still believe that the Speaker of the Sergeant - At - Arms should keep a daily record of Commons or committee attendance, making it public from time to time. If the people knew how much time their member had spent on the job he was elected to do, there might not be any need for legislation to increase the quorum.

Judge Reserves Decision in Lonergan Case

NEW YORK (CP)—Toronto-born Wayne Lonergan, 47, in prison for the 1943 slaying of his heiress wife, is expected to learn in about a week whether the court will "withdraw" his conviction and thus pave the way for a new trial or possible acquittal.

Supreme Court Justice Charles Marks reserved decision Monday on a motion in which Lonergan claims he had been coerced into making his confession and it should not have been allowed as evidence at his trial in the spring of 1944.

Judge Marks said after both defence lawyer Frances Kahn and U.S. Assistant Attorney Thomas Hughes completed their cases that 'he will hand down his decision "as soon as possible."

Johnson Aims Peace Words At Russia, Communist Bloc

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When President Johnson says the United States would much rather talk than fight, his words are aimed at the Soviet Union and the Eastern European Communist bloc.

His words reflect existing American foreign policy which includes encouragement of looser ties among satellites, observers suggest. But Johnson's emphasis is being construed in Washington as recognition that the Soviet Union is feeling the heat of its Viet Nam dilemma and particularly the propaganda advantage Viet Nam has given China in the Communist ideological war.

A harsher Soviet line has developed toward the United States. Public statements have been tougher. Now old but adequate Soviet bombers have been shipped to North Viet Nam.

Russia seems to have lost any interest it might have had in helping launch peace talks. Instead it is working overtime to get a place at the Afro-Asian summit conference due in Algeria June 29 and China is working just as hard, apparently, to exclude Russia.

There have been statements from both Communist camps that, if the war ends in Vietnam or Viet Nam, Russia and China will get together.

Johnson's remarks are continuing awareness of the risk that Viet Nam will force a Sino-Soviet reunion. Such a development would increase the hazard of a major conflict, it is assumed.

In foreign policy addresses last Thursday and Saturday and Sunday at Washington's Catholic University of America, Johnson took aim at Europe's Communist nations.

"Between the great powers of East and West there is no history of conflict on battlefields of the past," he said.

"Between the people of the Soviet Union and the people of the U.S., there has been friendship and there can be great understanding."

He suggested the peoples of the U.S.S.R. and Eastern Europe "know above all others the cost of 20th-century warfare."

At Catholic University the president said: "To the people—and to the leaders—of the Communist countries of Sino-Soviet Union, to the nations of Eastern Europe and Southeast Asia, and to the entire civilization — come, now, let us reason together."

Johnson broadened his case for American peaceful intentions by recalling words spoken by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, Thomas Jefferson and Woodrow Wilson, two non-Americans, Dag Hammerskjold and Pope John XXIII.

"As peace knocks," said Johnson, "our door is unlatched, our table laid, our welcome ready, and we believe mankind is ready with us."

Implicit in each was the theme that the U.S. desire for peace is frustrated by the refusal of the Soviet bloc to agree to peace talks.

The president's speech was followed by a rash of other weekend speeches by senior government spokesmen to keep up the unusual tide of college graduating ceremonies.

The president and others were in the midst of some foreign policy opposition on U.S. college campuses, stressed the need for "informed" opinion.

"Yahoo!"

Space engineer Herbert E. Smith has a long series of questions to ask and said the "debriefing" will take a full day.

Million Dollars Worth Of Debentures Is Sold

City council yesterday voted to sell more than a million dollars worth of debentures to cover the cost of sewer, road and other construction in the city.

The amount of the debentures to be sold is $1,031,689. The price will be $98,027, which is approximately 30 cents per hundred less than received in the sale of the last debentures. The coupon interest rate is the same —5½ per cent.

Council was told that most of the work for which the money is required has already been completed.

A long list of debenture by-laws were given first and second reading by council. Third reading was given to the by-law authorizing construction of a five-foot sidewalk on the south side of Dundas street west. The length of the sidewalk will be approximately 2,280 feet.

All three readings were given to a by-law exempting the lands of the YMCA from 1965 taxes and also to a by-law authorizing the execution of a proposal and agreement for the cost of the reconstruction of Pinnacle Street. The by-law is to be presented to the Minister of Highways for approval.

Space

for a traditional ticker - tape parade.

Space officials at the Houston mission control were jubilant over the mission, which included White's 36-minute adventure outside the capsule, and said they see no barrier to moving ahead in the Gemini program to a seven-day flight in August.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the chief medical officer, said the astronauts were "in much better physical condition than we anticipated."

After initial medical tests—and after telling their wives by phone that they were feeling fine—the astronauts showered, shaved their four-day growth of beard, and ate a hearty meal of steak and potatoes at the admiral's table.

Returning to their spacecraft on deck, they inspected the heat shield, then poked their heads inside and explained to the navy men gathered around some of the inner workings.

Meanwhile the Wasp continued to steam toward Jacksonville on spot 425 miles east of Cape Kennedy toward the coast of Florida where it will dock at the Jacksonville area until the astronauts are flown back to Houston.

A motorcade is planned for the astronauts from Ellington air base to Houston and the space agency nearby, but the most heartfelt reception the pair will receive will be from their wives and families.

WIFE SPEECHLESS

"This is great. This is great!" Mrs. Pat McDivitt exclaimed when the Gemini IV capsule splashed into the Atlantic and speedy recovery operations got under way. "I'm speechless; oh, I'm just speechless," she said.

Mrs. White was equally jubilant.

"I'm the happiest person in the whole world," she said. "I can't tell you how proud I am. This is the happiest day of my life."

Mrs. White said she was pending her husband an early Father's Day card, a bottle of shaving lotion, and a birthday card for Monday. Both are on Thursday. And when her husband returns, she said, "we'll spend our celebration we can have."

The capsule came home right on target and only 40 miles off the bullseye, despite a broken computer which would have been used in an intricate pre-landing manoeuvre.

Cmdr. Luther W. S. Laubach of Georgetown, Tex., circling the area in a navy plane, watched the spacecraft descend beneath its billowing orange and white canopy.

SAW IT HIT

"I saw it hit the water," Laubach said. "It hit with a terrific splash—it didn't seem to hit too hard."

Two minutes a helicopter was hovering overhead, at times a mere 10 feet above the pitching deck of the aircraft, and navy frogmen jumped into the water.

One swam to the right side of the capsule, found the window fogged over, then swam to the other side where McDivitt wiped the window clean and gave him an "okay" sign.

McDivitt climbed out and on to a raft. White followed. Both splashed their faces with water, then the frogmen helped McDivitt, then White—were hoisted into the helicopter. Within 34 minutes they were airborne, heading for the Wasp.

"Hooray! Hooray! We're going to the Wasp!" McDivitt shouted while the frogmen were splashing around the spacecraft. Later, while strapped to a table undergoing a medical test aboard the carrier, he suddenly burst out with a jubilant whoop.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"Who painted 'You Are a Married Man' inside these things?"

Germans Most Courteous People Met on Vacation

"In Germany, the Hynor laws are sensible. You can sit out on the street and drink a cocktail beer and chat without being arrested."

This is one observation of Fred Nafiel of the advertising department of The Ontario Intelligencer. Fred, his wife, and Dr. Derek Kidd and his wife, of Toronto have just returned from a two-week vacation in Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Italy.

"I was very impressed by the service, the food, the hotels and by the politeness of everyone we met," he said. "The German people were the most polite and courteous."

The Nafiels and Kidds flew to Frankford, Germany, on Friday, May 21. The next day they drove to Oschasburg in the rented car that was to be their mode of transportation for the next two weeks.

"Rothenburg is a completely walled city," said Fred Nafiel. "It has been kept just as it was in mediaeval times with its big gates and towers and its cobblestone streets.

"There is a large tower in the market square with a clock on it. The clock has a dome on each side that opens up and two figures appear at the even hours. The history of the clock is that General Tilley of Sweden, who captured the town, made a deal with the burgomaster that if the burgomaster could drink 10 litres of beer, he would not raid the town. One figure in the door is the general, and the other is the burgomaster. The burgomaster is holding a mug of beer in his hand and his arm goes up with the striking of the clock."

SOLDIERS IMPRESS

The Belleville travellers were very impressed by a squad of German soldiers in their uniform marching along the road near Rollingen. "The soldiers were singing. Their voices were wonderfully well-trained."

Going into Austria was not the easiest thing to do because most of the passes in the Austrian Tyrol were blocked by snow. Once in Austria, however, the group, stayed two days and visited many places including the spot where William Tell shot the apple off the head of his son.

Their attempt to get through the Brenner Pass was blocked by snow, so they stayed two days in Northern Italy visiting Lake Como and Spondigna.

On the drive through the pass to Lagani, Switzerland, the snow was banked up to three times the height of the car — and this was on May 31.

After two days, they drove through Oberalp Pass to Hofuh, 40 miles from Lucerne.

"We used Hofuh as a base for a few days and visited Lucerne and Interlaaken Bern. At Interlaaken Barn we were impressed by the size and magnificence of the government buildings. They had a huge dome in the centre and stained glass windows.

"In the rotunda, there were two huge bronze bears, both with one hind foot lifted. The saying goes that "if you tickle the foot of one of the bears, you'll always return to Bern."

"We tickled both feet."

"At one point in the trip a pass was closed by snow and they put our car on a railroad flat car, along with the other vehicles, and we were carried through an underground pass. We were in the train for about 15 minutes, during which time we could see absolutely nothing. It was so dark in the pass.

WINE AS CHANGE

"In Italy, because of the high price of gasoline, the customs give tourists a free-exit the border which enables them to buy gas coupons. We went into one gas station with our 10 litre coupons and got eight litres of gas. Now the stations can not give change on the coupons, so to make things even, the man walked next door to the wine store, bought a bottle of wine, and presented this to us as our change.

"Every border has a change bank. Here they will cash any travellers' cheques and take any European money and change it into the currency you are entering in a matter of seconds."

After their memorable trip, the Nafiels and Kidds returned home pleased but weary.

"Perhaps the nicest part of the whole trip was upon returning home. I found my lawn cut. Apparently the daughter of one of my neighbors cut the lawn because she didn't want us coming home to something as unkempt as it was."

CASTRO CELEBRATES

HAVANA (Reuters) — Premier Fidel Castro sewed up a sack of sugar Monday signifying the attainment of a 6,000,000-ton crop goal, and dedicated it to the Viet Cong "freedom fighters" of Viet Nam. The crop was the fourth highest during this century and the second highest since the 1959 revolution put Castro in power.

Rotarians Here May Aid Finance Students' Centre

Belleville Rotary Club may co - operate with the Kingston club in the establishment of an international students' centre at Queen's University.

The centre is being set up in the students' pastoral union within the university campus, thereby maintaining the cohesiveness of the campus and allowing for contacts between all students and members of the community.

This would also avoid what in the words of the Rev. Dr. Marsh Laverty, padre at Queen's University, might "conceiveably, by some circumstance, become a kind of ghetto."

Dr. Laverty told the Belleville club at its luncheon meeting at the Hotel Quinte yesterday that the later circumstance could arise if a separate building were constructed, as originally suggested.

The Belleville club is to form a committee to look into the Kingston plan, which has also been put before other clubs in the district.

Cost of the project is $125,000, of which Kingston is committed to $45,000.

Among the committee's considerations will be the fact that Belleville, as a member of Rotary District 707, also contributes to the international centre at the University of Toronto.

Dr. Laverty said there were now more than 200 foreign students at the university and this number would likely increase by the time the centre is built. He said these students were in addition to those from the United States and the United Kingdom.

RISE RAPIDLY

Stressing the importance of assisting overseas students to adjust to Canadian life and to join in the activities of the university and the community, Dr. Laverty said that such is the shortage of trained people in the countries they represent that they rapidly assume positions of responsibility.

"A Canadian graduate, he said, might attain say a middle position in government after 25 years, but those going overseas, "in less than five years are the senior civil servants, directors of education, managers of financial recources, heads of engineering projects and administrators of national policy."

Dent Taylor of the Belleville club also spoke on the project. He and Joe Demers recently visited Kingston in this connection.

President Stan Reston presided.

Russia Shoots Another Rocket Toward Moon

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia shot its second unmanned rocket in less than a month toward the moon today, the Soviet news agency Tass announced.

The new Soviet moon rocket was named Luna VI. Luna V hit the moon May 12 but failed to make the soft landing the Russians had indicated they expected.

Tass said the flight would continue about 3½ days and was progressing on a trajectory close to the planned route.

Woman Criticizes Hiring Practices of Industry

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was 30 when I married an attorney. He travelled for an oil company and asked me to quit my job so we could travel together. (I was a financial officer in a large firm.) I did — happily.

ANN LANDERS

After 14 years of marriage my husband died suddenly. I felt as if my world had fallen apart. The doctor suggested I go back to work.

After six unsuccessful job interviews it became clear to me that nobody wanted to employ a 45-year-old woman. A kindly personnel director suggested that I give my age as 35. I hated to be deceitful but decided to take his advice. Within the week I was offered three positions and I now have an extremely fine job. My boss calls me the answer to his prayers. He has given me two substantial salary increases.

Where does industry refuse to hire competent, experienced people because they are over 40?

If there is a sensible answer to this I would like to read it in your column. — HAD TO LIE TO WORK.

DEAR HAD TO — So would I. The Ann Landers column will provide the forum if someone in industry will respond to this woman's letter.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You often come to the front for waitresses, bus drivers, taxi drivers, firemen, policemen, and office girls. Will you please print a few words to make life easier for those of us who sell ladies ready-to-wear.

I've been in this business for 15 years. The women I serve are becoming increasingly lazy, inconsiderate and thoughtless. One of my customers refuses to believe that she now wears a size 16 dress. She thinks of herself as a size 12, which she was five years ago. Only after she has ripped and stretched several garments will she buy on a size 16.

I have seen customers step out of chiffon and silk gowns and leave them on the floor. They put their heels through items, break zippers, smear lipstick and eye make up on delicate fabrics, then ask innocently, "Did I do that?"

Please publish my letter with your comments.—DISGUSTED WITH LADIES.

DEAR DISGUSTED — Females who are inconsiderate and sloppy are not ladies. I suggest this column be tacked up in the fitting rooms of ready-to-wear shops where the problem exists. Sometimes shame can work wonders.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Why would a handsome, successful, respected man leave a beautiful, brilliant, accomplished, generous, loving wife for a cheap, loud, crude ignorant, gold-digging tramp?

The couple has been married 10 years and they have no children. Everyone thought they were ideally suited and blissfully happy. Why? Why? Why? — NO COMPRE.

* * *

DEAR NO. — Maybe he is going through the male menopause and is off his trolley. Or, perhaps, that cheap, loud, crude, ignorant, gold-digging tramp fills an emotional need in the man that his beautiful, brilliant, accomplished, generous, loving wife does not.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them in her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN RAYMOND RICHARDS

Richards – Raycroft

A pretty, late spring wedding was solemnized in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, on Saturday, when Lynn Susan Theresa Raycroft, daughter of Mrs. John Raycroft, Belleville and the late Mr. Raycroft, became the bride of Norman Raymond Richards, son of Mrs. Edward Richards and the late Mr. Richards. Father T. R. Boyle officiated at the Nuptial Mass before a background of white chrysanthemums and pink snapdragons. The traditional wedding music was rendered by Miss Dorothy Grant who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Charles Raycroft, was radiantly lovely in an original, full length, gown featuring a fitted French lace bodice and long sleeves ending in lily - points over her hands. The Empire style skirt was of French peau de soie. Her chapel length veil of silk illusion flowed from a halo of iridescent tear - drops. She carried a mother - of - pearl prayer book covered in satin and crested with white Stephanotis and pink Sweetheart roses with ivy.

Mrs. Barbara Ferguson, sister of the bride as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Anne Marie Murphy and Miss Jacqueline Boyle were identically attired in powder blue Peau de Grenadine, featuring a fitted bodice, short sleeves, and a full length bell shaped skirt with matching bow in the back. The head - dress featured a crown of Peau de Grenadine with matching bows. They carried semi - crescent bouquets of white Shasta Mums centred with pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. Raymond Plews, brother-in-law of the groom, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. James Bayerth, brother of the bride and Mr. Edward Richards, brother of the bridegroom, were the ushers.

The reception was held at St. Joseph's Parish Hall, Belleville, where the bride's table was centred with a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature cross encircled with two rings. The bouquets added further bridal accent to the setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing an aqua blue ensemble of imported French ribbon with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a green and white arnel jersey ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums centred with pink Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and through the Northern States the bride chose a sheath of white Silkara fleck-ed with green, with matching green jacket and hat, black patent leathey handbag and shoes and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Scarborough, Toronto, Cobourg, Port Hope, Trenton, Tweed, Point Anne, Picton, Ottawa and Belleville.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Jacqueline Boyle with Mrs. Barbara Ferguson as cohostess. The bride was honored at a dinner given by the staff at McIntosh Bros. Stores when she was the recipient of presentations from the management and her fellow-workers. The bride's mother also entertained at a trousseau tea in honor of her daughter.

Teen-age Greek Queen Awaits Child

ATHENS (Reuters) — Teen-age Queen Anne Marie of Greece has retired to a closely-guarded Corfu mansion to await the birth of her first child.

Greece's other mothers-to-be are awaiting the event as eagerly as the 19-year-old queen.

It is widely believed King Constantine and Queen Anne Marie will undertake to educate all poor Greek children born on the same day as the royal baby, expected late in June.

A prefabricated wooden cottage has already been erected on the grounds of Mon Repos, the 12-year-old island villa where the queen is staying until after the birth. Two obstetricians and the royal doctor will move into the cottage as soon as the birth seems imminent.

The baby is expected to be born in the presence of three queens. The Greek and Danish royal families have started to gather at the villa.

Queen Mother Frederika and Crown Princess Irene are already with Anne Marie in the 20-acre royal summer residence, and her mother Queen Ingrid of Denmark is expected to arrive on the Danish royal yacht Dannebrog to be at her daughter's bedside.

The baby will be delivered in Anne Marie's bedroom on the second floor.

The royal birth will be announced immediately over every radio station in the country. Salvos of guns—101 for a son and heir but only 21 for a daughter — will be fired by Greek warships anchored in the harbor of Corfu and from the top of Mount Lycabettus overlooking Athens.

DIEF IS DOUBTFUL

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, in a letter received by Toronto city council Monday, indicated he has reservations about councils request for legislation to control hate literature. "However much one may dislike principles advocated by minorities, so long as what is being said is within the limitations imposed by the laws of treason, sedition and libel, we must guard against diminishing freedom of speech," the letter said.

Tells How Translation Being Done

HAMILTON (CP)—Five missionaries in Guinea have spent six-month rainy seasons translating the New Testament into an African language.

One of them, Mrs. E. G. Ellenberger of Flint, Mich., talked about how such a translation is done at a rally of the Women's Missionary Prayer Fellowships of the eastern and central Canadian district, the Christian and Missionary Alliances.

"It isn't just a case of taking African words and putting them in where the English words were, like a crossword puzzle," she said. There are five different languages in Africa, and Mrs. Ellenberger is helping to translate the New Testament into all five.

Home on a year's furlough, she will be returning to Kan-Kan, Guinea, this summer. She first went to Africa 42 years ago with her late husband, a missionary.

She said a missionary going to a new field to do translation work must begin by learning the new language, often a unwritten one. She may first write a simple primer and teach local people to read it. From there she may go to simplified Bible stories which will be mimeographed and tried out in the mission field. Errors will be noted, and corrections made.

IDIOMS DIFFICULT

Mrs. Ellenberger said the only practical way for a translator to learn the language is to learn its everyday idiom from the people because idiom varies so much from language to language.

She said Africans do not speak of milk going sour, it goes to sleep. A warm-hearted person in Africa would have a hot heart and be angry. A peaceful person has a cool heart.

Restless children are not told to settle down and pay attention, they are told to make their ears stand up.

In addition to using local idiom correctly, translators must find ways to give unfamiliar concepts meaning. Mrs. Ellenberger said words like reconciliation and atonement were difficult to find corresponding terms for.

She said her translations will be printed by the Bible Society.

Susanna's Family Fare

ILLUMINATE THE OUTLINE

Dear Susanna: Here is the best idea I've ever had for stencils — it just struck me an hour ago and I don't know why I didn't think of it before.

All through school everybody has dozens of maps and drawings they want to copy by tracing them, but you have to strug gle and squint and guess at it because it's almost impossible to see the outline clearly through an ordinary piece of paper (the type of paper you want for your notebook). But if you hold it over a piece of transparent glass laid, for instance, between two boxes set side by side some distance apart, the light is let in underneath and you're home free . . . the outline comes through perfectly.

My first setup was an old storm window stretched between the seats of two chairs until my mother reminded me that we had a glass top table outside with the summer furniture — this really makes it a breeze. You can even trace the fine print if you set a lamp on the floor underneath. — Carson MacKenzie

At last! You're beginning to see the light! — SUSANNA

REMOVE THE HARDWARE

Dear Susanna: Since I live alone (and like it that way), I am responsible for odd bits of carpentry repairs around my small house. Here are a couple of good suggestions that other do-it-yourself-or ii doesn't - get done type gals might be glad to hear about.

If you are undertaking the job of decorating your kitchen and find that the chrome hardware is already covered with gobs of old paint, toss the handles and knobs together in a pan of hot water, then boil on the stove for 5 to 10 minutes, cool them off enough so they are easy to handle, and give them a few licks with a stiff nail brush or a bit of steel wool, and the old paint will peal off almost instantly. Finish off by shining them with a soft cloth.

After the cupboards and drawers are painted and you go to replace the hardware you may find some of the screws don't fit tightly because the holes in the wood have worn until they are too wide. Mix a small amount of sawdust and glue, poke it into the hole, insert the screw and leave undisturbed until the glue has had a chance to dry. — "Independent"

Christian Citizenship Topic for WCTV Meet

The W.C.T.U. met in Bridge Street United Church for their May meeting.

The Consecon camp for girls of nine to 12 was discussed and reported on by Mrs. J. Jeffery from the registrar, Mrs. E. C. Mancliee.

Mrs. Garn Dobbs was the guest speaker. Her subject was "Christian Citizenship as it affects me, my neighbour, my community and the world."

This was based on the story of the Good Samaritan, where mercy was shown the beaten traveller. As a Christian, one is committed to express the spirit of Christ in every realm of life. Christian charity should be governed by five principles, love, helping others to help themselves, co-operation, respect for the individual and ministry to the entire world.

The alcoholic problem is a moral issue, Apathy is manifest on this subject and on Sabbath observance. The contribution of the individual by prayer, word and deed has been underestimated.

It is a great achievement to establish a Christian home. We must be interested and well informed citizens with an inner directed sense of spiritual values, Mrs. Dobbs concluded.

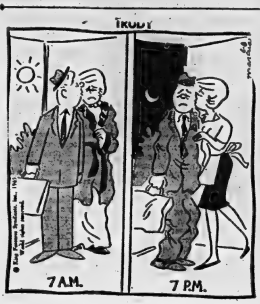
Plan Paid Interneship For Nurses in Ontario

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Health Minister Matthew Dymond said today a two-year education course for nurses to be followed by a year's internship at an average salary of $275 a month will begin this September.

The move is one in a series to plug a growing gap in the ranks of nursing personnel.

Dr. Dymond said he expects most nursing schools will be operating under the new system within two or three years. He has set 1975 as the deadline for the changeover.



Speaking at a day-long conference on nursing education, Dr. Dymond said Ontario will need twice as many nurses — 5,000 compared to the 2,500 now graduating annually from hospital-affiliated schools—by 1970.

OUTLINES PAY

Under the new scheme nurses will be paid $250 a month in the first six months of their internship year, $300 a month for the final half year.

In most schools nurses are now provided with room and board for all three years. This will continue for the first two years but in the internship year nurses will now be on their own financially, Dr. Dymond said.

He said the change will cost the Ontario Hospital Services Commission $600 to $800 more per student than it is costing at present.

Unlettered Woman Wins Award for Public Service

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — An unlettered woman has put to shame India's sophisticated men.

The provincial government of Madras state has recommended 53-year-old Luxmi, a construction worker, for the coveted national award of meritorious public service for showing remarkable civic sense and initiative.

While hundreds passed by the scene without doing anything, Luxmi took two men seriously injured in a traffic accident to a Madras hospital. Her action helped to save the life of one man. The other died from loss of blood.

Luxmi, the mother of two children, is totally illiterate and pathetically poor. She went to Madras from her native hamlet in Madurai district only a few months ago in search of a job.

There, Luxmi got a job as brick-carrier in a construction company. She earns 60 cents a day for 12 hours of hard work in the blazing sun carrying baskets of brick on her head.

FAMILY POOR

Her husband earns another 75 cents a day as a mason. On many days when there is no work, the family has to go without food.

Recounting the accident, Luxmi said that though the two motor-cyclists were lying in a pool of blood on the city's main road not one passerby took the trouble to call the police or an ambulance.

Luxmi stopped her work basket and searched for a taxi. Four taxi drivers refused to take the injured men to a hospital. A fifth cabbie agreed to.

When the Madras Hindu, the city's leading paper, reported Luxmi's only cotton sari had become blood-drenched, offers of clothes and money began pouring in.

Chief Minister Madurantakam Bhaktavatsalam said the episode showed that education does not automatically make a person a better citizen.

"Often," he said, "the quality of crusading mercy can be found only in a humble heart."

SMOOTH AS VELVET CHEESECAKE

Another "find" on Glenhryst's gourmet menu was an Orange Cheesecake. The queued-up guests all eyed it longingly, hoping some would be left for them.

Mrs. Williams, the convener, graciously gave me the recipe and I made it up and served ten people very generously.

All of you choosy cheesecake addicts will just have to try this one, for it is as smooth as velvet.

Combine dry in saucepan the sugar, salt and cornstarch or arrowroot. Stir in the orange juice. Measure the juice from canned Mandarin oranges. Make it up to 2/3 cup by adding boiling water. Stir into orange juice mixture and cook, stirring, until thick. Reduce heat and cook 2 or 3 minutes longer. Remove from heat. Add yellow food coloring. Cool a little. Spoon all over top of cake and orange sections, then drizzle small amounts down sides of cake. If you deliberately work slowly the glaze thickens and you can pile it all on. Chill. This is a vision of delight and dreamy to taste.

Eleanor's Beef and Barley Soup (main course — get Monday); Caraway Rye Bread or Rogeubrot; Combination Salad with Mixed Dressings; Angel Food Cake with Lemon Filling; Coffee.

GLENHYRST ORANGE CHEESESAKE:

Crumb Crust: 2½ cups fine graham wafer crumbs, ⅓ cup plus 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1/3 cup granulated sugar.

Filling: 2 tablespoons (2 envelopes) plain gelatine, ¼ cup lemon juice, ¼ cup cold water, 2/3 cup sugar, shake of salt, 3 eggs, yolks and whites separated, ½ cup fresh orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, one 8-oz. package white cream cheese, room temperature, 1 cup 32% cream, whipped.

Orange Glaze: one 10-oz. can Mandarin oranges, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons cornstarch or arrowroot flour (arrowroot makes clear glaze), ½ cup fresh orange juice, boiling water (see below), ½ teaspoon yellow food coloring.

To Make Crust: Mix together graham wafer crumbs, melted butter and sugar. Press uniformly into buttered spring-form pan and bake 5 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Cool.

To Make Filling: Soak the gelatine in the lemon juice and water for 5 minutes. Stir together in top of double boiler the soaked gelatine, sugar, salt, and orange juice and heat, stirring, over boiling water until gelatine and sugar dissolve. Beat egg yolks and stir some of the mixture into them, then return all to double boiler and cook, stirring, until mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat, add orange rind and cool. Beat in cream cheese, adding small lumps at a time, until all is incorporated and mixture is smooth. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in. Whip cream until stiff and fold in to make a smooth blend. Turn into crumb-crust-lined pan. Chill — preferably overnight.

Orange Glaze: Drain and dry Mandarin oranges, saving juice. Arrange in attractive circles around edge and at centre of chilled cheesecake. Measure juice from oranges and make up to ¾ cup with boiling water. Mix ¼ cup of this liquid with the cornstarch and ¼ teaspoon salt in a saucepan. Add remaining juice and ½ teaspoon yellow food coloring. Cook, stirring, until thick and clear. Cool slightly and spoon over oranges and cheesecake. Chill.

Foster Families Provide Mental Patients With Home

EDMONTON (CP) — A program to provide foster families for mental patients at the Alberta Hospital is producing "extremely good" results, says Howard Clifford, social services director.

Patients who no longer need hospital care but have no family or friends to take them in are supplied with a "substitute" family.

Most treated under the program are long-term patients who otherwise would be unable to leave the mental hospital because they lack the confidence to go it alone.

"We have had about 85 to 90 per cent success with the program," Mr. Clifford says, noting that normally about half the patients leaving a mental hospital are subsequently readmitted.

The hospital, located in Oliver on Edmonton's eastern outskirts, makes contact with foster families through advertising or the White Cross, a voluntary organization that helps mental patients.

"Emotional warmth, maturity of individuals, absence of conflict and adequate living space for the patient" are standards for selecting a foster family. Patients are then billeted in pairs because of the courage and comfort it gives them.

Families are paid room and board allowances of $65 monthly from provincial welfare funds and patients receive an allowance of about $20. About 30 patients have been given homes in the 18 months the project has been operating. The average per-son stays in a foster home about six months. Some work at regular jobs or receive technical training while living with the substitute family.

Fur Popular In Winter Rainwear

MONTREAL (CP)—Fur, usually confined to closets in rainy weather, was used liberally in a preview of fall and winter rainwear here Monday.

Teamed with poplin, velvet, wool and quilted fabrics, furs—usually fake—showed up in collars, cuffs, muffs, hats and linings to create a Russian-spirited collection for a company's 25th anniversary.

In keeping with this spirit, the raincoats — really day-in-day-out garments—and ski clothes were worn with Cossack boots, with the exception of one French - inspired zipper - back, open-toe boot.

Some coats, similar to the racoon coats of the '20s, were reserved for, but without the bulkiness of their predecessors. Wild burg long hair in ginger and black dyed horizontal panels was made into a collarless barrel coat with a front opening in stitched brown wool.

FAS FUR BAND

A full-length beige poplin coat had a racoon band of fur at the hemline, a matching fake racoon muff and hood and a belted back. Double - breasted from the waist down, one row of buttons continued to the neckline to give a side-closing effect.

In velvet, used frequently by couture Canadian designer Lyda Sperlich, came a black full-length coat with white fur trim. Another full-length black velvet coat had lynx trim and gold buttons.

IODE PRESIDENT — Mrs. J. Neil Gordon of Toronto has been elected president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire. She was elected at the IODE annual convention at Winnipeg. (CP Photo)

Men might also go long-hair for fall. Jackets shown for men included a reversible racoon and poplin coat and camel parkas with shaggy trim. A quilted gunmetal jacket in a longer length could be worn with or without a hip-length belt. For skiing a three-piece black stretch outfit was offered for the conservative and a bright wine nylon shell jacket with pile lining.

Successful Living

Should Get Voice Test Before Taking Lessons

DEAR DORIS — For many years now my sister and I have longed to be singers. Our mother said that it is just a dream everyone has, but our dream has been with us as long as we can remember. No job can top singing for us.

Others just laugh when we explain our true feelings. What do we do? Please help us because no one else will. — WISHERS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DISHERS — If you can carry a tune, apply to join your church's junior choir for a start. Get your mother's consent to a voice test.

No sense in forgetting about a vocation with pay attached though. Singing lessons cost money and it is far better to consider singing as your spare time vocation; at least until you know you have something special in the way of a voice. Very few reach stardom, but many find wonderful self-expression in singing.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Melrose Women's Institute met in the township hall, recently, with Mrs. Thomas Howard and Mrs. Harold McMechan as hostesses. Mrs. Charles Bates was in the chair.

The results of the bowling banquet last month were quite gratifying with the agreement that the caretaker be given an extra bonus. The secretary read several thank-you notes as well as a letter from the adopted Korean girl, Sin Yong Soon, who tells that blossoms are out in her country and she has purchased her necessary school supplies. Mrs. Arthur Long mentioned the set of six Provincial emblem spoons that are available now as well as the Adelaide Hoodless spoons which are coming out in the near future. Either of these make suitable prizes for guest speakers, card parties. Several centennial projects listed in the monthly bulletin from the Department of Tourism were brought to members' attention.

The executive were invited to the home of Mrs. R. Badgley to plan their next year's programs. The swimming committee reported that the bus rentals have been arranged and asked that all pupils wishing to take this swimming course enroll, stating their swimming ability and paying the required fee by June 24. The swimming instructor, Mrs. Joyce Patrick, has obtained excellent instructors for the children this year and it is hoped that this project will be as much of a success as it has been in the past years.

At this time, seventeen girls from the 4-H Homemaking Club modelled their blouses which they completed in their unit, "What Shall I Wear?"

PRESENT EXHIBIT

Melrose No. 1 Club presented an exhibit entitled "A Color Scheme for a Wardrobe," with Diane Melburn as commentator while Melrose No. 2 Club acted a skit "A Planned Shopping Trip," which was entertaining as well as educational. Both of these clubs had previously presented these demonstrations at Achievement Day last month.

Mrs. Clare Weese thanked the four ladies who had been the leaders for this project but as the Institute members examined the record books and the costume charts that were on display, they realized that it takes hard work by any 4-H girl to make the club a success.

The ladies who attended the district annual at Moira, each brought back a highlight of this enjoyable day. Mrs. Bernice Stratton voiced her thanks for the honor of attending the Guelph conference in the capacity of president and brought back a vivid account of her holiday.

She mentioned that the Institute Handbook is reviewed every three years to see if any revising is necessary, thereby keeping the rules and regulations up to date. She stated that every store in Britain carries a Canadian product since British housewives shop daily, in place of weekly, small or cans and packages of food are more in demand.

The convener for "Canadian Industries," Mrs. Don Thompson, gave an informative outline on the field milk industry as well as the fruit farming in Nova Scotia where 750,000 bushels of apples are canned yearly, not counting the number of bushels used in applesauce and juice. She also explained the by-products of meat and told of the hundreds of livestock needed for furnishing of pharmaceutical products, namely insulin and cortisone.

She recommended a film sponsored by "Swift Canadian Company", also their home economist, Miss Martha Logan, who demonstrates the proper carving methods for the various types and cuts of meat on the market.

Mrs. Kenneth McMechan gave a reading which told of the experiences of Elinor Milne who is the first woman carver in the House of Commons. She works with an all-male crew who are presently working on a huge 120-foot four-sided mural in the lobby of the House.

Mrs. Harold Buckley gave a timely reading and Mrs. Thompson concluded her program with a humorous reading.

PLAINFIELD W. I.

The May meeting of Plainfield Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. G. Denyes with an attendance of 18 members and eight visitors.

Mrs. R. Sullivan, president, opened the meeting in the usual manner.

A letter was read from Lee-Man-Soo, the adopted boy, thanking the Institute for a gift of money he had received from the W. I.

Mrs. F. Hodgin and Mrs. H. Harrison were appointed to arrange the display at the Belleville Fair. Swimming lessons, which will begin on July 5th, were discussed.

Reports from the district annual were given by Mrs. C. Marshall and Mrs. F. Hodgin.

Mrs. C. Marshall convener for citizenship, gave the motto, "Go often to the home of friends for words soon choke the unused path."

Mrs. S. Emerson gave a reading.

A report was given on the Girls' Club work with seven girls completing the course "What Shall I Wear?"

The girls modelled the blouses they had completed, after which their leader, Mrs. M. Sullivan, presented each girl with a cornflower glass.

The meeting closed and the hostess and her assistants served a dainty lunch.

Many Trained In First Aid, Home Nursing

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal employees across Canada are busy preparing themselves for emergency situations — peacetime disasters such as explosions, large fires, auto accidents, or home accidents—or enemy attack by learning the fundamentals of first aid and home nursing.

The courses are being offered to civil servants as part of the program of the emergency health services division of the federal health department.

Since they started in 1960, nearly 7,500 federal employees have been trained in first aid and home nursing, with the cooperation of St. John Ambulance staff.

In addition, thousands of civil servants have taken the special lecture on artificial respiration, part of the St. John Ambulance first aid program.

The first aid course, with 14 hours of instruction and a two-hour examination, is carried out over a period of eight weeks. Where possible, the courses are held during working hours.

Instruction includes the principles of first aid, the structure and function of the human body and how to minimize the effects of injury, relieve pain and transport the injured.

The home nursing course, a series of nine two-hour sessions including an examination session, provides instruction in simplified nursing and how to care for a person confined to bed. Advanced courses in first aid training and home nursing are also offered. Courses are held throughout the year, except for July and August.

WANTS DEBT PAID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator J. William Fulbright thinks that high time France settled its $6,500,000 First World War debt to the United States. The Arkansas Democrat said a legal connection could be established between the French debt and French demands for gold in their transactions with the U.S.

ANNOUNCE LOAN

OTTAWA (CP)—A $3,240,000 loan for El Salvador, the first under the government's new external aid program to provide soft loans to Latin America, was announced by the external affairs department Monday.

Men Taking Women's Place As 'Weaker Sex' in Sweden

The Central Bureau of Statistics reports Swedish women seem to be gaining superiority over men both biologically and psychologically.

"There is a completely new situation in Swedish statistics concerning the death rate," Widen said. "The death rate for men over 60 will rise very shortly. As long as records have been kept in our country, the death rate has been declining in all age groups.

"The death rate for women has declined much faster than that for men, who are suffering more from such illnesses as hardening of the arteries, heart ailments and other illnesses in which body wear is concerned."

DISEASE INCREASES

Circulatory trouble, Widen said, is on the increase in men, especially among men living in large cities and doing "commercial work" where the hardness of drinking water, physical activity and mental stress play an important role.

"The gap between the death rate for men and women has widened very considerably and successively," Widen said. "Man has not merely become the weaker sex, but even the much weaker sex."

Doctors and sociologists also have noted a change in young people. They say the actual facial features of boys have become more effeminate.

In larger Swedish cities, it is no longer easy to decide which is boy and which is girl at first sight. Hair is the same length, sweeping down to shoulder level, and clothes are often identical.

"This is significant," said one Stockholm doctor. "I do not believe that the longer hair and the clothes are the only factor. I think that when you really look carefully at the faces of the boys, you will find that they have extremely sensitive faces.

"Their cheekbones appear to be higher," he said. "Their lips are softer and more curved. Their skins are smoother and their noses are more sharply defined, more feminine."

Some of the girls, Widen said, appear to have more masculine-type faces, although the change is not nearly so pronounced as in boys.

Recreational Director Introduced to Council

PICTON (Staff) — Dr. Lionel Dockrill, at Monday night's meeting of town council introduced Picton's new Recreational Director, Wayne Ring. In his remarks Dr. Dockrill stated that he had no report to submit as yet for the new director was trying to put his finger on the "Pulse of Picton" and still feeling his way around. He added that he and his committee had made no mistake in their selection and that they have a well qualified man to head the town's recreation committee. Mr. Ring is married and comes to Picton with ten years previous experience in the recreation field. He occupies a temporary office generously supplied by Picton business man Jack LeHeup. Mr. Ring has stated previous to last night's council meeting that one of his first projects will be to establish a co-ordinated recreation program here by seeking the co-operation of all volunteer organizations and church groups already engaged in recreation programs. Looking further ahead, Mr. Ring said he plans to organize a "community recreation conference" in the fall which would include all community-minded organizations.

The street committee's report indicated that there were some interested in the removal of the eye-sore walk on Picton's main street, opposite the Regent theatre. It was brought up that this matter had been before council many times in the past and at that time recommendations had been made to install a stop light at this location. At that time Department of Highways for Ontario made a number of surveys of the area and decided against the installation. Picton's main street being a part of Highway 33 comes under the jurisdiction of DHO. During the month of May 14 building permits were issued totalling in value $12,300.

SOME AREAS DEPLORABLE

Councillor A. Jarvis, reporting a survey made by streets committee, said that certain areas in the town contained properties that were in a most deplorable condition. Referring to the area previously owned by the Canadian Canners on Mary St., he said these properties were nothing but uncontrolled junk yards. They are occupied by vacant houses left empty for fall down, they are overgrown with dense underbrush, which is a fire hazard and dangerous for children. This area of negligence also leads to the depreciation of the surrounding properties, he added.

Councillor Jarvis suggested that action be taken to notify the owners to have made some progress by the end of a seven-day period. If these people persist in leaving this situation as is, we should take action to clean this up ourselves and assess the costs to their taxes.

The report of the fire chief showed a total of nine fire calls for the month with no damage, except in the case of the last reported fire, which was estimated at $50 damage.

Official Opening Is Staged Of Hallowell Twp. Barn

PICTON (Staff) — Members, past and present, of the council of the Township of Hallowell Monday evening gathered at the township's new building to witness its dedication and the unveiling of a plaque. They listened to welcoming addresses by Warden of the County B. Hepburn and past and present Reeves of the township. Warden Hepburn congratulated last year's council, particularly, for seeing the new structure successfully started and well on its way. He also thanked the present council for a job well done. Present Reeve John Fox said that he was pleased to participate in the official opening of the township barn and added that he considered the building one of the best of its kind. He said, that the building would stand for many years a credit to the township, to the county and to the men with the foresight to institute its erection. The new barn, which will house township road and other equipment, is 80 feet by 50 feet with an additional brick front area (which houses offices and council room) that measures 18 feet by 35 feet. It was originally planned to place the plaque in the offices. However, it was later decided to place the plaque on the side of the building.

Work began last year, and the building with the aid of the winter works program, was completed early this spring. Total cost of the new structure was $40,000, of this $36,700 was subsidized. The total cost included interior finishing and furniture. Following the official opening, members of the councils for the past year and the new council, along with their wives, enjoyed a dinner at the Prince Edward Yacht Club.

REMANDED IN ESCAPE

TORONTO (CP) — Conrad Simbels, 28, of Windsor was remanded to June 15 Monday on charges of theft and helping a patient to escape from an institution. Police said Sunday a man claiming to be a patient's husband entered the Ontario mental hospital here, struck a matron, stole her keys and freed the patient. Simbels was arrested in Windsor.

Ten-year

salaries while in training will not be eligible, he said.

He predicted that the OHSC will lose about $3,500,000 a year in premiums.

WILL BE INSURED

Mr. Dymond also said testing for phenylketonuria—a defect detectable at birth and which can lead to mental retardation —will become an insured service.

Treatment to prevent retardation among infants with the condition—known as PKU—includes a special diet that must be started during the first 10 weeks of the child's life.

Kenneth Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) criticized the proposed changes in the Pharmacy Act, saying that increased disciplinary powers over druggists could result in price fixing.

The proposed increase in the disciplinary powers wielded by the Ontario College of Pharmacy over member druggists would be a "real weapon" over cut - rate drug merchants, he said.

Reading out a report from the college sent to all member druggists, which suggested that drug advertising was unethical, Mr. Bryden said through control of advertising the college could prevent druggists from reducing prices.

This enters the realm of price-fixing, he said.

DEFENDS DISCOUNTS

J. F. Edwards (PC—Perth), a druggist, defended the discount sale of drugs but added that some cut-rate stores were putting other druggists out of business.

He blamed manufacturers who supply all drug outlets because they are only interested in sales.

The controversial issue of interfaith marriages and their ethical party on a vote an amendment to the new Child Welfare Act proposed by Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West).

Liberals Horace Racine (Ottawa East) and George Beaume (Essex North) voted with the Conservatives to defeat the amendment 48 to 39.

The amendment would have barred courts from making an order against adoption of a child strictly because of the incompatibility of the child's religion with that of the adoptive parents.

A similar amendment — that no child should be denied a good foster home because of the religion or non-religion of the foster parents—proposed by Jim Trotter (L — Toronto) — was voted down 45 to 22.

A government backbencher, Alan Eagleson (PC — Lakeshore), who first proposed the amendments to the standing committee on welfare last week, was absent when the issue came to a vote.

The food index accounts for 27 per cent of the total index. But the most important component in the total index is housing, accounting for 32 per cent. The cost of shelter and household operation edged up only two-tenths of a point to 140.5. There was some increase in rents, and prices of furniture and supplies rose to outweigh drops in the prices of floor coverings, and cotton and woollen textiles.

The decline in the clothing price index was two-tenths of a point, to 122.6. This reflected sale prices for men's and women's wear and cotton piece goods during April. Clothing accounts for 11 per cent of the total index.

Transportation costs, accounting for 12 per cent, advanced six-tenths of a point to 146.8. Train and plane fares were higher. Gasoline prices were higher in some eastern and central Canadian cities and automobile insurance rates were higher in Saskatchewan. But the cost of new cars was lower.

In the relatively smaller components of the consumer price index, health and personal care prices rose three - tenths of a point to 173.8, the recreation and reading index rose seven-tenths of a point to 154.6, and the tobacco and alcohol index rose half a point to 122.5.

These reflected higher prices for men's haircuts and women's hairdressing, motion picture tickets, and cigarettes and cigarette tobacco in two provinces.

The new consumer price index, for May, 138.0, compared with the January index of 136.5. The index was 137.3 in March and 137.7 in April.

Richard William Stanley Bedford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bedford, formerly of Belleville and now of Oshawa, graduated recently from Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, Toronto. Mr. Bedford who is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Belleville has accepted a position with Simpsons-Sears in Toronto.

Massive Shift Is Seen In Control of Savings

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Two recent federal government moves—the pension plan and the proposed Canada Development Corp. — have opened the way for a massive shift of control of savings to the public sector of the economy from the private, G. Arnold Hart, chairman and president of the Bank of Montreal, said Monday.

He told the 94th annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that these steps amount to a "pronounced move in the direction of state socialism."

The CDC, as outlined by Finance Minister Gordon in his budget address, would be a $1,000,000,000 corporation, financed mostly by selling shares to the public at $5 each initially. It would buy shares of Canadian companies that needed financial help or that might otherwise be bought by foreign capital.

No legislation has been introduced in Parliament yet.

Hart said that whatever merits the over-all aims of the corporation might have, "it is extremely doubtful that they warrant a far-reaching intrusion of government into the savings and investment process."

. . . It is virtually certain that an important measure of control will remain with the government, or that at the very least the government will have a dominant influence on policy.

"Once established, the existence of such a corporation on this scale places enormous control over the allocation of financial resources."

SHARES CONCERN

Of the pension plan, to go into operation next year, Mr. Hart said he shares the concern of people who have questioned the way the plan is funded.

There were two issues:

How the substantial funds that will be built up will be allocated between the public and private sectors of the economy and the uses made of the funds; and

The fact that the competition for the savings and the investment decisions to be made concerning their use will not be subject to the normal tests of the market.

"This is not to suggest that the needs of the public sector are necessarily any less urgent than those of the private sector," Mr. Hart said.

"However, in recent years governments in Canada have come to absorb an increasing proportion of the funds available for investment, and in view of the growing need for such resources to finance the expansion of business it is even more important that the priorities concerning the use of capital funds are not decided outside the discipline of the capital market."

Mr. Hart also criticized Mr. Gordon's recently proposed changes in the Bank Act, especially the government's rejection of proposals that it lift the six-per-cent interest ceiling on bank loans.

He said the pose of protecting small borrowers from big finance is politically attractive, but it bears no relation to reality.

His remarks were taken from a text given the press before delivery.

INCREASE SPENDING

On the same platform with Mr. Hart was Industry Minister Drury, who told delegates Canadian industry must triple its spending on technological innovations "if our manufactured goods are going to compete successfully in the world market."

"Systematic and continuing investment in research and development leading to new products is just as important to competitive survival as capital investment to replace worn out plant."

With the progressive reduction of trade barriers throughout the world, Canada's industry would be facing more competition in which "scientific superiority and technical excellence are becoming major weapons."

In 1963, Canadian industry spent only about half a cent of every dollar of sales on research and development. Britain spent three times as much, Sweden four times and the United States six times.

Depressed Areas Will Be Helped

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government, which has offered for the last year not to collect tax money from industries establishing in slow-growth areas, now is ready to hand out cash to bolster employment opportunities in these regions.

Prime Minister Pearson, firing the latest shot in the government's war on poverty, announced Monday that, effective July 1, manufacturing and processing industries either establishing or expanding operations in slow-growth areas will be eligible for outright government grants of up to $5,000,000.

He also told the Commons that the criteria for selecting such areas is to be expanded and that new manpower assistance measures will be added to the general program.

The most potent item, however, is the system of outright grants which will run until March 31, 1971.

Under it, a manufacturing or processing plant can recover one-third of its first $250,000 investment in a depressed area, one-quarter of the next $750,000 and one-fifth of anything above $1,000,000.

HAS LIMIT

The limit is $5,000,000, the amount a firm can get on a total investment of $24,600,000 or more.

The non-taxable grants are in addition to the existing program providing a five-year tax holiday for new manufacturing and processing outlets in designated areas. This offer expires March 31, 1967.

The program, which can cover everything from plant, equipment and machinery to outlays for buildings, docks and even wharves, can be claimed either as a cash payment or as a credit against the company's federal tax bill.

They are designed primarily to stimulate new job opportunities to these areas suffering from chronic unemployment and lack of diversified industries. Existing firms, officials said, have not been able to take advantage of the tax holiday since it is the same way as established companies with a profit - making record somewhere else.

The new criteria for designating depressed areas, a complex but exacting formula based on unemployment statistics, will expand this region to include regions suffering from underemployment, that is, fewer jobs than there should be.

PLAN DISCUSSIONS

The prime minister said details of the new formula will be discussed during discussions with the provinces.

He told the Commons, however, that it will be wide enough to embrace "almost all of the Atlantic provinces, substantial parts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan and considerable areas of northern Ontario, Evacuation in Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta, the natural three most prosperous provinces, would be more limited.

The prime minister offered few details of the second major aspect of the expanded program. But he said it will involve only a "very good" degree of operation between government employment agencies and firms receiving financial assistance to assess manpower needs, and development of new find larger vocational and retraining programs.

"The program for industrial development is one of the series of government measures to combat poverty in Canada," he said.

"Its importance is that Canadians living in slow-growth areas are most needed will have a better chance to improve their health, housing and income that the program provides for constructive industrial development and distribution of skills."

Mr. Pearson's statement received a guarded welcome from Opposition spokesmen.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington South) said it indicated the government had "learned the lesson of its errors" and improved the definition of designated areas and consultation with the provinces.

WILL CLAMP DOWN

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto city council moved today to clamp down on noise and coffee houses in the Yorkville shopping district in the mid-town Bloor Street area. It instructed city solicitor William Callow to prepare a bylaw banning motorcycles from dusk to dawn in the area. It also asked the city planning board to report on a proposal that the zoning bylaw be amended to prevent the establishment of new coffee houses.

Robarts Sees Challenge

Truly National Policy Answer to Separatism

TORONTO (CP)—The great-est challenge facing the federal government today is the development of a truly national policy that will capture the allegiance of the people, Premier John Robarts said Monday night.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that unless Ottawa comes up with "dynamic new policies of national development that incorporate the aspirations of the people of the various provinces, they will tend to grow steadily more self-oriented."

He warned the federal government not to become so concerned with side issues that it fails to come to grips with the main issue facing it, and added:

"Welcome those who wish to participate financially, or in any other way, in the great adventure."

The solution to the questions of national unity now facing Canada lies in an aggressive policy of national development, Mr. Robarts said.

"We must generate the proper mental climate in this country for the rational development of our human and material resources, from coast to coast, and if we can establish common goals, then we will find a sense of national unity in our people and a dedication to the ideal of national independence."

He criticized the timing of the preservation of Canada above party politics and selfish interests, the premier—often mentioned as a candidate for federal leadership—said the progressive Conservative party—and Canadians should rekindle their faith in their national destiny.

"We must not be the slave type of bold, sweeping, imaginative political decisions as did the fathers of Confederation.

"We must build on the firm foundation which we have inherited from the fathers. We must develop a new sense of personal dedication and participation in the future of our country."

Trade Minister Sharp told the delegates that the success of exporting manufacturers will set the limits of future over-all growth in Canada.

Competition in manufactured goods in overseas markets is going to be tougher in future, he told the industrialists.

World demand for food and basic materials was not growing as rapidly as that for produced goods and in the face of this shift Canada's share of world trade could diminish even though it maintained a strong position in markets for food and primary products.

Mr. Sharp said specialization by industries compelling for world markets is becoming more important so they can attain the volume production needed to win sales.

Harold J. Clawson, vice-president of personnel for Steel Co. of Canada, criticized the way collective bargaining now is used in negotiating labor contracts.

He also said that almost no one — labor, management or government—is happy with the bargaining procedures, but added that no acceptable alternative has been offered.

If the present procedures were scrapped, government intervention would be the only serious alternative.

"But both unions and management have a big stake in the continuation of the free collective bargaining process.

'Increasing government intervention would not be the interests of either of them and they should not willingly or knowingly sit by and lose their freedoms and prerogatives by default."

He called for unions, management and government to show more statesmanship than they have in the past to gain the maximum benefits for all from collective bargaining.

Gemini IV Flight Quickens U. S. Man-to-Moon Race With the Soviet Union

HOUSTON (AP) — With the flight of Gemini IV, the United States has taken a big stride forward in the quickening man-to-the moon race with the Soviet Union.

The medical dare must still be analyzed on the longest American manned space flight yet, but otherwise U.S. officials said that they are no barrier to moving on with the Gemini program to a seven-day flight in August.

Astronaut James McDivitt said Edward White spent nearly 98 hours in space, tripling the total time logged by all eight previous U.S. astronauts.

McDivitt and White were pronounced in good physical shape in initial examination. But adverse effects normally don't show up until after a flight and Air Force docs may be required to analyze completely the medical data.

It will provide the U.S. with the first handle on how man's physical and mental condition is affected by extended periods in the weightless space environment. A Russian cosmonaut holds the record, 119 hours—just shy of five days. He suffered dizziness and nausea, especially in the heart and blood vessel systems, which caused concern among Soviet doctors.

Gemini officials learned a lot from the McDivitt-White flight, the engineering data developed by man can operate for at least short periods outside the orbital capsule. Both White and his brother aids are required for rendezvous in space; that man can perform effectively while in space environment for at least four days, and that most spacecraft systems have a high degree of reliability for the long haul.

The man-in-space programs of both the U.S. and Russia now are in the second phase of the moon race—a critical time when operational capabilities and techniques are being developed.

The country which develops the procedures first and then builds the most reliable spacecraft in final phase will be the winner in the lunar sweepstakes.

Thursday 18, U.S. officials acknowledged that the Russians had a clear lead of perhaps two years. That was the day cosmonaut Alexei Leonov became history's first human to step outside his orbiting spacecraft.

Now astronauts McDivitt and White have circled the globe for an American record of more than four days and White took a 20 - minute excursion into space on the end of a lifeline.

The achievements of Gemini III and IV certainly have narrowed the gap. The Russians still have a lead, however, because of a more powerful rocket they have been using for several years. It has enabled them to lift roomier capsules for longer periods, giving them a head start in the vital department of gathering medical data.

If McDivitt and White have no serious post-flight difficulties, astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad are to take a seven-day journey in August.

The Power for the moon flights will be provided by a massive Saturn V rocket, a 7,500,000 - pound - thrust "non-existent" vehicle developed in nearly 20 times more powerful than the Titan II which lifts the Gemini craft.

With the Saturn V, the U.S. hopes to wipe out the advantage the Soviets have had with the booster power for several years. The Russians use a rocket with 1,400,000 pounds of thrust and there is no indication they are developing anything as large as Saturn V. It is believed their manned lunar landing plans call for launching three or four of their present boosters to assemble a moon launching pad in orbit about the earth.

Express Handlers Back on Job

TORONTO (CP) — Freight and express workers of Canadian National Railways were back at their jobs here early today, clearing up local deliveries that had been left since a wildcat walkout began last Wednesday.

An embargo on less-than-carload shipments from Toronto was lifted by the railway today. The embargo had prevented a pile-up of shipments.

An agreement between railway and union negotiators was announced Monday night in Montreal. It ended walkouts in Ontario which had threatened to spread into a nation-wide strike of 23,000 non-operating CNR employees.

The employees involved are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

The negotiators issued a joint statement Monday evening saying the strikers would go back to work immediately, that the railway would take no disciplinary action against them, and that the railway would process their chief grievances in 10 days.

The railway had refused to discuss the grievances until the men were back at work.

The CNR official said the railway would agree to a nation-wide strike if 23,000 non-operating employees voted to authorize it.

The walkout began in Toronto Wednesday, spread to Hamilton, Brampton, London and Oakville by Wednesday night and to Ottawa and Brantford by Friday.

In Ottawa, some 200 employees reported for work Friday but left after a few hours by holding two lengthy "prayer" meetings until they were told that the grievance and the union would hold talks.

Cause of the walkout was dissatisfaction with how workers claimed were abuses of the railway's demerit system, by which employees are given demerit points for faulty work.

Under the union agreement, employees entitled to file grievances if they believed they have been given demerit points unfairly.

Three such grievances in Toronto have not been settled to the employees' satisfaction.

DRIVER DEMOTED

In one, a truck driver with five year's standing was demoted to the job of porter after he was given the maximum number of demerit points for losing a carton of freight.

It is three Toronto grievances that the railway has agreed to process within 10 days. In addition, it has agreed to discuss outstanding complaints at various other local points within 10 days.

The union has withdrawn the walkout illegal, and in the statement the union has undertaken to use its influence to support illegal work stoppages or to protect members involved in them.

The union and management also agreed to discuss setting up "a senior committee to discuss matters of mutual interest arising from time to time."

HEADS CNR GROUPS

Union negotiating team consisted of President William J. Smith and eight other union officers and executives.

At first the union had not endorsed the walkout but on Friday Smith advised all locals to be ready to support the strikers.

Operations might have involved either financial assistance or a walkout of 23,000 CNR non-operating workers. Canadian Pacific had would have tied up the railway's express service from coast to coast.

HUNGARY HELPED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Hungarian government helped release the return to earth Monday of the U.S. Gemini astronauts. U.S. officials said the Hungarians sounded a Russ pest radio broadcast spoof on a frequency which interfered with Gemini ship communications during the splashdown period.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the plan for grants of up to $5,000,000 for industry moving into slow - growth areas.

In the rules debate, Terry Nugent (PC — Edmonton-Strathcona) said Conservatives have to fight the proposed double-limiting rule.

Gene Rheaume (PC—Northwest Territories) said the government has many "intellectual fascists" who insist they know what is best.

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue the rules debate. The debate stands adjourned until June 22.

Accused Guilty Of Manslaughter

TORONTO (CP)—John James Wright, 27, charged with the non-capital murder of a 26-year-old prostitute-drug addict, was convicted of manslaughter Monday night following a six-day trial here.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury deliberated 5½ hours before returning its verdict. Sentence will be passed June 18.

Wright was charged after the body of Eileen Pattie, also known as Cecile Lavergne, was found on a roof below Wright's kitchen window New Year's Day.

Pathologist Hans Sepp had testified that the woman died from aspiration of her stomach contents. Evidence also showed a manual strangulation was a possible factor in her death.

All Integrated Units Will Be Under Mobile Command Says Minister of Defence

OTTAWA (CP)—In the second major step toward integrated armed services, Defence Minister Hellyer announced Monday that the three services now being grouped under six commands. There now are 11 commands among the navy, army and air force.

The integration program is running four months ahead of schedule, Mr. Hellyer said as he announced the new command structure, which will bring the three services under more tightly - knit, unified administrations.

The four commands in the army—Eastern, Quebec, Central and—Western—are to disappear. All the units will come under "Mobile Command." This command will also include CFAF tactical and light transport planes and heavy helicopters.

There will be no more regional army headquarters, except for the militia.

No headquarters has yet been selected for the huge new Mobile Command. Asked at a press conference whether it would be in Quebec, Mr. Hellyer said "that's a possibility."

Headquarters for the new Tri-Service Training Command will be in Winnipeg. The Maritime Command, will be in Halifax. A deputy commander will be based on the West Coast.

A new Tri-Service Material Command for all three services will be established at Rockcliffe air base near Ottawa. The RCAF now has its own Materiel Command there.

The RCAF Air Transport Command and the RCAF Air Defence Command remain unchanged. But sources said the Air Defence Command may later be downgraded with North American Air Defence Northern Command at North Bay.

Mr. Hellyer said the integration program will result in the elimination of many duplicated services in the three services. It has been said that 66 per cent of service trades are common to more than one of the forces and at least 20 per cent of the materiel is common to all three.

All major command chiefs were called to Ottawa Monday for briefings on the new structure. The minister said their reaction was a "very good." He said he hoped to implement the program.

The big new Mobile Command will be the most difficult to bring into operation. Mr. Hellyer said it likely will be a year before the present "real-sonably soon" on a new tactical aircraft for the RCAF. All the necessary data had been collected and it was being suitability and the advantage to Canadian industry.

He also said he hopes the services will be completely unified by 1967. This would include a new rank structure for the three services and a similar "walking - out" uniform. But this would be approached with caution since it was important to maintain traditions and color.

Mr. Hellyer said the jobs of the new command chiefs, said the minister, will be to make a study of integration. Where possible, existing facilities will be used. Mr. Hellyer said some operating bases may ultimately be closed under the new program.

As the integration program enters its second phase, the minister said morale in the services could be "very good." In the operational forces it had never been better.

'You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet' Official Reaction to Flight

He was looking to future U.S. man-in-space flights which will be launched on an accelerated schedule as a result of the success of astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White..

Gemini spacecraft will hook up with other satellites; the pilots will perform intricate maneuvres during trips up to two weeks; and men will walk and work outside their orbiting spacecraft for longer periods than the 20-minute excursion made by White.

Then on to the moon—perhaps only three years from now.

Even as McDivitt and White were being hoisted from the Atlantic Monday after their four - day trip, the Titan II rocket for Gemini V was being erected at Cape Kennedy.

The crew will be veteran astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr., whose 34-hour U.S. space flight record was shattered by Gemini IV, and rookie pilot Charles Conrad Jr. they have a late August date with the stars.

Cooper and Conrad are to stay in space for seven days, but space agency officials hinted they could be up for a longer time-based on preliminary data from Gemini IV.

Gemini Project Director Charles Mathews said the Gemini V spacecraft will be somewhat different than Gemini IV. For one thing, it will generate electrical power from a fuel cell—a device which converts hydrogen and liquid oxygen into energy. It will replace bulky batteries with a great saving in weight.

Cooper and Conrad also will launch their own satellite from the nose of their spacecraft. It will be an instrumental sphere the size of a beach ball. Then they will use a radar system to practice rendezvousing with it.

The flight is scheduled in October, with astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford in Gemini VI. The target satellite will be the second stage of an Atlas - Agena rocket launched one or more orbits before Gemini VI.

Stafford plans to leave the spacecraft after the hookup and practise working with tools on spacecraft nuts and bolts.

Gemini VII is planned as a 14-day mission in December. The remaining five flights in the Gemini program then will practise various rendezvous, docking and astronaut emergency manoeuvres.

Mathews said that the schedule will be flexible and that the success of Gemini IV certainly should encourage attempts at shorter steps than originally envisioned.

The Gemini program is expected to conclude late next year if it maintains a schedule of a flight every two months.

Starting in 1967, three-man Apollo teams will be launched into earth orbit to rehearse for moon shots.

I have been accused of being a Yankee-hater—a typewriter and vocal debaucher of the pin-striped heroes whose only claim to fame is they've won more pennants and world series than Abou-ben-Adam had wives.

The three or more Yankee satellites that are orbiting the newsroom accuse me of being brainwashed by the National League and a select coterie of secret agents representing the other nine clubs in the American League.

They assert I have never recovered from an alleged indoctrination given me a few years back when I was covering a subway world series between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Bronx Bombers.

There was no indoctrination. Take 30,000 baseball fans. Place them inside a venerable structure like Ebbet's Field. Toss the Yankees in there as a loyal opposition in a world series and anyone who looks like a Yankee fan is taking his life in his hands.

It was simply a matter of self-preservation.

To be sure I wrote a rather colorful yarn of Sal (The Magnificent Barber) Maglie whipping the facemen from across the river with the aid of Jackie Robinson's fourth-inning homer.

Three days in Brooklyn did not convert me to the Dodger cause, although through some odd quirk in my makeup I felt strangely elated when they won.

Two days later I rose to my feet (with the assistance of two fellow scribes in the Yankee Stadium press box) and watched and heard over 70,000 fans give the Yankees' Don Larsen a tremendous ovation after he had pitched the first and only perfect game in a world series.

One should not be accused of being a "hater" of any particular club because in his opinion he believes that one or more other clubs in the loop have a chance of coping the gonfalon.

I would be the first one to say that this magnificent club was achieved many a victory because the injury jinx rode herd on them. I would be the first to say that three errors in a row was one of "those things" that happen to any ball club and was no shadow on the magnificent fielding average of the mighty men of the Bronx.

I would be the first one to admit that Mantle, Maris and other top sluggers were victims of untimely slumps and not the curves and fast balls of opposing pitchers.

I would be the first to say that the Chicago White Sox, the Minnesota Twins, the Indians or the Orioles have risen to heights unheard in their victories over Keane's Kuties. In normal times they would have slunk out of the various ball parks with the howls of the Yankee victors ringing in their ears high over the boos of their faithful.

I would be the first to admit that the Yanks' pitching staff were victims of a prodigious upsurge in the hitting ability of the opposition, and not because they had lost that the mound magic that carried them to many a triumph in other years.

I would be the first to admit that the lowly Mets of the National League are outdrawing the mighty Yankees by a half-million fans a season because they want to see a team lose consistently.

I am not a Yankee hater.

But I would not shed crocodile tears if they finished last in the American League standing!

— ODE OF A SATELLITE (OFFICE TYPE)

The writers were saying they'd lost victory's knack.
The team wasn't clicking; all was not well.
Two runs from the bottom and one step from hell.
Howard was injured; Ford had his arm.
Maris was aching from thigh to his toes;
Mantle was bobbled, so what else is new?
He was still the one Yankee who always came through.

But now things have changed; the tide has turned 'round
The Yankees are picking themselves up from the ground.
All Yankee power and all Yankee dirt,
Was revived by a liner El smashed out to left.
Yes, even verily, I say nothing will stop

Colorful Plante Hangs Up His Gear

MONTREAL (CP) — Colorful Jacques Plante, New York Rangers' masked and nomadic netminder who won six Vezina trophies and one Hart Memorial Trophy during a 12-year National Hockey League career, Monday night announced his retirement from the game.

The 36-year-old Shawinigan, Que., native—doted off the ice for his assorted hobbies and rigid diet—made his decision known at a press conference called by Emile Francis, the club's general manager.

The announcement followed a quiet opening day of the NHL four-day annual meetings which saw action restricted to minor league scheduling, small rule changes and much jockeying by managers wanting to trade but unable to come up with satisfactory deals.

Plante paralyzed his fare protector and wandering style of play into a 10-year stay with Montreal Canadiens and two seasons with the Rangers. He said his decision to retire was prompted by a desire to spend more time with his family.

HAD OPERATION

Plante had undergone a knee operation about a month ago and had said at the time that unless the operation was a success, he probably would retire. The operation was regarded as successful but Plante finally made up his mind to leave hockey and so notified the Rangers only Monday afternoon.

Francis said there was no salary dispute and for the present the club would have to rely on Ed Giacomin, picked up from Providence of the American Hockey League, to replace the veteran. In addition, Gilles Villemure of Vancouver Canucks of the Western League remains in the wings.

However, the general manager said his club would be interested in picking up an established NHL goalie if it could do so though a deal at the current meetings or through the intra-league draft Wednesday.

JAQUES PLANTE

The deal talks went on space. Rangers were talking with both Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins. Montreal was reported hot after Rod Gilbert, high-scoring Ranger of last season, but what Canadiens were willing to give up was believed to be stalling the deal.

General manager Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings, already a prolific pre-meeting dealer, said he is "always ready to consider changes."

Other Monday action saw the AHL and WHL ratify a 72-game interlocking schedule for the coming season. The AHL approved the agreement by a 7-2 vote, with Springfield and Providence reported as the dissenting clubs.

The two minor professional leagues will also go ahead with a reverse draft whereby they can draft from a pool of 60 NHL-owned players after the National League settles its intra-league draft on Wednesday.

The NHL rules committee decided that with inception of the two-goalie system, a delay in play because of injury to the participating netminder must not exceed five minutes. Goalies who throw the puck into the crowd will also feel official wrath. Goalies have been blamed for 90 per cent of stoppage of play at this moment.

An automatic fine of $200 for stick-swinging will be imposed, with provision for further action by president Clarence Campbell if necessary.

Today's sessions will feature a meeting by club owners, at which time a new referee-in-chief to replace retiring Carl Voss will be chosen.

The two names most prominently mentioned have been those of Ian (Scotty) Morrison, who had a brief turn as a referee 20 years ago, and Frank Udvari, senior referee with 14 years NHL service.

City Hotel Extends Win String

Moe Hawkins' lead-off homer in the bottom of the eighth inning gave City Hotel their seventh consecutive Commercial Softball League win last night, 7-6, over Stewart Warner.

Hawkins' circuit blast ruined a strong relief pitching chore by Harry Powers who had held City Hotel batters inking over from K. Levick back in the fourth inning. Powers fanned nine and walked one. Levick allowed six hits, struck out two but walked six.

Stewart Warner held a 5-4 lead after two frames, City moved ahead 6-5 in the fourth and the losers tied it in the fifth. That was all until the extra inning.

Dave Feeney pitched nine-hit ball, with one strikeout and three walks, on the league leader's hilltop.

Moe Hawkins had a double to match his game-winning homer while Jack Main got a double and single. Doug Hull, Bob Brooks and Doug Moreau got the other City Hotel safeties.

Gary Gee paced Stewart Warner with a double and two singles while John Trendell got a triple and single. Chuck Bowbotham, Gary Wood, Bob Benn and K. Levick added singles.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painfully. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among those case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Brilliant Queens' Star Jim Young Signs With Vikings

TORONTO (CP)—A 21-year-old all-star backfielder with Queen's University Golden Gaels is believed to be the third Canadian to sign a National Football League contract.

Jim Young, a 21-year-old Senior Intercollegiate Football Union all-star and the league's outstanding player last season, confirmed Monday he has signed a one-year contract with Minnesota Vikings.

The 210-pounder is reported to have received a bonus and a $12,000 annual salary.

Young, who graduated with a bachelor of arts degree from Queen's this spring, was the first draft choice of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference. He was signed to the Minnesota contract last Friday by Viking chief scout Joe Thomas, a former Argo line coach who flew to Toronto to complete the deal.

IS HAMILTONIAN

Young, whose home is in Hamilton, nearly reached agreement with the Argos earlier this year, but decided to finish his college education with a physical education degree.

Argos, who then arranged a summer job for him on a Toronto newspaper, counted him out of their plans for 1965 but figured on him for 1966.

Young was an all-star the last three years with Queen's and served as the league in scoring last season with 99 points.

"The National League is the best league and I just had to try it," Young said. "If I don't make it, I'll learn a lot. It's a chance to learn."

Young, a speedy and versatile athlete who played both halfback and fullback for Queen's, said he hopes to take post graduate work while playing for Minnesota.

ALS SIGN HATCHER

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announced Monday night they have signed fullback Ron Hatcher. Hatcher, who played college football with Michigan State, performed briefly with Toronto Argonauts in 1963 and 1964.

Tribe's Torrid Tiant 2-Hits Twins

Five In Row

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Luis Tiant didn't waste any time establishing himself in the American League last season. There are some, though, who say Tiant is hesitating now.

The Cleveland right hander stopped league-leading Minnesota on two hits Monday night as the Indians won their fifth straight game and stopped the Twins' four - game winning streak with a 2-1 decision.

The victory was the fourth in a row for Tiant, who rocketed to a 10-4 record in less than half a season after the Indians purchased him from Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast League last July.

This year, Tiant has become the centre of a league controversy. Some players have accused him of throwing an illegal hesitation pitch, a weapon allegedly employed by the legendary Satchel Paige.

"Tiant is the reincarnation of Satchel Paige," Frank Malzone of Boston Red Sox insisted recently. "He uses the hesitation pitch, and it's illegal. But the umpires aren't calling it."

Tiant ridicules such a thought as does Cleveland manager Birdie Tebbetts, who played at the same time as Paige.

"NOTHING ILLEGAL"

The Twins might not have found Tiant illegal Monday night, but they certainly found him difficult. The 24-year-old Cuban allowed only successive doubles by Tony Oliva and Don Mincher in the fourth inning while bringing his record to 5-2.

Back to Tiant's effective home runs by Leon Wagner and Rocky Colavito in the Indians' half of the fourth off Jim Grant. Tiant retired 15 Twins in a row before walking Harmon Killebrew in the sixth. The loss for Grant was his first after five victories.

Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit Tigers edged Los Angeles Angels 6-5, New York Yankees trimmed Kansas City Athletics 4-2 and Chicago White Sox defeated Boston Red Sox 7-3. Los Angeles Dodgers walloped Philadelphia Phillies 14-3 in the only National League game.

Al Kaline's second homer of the game, a two-run blast off reliever Bob Lee in the eighth inning, brought the Tigers their victory. Detroit scored its first four runs off Dean Chance, who departed in the sixth.

Fred Talbot held the Yankees hitless through five innings, but they exploded for two runs on Roger Maris' homer in the sixth and the Re-Breaker tally on Bobby Richardson's squeeze bunt in the eighth.

Bill Skowron belted two home runs for the White Sox, who also received aid from Boston's faulty fielding. The Red Sox committed four errors and a passed ball as well as a balk.

Sandy Koufax scattered nine hits and struck out 13 for the fourth time this year, winning his eighth game against three defeats. The Dodgers supported him with seven runs in the fourth inning.

Green Strong In Relief

Trudeaus Nip Lombanks

MADOC — (Special) — A strong relief choke by veteran Bobby Green helped Trudeau Motors down Tweed Lombanks 7-5 here last night.

The victory kept Trudeaus in a tie with Bloomfield for first place in the Belleville and District Softball league, leaving Tweed tied with Ellis Juniors for second spot.

Green came on in the third inning and blanked the Lombanks on two hits over the remainder while his mates overcame a 5-4 deficit to snatch the victory. He threw third strikes past 10 Tweed batters while walking four.

Bill Baldwin was the Trudeau starter, tagged for six hits in 2⅔ innings. He fanned three and passed one. The Belleville squad played errorless ball throughout.

Tweed took a 2-1 lead in the first and each side scored three in the third inning for the 5-4 score.

Trudeaus won in the six with two runs. Locke got an infield hit with two out. Wannamaker singled and Meeker crashed a triple to clean the sacks. They added an insurance tally in the seventh on Mavety's double, Plane's sacrifice and a long fly ball by Paul Zakos.

Eldon Gray was tagged with the loss while going all the way on the Tweed mound. He was combed for 12 hits, striking out five and walking four.

Ralph Plane clouted a two-run homer for Trudeaus in the top of the third frame but Rick Locke paced all hitters with a double and two singles. Tom Meeker had his game winning triple and a single, Pete Weston and Larry Mavety a double and single each and Bob Wannamaker two singles.

Paul Meraw topped the Tweed hitters, rapping a two run homer in the first frame and later adding a single. Eldon Gray had a triple and single, Bill Salmond two singles, Bert Sherry a triple and passed four scoring threats.

Misses Second No-Hitter

DeMille, Stops Juniors

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

PICTON — An infield single in the fifth inning ruined Ken DeMille's second shot at a no-hitter here last night as Bloomfield stopped Ellis Juniors 3-1 in B. D. Softball League action.

Bloomfield held on to a share of first place with the win, dropping the Juniors into a second place tie.

For DeMille, it was his fourth victory of the season and his second one-hitter in as many Monday nights.

Stu Muirhead slashed a ball to deep short and beat MacDonald's throw for Belleville's lone safety. He also prevented a shutout, taking second on a passed ball and scoring on an error.

DeMille was never in serious trouble, despite for team bobbles, as he caught 15 Juniors on third strikes and did not walk a batter. Other than in the fifth, the losers only had two runners on in an inning, one on two errors in the sixth.

Meanwhile Bloomfield got their pitcher a 2-0 working margin in the opening frame and made it stand with an unearned tally in the third.

Bob Ethier toned six-bit ball while going the distance. He struck out a half dozen and issued four free tickets. Four errors put him in a couple of jams.

MacDonald and Lockwood greeted Ethier with singles to start the game and a walk filled the bases. Gene Young's groundout plated one run and a throwing error made it 2-0.

A missed third strike, two wild pitches and an error on DeMille's twister plated the third Bloomfield run without the aid of a base hit.

Both MacDonald and the only player with two hits while one each went to Dave Lockwood, Ron Weese, Gene Yorke and Jim Guernsey. There was not an extra-base hit in the game.

The only two balls hit well off DeMille's slants were lined out by MacDonald in the second and Muirhead in the ninth, both pulled down deep in the outfield.

Batting Leaders

Hank Aaron Eyes Top

NEW YORK (AP)—His left ankle apparently fully mended, Henry Aaron of Milwaukee Braves is back at his accustomed spot battling for the National League batting title.

The two-time winner is hitting .338 after a slow start but still is far off the .375 of Cincinnati's Gerdy Coleman. Aaron, who boosted his average by five points last week to jump from eighth to the runner-up, spot, missed the first 10 days of the season because of an operation to remove bone chips from an ankle.

Coleman, last week's leader, maintained his .375 pace with six hits in 16 times at bat. Milwaukee's Joe Torre and San Francisco's Willie Mays tumbled from their second and third spots.

Torre collected only five hits in 22 times at bat and his average fell to .329 from .346, putting him in third place.

Mays, hampered by a virus, spent a good part of last week on the bench. He hasn't had a hit in his last 18 times at bat and his average tumbled to .322 from .345.

There was little change in the American League. Willie Horton held on to first place, Vic Davalillo to second and Dick McAuliffe to third.

Horton, Detroit's sophomore outfielder, slipped 12 points but his .363 was 12 points higher than Davalillo's .352. The little Cleveland outfielder added five points during the week.

Washington's Frank Howard tied Horton for the home-run leadership at 11 but remained four runs batted in behind Felix Mantilla of Boston who leads with 44.

Mays, with 17, leads the National League home-run hitters and Chicago's Ernie Banks is tops in runs batted in with 44.

Leafs Drop 4th Game In Row

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto shortstop Mike Andrews walked and waited for the pop fly to fall into his outstretched glove. When it finally dropped, he missed it and the Maple Leafs were on their way to their fourth straight defeat. It happened in the second inning of what turned out to be a 5-4 victory by Jacksonville Suns over the International League runners - up Monday night. The Suns were already leading 3-0 when Jim Napier hit the towering popup.

Napier had reached second base by the time Andrews made his futile stab at the ball. Elio Chacon's double, a bunt single and a wild pitch by loser Ed Connolly accounted for two more runs before the side was retired.

ARE TWO GAMES BACK

The defeat left the Leafs two full games behind the idle Atlanta Crackers and only 1½ ahead of Columbus Jets, who clobbered Rochester Red Wings 10-3 in Ohio. Crackers downed Toledo Mud Hens 6-4 in the only other game played.

A two-run triple by Jim Gosger in the sixth inning highlighted Toronto's effort to get back into the ball game at Jacksonville as winning pitcher Mike Cuellar pushed his record to 8-2.

The Jets overcame five- and four-run deficits before pulling away from the Red Wings with a four-run rally in the seventh, aided by two Rochester errors. Reliever Fred Green gave up only one hit over the last five innings for his first win in four decisions.

WINS INTERNATIONAL

LONDON (AP)—Jim Clark, winner of the Indianapolis 500 last week, scored a victory Monday in the International London Trophy race for Formula 2 cars on the Crystal Palace circuit. Clark drove his Cosworth Ford to first place in both 25-lap heats of the race, averaging an over-all 88.3 miles per hour for the 69.55 miles.

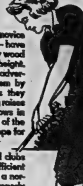
Lightfoots Trounce Belvedere

A seven-run fifth inning put the wraps on a 14-4 victory for Lightfoots over Belvedere Hotel in Commercial Softball League play last night.

Lightfoots, in second place, led from the first inning when they scored three, and added to their total in every inning except the third. The losers netted pairs in the fourth and sixth.

Joe Harvey pitched the victory with relief help from George Young in the sixth. They allowed six hits, striking out four and walking one apiece.

Dimp Young started for Belvedere, gave way to Joe King in the fifth and came back in to pitch again in the next six. They were tagged for 15 hits. King had all three strikeouts and issued the only free pass.



Jack Gilby carried a big stick for Lightfoots, hammering two doubles and two singles. Don Smith set a close second with two doubles and one single which

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

LOFTING FAIRWAY WOODS

I have noticed that many novice golfers – especially women – have trouble making their fairway wood shots rise any appreciable height. Often these same golfers inadvertently compound the problem by rising up on their toes on their swing. This "bolt-action" swing raises the path the clubhead follows in the hitting area. The bottom of the club tops the ball and all hope for height vanishes.

First, let me stress that all clubs are manufactured with sufficient built-in loft to raise the ball a normal amount. If the ball is properly struck, it will fly automatically.

If you are having trouble getting your shots airborne, I suggest you concentrate on turning your left hip to the left (see illustration) on the downswing. If this hip turns in this manner, your feet will remain firmly planted. There will be no tendency to rise up on your toes, and to top the shot.

Always remember that a squarely struck shot will fly because of the club's loft. Independent attempts to scoop or lift the shot into the air on the part of the player will only defeat the purpose of the club's loft.

Foxboro Rallies To Tie Latta

Foxboro came up with only one hit while pulling out a 3-2 doubleheader against Latta in South Hastings Baseball League action last night.

Latta, playing at home, took a 2-0 lead in the first inning and carried it until the sixth frame. Foxboro got one run without the aid of a hit, then tied it in the last inning. Glen Reynolds hit a double, his club's only safety, and scored after a stolen base and an error.

Stan "Lefty" Reid came out of retirement to pitch the one-hitter for Latta. He struck out seven and issued four bases on balls.

Gary Little started with Keith Dickey taking over in the sixth for Foxboro. They allowed six hits between them. Little fanned three and passed four, Dickey struck out six in his short stint, walking one.

May Stop Crew For Henley

That 'Fitness' 50 Per Cent

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Rowing supporters here are faced with the prospect of raising some $6,000 within a week or Canada's national scholastic eight-oared champions will be unable to row at this year's Henley Royal Regatta in England.

This development has resulted from a federal fitness council ruling that it will underwrite only half of the minimum air fare and lodging of the St. Catharines collegiate senior heavyweight eight on the overseas trip.

The crew won the right to represent Canadian high school rowing at the English Henley by trouncing a Shawinigan Lake (B.C.) school crew and four other hopefuls at the May 29 schoolboy rowing championships here.

At that time, it was understood that a $6,400 grant had been made available from the amateur sports fund for the winning eight to enter the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup at Henley.

The sum was based on a total grant of $8,000 with the other $2,600 to help Canada's Olympic gold medal pair of Roger Jackson and George Hungerford from Vancouver to row for the Silver Goblets at the British rowing classic.

REVERSES RULING

However, a letter from Roger Dion, national director of the fitness fund, to the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, has reversed the ruling. The council will underwrite only 50 per cent of the minimum fare and lodging for both crews.

As a result, it would appear as if the national schoolboy eight-oared championships are eligible for only some $4,200 to make the Henley trip.

"It's the first time anything like this has happened," said T. E. Norris of Toronto, president of the CAAO.

"We originally asked for $12,000 to send two crews to the English regatta," he added. "They cut that to $9,000. But we were given to understand that all of that sum was to be used for this purpose."

As a result, $6,400 was set aside for the eight with its two spare oarsmen, coach and crew manager. The rest was to go to the Vancouver pair.

The 1964-65 schedule saw one goal scored on every 10.8 shots compared to one marker on 11.8 shots during the 1963-64 season.

In 1964-65 the six teams shot 13,076 times in all for a total of 1,208 goals. The previous season, 1,186 counters came from 13,724 tries.

Camille Henry, who split last season between New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks, led the league in accuracy with 26 goals on 105 shots for a 24.1-per-cent mark.

Three players marked up more than 300 shots. Bobby Hull of Chicago—this year's winner of the Hart and Lady Byng trophies—led with 368 shots. He sank 20 of them for a 10.6 percentage.

Gordie Howe of Detroit and Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens followed Hull. Howe had 341 shots for 29 goals and 8.5 per cent, while Provost netted 27 of 308 for 8.8 per cent.

Chuvalo Whips Unknown

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—George Chuvalo of Toronto, Canada's hope for the world heavyweight title, used solid blows to the mid-section Monday night, to win a first round TKO over unknown Sonny Andrew Burns of Boston before a sellout crowd of 3,200.

The scheduled 10 - round nontitle fight had barely begun when Chuvalo's hard right sent the big Bostonian to the canvas. Burns, who weighed in at 228 pounds, 14 pounds heavier than the Canadian champion, went down three times before referee Willie Pep stopped the fight at 2:33 of the first round.

Chuvalo, hoping to get a crack at Cassius Clay's world heavyweight crown in September, looked sharp despite his brief performance. Burns landed two hard blows to the head in the early seconds but Chuvalo took over with a hammer right which dropped the American for the first time.

It was Chuvalo's first of two appearances scheduled in the Maritimes this month. He meets Dave Bailey of Philadelphia June 19 at Glace Bay, N.S.

Minor Softball Results

Little players and big scores were the order of the day in the Belleville Minor Softball Association last night.

Five games were played in the tyke division.

On the West Hill, Bears clawed the Rangers 34-14 while Kinsmen Bobcats shaded the Wings in a 22-21 contest.

On the East Hill, Barons whipped the Canadiens 34-4, Leafs buried the Kinsmen Flyers 43-10 and HOA Redmen dumped the Bowl-O-Drome Bruins 27-24.

Stapleton and Hebenton, both former Bruins, played for Portland Buckaroos of the Western League last season and Kurtenbach had six goals and 20 assists for the last-place NHL club in 64 games.

Bruins Get Stewart

In a story from Montreal, where the National Hockey League's annual meeting is in progress, the newspaper says the deal was completed Monday night.

Stewart, 33, a 13-year-old man with the Leafs, has scored 186 goals during his NHL career but has been chiefly used for penalty-killing and spot assignments in recent years. He played under Hap Emms, Boston's new general manager, with Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior

CUSTOM-CLEAN GASOLINE

Two major improvements have been made. They will give you better mileage... fewer carburetor tune-ups... real protection against stalling and flooding.

① A new carburetor cleaner has been added to all six Custom Blends of Blue Sunoco. This advanced additive (known as L-110) cleans deposits from your carburetor. Results? You need fewer carburetor tune-ups. You prevent stalling caused by deposits in the carburetor. You also get better mileage—in many cars as much as 20 more miles from a tankful of gas!

CUSTOM-CLEAN GASOLINE!

Petroleum scientists say that the perfect gasoline is one that would produce 100% power. From any imaginable fuel. It would burn with no combustion by-products.

Now, Sunoco comes as close to that ideal as modern technology can provide.

Sunoco's new filtering system ensures that every drop of Blue Sunoco is perfectly clean when it enters your car—free of even the tiniest impurities. And with the advanced additive now in Blue Sunoco, fuel lines, fuel pumps and carburetors will be cleaner than they've ever been.

Detailed Covering Given Epic Flight of Spacemen

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)-The astronauts dropped safely back to our world Monday as the major television and radio networks continued to cover the exciting story in detail.

In the absence of other claims, it must be assumed that NBC, in its early evening wrapup of the Gemini story, scooped its rivals with the first moving pictures of the spacemen arriving on the carrier Wasp.

The taped and filmed pictures—the latter apparently being developed during the early part of the NBC special—were hardly of prize-winning quality.

The triumphal progress of the astronauts from the Atlantic Ocean to the LBJ ranch will be chronicled thoroughly for the rest of the week, but the cliff-hanging part now is over. All three networks did a thorough, conscientious job.

CBS won by a small margin in the latest Nielsen rating report covering the period ending May 23. CBS had a 16.2 rating, with NBC 15.9 and ABC 15.1.

All programs listed by Nielsen as the 10 most popular each week contain movie material, while a couple of programs, The Lucy Show and The Fugitive, which normally show up on the exclusive list had dropped down, apparently because they had gone on repeats.

Programs credited with the largest audiences during the two-week period were, in this order, Bonanza, Gomer Pyle, Bewitched, The Peyton Place (Thursday night episode), Dick Van Dyke Show, Peyton Place (Tuesday night), Andy Griffith Show, the special Best on Record, Gunsmoke and Beverly Hillbillies.

ABC's Addams Family will be back in the fall over the summer and Carolyn Jones, who plays Morticia Addams, the vampire-loving brunette housewife will take on the new role of Mocticia's older spinster sister. The part has been named Ophelia Frump—described as a blonde with strings tied on which she wears a garland of buttercups, but is addicted like her sister, to rusty black robes.

Court Order Lifted

PORTLAND, Me. (AP) — A court order holding up loser Sonny Liston's share of the live gate at his recent heavyweight boxing title bout with Cassius Clay was lifted Monday.

Liston was knocked out in one minute of the first round at Lewiston, Me., May 25. The gate was $111,000, said co-promoter Sam Michael. Liston's share was 30 per cent.

Justice Walter M. Tapley Jr., who issued the temporary restraining order, ruled Monday that it had not been validly served on Liston.

Roger A. Putnam, lawyer for the firm that brought the action, said Tapley's decision would be appealed.

Associated Booking Corp. of New York had obtained the order, claiming Liston had failed to complete a series of engagements in England and Scotland in 1963. Associated sought at least $70,000 in damages.

Named as defendants were Liston, Michael and Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc.

Pro Loop Approves Shift

MONTREAL (CP)—The Central Professional Hockey League formally approved transfer Monday of the Minneapolis franchise to Oklahoma City.

Other clubs are St. Paul, St. Louis and Cincinnati in the circuit that is a thriving cradle for the best young prospects owned by the National Hockey League clubs.

The approval was made at a CPHL meeting in connection with the annual meetings of the NHL. Boston Bruins will continue as parent NHL club.

In all, a field of 119 openings are at stake for 459 golfers, the successful men joining 31 exempt players in the tournament.

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Longshot bettors cashed in Monday night at Garden City Raceway as the quinella returned $171.90 and the daily double paid $67.50.

Snell Likes Odd Beer, No Fags

TORONTO (CP)—Beer and cigarettes have helped keep Peter Snell on the run.

The 26-year-old Auckland, N.Z., holder of world records for the mile and 880 yards admitted Monday he takes the occasional beer after a long training session.

And he represents a cigarette company which allows him to take extra time off to tour the world and compete in tracks meets. But he doesn't smoke.

He'll run against Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., in the 880-yard event of the Toronto International track meet Thursday.

"Sure, I take a beer after I've had a long workout," Snell said, "but I think athletes can afford to because they're going to run it out of their systems."

His coach, Arthur Lydiard, agreed. The highly-successful New Zealand track teacher said several of his runners like a beer following Sunday morning runs of up to 22 miles.

"Yes, you could take a pot of tea, but it doesn't do the job beer does," he said.

From Splash To Crash

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian National Exhibition has decided to scrap its annual marathon swim in favor of a two-day international sports car rally.

Canadian-born Glenn Ford Will Continue as Actor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — While many of his fellow stars are making deals to produce films for their own companies, Canadian-born Glenn Ford is negotiating a multipicture contract with MGM —strictly as an actor.

"Oh, I had my own company once—for Pocketful of Miracles with Frank Capra's Company," he said. "But no actor is going to tell Frank Capra how to make a picture. He has forgotten more about movie-making than most directors remember."

For nearly all of his 26-year career—that's right; he started in films in 1939—Glenn has been company man. His first contract at Columbia lasted 12 years minus 3½ for the U.S. marines. His deal with MGM, which overlapped his Columbia contract, recently finished after a dozen years.

ISN'T DOCILE

Glenn has not been a docile employee. He has starred battle stars for his encounters with the brass. But he retains a philosophy that nine-tenths of his problem-star brethren:

"I think film actors are better off when they are in the hands of a strong director. When actors are coddled and catered to, they lose all sense of reality. If you don't applaud after their closeups, they go into their dressing room and sulk."

"An actor needs strong controls, and that means a no-nonsense director who will tell him what to do. John Ford and John Wayne are the best example of that; they've both been great for each other.

"I've always had my best luck with strong directors. Take a man like George Marshall. We've done five or six pictures together and he's great for me. When I start to tighten up, he says, 'Stop blinking, Glenn,' and I snap out of it."

WORKED FOR TOUGH ONES

"I've worked for some of the toughest directors in the business, and I've profited from them. I'd love to work for some of the other tough ones—guys like John Ford and Henry Hathaway. I'd even like to work for Otto Preminger."

Glenn hasn't suffered financially by not engaging in coproduction deals over the years. You need only inspect his home to realize this.

Near the Beverly Hills Hotel, the Ford home is a masterpiece of masculine elegance. It comes complete with pool room, projection room, sauna bath, hi-fi room—and endless number of posh chambers radiating from a central well of tropical greenery. Each room is of different shape, and none of the walls converges on square corners.

"Took me a year to build the place, a year to build it," said Glenn. "I lost the architect en route. I wanted a rustic fireplace (one of five) in the dining room, and he said a formal dining room called for white marble. We parted company, and I finished the place myself."

Mentioned Stock Purchases Trying Line up Support for NONG Franchise Court Told

BARRIE (CP) — Wilbur M. Cramp mentioned stock purchases when he tried to line up support for a Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. Ltd. franchise in Orillia while he was mayor in 1956, Mr. Justice Isabel Post, retired Monday.

Mr. Cramp went on trial in Simcoe County court here before Judge C. E. Bennet of Owen Sound on three charges. He pleaded not guilty to accepting NONG shares in return for granting the Orillia franchise for the company in 1956; accepting NONG shares to block the rival Consumers' Gas Co. franchise application, and conspiring with NONG President Ralph E. Farris in these dealings.

Farris now is serving a sentence of nine months definite and three months indefinite at Beaver Reformatory here for conviction of perjuring himself at a 1958 judicial inquiry into distribution of stock in NONG. He is reported to be suffering from cancer of the pancreas.

Mrs. Post heard Mr. Cramp telephoned at least two or three times asking for her banking in NONG stock before the 1956 distribution franchise in Orillia.

MENTIONED PURCHASES

During one of these calls Mr. Cramp mentioned possible stock purchases, which she said she interpreted as "a chance to make a quick profit at a reasonable rate . . . a good investment."

Mr. Cramp had been mayor of Orillia for 1956 and Mr. Cramp had been voted mayor for the first time in December, 1953, municipal election.

"I had the impression Cramp was very much in favor of NONG and wanted the support of council for their application for a franchise," Mrs. Post said.

Defence counsel Gerard Kelly objected to this line. "If she had not been aware at the time that NONG stock would be available for sale wherever franchises were granted. Mrs. Post said she hadn't."

When Mr. Kelly pressed her on any interest she had in the progress of NONG stock, she replied that to this day she watches the stock market, but not NONG shares.

SAYS HE WAS COLORFUL

She agreed with Mr. Kelly that Mr. Cramp had been an aggressive mayor, but when the lawyer tried to describe his client as a "fighting" mayor, she said she preferred the 'word 'colorful.'"

Mrs. Post said she voted with the rest of council to grant the NONG franchise, but they did not know then that council was able to grant franchises as many gas companies as they chose. (The Ontario Fuel Board made the final decision on gas franchises.)

After more experienced counsel discovered this fact, he insisted that Consumers' Gas be given a franchise as well, she said. Mrs. Post seemed to think that Consumers' Gas had been given a franchise, but it remained in doubt.

Special Crown prosecutor Harvey Hoich of Barrie initially questioned her about Mr. Cramp's suggestion that Consumers' Gas also be given a franchised. "He was obviously angry about this. . . . It was at one of our usual stormy council meetings," the witness replied.

Danger of Ramset Fastener Described to Carpenters

By GERARD McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—At one time the classical carpentry accident was striking your thumb with the hammer. Now things are more complicated. You get shot.

The reason is that a foot-long hammer called the ramset fastener is being used more and more on construction jobs. Using a .22-calibre charge, it can drive nails through wood into steel or concrete.

Jacques Delage of the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Board describes it as a valuable tool but one so dangerous that only experienced men should use it.

Case histories being gathered by Dr. Joffre-Albert Gravel, a Quebec City surgeon, confirm his opinion. Dr. Gravel went to a building site to see the ramset demonstrated.

One ramset accident here must rank among the most bizarre in construction history.

A 31-year-old accountant was working late, alone in his downtown office, his back to the wall and eyes intent on his figures, when he was struck so hard he slumped forward.

DEVELOPED NEUROSIS

He reached back to find a nail sticking from his head. There was no blood, little pain, and he was conscious, though the nail had penetrated the skull and entered the brain.

He had no idea what had happened. He called his wife:

"There is a nail in my head. Help me."

His wife rushed him to a hospital emergency ward where the nail was removed by Dr. Maurice Heon, a neurosurgeon. No brain damage had been done, as the nail furrowed through rather than tore brain tissue.

"The wound healed well," says Dr. Gravel in the paper he and Dr. Heon are preparing on the subject. "But the patient, profoundly scared by this unusual incident, developed a neurosis and ended up consulting a psychiatrist."

Investigation showed that a worker in an attached building was using a ramset to nail wood studs to a brick wall. The carpenter didn't know one section was made of wood and plaster, and this was the section directly behind the office worker.

Another ramset accident here occurred during renovation of a downtown bank. Veteran carpenter Emilien Boutet had just warned workmen he was about to nail a two-inch piece of wood to a one-half-inch steel H-beam.

DROVE THROUGH BODY

Electrician Real Bourassa, 27, working in the vault, didn't hear the alert and walked out just as Boutet fired. The safety plug on the nail snapped, and the forward part continued through wood and steel into Bourassa's right shoulder and through his body.

"He didn't know he'd been hurt until he looked down and saw the nail sticking out his left side," said general contractor Lucien Marquis. "Then he nearly fainted."

Fate had Dr. Gravel on emergency duty at l'Hotel-Dieu Hospital that day. Noting the trajectory of the nail, he opened Bourassa's heart chamber and drained off accumulating blood that might have caused death eventually. A lung also was nicked but no serious damage was done and Bourassa recovered.

The gun has two safety features. One is the plug near the head of the nail to slow it down. The other is a flat plate on the end of the ramset's barrel. It must be applied to a level surface before the gun will fire.

"The one dangerous factor is that no matter how thin the surface against which the plate is applied, if it is level, the gun will fire," Dr. Gravel says. "Experts have assured me that if the fastener is shot through a very thin board, it will behave very much like a free bullet. . . .

"This is a dangerous, very useful instrument that should not be left in the hands of the uninitiated."

HARD WATER

Utah's Great Salt Lake is so dense that a swimmer who ignored warning signs suffered a broken neck when he dived from a pier.

Passenger Reaction Tested By Modern Express Train Rolling Through Britain

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Rolling at random through Britain these days is a gleaming streamlined express train that begs its slightly dazzled passengers to find faults with it.

Known as the XP-64, the train is a test-bed on wheels. The aim is to discover, on the basis of passenger reaction, how best to design the new generation of rolling stock that will come into service on nationally - owned British Railways in 1967.

The man responsible for analysing what passengers think they want — and uncovering what they really want—is 42-year-old Dr. James Spillius, an Edmonton-born social scientist who has spent most of his time working for British Railways since he set up shop as a research consultant in London four years ago.

Spillius and his team, merging applied techniques of sociology and psychology that have never been co-ordinated on a single project before, have produced a sophisticated 200-page report on the XP-64 experiment. The report now is being pored over by officials of railway management.

OCCUPIES RAIL SEAT

So revolutionary is the report's approach to the problem of adapting railway design to human needs that Spillius learns, somewhat ruefully, his methods are being enthusiastically discussed and copied by railway boards all over Europe.

Spillius, with a full-time staff of six specialists, operates from an office efficiently sited on the floor above his own apartment in a Regency terrace house in London's unfashionable Bayswater district.

"The actual findings of this report are useful but not particularly surprising," he said in an interview during which he relaxed behind his desk in an experimental first-class railway seat.

"Take this seat. Most passengers said it was more comfortable than the second-class seat. But our experiments with time-lapse photography in the XP-64 show that passengers kept sliding all over the place in the plushy first-class seat but remained more comfortable in the utilitarian second-class seat."

This and other findings, he says, will help British Railways design a coach with an environment best suited to human needs. Hitherto railway design tended to be based on arbitrary decisions by engineers and managers.

TOO DAZED TO COMPLAIN

"We have pulled together several separate sciences and disciplines with one objective in view," Spillius said. "This had never been done before. Such things as clinical and operational psychology, depth interviews, time-lapse photography and laboratory tests have all been combined to produce this report."

"Passengers were so passionately grateful that something was at last being done to improve their beloved railways that they hardly dared complain about anything on the XP-64 in case it might suddenly disappear again."

Broadly speaking Spillius recommends a train coach that looks as much like an airline cabin as possible. He found that passengers liked the security of their own arm-rests, individual lights and a little train in front of them. They also needed reassurance in the form of an attentive conductor who could tell them what station they had just passed and when they were due to arrive.

CHANGES ACCEPTED

"All the report's suggestions, including some radical alterations in the design of toilets on trains, have been accepted in principle by British Railways," he said. "All the train coaches built after 1967 will incorporate these changes."

Spillius, himself a social anthropologist, employs such specialists as psychiatrists and economists in conducting his research. Ergonomy, a relatively new science, is best described as the study of human efficiency and comfort in relation to a particular environment.

The various influences that have led Spillius to specialize in this field are as far apart as the professors at the University of Alberta, where he took his degree and Queen Salote of the kingdom of Tonga in the South Pacific.

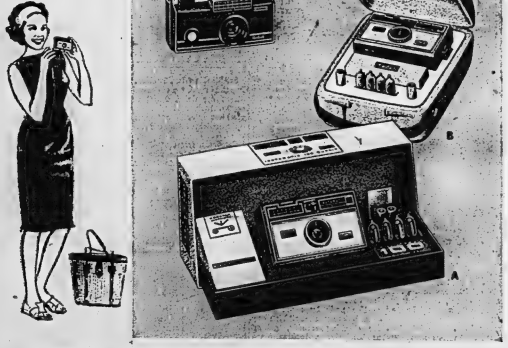
Before he came to London Spillius was United Nations adviser to Queen Salote for three years and she is the godmother of one of his two children. The queen's almost Churchillian personality and her comprehensive administration of her affairs made a deep impression on Spillius.

His other debts, he says, are to his father-in-law, Prof. E. A. Bott, former head of the psychology department at the University of Toronto, and to the atmosphere of the London School of Economics where he taught for three years.

The XP-64 report is the sixth and most important report Spillius has done for the railways here. His first, a study of a particular region, is already paying dividends in increased profits.

He now is beginning a study on the effects 150-mile-an-hour trains will have on passengers. Someday, he says, he would like to escape from trains and settle down to a study of Britain's appallingly inefficient telephone system.

DOES TRAIN RESEARCH — Dr. James Spillius, 42, is an Edmonton-born social scientist heading Britain's national research program on adapting train design to human needs. Using modern techniques of sociology and psychology, Spillius and his six assistants have produced a report on the XP-64, an experimental train that rolls at random through Britain begging passengers to find faults with it.



PROTOTYPE TRAIN — The interior of the XP-64, an experimental British train, features seats equipped with pull-out table and magazine rack. The XP-64 is a prototype of the new generation of rolling stock that will go into service on Britain's national railway in 1967. Other features include wider doors and windows and redesigned toilets. Astronauts Are Thrilled By TV Showing Of Films They Took In Space

ABOARD THE WASP (AP)— James McDivitt and Edward White, now close enough to home to see their own historic space walk film on shipboard television, began their final festive day at sea today and got set for a round of welcomes awaiting them ashore.

Almost all of the intensive medical testing behind them, the astronauts schedule today called for "technical debriefing"—talking into tape recorders at length about their four-day mission and being questioned in detail by space experts.

The Gemini IV twins said their most memorable moments of the flight were, for White, his 20-minute stroll in space, and, for McDivitt, the capsule's re-entry through the earth's atmosphere.

They were among the millions who thrilled at the sight of vivid movies of the space stroll. The films were released Tuesday in Houston, Tex., and the astronauts saw a televised version late Tuesday night.

Medical tests showed few ill effects on the astronauts' hearts from four days of weightlessness, though there was one minor health problem Tuesday: McDivitt had a nosebleed.

Doctors said the nosebleed probably resulted from the drying effect of breathing pure oxygen for nearly 98 hours.

The astronauts' schedule on their scheduled return to Houston Thursday already was crowded with parades and other honors from their admiring public.

White said his plainly was the 20-minute venture outside Gemini IV—during which he said he did a little dance on the capsule, Haney reported.

He said White told him he carefully avoided snagging his space suit on the sharp edges of the blunt end adaptor section of the capsule, though he did peak into it.

"There I go again," White exclaimed as he intently watched the film while in the captain's cabin for dinner Tuesday night, lifting himself out of his chair. "There she goes," he said when his glove floated out of the hatch.

The film shows White floating in eerie space like a stuffed doll, propelling himself hither and yon with squirts of his maneuvering gun, tugs of his golden tether, and even a gentle kick of the capsule.

It also shows a world of superb beauty — greens and browns and blues and whites—slipping perceptibly by in a splendid arc. What space officials believe to be the southern coast of California is clearly visible.

Astronaut White asked that films of his adventure by flown out to the Wasp so he and McDivitt could see them close up.

Think Russian Ship Will Try Moon Landing

By SIDNEY WEILAND

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A 1½-ton Russian unmanned space station winged silently toward the moon today on a 3½-day journey.

Observers here speculated that Luna VI, the latest Soviet space probe, would attempt a "soft" landing on the moon, which the Russians tried and failed to accomplish four weeks ago. Luna VI is expected to reach the lunar surface Friday night.

The 3,172 - pound automatic station, Russia's sixth moon probe since 1959, was launched from the final section of a multi-stage rocket placed in a "parking orbit" around the earth.

To reach its target Luna VI must thread its way accurately through 250,000 miles of space.

Luna VI was launched Tuesday from a secret Russian base, and was announced by a non-communist report by Russian news agency Tass that it was going "toward the moon."

Tass reported, a few hours after the flight from that Luna VI was well on the way to its destination.

Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory said its giant radio-telescope picked up strong signals from the Russian moon probe Tuesday night.

Soviet officials may not announce the purpose of the flight until they are sure Luna VI will hit the moon or until after the landing.

In the attempt by Luna V, the Russians announced about 20 hours before the satellite was due to hit the moon that it would attempt a soft landing.

The soft landing failed and Luna V crashed into the moon on May 12.

AN ASTRONAUT TAKES A WALK — Astronaut Edward White moves into the range of Major James McDivitt's camera as he climbs around their Gemini 4 spacecraft while flying over the United States last week. McDivitt, who remained in the capsule during White's 20-minute excursion outside, photographed his buddy both with a 16-mm movie camera and a Hasselblad still camera using 120-size film.

Combat Support Role For U.S. Troops Logical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military officials said today a decision to commit U.S. troops to fight in support of South Vietnamese units, when requested, is a "logical extension of what we've been doing out there."

During the last three months, operations of U.S. ground units have progressed gradually from a relatively static perimeter defence of the key base at Da Nang to aggressive patrolling variously called "combat kill" and "search and destroy" missions.

"In any good defence you've got to move out and find the enemy—and that's what we're doing in Viet Nam," one veteran officer said.

Patrols of U.S. marines and army paratroopers have ranged farther afield in seeking contact with the Communists. So far, the action has been on a relatively small scale.

The decision to commit U.S. fighting units as the brigades to help the South Vietnamese raises the possibility that marines and army paratroopers may become involved in major action in building strength and perhaps larger.

Acknowledgment by the state department Tuesday that U.S. fighting units are available for what is called "combat support" is a further retreat from the original U.S. position that U.S. troops are in Viet Nam not to wage war but to advise the South Vietnamese on how to win their own fight for security.

The new commitment could present a potentially sticky problem in relations between U.S. and South Vietnamese officers.

The feeling was that ground rules would have to be nailed down before such operations take place, lest friction occur between the Americans and the South Vietnamese in the field.

There now are about 31,000 U.S. servicemen in South Viet Nam. About 20,000 of these are marines and army paratroopers in combat units.

Another 4,000 army troops in a brigade have been at Qui Nhon and Nha Trang on the South China Sea coast. Their assigned mission, informed sources said, will be base security, counter-insurgency and combat operations.

HEADS POLICE

SAIGON (AP) — About 2,500 U.S. Army combat engineers landed today at Cam Ranh Bay, 190 miles northeast of Saigon, to build an airfield, port and supply centre there, a U.S. military spokesman announced.

The spokesman hinted that more engineers were on the way.

The new base is expected to play a key role in the U.S.-South Vietnamese war effort in the central and northern parts of South Viet Nam, the spokesman said.

U.S. planes attacked in the big port of Vinh for the fifth straight day and the pilots claimed light to moderate damage to an army barracks area.

A U.S. military spokesman announced that government forces suffered their heaviest casualties of the war — 1,875 South Vietnamese and 31 Americans in the week that ended last Saturday. Viet Cong losses for the week were 1,295, the spokesman said, but exact figures could no wounded.

The spokesman said 530 South Vietnamese troops were killed, 710 wounded and 635 either missing or captured. Ten Americans were killed, six were missing and 35 wounded for the same period.

Two more U.S. advisers were killed today and 158 South Vietnamese troops were killed or missing in bloody actions north and south of Saigon.

The Americans were killed when guerrillas overran a training centre for militiamen 50 miles southeast of Saigon. Fifty South Vietnamese were reported killed and 34 South Vietnamese and an American are wounded, while 30 government troops were reported missing. Officials said two Viet Cong were believed killed.

After burning much of the barracks the Viet Cong withdrew. A relief force was sent to the area but made no contact with the enemy and the station was abandoned.

In another heavy action, the government suffered 60 killed, 18 missing and 95 wounded in Phong Dinh province, 95 miles southeast of Saigon. Viet Cong casualties were estimated at more than 50, but this was not confirmed.

A six-vehicle convoy carrying 108 South Vietnamese troops and two U.S. advisers was ambushed about 250 miles northeast of Saigon. One American was reported wounded. There was no immediate word on other casualties.

About 25 miles southeast of Saigon, guerrillas blew up two bridges and cut a highway at several points.

Rebels Will Free 3 Yankees

From AP-Reuters

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—The Dominican rebels said they would release three captive U.S. soldiers today to the Organization of American States.

The three soldiers, captured when they drove into rebel territory by mistake Tuesday, said they were on their way to investigate a claim that an American truck had been damaged.

"President Johnson should teach his troops some geography," said Col. Manuel Ramon Montes, the rebel army commander.

"We caught them five blocks inside our territory."

Meanwhile, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, leader of the rebel "constitutionalist" forces, rejected proposals for an interim government which he said had been brought to Santo Domingo by an OAS mediating team that arrived June 4.

A member of exiled President Juan Bosch's Dominican Revolutionary party told a press conference there eventually will be a Communist revolution in the Dominican Republic unless the 1963 constitution is restored.

Jose Francisco Pena Gomez said his party had political control of the rebel movement while Caamano had "military and economic" control. The 1963 constitution was scrapped when the military ousted Bosch the same year.

PLAY INTO HANDS

"If the constitution is not restored, this will play into Communist hands," he said. "The Communists will increase in numbers and incite others . . . and then we will have a Communist revolution in the Dominican Republic."

About 600 persons, many shouting slogans and carrying placards in support of the Caamano government, demonstrated outside a hotel where the OAS committee was meeting city leaders.

Massive Rally Staged

From AP-Reuters

TOKYO (CP)—An estimated 24,000 demonstrators held a massive rally today protesting what they claim is U.S. aggression in Viet Nam.

There were some minor scuffles between police and students, resulting in six students being detained by police.

The demonstrators planned to march from a park to the U.S. Embassy where a blockade set up by police armored cars and several squads of police on foot.

Medical Care Bill On Way

—The house already has given the bill approval in principle after the second reading. But opposition members kept their promises to seek modifications.

Opposition Leader Andrew Thompson moved that the Ontario Hospital Services Commission—renamed the Ontario Health Services Commission—be made the medical insurance carrier. This motion was ruled out of order.

Rev. A. W. Downer, acting as chairman of the committee of the whole house, said Mr. Thompson's amendment went against the principle of the bill.

The principle is one of voluntary medical care, he said, but the Ontario Hospital Services Commission makes hospital insurance coverage compulsory

Saigon Premier Requests Generals Mediate Dispute

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Phan Huy Quat said today his government could not solve the current South Vietnamese political crisis and his generals had agreed to mediate.

He said he had asked the army to step in as mediators between the government and opposition groups now threatening to throw the country into chaos.

Quat said he was assured the generals all supported a strong civilian government, and that this would not mean a return to military control of the government.

Nevertheless it was clear the South Vietnamese military establishment was moving back into the political arena.

Consumer Program Is Not Fitting Needs Says Expert

MONTREAL (CP)—The whole consumer program is geared to middle class shoppers who now are buying more for desires than for needs, Mrs. Esther Peterson, special assistant to President Lyndon Johnson for consumers affairs, said Tuesday.

"As a result, the program is not fitting the needs of the poorer families," she told a press conference prior to her opening address at the annual meeting of the Consumers' Association of Canada.

The three-day CAC meeting, being held at Macdonald College in suburban Ste. Anne de Bellevue, has gathered 100 Canadian housewives and professional men and women. Membership across the country numbers 20,000.

Rule Changes Adopted

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons approved new rules to limit supply debates Tuesday and seemed close to agreement on proposals for other major rule changes.

The break came on the 12th day of a deadlocked debate that threatened to build up into a parliamentary crisis similar to last year's flag battle.

The sitting began with an exchange of compromise suggestions between Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker during the question

This led to emergency meetings through the afternoon and dinner adjournment between House leaders of the five parties. At the night sitting, government House Leader McIlraith announced a gentleman's agreement and the legislative wheels began turning.

The House passed a resolution unanimously setting a limit of 30 days each session on dis-

Baptists Told They Have Lost Touch With Working Class

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Baptists, moving up the social scale, have lost touch with their working class, the president of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec said Tuesday.

Rev. Roy C. Cook of Toronto said in an interview Baptists have become a middle-class people and their ministers have been trained to preach to the middle class.

They have moved away from the emotionalism favored by the working class, he said. "The strong emotional religious expression that marked us in the early days is not nearly as noticeable today . . . why because we've raised educational standards."

Dr. Cook, here to address a meeting of the Ontario-Quebec council, said the move away from emotional appeal has also happened in other churches.

He said Baptists should provide a religion that appeals to the emotions as well as to the mind—"it is possible for a denomination to put too much emphasis on the mind."

Dr. Cook said he opposes religious teaching in Ontario public schools "on the grounds that there must be complete separation of church and state, and that every man has a right to believe as his conscience requires."

The Christian education committee of the convention had introduced a motion favoring retention of religious education in Ontario public schools. The motion was tabled for further study.

Delegates voted to end a working alliance with the United Church of Canada on a Sunday school curriculum they had jointly devised.

In a stormy session, with shouts of anger and attempted motions of non-confidence and censure against the Christian education department, they decided by a 75-vole margin to end the agreement immediately.

The move ended almost 30 years of discussion between the two churches.

Dr. L. K. Daniel of Brampton, chairman of the Christian education department, said he was disappointed with the delegates' action.

Dr. Edgar J. Bailey of Toronto, president of the Baptist Federation of Canada, said the new curriculum is a "source of embarrassment" and urged delegates to action "by cutting the umbilical cord which binds us to the United Church."

"Wonder what Barry would do next?"

Council Hears Reports

Call Hospital Tenders Within Next Two Weeks

Tenders for the construction of the proposed multi-million dollar addition to Belleville General Hospital will be called within the next two weeks and will close July 29, members of county council were told yesterday.

The tender closing date was noted in a hospital committee report submitted to council by its chairman, Marmora Reeve William Shannon.

Mr. Shannon said detailed drawings for the new hospital wing had been available for inspection by May 31st and that letters from prospective tenderers must be received by the architect by June 14th.

TO TAKE 30 MONTHS.

It is expected that construction of the new building will take up to 30 months after the contract is awarded.

As joint owners of the hospital on a 65 percent city, 35 percent county basis, city and county will share in hospital construction costs on that basis.

Formerly the county had decided to make its own financing arrangements, but yesterday county council voted to have the city be responsible for all financing arrangements, with the county paying its share over to the city.

REPORTS ON SCHOOL

Also yesterday council received a report from reeve Frank Ford reeve Frank Rahn, as chairman of the special committee appointed to investigate the possibility of an institute of technology being established in the Bay of Quinte area.

Mr. Rahn reviewed the various meetings which his committee had had with provincial educational authorities and outlined the various types of courses which technologie a l schools offer.

Location of schools of technology was a matter decided by the department, but Mr. Rahn urged re-doubling of the local committee's efforts to present evidence that the Quinte area should be considered for such a college.

PLANNING PROBLEMS

Considerable of the afternoon session time was taken up in discussion of planning at different levels.

The discussion was prompted by a report of the county planning committee given by Thurlow Reeve Clayton Hall who admitted that having given the report the committee still "did not know where to go."

He realized the county was in need of organized planning but said there was no trained personnel to staff new planning departments.

"Frankly, planning is a headache, but we will also have a headache if we don't have planning," he said.

Sidney Reeve Ernest Kells said there was a lot of explaining necessary as to what planning actually was and what planning does.

QUESTIONS BENEFIT

"Sidney township has paid thousands of dollars into the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and hasn't received much benefit," he said.

Reeve Hall felt differently, however, and said his municipality now wouldn't want to be without the planning board.

(The city of Belleville and parts of Sidney and Thurlow make up the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board).

Reeve Hall said the community planning branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs was urging formation of planning boards set up on a regional basis, but said there were four possibilities under the county could follow.

Individual boards could be set up for each municipality; there could be a county planning board only; a broader planning area taking in Hastings, Belleville and Trenton, could be set up, or an even broader area taking in Prince Edward county as well.

Reeve Hall quoted department officials as suggesting that an annual budget of $35,000 would be required to set up a county planning department. The Thurlow reeve doubted, however, that such a budget would be sufficient.

MIGHT BE SUBSIDY

There was a possibility that the department would subsidize an area planning board by as much as 50 per cent.

County clerk Carl Bateman explained that while the department was urging larger planning areas, planning boards had power only to make recommendations. The recommendations were then approved or rejected by local municipalities.

If Council made no decision as to the step it will take with planning, reporting only that the committee make further investigation regarding planning on the county and on the regional level.

Guards' Commander Tells Kiwanis Club of Cyprus

Lt. Col. H. W. Mulherin, commanding officer of the 1st Battalion, The Canadian Guards, who just returned from duty on Cyprus, addressed the Kiwanis Club yesterday.

"Cyprus is one of the most beautiful pieces of real estate in the world. The people are very healthy and there is very little disease on the island."

Cyprus is located 40 miles off the coast of Turkey and 900 miles from Greece. In late March of last year, after fighting erupted between the Greek Cypriots and the Turks on the island, Canada dispatched a large contingent of troops to the island under the UN command to help keep the peace. The Canadian troops were followed by Swedes, Danes, Finns and Irish troops.

"Canada is "the only country paying for its own military expenses in Cyprus," he said. "It's costing about two million dollars a year.

NO SHOTS FIRED

"During my six months of command, we were not required to fire one shot. However, in our area there were 3,800 Greek Cypriots under arms and close by were 1,500 Turks.

"Our main task was to station patrols between the two factions in order to keep them from fighting.

"Perhaps the major crisis we faced came in late October when the Turkish Government wanted the UN to rotate battalions on the road to Nicosia and the Greeks said no unless the road would be opened to them.

PLAN ACCEPTED

"I submitted a plan that would allow the road to be opened and it was accepted. It consisted of having seven outposts along the road, manned by UN personnel. The road was then open there has never been one incident."

The speaker pointed out that the population of Cyprus today is 500,000 — in the time of Christ it was two million. The Greek number 82 per cent of the population and the Turks 18 per cent. The standard of living on the island is 40 per cent higher than it is in Greece.

Lt. Col. Mulherin aided his talk by the use of maps and charts. When asked if there is a solution to the Cyprus problem he said, "I am not sure. I can not see when the UN force can leave the island. I think a solution can be found but it will take a lot of negotiating with both sides."

Bancroft Mines Included in New Govt. Offer

OTTAWA (CP)—The government set a price of $4.50 a pound for its uranium oxide to stockpile uranium oxide to leave producers "plenty of incentive" to sell to foreign purchasers, Trade Minister Sharp said Tuesday.

He told the Commons the price was set as an interim measure until world demand recovers. When that happens it is expected the going price will be "considerably more" than $4.50.

If it is, Mr. Sharp made it clear the government will make some money out of the stockpiling program.

He said the offer to buy uranium oxide, announced last week by Prime Minister Pearson, would involve outright purchase of the nuclear metal by the government. If it is able later to sell oxide at a higher price, any profits will accrue to the government itself.

Mr. Sharp said the stockpiling offer is open to all Canadian mines which are still operating or have operated in the past. They include those in Hastings - Frontenac) this will include mines at Bancroft, Ont.

The prime minister, even though Liberal J. Waldo Monteith (PC — Perth), said the $4.90 price was "the proper one in the circumstances." Numerous considerations had been input in setting it. Including the $4.50-$5.40 a pound paid by the British government for its 1 a l purchases of Canadian uranium.

Jews Blamed By Congress For Violence

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Jewish Congress has blamed Jewish movements and groups in Toronto's Jewish community of creating an atmosphere of tension which helped cause the anti-Nazi riot in Allan Gardens May 30.

A statement issued Tuesday by the congress, mailed to about 20,000 Jewish homes in Toronto and elsewhere in Ontario, called for "restraint and self - discipline" in confronting neo-Nazi activities.

May 30 was a Sunday, and a small neo-Nazi group calling itself the Canadian Unity Party planned to hold a rally in the downtown park that afternoon.

About 1,000 were in and around the park when a group of several hundred, some with clubs, started to chase the persons they believed to be Nazis. In the riot which ensued, several of the six were beaten, as well as others including several bystanders.

ARREST NINE

In its statement the congress said certain "self - appointed Jewish groups" (defendants) are guilty of irresponsibility in creating a tense and inflamed situation which was bound to erupt into violence.

"During the few days before the event, meetings were held and irresponsible leaflets circulated, all of which helped whip up tense groups within the Jewish community to the pitch of fear and frenzy that assisted in creating the atmosphere "that led to the mob violence."

Objects to Street Reconstruction Cost Coming From Reserve Fund

TRENTON — Councillor Duncan McDonald is not against the works department's project for the reconstruction of Dundas Street east at an estimated cost of $42,00. He does oppose, however, the department's proposal to obtain the expenditure from the town's reserve fund. He asked council for a two-day deferment until other sources of finance can be investigated.

Councillor Paul Tripp argued that the town, in at least one other instance, has borrowed from the reserve for similar undertaking. He referred to the method employed in financing part of the reconstruction of Division street several years ago. Councillor McDonald held the circumstances were different then. He called for continuance of the town's finance policy. Councillor Tripp, supported by works department chairman Joe Gould, called for action to get on with the job.

The reconstruction will affect that part of Dundas street east between Bay street and the town bridge as a start and will eventually involve providing services to Bay street properties. All consideration will be given to minimizing the inconvenience to businessmen during the period necessary for completion of the work. The program may include a 16-hour-a-day operation, council was told.

Asked when the work department expects to be able to install a line into Bay street Councillor Tripp replied: I'd like to get this job (meaning Dundas street east reconstruction) done first and in the fall look at our finances to see if the Bay street trunk can be considered."

Traffic Bylaw Report Is Given

TRENTON — Town council meeting Monday night approved recommendations submitted by the traffic and parking committee.

Parking spaces at the Front St. municipal parking lot will be rented to postal employees at the new Federal building at a cost of $10 a month. The rental agreement covers a five day period Monday to Friday each week.

The committee's recommendation not to rent a town parking space to a shop owner was approved. So was the committee's suggestion regarding purchase by the municipality of uniform "No Parking—Private Property" signs to be made available to all owners of private parking lots at cost.

The committee noted that it was in agreement with council's proposed traffic by-law, subject to the following amendments: (a) schedule IV—McColl St.—"no parking on the east side (24 hours) only; (b) schedule IV—no parking between 9:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Dundas St. E. from Sidney Street to Byron St. be deleted; (c) Penalties, Item 6—parking offence a penalty $2.00 recommended to be changed to a penalty of $1.00; (d) Penalties. Item 6—The word pay out of court within five days" be changed to "pay out of court within 48 hours"; (e) Pedestrian rights and duties. Item 19—that no person shall ride a bicycle with a wheel exceeding more than 24 inches in diameter upon a sidewalk or any road, be changed as follows: No person shall ride a bicycle with a wheel or wheels more than 18 inches in diameter upon a sidewalk.

Miss Helen Keeler Honored On Retirement From OSD

TRENTON — The retirement party for O.S.D. teacher Miss Helen Keeler will be remembered for many reasons. When the more than 100 people who gathered here Tuesday night to honor her sang "School Days," they touched a high note in the atmosphere of respect and sentiment that marked the occasion. Miss Keeler joined the staff of the School for the Deaf at Belleville in September 1931.

Among the eulogies perhaps the one most fitting Miss Keeler's career was offered by a former teaching associate, S. A. Gordon, who retired from the school's staff last year follow ing 38 years of service. "And so we think of you as an outstanding and dedicated teacher of deaf children, a performer of dramatic miracles and as a culturally mature adult," he said, speaking on behalf of the O.S.D. teachers. He presented a Manly Macdonald landscape in oils to Miss Keeler as a reminder of their appreciation for continuing contribution and devotion to her profession.

In her acceptance remarks, Miss Keeler said: "I don't know of any other school, where I would have found the happiness and enjoyed the results in teaching children." W. R. Clather, administrator for the Department of Education, referred to Miss Keeler as the typical example of a teacher, who had made the best use of her abilities. A second gift from the O.S.D. staff was presented to her by Mrs. Morley Davidson, a junior member of the teaching complement.

J. G. Demeza, the school's superintendent added his personal observations to the already numerous words of praise pointing out that the school was losing a very valuable teacher.

Miss Keeler, a native of Trenton, started her teaching career at College street public school in Trenton, where she had obtained her primary education. Later she taught classes at Dufferin public school here. She will be especially remembered at O.S.D. for her rythmic teaching and dramatic work with the handicapped pupils.

Miss J. VanRassel acted as chairman for the party held in the banquet room of the Glenburnie motor hotel. She was assisted by Miss C. Maloney, who said "Grace" and C. Reid lead ing the sing song.

Indian Uses Railways to Get Around

TRENTON — An American Indian named Alfred Leo Debassige, 30, of no fixed address will be as lucky.

Yesterday in Trenton police court Magistrate T. Y. Williams sentenced Debassiage to three days in jail for riding on the railroad without paying.

But after the accused was reluctant to admit his guilt explaining to the court that while he was out of a job the railroad provided his only means of transportation. "It's the only way I've got to travel in Canada and the United States," he testified.

Debassage's trouble really started at Toronto as the evidence revealed. "I actually took the wrong one (train). I wanted to go to Brantford," he said. He was picked up and charged by railroad police soon after he arrived at the Trenton depot.

Ontario Firefighters Now In Serious Discussions

Ontario firefighters moved down to serious business as the second day of their Belleville convention got underway this morning.

Up before the Provincial Federation of Ontario—Professional Fire Fighters at the Hotel Quinte were more than a score of re-olutions.

The issues were screened and discussed by various committees through yesterday's opening sessions. This morning they were sent before the convention's general assembly for debate and approval.

At preliminary ceremonies today, tribute was paid the federation for its support of muscular dystrophy campaigns in Ontario. Belleville firefighters in Local 497, were singled out for special commendation.

The award was made by Miss Sirje Puusepp, of Toronto, to firefighter Ted Wessels.

"We've come to depend so much on the firefighters as the backbone of our campaigns," Miss Puusepp said.

"It's gratifying to know that the members are willing to give so freely and unstintingly in their efforts in the cause of muscular dystrophy."

The plaque presented the Belleville Local noted its members efforts in the past 10 years.

City firemen raise an average of $1,000 a year for dystrophy work. There now are 21 patients in the area being cared for.

While the firemen settled in to serious discussions, the emphasis was on fun for the ladies at the convention.

Tonight the social highlight of the convention arrives with a banquet at Club Canara. Guest speaker will be Arthur Duncan, Bata Shoe company public relations officer.

Ombudsman for Ontario?

In rejecting a lawyer's suggestion that it was impossible for persons arrested over a week-end in Belleville to obtain bail, Magistrate T. Y. Wills said the claim fitted in with recent newspaper articles on justice administration and he was trying to "debunk it right now."

What exactly was Mr. Wills trying to "debunk?" He answered the bail question thus: "People can be got out on bail if there is any necessity for it at reasonable times."

Still, there has been a lot of talk recently on citizens' rights, or lack of them, and this has led to growing interest in the concept of an ombudsman—a non-political appointee to hear and act on citizens' grievances.

The ombudsman theme came before the Ontario royal commission on civil rights earlier this month, when Professor H. W. Arthurs of Osgoode Hall law school said an independent but government-paid adviser should be available to provide expert advice to persons appearing before any provincial tribunal.

Such an appointment would be a variation of the usual concept of an ombudsman, emphasizing prevention rather than cure. The office of ombudsman as it now stands, in New Zealand and in Scandinavia, exists to hear the complaints of aggrieved citizens. Prof. Arthur's idea, presumably, is to avoid such grievances by acquainting citizens with their rights in the first place. He went so far as to suggest a massive consumer-like organization of lawyers, political scientists and psychologists available to help citizens in difficulties with provincial departments.

Prof. Arthurs said he doubted whether police and members of tribunals such as the Ontario Municipal Board knew enough about citizens' rights, or cared enough to protect what rights citizens had.

Doubtless it has been statements like the foregoing that have raised the ire of Magistrate Wills. Nevertheless, there is probably scope for an ombudsman, who would afford citizens added protection instead of leaving them at the mercy of the administrative and legal system.

No system is flawless. As Prof. Arthurs pointed out: "No citizen should be handicapped by lack of expert knowledge of the administrative agency with which he must deal."

Indian Enterprise

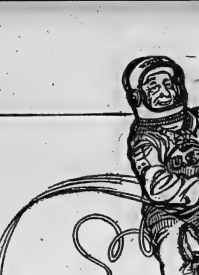
Alanise Obomsawin is a pretty 32-year-old Abenakis Indian from the Odonak reservation at Pierreville, near Montreal, who takes an active part in efforts to improve the standard of living of her people.

In this respect she is like Kahn-Tineta Horn, the 30-year-old Mohawk beauty from the Caughnawaga reservation in Quebec. But there the similarity between the two ends, for Miss Obomsawin, whose father was Irish, and Miss Horn clashed on policy matters at the National Indian Council conference at Sault Ste. Marie last summer.

Yet both, in their different ways, are deeply committed to Indian advancement.

"There are a lot of things to be done for my people," Miss Obomsawin was quoted as saying recently.

"The Indian population," she said, "has doubled in the past 30 years, while the area of land available to us has remained the same—when it was taken away from us.



"The Indian today is still considered a minor before the law, and even our own council has never had a chance to handle its own affairs. Accused of being shiftless and unreliable, the Indian in Quebec has never been given a decent chance to show what he can do."

Thus spake Miss Obomsawin. But she and the elders on the reservation are not letting things slide on the Odonak reservation. Alanise, through personal appearances as a folk singer and speaker for the Indian cause, and fellow members of her tribe, through concerts and handicraft sales, have raised $3,000 of $15,000 needed for a swimming pool on the reserve.

There are 150 children on the reserve unable to enjoy summer swimming activities because the nearby St. Francis River is badly polluted.

Another interesting project at the Odonak reserve is a restaurant specializing in Indian cuisine, which Miss Obomsawin says "is just as good as any other cuisine." She is hoping the restaurant and an Indian museum will attract enough tourists to make the reserve a self-sustaining community.

The Odonak enterprise clearly is one that might be emulated by other Indian groups. It is one way in which Indians may achieve not only self-sufficiency but a new purpose in life.

One Operation Corrects Cystocele and Rectocele

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have recently been told that I have a cystocele that may require surgery. My gynecologist wants me to have additional X-rays to confirm his belief that I also may have a rectocele.

I have never heard of either of these before. Would you explain them? Is such surgery usually done by a gynecologist. Can the two be corrected in a single operation? — Mrs. O. M.

The usual cause of these conditions is strain from childbirth. Certain tissues of the pelvic floor are torn or stretched.

The back wall of the vagina may also be damaged, resulting in a bulge of a part of the bowel into the canal. This in turn can contribute to constipation and rectal troubles. This is rectocele.

Like so many other things, these vary in degree. Mild cases give no symptoms and no trouble. Others cause discomfort — congestion and a sense of pressure.

Corrective surgery is customarily done by a gynecologist. Support is provided for the damaged tissues, thus correcting the bulges and displacement. Under most circumstances, the two could be corrected in a single operation, and at times additional surgery, if required, is included in the same procedure. Results usually are excellent.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is the enclosed advertisement just a way for someone to make a fast buck, or will the pill really help a person stop smoking? — R. B.

The advertisement claims that certain pills enabled people to quit smoking "without the use of will power."

Such pills may give some people a psychological boost, because they think they are being helped. But I take a very dim view of any drug purported to let anyone stop smoking "without will power."

The reasons for this are explained in my booklet, "Tips on How to Stop Smoking." (To receive a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.)

Dear Dr. Molner: We read your articles on PKU with great interest because we were told our small daughter had this, and then later that she did not. What should we believe? How could such a mistake be made? Should we have more tests? — C. O. P.

This is only one of quite a number of tests which can have "false positives." Cancer and syphilis are two outstanding ones among such — and naturally a patient (or the patient's parents) will be terrified when the false positive is reported. Every doctor, not to mention every patient and every parent, wishes that these once-a-signal false positives would not occur. But they do.

As to PKU, an excess of aspirin, and an excess can be very little with a baby, can cause such a result. It doesn't happen often, of course, and there are other causes, but when it does happen, the only answer is to continue tests and finally be sure.

Note to Mrs. H. M.: A man who knows he has cirrhosis of the liver and keeps on drinking is committing gradual suicide. It would be pointless for me to try to tell you some of the early symptoms. He already has been told by two doctors that the disease has begun. His liver is enlarged. It will keep on enlarging. Beer is just as bad for him as whisky. In time he will die, but first he will go through a lot of pain and invalidism. He has to cut out the alcohol.

Strictly Personality

Personality Is Important In a Speech

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When we hear a statement or a summary of facts, or an argument (in the debating, not quarrelling, sense of the word), what do we really listen to — who says it, how it sounds, or what is said?

Most studies made have shown that we listen least to what is said; we pay more attention to how it sounds; and most attention of all to who says it. The symbol influences our reaction much more than the fact.

In one study I read about recently, college students were given a list of 14 statements, all of them made by Samuel Johnson, but attributed to other persons. Seven statements were attributed to "favorable" persons, such as Abraham Lincoln and Winston Churchill; and seven to "unfavorable" persons, such as Hitler and Castro.

The students were asked to indicate whether they agreed or disagreed with each statement. Two weeks later, they were given the same set of statements — but this time, the attributions were turned around, in order to see whether the students would pay more attention to who made the statement than to what was said.

On the second exposure, a total of 324 changes were made, almost one-fourth of the number possible. And 70 percent of the changes were in the anticipated direction: they agreed with favorable persons and disagreed with unfavorable ones.

Along the same lines, a study by Horland and Mandell exposed college students to a talk favoring leniency in the treatment of juvenile delinquents. A guest speaker was introduced to three different groups: first as a judge in a juvenile court, second anonymously, and third as an ex-delinquent who was now out on bail after arrest on dope peddling charges.

He gave the same talk each time; but the one by the "judge" was deemed fair by 73 percent of the audience, while the talk by the ex-delinquent was deemed fair by only 29 percent. Moreover, the group hearing the talk by the so-called judge favored more lenient treatment than a those hearing it from the ex-delinquent.

Another interesting study was a talk on devaluation of the currency. First, the speaker was introduced as the head of a large importing firm; next as an economics professor at a leading university. Although the content and conclusion of the speeches were identical for the two, the audiences tended to "mistrust" the importer and "trust" the professor—because the former's motives were believed to be influenced by self interest. He was considered to be "less fair and honest" than the other.

Obviously, the expertness and general trustworthiness of a person is an important part of any communication he makes. But the person should not overshadow the statement, and even great men have been grievously wrong. Abraham Lincoln never said it, but it's true.

The Slaughter of Whales

By GERALD LEACH in the New Statesman

Recently behaved closed doors in London, commercial greed sank to a new low of arrogant, myopic stupidity.

The Japanese whaling industry, against strong opposition from 13 nations and a combined stand by the U.S. and U.S.S.R., insisted on its right to continue slaughtering the giant whales of the oceans, even to the verge of extinction.

For the sake of short - term profits, they thus not only threaten an irreplaceable world heritage (which includes the blue whale, the largest animal ever known), they also jeopardize the future of their own whaling industry, undermine the delicate structure of international fishing agreements, and spurn with contempt (and talk of the emphatined biology") the conservationist argument that man can still exploit animal and plant populations as long as he crops them carefully.

They can do this at all also, exposes the urgent need for stronger action to back up conservation appeals and international governments.

For several years conservationists have known that the giant whales — the blue, the fin and the sei — were in danger from over-fishing.

Last summer they faced the whalers with what was virtually an ultimatum. Unless catches were progressively reduced, in the next four years, stocks would be so depleted that whaling would no longer be worthwhile.

For the 1964-65 season they suggested a catch of 4,000 blue whale units (equal to 8,000 fin whales or 24,000 sei whales), dropping to 3,000 and 2,000 for the 1965-66 and 1966-67 winter seasons. Only then could the whale populations begin to recover.

The whalers replied that they intended to kill 16,000 units — twice the proposed limit — in spite of warnings that this would lead to a collapse of whale stocks and that anyway they progably would not achieve the target, as stocks were already so depleted.

LAST AUTUMN THE FLEETS SET OUT

—four of them Russian, four Norwegian, and seven Japanese — and started a grab-what-you-can race to kill which might have made even Genghis Khan blush for shame.

The Russians managed to slaughter at least 11 blue whales, which are totally protected. The international agreement also limited 20,000 sei and about 7,000 fin whales.

The total population of sei is only about 47,000 and of fins perhaps 100,000, and the season's catches are far larger than the "permissible crop" that could be taken from these breeding populations. And yet, as the conservationists warned, the total catch fell short of the quota target by 1,000 blue whale units.

With this nasty foretaste of things to come, the Norwegians, Russians and Japanese were persuaded to meet the Anglo-Americans—to thrash things out in London.

During the meeting the Norwegians were wholly penitent and promised to go along all the way along with the proposed reduced catches. They could afford to take this attitude because, of the three whaling nations, they alone have fully amortized the cost of their whaling fleets.

The Russians, who have nearly amortized their fleets, were semi-penitent. They have promised to cut their fleets to a half in future.

The Japanese, whose fleets are almost new, were apparently totally unrepentant throughout the whole meeting, tried every kind of delaying tactic known to politics, and were resolutely against under heavy pressure to a total catch next winter of only 3,500 whale units, compared to the 3,000 that the conservationists were asking for.)

There are several lessons to learn from all this.

One is that the well-meaning propaganda of the wild life protection organizations has been almost totally ineffective. As might have been expected, protesting letters to the International Whaling Commission have not been enough.

The real lesson that must be learned is the need to arm all conservation agreements with far stronger sanctions than exist now—if they exist at all.

• • •

Conservationists can only plead and argue and hope that common sense will prevail over profits. Their problem is that they mostly deal with things which people want to exploit but which no one owns: air, water, much of the soil, forest and coastline, and animal and plant life. They are there for the taking, and, naturally, they are taken or used—and often polluted or destroyed in the process. Thus, like the blue whales, we lose an irreplaceable heritage.

Yet who would allow an equally irreplaceable heirloom of mankind—the Mona Lisa, say—to be destroyed? Steal Goya's Duke of Wellington and you have Interpol watching every port within an hour; kill a blue whale and a few letters fly around.

Monkeys Do Man's Work

Brantford Expositor

Much of man's tedious, repetitive ill-paid work is not suitable for mechanization, let alone automation. So a scientist has suggested that it could be done by monkeys. They could pick fruit and coconuts and even do simple household tasks.

The thing is feasible. A British botanist has trained and used monkeys in the Malaysian jungle to climb up 200-foot trees and collect rare flowers and plants while he stood on the ground shouting directions. The monkeys have not gone unrewarded. Two of them are now on the staff of the Malaysian government's garden department. That makes them civil servants (probably pensionable in bananas.)

This is a notable step up the evolutionary ladder. It gets them at least on an equality with the two cats the British Post Office maintains on its strength at 25 cents a week payable in cat's meat. The permanent staff and the two Malaysian monkeys also gives them the edge over the two zoo monkeys the Israeli government once listed temporarily as diplomats, this being then the only way to get them into a rice ration and keep them from starving.

As news of these simian promotions in Malaysia gets around, there may be some agitated chatter from zoos where monkeys are on the staff at present pay merely to amuse visitors and to provide a mother's hair. Some unrest is also foreseeable among the monkeys employed by Malaysian natives in the humble task of knocking cocaunuts off trees. The organ grinders' aides we may perhaps ignore as a vanishing race, but what of the monkeys in Japan who (or which) have become a dollar earning export staple in the anti-polio vaccine trade? Will they not be provoked to organize for death benefits payable to surviving spouses, if any?

Lesage Has Pipe-dream

Hamilton Spectator

Quebec's Premier Lesage is the latest in a long time of leaders who have climbed the annexed plans to unveil a code of ethics for politicians. He follows close on the heels of Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Lesage says his code of ethics will somehow spoils to election campaign contributors He urged other political party leaders to help in all of these but because it wants to make sure it supports the winner.

A man who gives $100,000 to a party's campaign fund may not say he wants to become senator or an ambassador, but don't expect further large donations if that happens. He must vigorously shake when he's standing undersneath it.

It's identical of the most naive sort to expect political bad habits to be eliminated by a code of ethics. Who's going to police the policemen?

It's also unrealistic to expect politicians not to make noun platitude-filled pronouncements from time to time. They love to hear themselves sound like a cross beweeen Whittier's Mother and Sir Galahad.

He possesses that certain spark which sends his audience into peals of laughter.

His wry cleverly satirized by means of the piano just how music applies to the different ages is an individual one. He demonstrated with various well-known melodies Shakespeare's Seven Ages of Man. He called this "The Philosophy of Life" according to music. His good-humored irony in regards to a typical Public School concert "went over big" with everyone. The program also comprised some favorite negro spirituals such as "Hallelujah Chorus" and "Amen."

Blueprint for Growth
600 Dilapidated Houses Here Need Replacing

Six and one half per cent of Belleville's houses should be replaced, Planning Director P. J. Beavis said Monday night at a joint meeting of Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and City Council.

Reconstruction of 600 substandard houses should begin immediately, Mr. Beavis said. He added that one-half the city's 9,500 residential units will have to be replaced within the next 25 years unless Council takes steps to see that they are properly maintained.

In addition to this redevelopment, 300 new houses and apartments must be built per year until 1971, 470 per year until 1975 and 530 per year until 2000 to take care of the population explosion.

Mr. Beavis predicted that the city's present population (31,960) will more than double by 2000 AD. The population will grow by natural increase alone to 45,000 in 1981, to 57,750 by 1991 and to 74,000 by 2,000.

The city will double in area to contain this increased population. Fifty undeveloped acres a year must be provided with water, sewers and roads for the next five years, 100 acres per year for the next 10 years, and 200 acres per year for the following ten years until 2000, he said.

Belleville will also have to provide 280 new school rooms within the next 25 years, to educate its children.

Many of the municipality's water mains and sewers are too small for future needs, Mr. Beavis said. He recommended that Council begin a study of water, sanitary, sewer and storm sewer requirements. He also suggested that the Council's road study needed revising in view of the predicted rate of future expansion.

Housing of city welfare recipients costs the public about $126 per month per family, $86 for rent, $30 for heat and $10 for hydro. A total of $796,000 a year is spent to place people in homes that are in many cases unfit for human habitation, Mr. Beavis said.

Mr. Beavis told Council, that studies of roads, utilities and personal buildings are urgently needed before any revisions can be made to Belleville's Official Plan and its supporting by-laws.

Michael Dennis Meagher, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Meagher, 9 Octavia Street, Belleville, has received his Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Toronto. This fall he will commence duties as a science teacher at the Belleville Collegiate Institute. Dennis is a graduate of Nicholson College, Belleville.

Wayne Morse and Dr. Spock Protest Viet Nam Policy

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Wayne Morse (Dem. Ore.) and Dr. Benjamin Spock, the child care specialist, led some 2,000 persons on a 16-block march to the United Nations building Tuesday night after a Madison Square Garden rally held to protest United States policy in Viet Nam.

At times the marchers stretched eight blocks along 2nd Street as police followed them.

The rally filled Madison Square Garden almost to its 17,500-seat capacity. It was organized by the national committee for a sane nuclear policy.

It was supported by 29 other groups to urge President Johnson to halt U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, to seek a ceasefire with the Viet Cong, and to press for negotiations.

The rally roared its approval as Morse urged President Johnson to appeal to the United Nations General Assembly to call a peace conference of all interested parties to the Viet Nam conflict.

Forbid Building Houses Until Sewage Decision

CAMPBELLFORD — At the May Council meeting it was agreed to make preliminary arrangements to build 20 low rental houses. A letter was read at the June Council meeting from the Ontario Water Resources Commission stating no houses would be allowed to be built until such time as a decision had been reached regarding sewage disposal facilities for the town.

Council has passed a motion asking that more research be done by an engineer to determine whether a lagoon system of sewage disposal would be economically feasible for Campbellford.

This action was taken following a trip made by five members of Council, including Mayor Tanner, to Elmira, Listowel and Mitchell to inspect sewage disposal plants. They were joined by representatives of the British Consultant Engineers. In comparison to the local scene, which is served by the large Trent River, they found smaller water bodies and larger industries, which made experiences in western Ontario towns and cities difficult to apply to Campbellford with its large river and small industrial waste.

Three types of treatments were suggested.

For a population of 5,000, the primary treatment cost is estimated at $330,000, complete treatments cost $490,000, and cost to serve a population of 3,500 at $355,000.

WANTS LAGOONS STUDIED

Reeve Brown spoke in favor of more research on lagoons, and said he was not satisfied with the research done last fall. He suggested closer areas to be observed, such as Stirling lagoons. Reeve Brown also stated the new large security prison being built in the area was using a lagoon type of sewage disposal. The Mitchell agent said the lagoon system was entirely satisfactory. In Mitchell with a population of 2,400, forty acres of lagoon were sufficient. Listowel with a population of 4,400 has 65 acres of lagoon.

Councillor Sharp remarked the Ontario Water Resources committee had given permission for the types of sewage disposal installed. If they were not now satisfactory why were they not? Councillor Hughes replied young inexperienced engineers just out of school were the reason.

GIRLS' TRAMPOLINE CLASS

Throughout the 1964-65 year, the Junior, Intermediate and Youth girls of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. took Beginner and Advanced instruction on the trampoline under Miss Terry Miskelly, a "Y" leader. Most of the girls were new members and had never been on a trampoline. As a result the class was well-attended always. The class took place at Harry J. Clarke school which is near the Y.M.C.A.

Testing for the various Trampoline 3-Star Cards was a big event at the season's end. Nine girls were successful in passing the 1st Star Card which included a standing full turn, seat drop, stomach drop, cannonball and a seat to knee drop. These were Janice Nelson, Carol Goodfellow, Cindy Rickards, Janet Watson, Ellen Pugh, Marilyn Coons, Diane Nelles, Anne Bradford, and Valerie Watson.

Changes in Liquor Laws Are Approved

TORONTO (CP) — With a minimum of debate, the legislature gave second reading Tuesday to 34 proposed changes in Ontario's liquor laws. Only five of the 107 members commented on the changes.

Opposition Leader Andrew Thompson criticized the government's failure to introduce drinking with meals on Sunday's. He said the Conservatives evidently feel the people of Ontario are not mature, sophisticated or civilized enough to have wine with their meals on Sunday.

Vernon Singer (L — Downsview), Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) and Provincial Secretary John Yaremko, who introduced the amendments, were the only other speakers in the debate.

Mr. Bryden said the bills were mostly innocuous and consisted mainly of housekeeping amendments. Neither he nor Opposition Leader Thompson had any opinion to offer on the merits of serving liquor in airplanes, live theatres and dining rooms attached to recreational centres such as bowling alleys and curling rinks.

Neither of the opposition speakers made any comment on the fact that beer parlors are to be allowed to remain open 6:30-8 p.m.

What concerned Mr. Thompson was that there was no attempt to clear up the "atmosphere of smog" attached to securing a restaurant or dining room licence. Applicants who were turned down without reasons being given were being denied justice, he said.

Mr. Bryden said the easing of sale of liquor to hotel guests was a retrograde step. Previously persons renting hotel rooms had to have baggage or personal effects before they could be served in their rooms.

cussion of the government's main spending estimates and Interim supply bills. There is no limit at present and the debate stretched to nearly 90 days last session.

The resolution also reduced to eight days from 12 the time that can be spent each session debating supply motions, which open the way for non - confidence amendments by the opposition.

The House decided that henceforth all estimates will be sent to committees for detailed study before they are debated in the chamber itself.

A special committee of 24 members will be set up later to translate the resolution into precise rules. It will recommend ways of "giving to the opposition an opportunity to select the departmental estimates to be discussed" in the Commons during the 30-day period.

The government's controversial proposal for a guillotine rule to limit debates on specific bills was withdrawn and sent to another special committee for negotiations in its final form.

The committee was instructed to submit recommendations by 11 a.m. EDT Friday. The House leaders reported informally that these recommendations and all other pending rule changes must come to a vote by 5 p.m. Friday, Mr. McIlraith said.

The special committee consists of nine members — three Liberals, three Progressive Conservatives and one representative from each of the smaller parties.

pers to produce a healthy national economy and buyers who can benefit from "shopping around," Mrs. Peterson said. The power families especially need to learn how "to get a dollar's value for every dollar spent."

Consumer education courses have been introduced on a trial basis in some American schools Mrs. Peterson said.

PLEASED WITH IDEA

Earlier in the day, Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre of Ottawa, national CAC president, said the organization was pleased that the House of Commons committee on food and drugs recently recommended the publication of prosecutions and seizures by the federal food and drug directorate.

During 1964, more than 100 prosecutions by the directorate resulted in fines totalling $25,000, she said. Adulteration in meat and excess fat in ground beef were two of the main types of prosecution.

"We hope this recommendation will be adopted so that the public and industry may become more aware not only of the protection given by the directorate but also of the need for stricter control," she said.

CAC resolutions adopted Tuesday included an appeal to the food and drug directorate to draw up regulations requiring that food manufacturers using irradiation specify on the label that this preservation process has been used and a call for the removal of children's candy-coated headache tablets from the Canadian market.

The organization also commended the department of trade and commerce on its survey concerning adoption of the metric system in Canada.

MAY BUT CONTRACT

Under the legislation proposed by the Conservative government, any person in Ontario will be able to buy a standard medical care contract from the insurance carrier of his choice. But there would be no compulsion to do so.

New Democratic Party leader Donald MacDonald wanted broader public representation on the board of directors of the medical services insurance council, a government advisory body that the bill would establish.

His amendment was defeated and the representation will remain at five from the public, two from insurance companies and two from the medical profession.

James Trotter (L—Parkdale) also wished to change the structure of the council. His amendment was defeated. So was an amendment from an NDP member that would extend coverage under the bill.

The legislature also plodded through clause-by-clause consideration of a bill that would remove the right to strike from civilians who work for police forces. The bill now goes to third reading and certain approval.

OTTAWA (CP) — Peter C. Marten, 33, of Aylmer, Que., has been appointed economist with the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, it was announced Tuesday. Mr. Marten is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Beautification of Country Project of Mrs. Johnson

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—In her 15-months-plus in the White House, Lady Bird Johnson has been hoeing and backing her husband with an effective soft-sell.

Mrs. Johnson shuns controversy. She has put the weight of her position on presidential projects that are hard to oppose, such as beautification of the country, sightseeing in the U.S.A., and the anti-poverty fight. So far, the emphasis has been mostly on beauty.

The key to Mrs. Johnson's role lies in her desire to do something, to be active and to be involved in her husband's efforts.

Like the president, she seems devoted to her job 24 hours a day. She has taken on the many White House duties, social and official, with energy and enthusiasm.

While some critics contend Texas unduly pervades the White House, there has been no falling off in other activities. The White House still invites top talent from cultural fields to entertain at its state dinners.

The same French chef rules the kitchens and menus are still geared to international cuisine, except that domestic wines have replaced imported wines.

It's true, there's an occasional barbecue, and you can usually find pickled okra and Chile Con Queso on the buffet tables. But that's about as far as the Texas influence goes. Except, that is, for a more relaxed and informal atmosphere at parties—more dancing by the president, first lady and guests. And the parties usually last longer, with the president apt to keep dancing and talking until after midnight.

Since she became first lady, Mrs. Johnson has delivered scores of speeches. The speeches are not usually hard-hitting, but Mrs. Johnson has changed from a shy non-speaker of early congressional days to an assured style, with even a touch of histrionics.

In the tradition of most first ladies, Mrs. Johnson gives no formal interviews and holds no press conferences. But any reporter who has a question can usually get a response.

Among Mrs. Johnson's innovations is the continuing series of "women-doer luncheons" in the upstairs family dining room. Fifteen women from a wide variety of careers and professions are invited each time to talk about their work.

Although she likes to play down fashion, Mrs. Johnson is dressing better than ever in simple, flattering styles She prefers to go hatless wherever possible.

She has managed to keep her figure trim and finds time to swim two or three times a week in the White House pool.

F/O FRANK WM. BRYANT AND MRS. BRYANT

Bryant — Watts

St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville, was the setting for a lovely wedding recently when Joan Elizabeth Watts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Watts, Belleville, was united in marriage to F/O Frank William Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bryant, Sr. of Cornwall. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, minister of the church, officiated before a background of white flowers in silver vases.

Mr. D. Davenport was organist and played the accompaniment for the six choir boys who sang appropriate selections for the processional and during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length bridal gown featuring a bodice of Guipure lace, enhanced with elbow-length sleeves. The skirt was complimented with a detachable train of matching lace. Her two-tier bouffant lace veil was held in place by net flowers studded with seed pearls. She carried a white Bible crested with lily-of-the-valley and flowing white satin streamers.

Miss Donna Watts, sister of the bride as matron of honor, wore a street length dress of blue satin with a blue lace headdress and matching accessories. The bridesmaid, Miss Pat Edgar, was identically attired and each carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white chrysanthemums.

Don Bryant of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, while John Townsend of Belleville and Bill Mossman of Bloomfield were the ushers.

The reception was held in St. Thomas Parish House where the bridal table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, silver candle holders with pink candles. Dressed in a blue knitted wool sheath dress with matching jacket, beige accessories and a corsage of pink roses, the bride's mother greeted the guests along with the bridegroom's mother who wore a two-piece blue linen dress edged with lace and white accessories and a corsage of pink and white baby rosebuds.

For a honeymoon in Washington, Baltimore and New York the bride donned a pink sheath dress with matching duster, white accessories and a corsage of blue tinted mums.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at showers held by Mrs. J. Townsend Sr., at the home of Miss M. VanAstine and one held by Miss P. Edgar when fellow workers from the Belleville General Hospital School of Lab Technology attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryant will reside in North Bay where the bridegroom is stationed. The bride has accepted a position on the Lab Technology staff at North Bay Civic Hospital.

Colored Slides Shown by Recent Pastor

TWEED — Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Hawkes visited last week following a year's absence. During this time they were in England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Germany and Switzerland. Mr. Hawkes was the rector of the Anglican parishes in the Tweed district for about 12 years. He resigned a little over a year ago to attend college in England and to tour the British Isles and the Continent. While visiting this past week Mr. Hawkes conducted services in his former parish while Rev. D. W. Sinclair is on vacation.

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Hawkes showed colored slides of their trip to a large audience that packed the basement here of St. James Anglican Church.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation.

Rev. and Mrs. Hawkes will leave shortly for northern Alberta where Mr. Hawkes will take charge of a parish in the [illegible] Waterways District on the Athabaska River, about 300 miles north of Edmonton.

DORIS CLARK

My mother knows I am very nervous and took me to the doctor, but I still didn't tell. I haven't been doing too well at school lately and now have another appointment with the clinic.

One thing is I've always wanted to play the piano and have heard that this helps a person relax. Do you think this would help me? — JITTERS.

DEAR JITTERS — Playing the piano has been known to relax jumpy nerves. But this is not the answer for you.

Your big problem seems to be to tell anyone about your fear. You have told it all quite well in your letter, which I am returning to you. This is so you will take it with you to the clinic. Give it to the person who examines you, and he will then be able to help you discuss things.

Don't fail me — and yourself — this time. Your health is at stake.

During the business period, Mrs. Fred Meens presented Mrs. F. M. Nobes with an Institute pin in recognition of her two years as president. Mrs. Douglas Reid gave a report on the West Hastings Institute Annual held at Wallbridge and Mrs. W. Shortt reported on the Guelph Conference. Bell Starts New Service For Spanish

"Senora Campana, para servirle."

It's part of New York Telephone Company's new service for the estimated 1,000,000 Spanish-speaking New Yorkers.

Senora Campana could be Rosa Cuevas, Julie Cruz, Maria Melendez or any of nearly a dozen other girls who handle telephone service calls for the Spanish-speaking New Yorkers.

While they are "para servirle" primarily to take orders for new telephones and to explain billing procedures and other business matters, the Senoras Campanas have had other requests.

One agitated caller said in Spanish:

"I am in the subway. What do I do next? I wish to go downtown."

He was calmed down by one of the Senoras Campanas and sent on his way.

BACKS FRENCH USE

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Recognition of the French language in schools and law courts throughout the country was advocated Tuesday by Jean Pouliot, president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters. Mr. Pouliot, who lives in Quebec City but who once lived for 12 years in Ontario, told the Western Association of Broadcasters the spirit of Confederation never intended that the French language be limited to Quebec only.

Susanna's Family Fare

FAVOR WITH A FLAVOR

Dear Susanna: Our family does enjoy your column and we so often use your hints to good advantage. Here is a small one which you are welcome to use.

It is amazing how versatile "life savers" in various colors can be at a party.

(a) They make decorative and edible candle holders for birthday cakes or cupcakes.

(b) Combined with colored paper baking cups and drinking straws, they turn into cute little wheelbarrow favors for holding small candies.

Make three holes in flute colored baking cups 2 high up on one side and a slightly larger one down low on the opposite side. Bend a drinking straw (preferrably colored) in half. Thread a lifesaver onto the straw and push it down until it reaches the middle of the bend—this is the wheel. Insert the ends of the straw together through the first hole and then dividually to form the handles. spread them to go right on through the other two holes in. Don't you think these make a novel and attractive favor? — Sylvia Bush.

WATER THE WEEDS

Dear Susanna: To prevent grass and weeds from growing between bricks or flagstones on a walkway, fill the galvanized watering can with warm water and dissolve about a cup of washing soda in the water. Sprinkle this thoroughly between the cracks — being careful not to get any on the lawn.

To complete the process fill up the remaining space in the cracks with earth. This proced ure wil ihave to be repeated during the season.

You can use rock salt instead and add as much to the water as will dissolve. It will have the same effect if you follow the above procedure, although you must be doubly sure not to let it slop over onto the "good" grass, as it will, of course, kill it too. — D. Cloke

MAKES PREDICTION

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A minister said Tuesday Lester Pearson will be the last Canadian prime minister who cannot speak fluent French. "Any man who thinks he's good enough to be prime minister should be bright enough to learn French." Rev. George Goth of London, Ont., told members of the Ontario Association of superannuated Women Teachers.

Order of Royal Purple Holds District Meet

On Sunday the annual district meeting was held in Belleville with representatives attending from Toronto and Picton Lodges and D.D.S.H.R. Lady Alice Roy from North Bay as honored guest.

The hostess Lodges served a buffet luncheon after which the business session took place.

D.D.S.H.R. Lady Roy presented H.R. Lady Ruth Gordon with a gift in appreciation of the welcome she had received from Belleville Lodge. She also passed on to her the travelling gavel from North Bay Lodge which will in turn be passed on to Toronto and Picton Lodges at special meetings in the fall.

H.R. Lady Gordon presented Lady Roy with an amethyst jewel pin on behalf of the Lodges in District No. 5, and a cheque for $25 was donated to the Purple Cross Fund.

The initiation of Barbara Haynes into Belleville Lodge followed. The ceremony was performed by the visiting Toronto ladies.

At the close of the meeting dinner was served in the banquet room at Johnny's Restaurant at the Plaza where the ladies were joined by several members of the Elks Lodge.

The Belleville members were honored at being selected to act as hostess lodge for this meeting as the Lodge has only been instituted since November of last year.

Pakistani Women Better Drivers Than Men Report

KARACHI (Reuters) — Pakistani women are better drivers than men—at least in Karachi—say this city's traffic experts.

There are only 700 licensed women drivers in this city of traffic chaos in streets crowded with ox-carts - rickshaws, buses, trucks, private cars, donkey-carts, camel-carts, horse-buggies, bicycles and jay-walkers.

But, says a member of Karachi's police traffic department, the women drivers are not as rash and as unpredictable as they are made out to be by men. In fact, they are better drivers.

He is supported in his assessment by Karachi driving experts.

Not only do Pakistani women make better drivers than men, but they also learn to drive more easily than a man does, the experts say.

Among Karachi's little legion of women behind the wheel are the modern, emancipated girl and the veiled housewife, still clinging to the taboos of the past. Both handle their vehicles well.

Every month in this city of 1,500,000 people, 10 women driving past a strict test which many men fail.

Pakistani girls love to handle cars in a country where men are still predominant in practically every sphere.

Biggest Nutrition Problem Is Obesity Says Expert

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's biggest nutrition problem probably is obesity, the chief of the federal health department's nutrition division said Tuesday.

Dr. J. E. Monagle made the statement in an interview at the opening of the third national conference of nutrition educators.

The Canadian Dietetic Association and the University of Ottawa are sponsoring the sessions which end Thursday.

Dr. Monagle said he did not have sound data to support his statement that the interests of Canadians over - eating than under-eating.

"But I would say it is very likely that over - nutrition is the biggest problem."

The 150 health delegates they should assess what is being accomplished in the field of nutrition education in Canada.

"Effective programs for good nutrition must be operated in the community. Personal contact is needed to convince the individual that good eating habits will add to his health, fitness and productivity."

Mrs. Myra Smillie of Toronto, a nutritionist with the Ontario department of public welfare, said it is important that Canadian welfare agencies have few trained nutritionists trained on their staffs.

"There is not enough nutrition taught early enough in life. Life on the Bay of Quinte." She gave a paper on "How Port Trent became Trenton" and on "Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte". She also read an account of a Royal Proclamation at Buckingham Palace to celebrate the Jubilee year of the Women's Institutes. Mrs. Chester W. Nash, president of Stoney Creek Institute, was a guest.

A letter, "Share a Loaf" was read by Mrs. Grenville Sine, and Mrs. Harrington spoke briefly on opening her home and the meeting was closed with lunch. The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. M. Mallory.

SAYS COLOR COMING

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Color television probably will come to Canada by the spring of 1967, Carlyle Allison, vice-chairman of the board of Broadcast Governors, told the Western Association of Broadcasters Tuesday. Mr. Allison estimated that it would cost the CBC television network $20,000,000 to convert to color.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GLERUM, MOTHER OF 5

Once baby passes the mid-year mark, each day sees new skills acquired. While ball-of-fire babies are apt to do things a bit faster than take-it-easy babies, most babies do these things at about these ages:

• 6 to 7 months. Eyes and hands co-ordinate. Hands hold securely, explore eagerly, eyes examine intently. Sitting up starts, rolling over is easy now.

• 8 to 9 months. Creeping comes into its own. Cup feeding usually handled reasonably well. Can twitch objects from hand to hand.

Toothsome tots. Teething really starts in earnest after the 6-months mark. Gerber Teething Biscuits are extra-hard and waffle-surfaced to give baby the biting satisfaction he wants and needs. Scalloped edges make them easy to grasp and hold.

Fruitful ideas. Absolute favorites with little food fanciers: Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits. Know why? Because they're flash-cooked in a matter of seconds to preserve orchard-bright color and true-to-nature flavours. Has baby had Pears & Pineapple, lately?

Helping hand division. The baby who is encouraged to try things within his capabilities will reward you with a good progress report. The baby who is urged beyond his limits may lose his desire to try.

Vegetable saviour. Many different vegetables help build good food habits at an age when food acceptances are most easily established. Gerber offers wonderful vegetable variety with 9 strained and 3 junior choices. All are famous for garden-true colours and flavours. All are specially processed to preserve the utmost in precious food values. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Ann Landers

Obsession With Cleaness Form of Mental Illness

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife is Pennsylvania Dutch. They are supposed to be the cleanest people on the face of the earth and my wife is determined to prove it. In the meantime the kids and I are like in jail. Our carpets have never been walked on. She has knitted booties in all sizes for everybody. Every person who comes into our home has to park his shoes by the door.

Nobody has ever seen our lovely furniture because my wife has draped sheets over everything. If you offered me $10 right now to tell you the color of our sofa I couldn't do it.

ANN LANDERS

I don't expect an answer because this is one problem for which there is no solution. I just want you to print my letter so the guys with sloppy wives will realize that maybe they haven't got it so bad after all. — GERM FREE.

DEAR GERM — Your wife is more than neat. She has strudel in the noodle. My condolence to you and the kids.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am the mother of a 17-year-old boy. Last night he came home dead drunk. I don't know where he got the stuff but I aim to find out. When I do, somebody is going to get slapped with an arrest for selling liquor to a minor.

My husband and I have tried to raise this boy to be a fine citizen. We go to church together every Sunday and set a good example. What are parents to do, Ann, when their children go off the track?

What makes kids want to drink? Surely they don't need the lift. Most teen-agers have so much energy they don't know what to do with it. Must someone get killed in an automobile accident before they learn that alcohol can be deadly?

To our knowledge this is the first time our son has ever touched liquor. How can we be sure it will be the last? — HEARTSICK MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — You can never be sure, no matter what you do or say. There are no easy answers or sure-fire solutions to this one.

If you lined up six teen-agers who drink and asked them, "Why do you drink?" you could get six different answers.

Screaming, threatening, and harsh punishment are not, in my opinion, effective methods of dealing with the problem. This closes the arteries of communication. Parents should let their children know they love them, trust them and have faith in them. Children who are brought up to think well of themselves usually turn out to be the kind of people others will think well of, too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was stopped cold by the letter from "Just Dora" whose boy friend spent the magnificent sum of $1.10 on her in the 10 months they went together. I must be dating the same man. There can't be two.

I have spent whole days with Ed and he never so much as asked me if I was hungry. Once I became faint and wanted to stop for a cup of coffee. He said, "We're almost at your place. The coffee you fix is much better than the mud you get in the cafes."

Last winter I sprained my ankle on the way home from a free art show. I wanted to take a bus but Ed said, "We're only six blocks from your place. Walking is the best thing for a sprain. It strengthens the muscles."

The letter in your column made me see my own situation clearly and I am dropping this creep as of now. What burns me up is that I was so dumb for so long. Thanks, Ann. — BLIND AS A BAT.

DEAR BAT — Congratulations and good riddance. As a farewell gesture why not give Ed a piggy bank?

* * *

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Springbrook UCW Hold Tea, Bazaar

The Springbrook U.C.W. held an afternoon tea and bazaar in the church hall on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Gordon Apps, wife of the minister, and Mrs. Murray Mason, president of the UCW, received the ladies at the door.

The president welcomed the visitors and members. Mrs. Burt Mosley conducted a short devotional period. Taking the theme, "God's Purpose for Me" assisted by Mrs. R. Mellekjohn, Mrs. P. Smith and Mrs. G. Thompson.

Mrs. Clayton Burkitt introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Edison Sine, vice-president of West Hastings. Mrs. Sine's topic was "Christian Vocation." She explained that a Christian vocation is a life's work if what you do is worth while. Mrs. G. Williams thanked the guest speaker for her timely address.

Mrs. L. Finkle, chairman of leadership development committee, brought greetings from Belleville Presbytery.

Mrs. Mason invited the ladies to the tea room and Mrs. Wellman directed the ladies to the small tables which were decorated with Rehall arrangements of flowers and lighted candles. In preparation for the expected crowd, arrangements had been made with the tea room to have two antique hanging lamps.

Mrs. D. Fleming convened the arrangements in the kitchen, assisted by Mrs. C. Bateman, Mrs. G. Thompson and Mrs. E. Bateman. Serving in the tea room were Mrs. R. Shortt, Mrs. W. England and Mrs. G. Broadworth.

Aprons and needle work were sold by Mrs. K. Thompson, and Mrs. R. McKeown. The cook-ie table had an excellent and tempting food and was in charge of Mrs. D. Bateman and Mrs. McFall. A table of plants and slips was in charge of Mrs. O. Barton and Mrs. L. Bateman.

Guests were present from Rylstone, Stanwood, St. Marks, Bethel, Salem and Springbrook. Members were well pleased with the results and would like to express their appreciation to all who patronized the bazaar and tea.

MEAT BALLS ITALIAN STYLE

My niece Beverley has a new Stairway and everybody had to play on it. I managed a modest little Sonatina but had to keep my mind on my cooking too. My brother knew that the Meat Balls I was working on had some kind of an Italian name (Piemonta) but when he served them at the table he named them Meat Balls by Mason. They were so good there is a song in my heart as I write this so I'll let his name stand.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

MEAT BALLS MAESTRO:

2 lbs. lean ground chuck (or round) beef, 1 egg, ½ garlic clove, 1 medium onion, or ¼ Spanish onion, finely chopped or minced, ½ teaspoon oregano, ½ teaspoon paprika, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 cup fine dry breadcrumbs, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, flour (for dredging), 4 strips side bacon, 2 or 3 tablespoons butter, 1 cup strong coffee, ½ cup dry white sherry or Burgundy (optional — if wine not used substitute ½ cup apple juice), ½ cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1½ tablespoons flour, ¼ cup water, about 1 cup dairy sour cream.

In a large bowl mix together well the ground beef, egg, garlic, onion, oregano, paprika, salt, breadcrumbs, mustard, Worcestershire sauce. Shape into balls about 1¼ or 1½" in diameter. I had 45. Dredge these with flour. Cook bacon in large frying pan (an electric one is ideal) until crisp. Remove bacon and chop and reserve it. To the fat in pan add water to have sufficient to brown all of the meat balls. Brown and turn until all are seared and golden. Now add the cup of coffee, wine or apple juice, water, salt and sugar. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Return bacon to pan. Mix the flour and the ¼ cup water to a smooth paste and carefully stir in until thickened. Reduce heat as low as possible for another 5 minutes.

Serve this in the centre of a large preheated platter surrounded with a border of Rice Cakes. Put a dollop of fresh sour cream on each serving of Meat Balls.

RICE CAKES (courtesy Mar-Jarvel Buddy):

2/3 cup rice long-grain rice, 1 2/3 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, ¼ cup sherry (optional), 1/16 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons butter.

Cook rice with salt in boiling water, covered, until tender and all water is absorbed. Cool. Beat in egg, pepper, sherry (if used). Shape into 10 flat neat cakes about ½" thick. Carefully fry in butter until golden on both sides.

NOTE:

Do not try to turn these rice cakes over before they are golden and crisp on bottom or they might break.

A delicious combination. This meal was popular with my brother and his family (and me).

Picton

By LLOYD THOMPSON

Must Have Organization Before Survey

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County accidentally tried to put the cart before the horse when it came to a conservation authority.

Advised that the Department of Energy and Resources would undertake a survey of the county at no cost regarding a conservation authority, county council authorized the clerk to go ahead and request the survey.

Word came back that some sort of organization had to be established before the survey is made.

The county clerk has now sent letters to the councils of all municipalities requesting them to appoint one member each as a preliminary conservation authority.

The clerk, Thomas Walker, said when all councils have had a chance to meet and appoint someone, a meeting will probably be arranged at which officials from the Department of Energy and Resources will be present to outline the details.

THREATEN STRIKE

LONDON (Reuters)—The editorial staff of the Daily Mirror, Britain's largest - selling daily newspaper, gave notice Tuesday of strike action. The staff told the management they would strike in 28 days over the dismissal of a photographer.

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — At the Junior Farmer director's meeting last Thursday night it was decided that they would undertake the sale of Slow Moving Vehicle Emblems on an individual club basis. These emblems are now available from Junior Farmers in your area or from the Department of Agriculture Office at a cost of $2.50 each.

A few days ago an announcement was made regarding a Farmstead and Rural Improvement Centennial Project. The project is in two sections as follows: 1. A - Farmstead Improvement Competition open to all farmers in Ontario and organized on a County and Provincial basis. 2. A rural Landscape Improvement program on a cost sharing basis with county councils. The purpose of this project is to encourage farmers to clean-up, dress-up and paint-up in preparation for Canada's Centennial and is provide a Centennial project in which rural people can become personally involved.

Entries in the competition will be accepted up to September 1st, 1965, and the first inspection will be made between September 6th and October 15. Work on the Farmstead Improvement Project should be completed by August, 1966. The second inspection will take place between August 23 and September 3, 1966. The county winner in each case will be entered in a zone competition and the zone winners will compete for the Provincial championship.

Each county will receive a grant from the Ontario Department of Agriculture to assist with the prize money with the amount of grant being based on the number of completed entries. Maximum grant in any county will be $1,800, and to receive this a total of 200 entries would be required.

"You know something? We're not really living—we're just existing!"

This project will receive further publicity in the near future and in the meantime it is suggested that all farm people consider what they might do in the way of a Centennial Project in participate in this Farmstead Improvement Competition.

Cancer Fund Over Objective

PICTON (Staff) — The meeting of the executive of the Prince Edward County Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society was held on May 31 in the Society work rooms.

Reports were given by conveners of Women's Services, Dressings and Transportation Committees, telling of dressing provided and transportation arranged for needy patients to clinic for treatment.

The highlight of the meeting was the report of the final result of the annual campaign for funds given by Mr. Malcolm Love, campaign chairman for the County Unit. The town of Picton had especially excellent results this year realizing nearly $300 more than its objective.

The executive wishes to express its grateful thanks and appreciation to all Campaign Managers, Canvassers, the Bank of Montreal, the Girl Guides and the public, who have so generously given their time and gifts to this cause.

The objective was $6,000 and returns for the year will be augmented by "In Memoriam" donations to the Fund.

Town Offered Old Armouries For $56,500

PICTON (Staff) — Picton armouries has been offered to the town for $56,500 by Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

The letter stated terms could be arranged with as little as 25 per cent down and five years to pay at six per cent interest. Still no takers.

Council left the matter in abeyance pending further investigation by Mayor McFarland.

Many members of council are hopeful of obtaining the historic Main Street Armouries for some suitable community use, but so far, the price is not right.

Council Wants Information On School Bus Contracts

PICTON (Staff) — Town Council seeks more light on the awarding of bus transportation contracts by Prince Edward Collegiate Board.

Council passed a motion submitted by Councillor Andrew Jarvis at the regular meeting Monday night that the Prince Edward District High School Board be asked not to sign any bus contracts until the two representatives on the Board from Picton have had a chance to meet with Council and explain the revised system.

Councillor Jarvis said it appears from the information he has so far that there is no consistency in the Board's recent acceptance of tenders.

He said he has received complaints from several town residents who are also confused.

The Board turned down an offer from a Picton bus operator who offered a saving of up to $3,000 a year by looking after all routes on grounds that it would be putting all its eggs in one basket. At the same time it accepted a tender from a driver to combine several routes into one, thus, as far as Councillor Jarvis is concerned, putting several eggs in one basket at no saving.

Several of the most experienced bus drivers in the county are out of their contract and stuck with their investment in their buses as a result of the special High School Board meeting last month at which the tenders were opened and accepted.

Some drivers have declared that certain information regarding the bus situation originating at the Board level is incorrect. The drivers further charge that should they complain publicly they will not stand a chance of getting their contract renewed. If they already have a contract, they risk losing it the following year, they believe. In short, they claim petty politics is governing the awarding of bus contracts by the local Board.

A similar complaint was lodged by the Ontario Association of School Bus Drivers and referred to the Minister of Education at a recent convention.

Other questions that have been asked "Why did the Board not advertise a closing date after an advertisement was published calling for tenders on the bus routes without naming a closing date?

"Is tendering a practical way to obtain the combined services of man's time and equipment and if so, why wasn't the lowest tender accepted?

"What happens to drivers who have invested a large amount of capital in their bus and then discover they no longer have a contract?

"Do ratepayers and Board members realize that only a small percentage of the transportation costs are borne by the taxpayers, by far the biggest portion being paid by the Provincial Government?

"Do ratepayers realize the mileage rate stated as being paid to bus drivers is only applicable from the first pickup, which might be several miles from where the bus may start out and that the figure is sometimes taken out of the contract?"

Picton Town Council as such may not be interested in all the questions but Council's request will have the effect of calling the High School Board to a fuller accounting of its actions which must be proven well-founded and in the interests of progress before the rumblers and growlings from various corners of the county will die down.

WALK IN SPACE — Major Edward White takes a walk in space June 3 during the third orbit of Gemini 4, apparently over the Texas coast. This picture of the astronaut, who became the first American to venture into space protected only by his suit — and the cord himself in space with a jet-like gun — was made from 16 mm color movie film from a camera mounted on the capsule. The black area of Maj. White is an equipment bag. The black area in the foreground is the nose of the capsule with the open hatch at right. The curvature of the earth is in the background.

WHITE UNREELS TETHER AND TAKES OFF — Astronaut Ed White moves away from his Gemini 4 capsule as his golden tether unreels from a black bag in which it was kept until he emerged from the spacecraft. He somersaulted away for most of the tether's length, then manoeuvred back with the aid of an oxygen rocket gun. This picture was made by White's fellow astronaut, James McDivitt. Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, June 8, 1965

The Commons agreed on proposals to wrap up debate on the proposed House rules changes by Friday.

The step sends the controversial debate-limiting guillotine rule before an all-party committee to report Friday morning.

The House gave unanimous approval to the rest of the first rule-change resolution, setting time limits for study of spending estimates and supply bills.

Party House leaders held meetings to see whether agreement could be reached on handling of the proposed debate-limiting rule.

Mr. Diefenbaker proposed the House act immediately to make Speaker Alan Macnaughton permanent House Speaker.

Mr. Pearson said there would be opportunity to decide this later.

Union Carbide Head Is Critical Of Failure to Make Tax Cuts

TORONTO (CP)—The retiring president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association lashed out Tuesday at Finance Minister Walter Gordon for failing to make an immediate reduction in corporation income and sales taxes.

A. A. Cumming, president of Union Carbide Canada Ltd., told delegates on the final day of the association's two-day annual meeting that manufacturers are seriously disturbed because Mr. Gordon did not include any tax relief for corporations in his recent budget.

"Your association took this very hard and I think we had good reason," Mr. Cumming said. "Certainly we were encouraged to believe beforehand that Ottawa was at least able and willing to do something for the overtaxed producer."

He added that although Mr. Gordon has made a token bow to the personal income tax payer, the CMA will not relax its efforts to get a decrease for corporations next year.

Economist R. B. MacPherson of Du Pont of Canada Ltd. suggested a seven-per-cent growth of the Canadian economy is not unrealistic.

"The potential for new advances, which can be realized by the concerted efforts of research conducted by private and public bodies, truly staggers the imagination," he said.

External Affairs Minister Martin told the meeting that any depressed area "is a drag on the prosperity and well-being of every country in the world."

"If we accept the fact that high levels of production and employment depend on the existence of adequate demand, can we really afford to ignore the millions upon millions of disenfranchised consumers in the developing regions of the world whose potential demand upon our productive facilities remains to be unlocked?"

John Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, and D. G. Willmot, president of Anthes Imperial Ltd. of St. Catharines, both stressed the need for long-range planning as the key to Canada's economic success.

Mr. Deutsch said the economy is too complicated and changes too rapidly for industry to succeed without having a long-term program.

Government economic policies would play a large part in determining the general economic climate in which business and labor would have to work, he added.

Mr. Wilomt said that in the face of the shortage of well-trained and skilled personnel, "it may be that manpower will have to be extended to an industry-wide or even national scale in order that the needs of industry can be known and met to the best degree possible by the universities and institutions of higher learning."

R. G. Rogers of Vancouver, president of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., told the meeting that Canada's forest products industry has been more alert in seizing opportunities during the last decade than some other industries.

He said the industry has been unusually successful in developing projects jointly with overseas companies, and in promoting domestic and foreign sales of Canadian products.

J. Herbert Smith, president of Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., said the major export potential for Canadian manufacturers of electrical products is in sales of heavy electrical equipment to under-developed countries.

He warned against going after export business without a careful study.

Monsoon Season Has All But Washed Away Hopes of U. S. Winning in Viet Nam

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The monsoon season has all but washed away United States' hopes that the bombing and strafing of North Vietnamese targets would bring the rebel Viet Cong to their knees in South Viet Nam.

The air attacks on North Viet Nam by American and South Vietnamese planes in the last four months apparently haven't produced the slightest response from Hanoi, Peking or Moscow to President Johnson's offer of unconditional negotiations on the Southeast Asian trouble centre.

Neither Communist North Viet Nam—blamed directly by the United States for the success of the South Vietnamese rebels—China nor the Soviet Union—appear seriously concerned about the bombings but rather project the impression that things constantly are being tilted more heavily in favor of the rebel forces.

The Hanoi government and the Viet Cong obviously are confident in the success of a rebel push during the monsoon season, and eventual victory in South Viet Nam.

An indication of this confidence was displayed when Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh of North Viet Nam rejected a recent Canadian suggestion for a peace conference.

Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister ,reported to the Commons in Ottawa that communications with the North Vietnamese government produced the response that a principal condition for peace negotiations is the complete withdrawal of American troops from South Viet Nam.

And while the air attacks on North Viet Nam continue, the Communist - backed Viet Cong seem more determined than ever to mount an offensive during the monsoon season—when air attacks by U.S. planes are weather which will succeed in rocking the foundations from under the Saigon government.

Despite the increasing American involvement in South Viet Nam, the Viet Cong continues to gobble up more and more South Vietnamese territory, now estimated about a half of the Southeast Asian country, a substantial increase in the last six months.

The United States expected a big push by the Viet Cong as the rainy season approached and steadily increased its forces in South Viet Nam — now estimated at more than 30,000, more than three times the number a year ago.

So far American personnel have been used mainly in so-called advisory capacities and in the bombing raids on Viet Cong guerrilla concentrations and North Vietnamese targets believed to be the source of reinforcements for the rebel forces.

But these American troops can be expected to see increasingly more action as South Vietnamese government troops — often not the most willing soldiers—find themselves in dangerous positions during the guerrilla attacks.

In fact, a state department spokesman said Tuesday in Washington the U.S. military command in South Viet Nam has been ordered to send American troops into combat alongside South Vietnam these should they be requested by South Viet Nam.

Former Orillia Councillor Started Own Investigation Into Franchise for NONG

BARRIE (CP)—Albert Glass, former Orillia councillor, testified Tuesday that he started his own investigation into rumors that former Orillia mayor Wilbur Cramp had received shares in connection with the granting of a Northern Ontario Natural Gas franchise for the town. .

Mr. Glass, replying to questions asked by special prosecutor Harvey McCulloch of Hamilton, was one of three witnesses called on the second day of the trial before Judge C. E. Bennet of Owen Sound.

Mr. Cramp has pleaded not guilty to accepting NONG shares in return for granting the Orillia franchise in 1956; accepting NONG shares to block the rival Consumer's Gas Co. franchise application, and conspiring with NONG President R. K. Farris of Vancouver in these dealings.

Mr. Glass said he knew the town could have granted a franchise to more than one company.

Both Mr. Glass and another former councillor, Ken Curtis, said Cramp's reaction was one of anger and strong opposition to a suggestion that town look into a proposal by Consumer's Gas late in 1956.

They said this was after the town had passed a by-law in May, tentatively approving the NONG franchise.

"At that time no other gas companies had produced a gas schedule to the town," said Mr. Glass.

Mr. Curtis said that in the fall of 1956 he had received a phone call from Oakah Jones, Consumer's Gas president, who said he was having trouble approaching council through the mayor's office.

Mr. Curtis, and Mr. Glass said they later voted to accept the NONG franchise and town council could have outvoted the mayor on the issue.

Norman Campbell, Orillia bank accountant, said that on Feb. 28, 1957, Cramp obtained a $1,500 loan from his bank on the strength of 150 NONG stock certificates totalling 150 shares.

He said Cramp reclaimed them July 5 of the same year.

Mr. Campbell said that at this time (1957) he had understood the mayor to say "he was going to get NONG stocks," noting the word "purchase" never entered into the conversation.

The trial continues.

Halt in Spread of Nuclear Weapons Will Be Chief Issue in Shastri Visit

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime ministers Shastri of India and Pearson of Canada likely will discuss a draft international agreement designed to halt the spread of nuclear weapons, informed sources said Tuesday.

Lal Bahadur Shastri arrives here today for a five - day Canadian visit which will also take him to Niagara Falls, Ont. Sunday and to Montreal Monday.

Both India and Canada have renounced manufacture of nuclear weapons though they are technically capable of making them. Canada has helped India build nuclear reactors which are used for peaceful purposes only.

Both countries have been working for an international treaty which would prevent the spread of "nationally-controlled nuclear forces.

External Affairs Minister Martin has also suggested that such unaligned nations as India be given a guarantee of nuclear protection by the present nuclear powers in exchange for their continued abstention from the manufacture of atomic arms.

Another prime topic for discussions between Mr. Shastri and Mr. Pearson, informants said, will be the situation in Viet Nam where, for 11 frustrating years, Canada and India have been members of the international truce supervisory commission.

The two leaders are expected to discuss means of getting Communist North Viet Nam to the negotiating table and, if that can be done, the possibility of an international peacekeeping force to help guarantee any settlement reached.

India and Canada have both urged the creation of a peacekeeping force for Viet Nam and that its national contingents be drawn from Asian and African states.

Confidential Discussions Urged Between Police and Magistrates

BARRIE (CP) — Allegations that police are acting as censors are "a lot of nonsense," Ontario Chief Magistrate Arthur O. Klein said Tuesday.

He told 100 chief constables at a conference of the Ontario Association of Police Chiefs that police forces are too often unjustly criticized by publicity seekers or other unscrupulous persons.

A police raid on a Toronto art exhibit recently was unfairly described as censorship in many quarters, Chief Magistrate Klein said.

But it was actually nothing more than policemen exercising legal discretion to determine whether there were grounds for a charge under the Criminal Code.

If there is any censorship, it occurs in a court where the magistrate or judges rules on whether certain materials are obscene or not within the legal definition.

Mr. Klein said there was severe criticism of Metropolitan Toronto police for allegedly abusing university students demonstrating in front of the United States Consulate-General in Toronto last March, "but . . . the students themselves acknowledge they had been doing something unlawful."

Mr. Klein advocated more frequent and confidential discussions between police officers and magistrates because police officers have a more realistic grasp of plain truths than magistrates, who are provided with scraps of evidence.

Police Chief Carl Farrow of Windsor, association president, said crime exists because of failure to prevent and to correct delinquency.

"Beyond that, there is a failure to prevent crime, a failure to detect crime, a failure to deal properly with crime and a failure to take the profit out of crime," Chief Farrow said.

While the rights of criminals as well as of law-abiding citizens must be protected, "there are occasions when the criminal has every break in his favor and the police have every conceivable obstacle thrust in their pathway," he said.

He termed the extent of organized crime in North America a national disgrace, and called for a "moral reawakening" as the only way to mobilize "all who stand for law and order" in the fight against crime. Only such a mobilization could produce a crime-free country.

Deputy Chief John Murray of Metropolitan Toronto told the conference motorcycles are becoming a problem in Toronto.

He said the difficulty is that motorcyclists can drive on renewable 90-day instruction permits without having to submit to anything more than a few simple written tests.

Frederick Pilgrem, deputy registrar of motor vehicles, said compulsory automobile safety inspections are to be expanded and urged the chiefs to press for compulsory inspections in their municipalities.

Lone Gunman Gets $4,000 In Kingston Bank Holdup

KINGSTON (CP)—Police said a lone robber escaped Tuesday after getting about $4,000 from a downtown branch of the Toronto Dominion Bank during a lunchtime holdup.

He used a revolver through the wicket and held up bank teller James Corkey, police said.

A gun, believed to be the one used in the holdup, was found minutes later in the mailbox of a photographer's office across the street, who said she saw a man throw something into a laneway at the rear of the bank.

GAVE CASH FOR STUDY

TORONTO (CP)—Robert A. Adams has been awarded the International Nickel Company of Canada's $3,000 postgraduate fellowship for advanced study. A native of Port Arthur, Mr. Adams is working towards a PhD degree and a career in teaching and research in mathematics.

Traditional Doctor-Patient Relationship Hampers TB Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Tuberculosis is still the most important community health problem although 1,200 fewer new cases were reported in Canada last year than in 1963, the Canadian Tuberculosis Association was told Tuesday.

Dr. C. W. L. Jeanes of Ottawa, the association's executive secretary, told the annual meeting that 3,000,000 persons die of TB yearly. In 1964, 700 Canadians died.

He warned against a slowdown of mass surveys that search out cases of the disease.

He also appealed for closer study of health problems created by air pollution and cigarette smoking and warned that, smoking causes not only lung cancer but also a variety of other lung diseases.

Public apathy and the self-interest of the tobacco companies which discredit attempts to fight smoking actively were also criticized by Dr. Jeanes.

Canadian deaths attributed to heavy smoking are proportionately not far behind those of the United States, which last year totalled 150,000, Dr. Jeanes said.

Dr. Johannes Holm, executive director of the International Union against Tuberculosis, said another obstacle to effective campaigns against TB is the traditionally close doctor-patient relationship.

Doctors see treatment as an individual art and view with suspicion production-line diagnoses and standard treatments used in community programs, he said.

Dr. Holm contended that with modern biochemistry and technology, tuberculosis can be controlled at the cost of only 10 cents per capita.

Dr. R. H. Andrews of Ramsgate, England, claimed that tubercular patients need no longer be given lengthy and expensive treatment in sanatoriums but could be treated in their own homes.

He said the danger of communicating the disease to the rest of the family once treatment has started is relatively unimportant.

Dr. A. Riley of Hamilton said fears that TB germs would become immune to new drugs have not materialized.

Ontario Health Minister Matthew Dymond said he hoped government would never become so paternalistic that it would watch over the health needs of the individual.

There must continue to be private responsibility, inspired and dedicated health workers, volunteer movements and vision in research and education, he said.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an income Tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Retired Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

IMMIGRANTS AND EMIGRANTS

Many taxpayers taking up residence in Canada during the taxation year are of the opinion they may claim full exemption for themselves and family. This is not the case. A Taxpayer who enters Canada in the middle of the year is only allowed exemption for the period he resided here. For example, if he resided in Canada for 200 days, his exemption would be 200-365 of the yearly allowance. You must be a resident of Canada for the full 12 months of the calendar year to claim the maximum exemption. This also applies to the $100 standard deduction, in lieu of charitable donations, medical expenses and union dues.

A taxpayer who entered Canada during the year reports as income only that amount received in Canada. Any income he had while not a resident need not be shown on his return.

A taxpayer who leaves Canada during the year to take up permanent residence in another country, reports only his Canadian income, and can claim exemption only for the number of days he resided in Canada.

If married taxpayer goes to another country but leaves his wife and family in Canada, then he is considered a resident of Canada until his wife and family join him in the other country. He must then report on his Canadian income tax return the income earned in the other country while his wife and family were here. Any federal income tax paid in the other country will be a credit against his Canadian tax. When a taxpayer moves to another country with his wife and family, he must before his departure, file his Canadian income tax return and get a clearance in writing. He will receive prompt attention in such matters if he appears in person at his local district income tax office.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I came to Canada from England in 1964. My earnings while here will be less than $7000. Must I file a tax return

Answer: YES. You may be taxable as you are not allowed a full $1000 exemption unless you reside here for 12 months.

Question 2: I paid all tax owing Canada before I left for the U.S.A. but since I came here I received a refund from my Canadian employer of my pension contributions. There was tax withheld on it. How do I get a refund of this tax?

Answer: A refund of pension contributions made to a taxpayer who is no longer a resident of Canada, is taxable in Canada. Write the local tax office for the district where you resided in Canada and ask them to adjust your return. Any refund due will be sent to you.

FINNS REFRESH — Most Finns, like these three youths near Tampere, Finland, are very particular about their sauna bath. The most popular variety of these baths consist of very basic equipment, including a log hut heated to about 250 degrees fahrenheit, a lake and a bar of soap. A handful of birch twigs, like those held by the youth on the left, can also be used. The bath involves sitting in a hot, lightly steamed room until you are warm and perspiring freely, scrubbing down and then jumping in a lake or shower. (CP Photo)

When Visiting Finland Gather All Your Sisu And Enter a Sauna Hut

By ROD CURRIE

TAMPERE, Finland (CP)— For a proper Finnish bath take: One log hut, heated to about 250 degrees Fahrenheit; one lake and a bar of soap. Garnish with birch twigs (optional).

Follow with at least one good, stiff drink.

If the lake happens to be frozen, and you aren't a Finn, you'd better have a drink before, too. Otherwise, summon up all the tenacity—the Finns call it "sisu"—you can muster.

The dunk through the ice isn't as painful as you'd expect. It's because you don't know this until after you've taken the plunge, you still need lots of sisu."

Basically the Finnish sauna bath involves sitting in a hot, lightly steamed room until you are warm, relaxed and perspiring freely. Then you have a good scrub down and go jump in the lake.

The Finns are nuts about it and have been for 1,000 years or more. It is said there are well over 500,000 private saunas in Finland—about one for every four or five people in southern areas—as well as countless public saunas.

In the city saunas the hot stones on which water is splashed to produce the steam are usually electrically heated and a cold shower substitutes for the lake plunge. Finns consider this a poor substitute for the big cabin sauna by the lake, that is at every summer cottage.

GUESTS PLUNGE IN

For the real sauna snob it is hard to beat the city-owned setup amid snow and pines a few miles outside Tampere, used mainly for entertaining visiting VIPs. Because the Finns think nothing of suggesting to a newly arrived dignitary that he take a bath, the facilities have been enjoyed by kings, presidents and other heads of state.

There, guests are ushered into a large wood-panelled room complete with floor-to-ceiling windows draped in colorful homespun, fur rugs and a massive fireplace.

Out back is the sauna hut, its walls smoke-blackened and the air fragrant with the smell of burning logs and green birch.

Ah, yes, those birch twigs. If one is in the sauna, or get out," which is much later.

But an old Finnish proverb says, "In the sauna one must conduct oneself as one would in church." Admittedly, it's a little difficult to achieve an air of pious dignity, sitting there in the nude like that, but still this description is nearer the mark since the Finns like to lounge in meditative silence while they sweat. Loud talk, singing or whistling is certainly frowned upon.

"For all the spreading popularity of the sauna, its fascination still escapes many visitors—as it had for centuries. Way back in 1100, when the Russian Missionary St. Andrew travelled through Finland to Rome, he wrote a long, detailed description of the sauna.

"They go of their own free will," he noted rather incredulously, "and not at all to torture themselves."

"A bunch of upstarts, Cinderellas, from Eastern Ontario" as the proud Western Ontario senior "A" clubs dubbed them back in the fifties, are holding a reunion in Whitby on Saturday.

The famous Whitby Dunlops, headed by their chuckliest hat-crushing manager, Wren Blair, are holding their first get-together since they won the world championship seven years ago.

And in passing I want to remind my sports editor buddy from Oshawa, George "Soup" Campbell, that the Dunlops were NOT the last team to win the world title for Canada.

They won it in 1958. A year later "a bunch of farmers", augmented by a few old pros and some good hockey players from Belleville, was the last Canadian world title in Prague. In case you forgot, Soup, they were called the "McFarlands."

Call me an Eastern Ontario "homer" if you will, but in this agent's book the Dunlops and the McFarlands were the two best clubs that ever represented Canada in world competition. The only difference, the Dunnies won two Allan Cups.

Fans hereabouts will never forget the famous duels staged by the Dunnies and Macs in both senior "B" and senior "A" days.

I used to enjoy working in the Whitby arena sardine-can press box with Blair's blasts ringing in my ears and later wondering how the guy with the eye-covered curl managed to get 1,500 fans in the blown-up telephone booth they called an arena.

The boys are paying their own expenses and the most of them are expected to be on hand.

There will be the O'Connors, Ted and Tom, Gord Myles, Fred Etcher, George Samelchuk, Doug Williams and Bobby Attersley, Frank Bonello, Sandy Air and Long John Henderson. There'll be Sid Smith, Charlie Burns, Don McIlrath, Eddie Redmond, Alf Treen, Ken Ganzeboom, Mickey Sladen, Jack Dunleavy, Lummy Lamirande, Connie Broden, Jack McKenzie, George "The Goose" Gosselin and Roy Edwards.

The pint-sized blonde Brain was the Alpha and Omega of Eastern Ontario senior hockey. He proved to be a prophet without peer.

With Western Ontario senior "B" champions proving no match for their eastern counterparts, Blair tried to crash the proud powerful Western Ontario senior "A" circle. "They laughed when he sat down to say." The "upstarts" as a Kitchener radio flunkey dubbed them were politicly but firmly told they would be out of their class.

He called a meeting of the Eastern League. At Cornwall his vocal wizardry convinced five of the six clubs they should "go" senior "A". Belleville demurred but later gave way under pressure.

Then came one of the greatest prophesies in hockey history.

"I'm so sure," thundered Blair, "that this 'A' jump will be a success that I'll predict this league will produce not only an Allan Cup winner but a world's champion in first year of operation."

Someone suggested they send for the men in the white coats. Laughs of derision greeted the statement.

But never were truer words spoken.

Kitchener fans were stunned when their famous Dutchmen went down to defeat before the eastern "upstarts." Blair flushed with victory went on to lead his Dunnies to the all-Ontario title and the Allan Cup, defeating Spokane four straight in the latter series.

The "Cinderellas" came through. In Oslo they defeated the Russians for the world title. Blair's prophecy came true.

The Dunnies will likely live and play again some of the stirring struggles of the halcyon days of the senior loops.

There will be varied and colorful stories. Bus Gagnon will never forget the night Wild Bill McMaster of Peterborough chewed a chunk out of his ear during a hassle. Nor will he forgotten the Peterborough coach, Eddie Redmond, who chastised Wild Bill with the remark: "Bill you should know you cannot eat meat on Friday."

Yep, the Dunnies should have a great time recalling the days when hockey was hockey.

Which brings to mind that it is about time the McFarlands had some sort of a get-together. Jay Sprague mentioned it some time ago. I don't know if it could be arranged and if the clan could be gathered under one roof. However, it's a thought.

12-Player Deal ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Two On Waivers

Name Ian Morrison Referee-In-Chief

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP)—Appointment of a new referee-in-chief, three strikes involving 12 players, two $30,000 waiver claims and an unusually heavy interleague draft session were features of Tuesday's National Hockey League meetings.

The second day of the four-day sittings opened with a board of governors meeting. From this caucus Ian (Scotty) Morrison emerged as new referee - in - chief, replacing Carl Voss who is retiring after 15 years' service.

Of the three players involved in the three trades, only three can be considered established NHL performers. One of the trades caused a minor league club which lost players on the deal to cut its relations with the NHL.

In other developments, a veteran and a rookie were claimed on waivers, while the interleague draft leaned heavily to goaltenders.

The appointment of the 35-year-old Morrison is for one year. Termination of the agreement between himself and the NHL would require another year's notice. Voss will continue to work with his successor until he gains a knowledge of the administrative work involved.

STARTED IS YEARS AGO

Morrison, who stands 5 feet, 6½ inches and packs 165 pounds on a compact frame, started refereeing 15 years ago after playing junior hockey. He worked in the NHL for two years. Morrison quit eight years ago because of the travel involved, only to resume the career in the Western Hockey League when a business transfer sent him to Vancouver.

Last season he worked as a linesman in the NHL following the dismissal of George Hayes for refusing to take an eye examination.

On the trading and draft front, Emile Francis, freshman general manager of the fifth-finishing New York Rangers, continued to wheel and deal in an effort to strengthen his club's position.

Francis, who was left without an experienced NHL netminder by the surprise retirement Monday of Jacques Plante, dealt with Montreal Canadiens in an attempt to rectify the situation.

Canadiens gave him Cesare Maniago, a travelling netminder, who played 21 games in the NHL with Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal. Maniago spent last season with St. Paul of the Central Pro League.

INGARFIELD TRADED

On the same deal, Montreal centre Gary Peters moved to New York while Earl Ingarfield of the parent Rangers, minor leaguers Noel Price, Gordon Labossiere and Dave McComb moved to the Stanley Cup champions. Price and Labossiere were with Baltimore of the American League last season, while McComb was in the CPHL.

Montreal's second trade involved defencemen Bryan Watson and Don Johns. The Habs got Johns and an undisclosed amount of cash from Chicago Black Hawks in return for watson, who split last season between Quebec Aces of the AHL and the parent club. Johns started with the Rangers last season but wound up in St. Louis with Chicago's CPHL farm club.

A deal that had repercussions on the West Coast saw Toronto's 21-year - vean right winger Ron Stewart move to Boston Bruins. In return, Boston sent Orland Kurtenbach to bolster the Leafs and threw in Andy Hebenton and Pat Stapleton from Portland Buckaroos.

The inclusion of Hebenton in the deal caused Buckaroos managing-director Harry Blickman to cut ties with the Boston club. He said the pair of WHL all-stars were the only players on his club the Bruins owned outright, but he had asked Boston not to consummate the deal, or at least to exclude Hebenton from it.

McKENNEY GRABBED

Before the inter-league draft meeting opened, Toronto left centreman Don McKenney open and he was picked up by Detroit Red Wings for the $30,000 waiver price. A similar deal occurred when Boston asked waivers on sophomore centre Bill Ashbo and he was picked up by Rangers for the same price.

Francis continued to deal in netminders as he grabbed Don Simmons from Rochester of the AHL. Simmons played in the major league with Boston and Toronto.

The Rangers asked for waivers on Plante, but no club proved willing to pay the $30,000 price required to pick him up.

LEAFS TAKE ONE

Toronto and Chicago picked up one player each, the Leafs drafting Larry Johnson from Tulsa of the CPHL and the Hawks getting goalie Ernie Wakely from Cleveland. Wakely played last season with Quebec Aces.

Crothers - Snell Top Attraction

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Crothers, bespectacled silver medalist of the 1964 Tokyo Olympics and Canada's outstanding athlete last year, gets a chance to realize his great ambition—to beat New Zealand's Peter Snell —when the pair meet for the fifth time Thursday night.

The featured half-mile in the Toronto International track meet could be the last crack the 23-year-old Markham, Ont. pharmacist will get at the cigarette salesman from Auckland. Snell, who holds three Olympic gold medals, has said he may retire from competition at the end of a current world tour.

Both runners are the fastest men known over that distance, but in four previous meetings, the 28-year-old Snell has proved superior because of his devastating final kick.

In their last meeting at the Tokyo Olympics, Snell beat Crothers to the tape with a time of 1:45.1. It was the second gold medal in the 800-metre event for Snell who also collected a gold medal in the 1,500 metres in 1964.

Thursday night's meet boasts an elite field of track stars, including five other gold medalists from the 1964 Olympics.

The gold medallists are United States athletes Bob Schul in the 5,000 metres, Billy Mills in the 10,000 metres, Edith McGuire in the women's 200 metres and Wyomia Tyus in the 100 metres and Britain's Mary Bignal Rand in the women's high jump.

But the top attraction is the Snell - Crothers clash.

Snell has forced Crothers to set his pace in the past, breaking away in the stretch.

Others in the 880-yard event are Tony Harris of England and John Garrison and Ted Nelson, both of the U.S.

The three - mile race also shapes up as a battle of the giants with Schul and Mills both entered against Australia's Ron Clarke, who lowered his own world record to 13:00.4 at Compton, Calif., Friday.

Others in the three-mile are Ron Larrieau of the U.S., Alby Thomas of Australia, Bill Ballie of New Zealand and Dave Ellis of Toronto.

The meet matches Mrs. Rand against Toronto's Jenny Wigerson in the 100-metre hurdles, the first time the event has been run in Canada and currently being considered for the 1968 Olympics in Mexico.

BOY DROWNS

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—Shane Brooks, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brooks of Collingwood, drowned Tuesday in a water-filled manhole near this community 35 miles east of Owen Sound.

Pascual Unbeaten

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe Horlen has begun phase two in his attempt to overthrow lefty Gary Peters as strong man of the Chicago White Sox pitching staff.

Horlen, 27, pushed Peters closer to the brink Tuesday night, continuing his masterful pitching while adding a potent offensive weapon in Chicago's 7-2 victory over Boston Red Sox.

The right hander ignited his operation last season in taking the team lead in earned-run average away from Peters. Now he is threatening to surpass Peters as the team's best hitting hurler.

Horlen collected three singles, the second driving in a sixth-inning run that snapped a 2-2 deadlock and put the White Sox ahead to stay. The performance shot Horley's batting average to .250 compared with .138 for Peters, who often is used as a pinch hitter.

In other American League contests, Minnesota Twins stopped Cleveland Indians' five-game winning streak 6-2, Kansas City Athletics ended New York Yankees' four-game string 3-2, Los Angeles Angels trimmed Detroit Tigers 3-1 and Washington Senators blanked Baltimore Orioles 2-0.

The White Sox snapped the 2-2 tie after Ron Hansen reached second base on shortstop Rico Petrocelli's double error. Hansen eventually reached third and scored as Horlen ripped a single to centre field.

Unbeaten Camilo Pascual won his eighth game after surviving Cleveland home runs by Rocky Colavito and Max Alvis. The Twins also socked a pair of homers, Harmon Killebrew with two on in the first inning and Earl Battey with one aboard in the fourth.

John O'Donoghue brought his record to 3-7 with a three-hitter against the Yankees. The Athletics won it in the sixth on a bases-loaded single by Ed Charles.

Fred Newman turned in another outstanding pitching performance, holding Detroit to four hits and increasing his record to 7-3. The Angels broke a 1-1 deadlock with two sixth-inning runs as Willie Smith tripled in one and scored the other on Joe Adcock's single.

Washington handed Baltimore its second straight shutout as Pete Richert and Ron Kline combined for a four - hitter. Frank Howard drove in a run with a triple in the fifth inning.

U. S. National Open

Many Top Golfers Fail To Qualify

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Slammin' Sammy Snead qualified easily Tuesday for the 25th try at the National Open he has never won, but casualties among established stars were heavy in qualifying play for the 65th U.S. golf championship next week in St. Louis.

Snead, a 53-year-old picture swinger, put together rounds of 67-70—137 in the sectional trials over the par-71 Birmingham, Mich. Country Club.

Thirty more will be at the firing line Thursday, June 17, when 150 players tee off over the Bellerive Country Club in the revised four-day format.

Winner of more than 100 tournaments in his lifetime and still rated the best swinger in the game, Snead four times has been runner-up for the Open title. He's won three Masters, three PGA crowns and the British Open.

As 360 players battled for 101 berths at nine regional centres, many other leading tournament players failed to make the grade.

Among those who did qualify with scores of 147 or better, was Bob Farasiuk of Windsor, Ont. He shot a 74-70—144 at Birmingham, near Detroit.

Another Canadian to qualify was George Knudson of Toronto, the hottest Canadian on the PGA circuit, who shot a 71-72—143 at Cleveland.

Other list of failures included Dr. Cary Middlecoff, two-time Open champion; tempestuous Doug Sanders; Bolt, former PGA champions Walter Burkemo, Doug Ford, Vic Ghezzi and Jim Turnesa and the 1936 Open king Tony Manero.

Howie Johnson led the 35 Canadian shooters with a pair of sparkling 68s for 136. Snead was just one shot behind.

Ford, Ghezzi, Turnesa and Manero missed out at Summit, N.J., where Dick Hendrickson, a six - foot - seven professional, led a field of 90 with rounds of 69-72 — 141 over the par - 72 Canoe Brook Country Club.

The colorful Nuert Carolina amateur, Billy Joe Patton, led the trials at Charlotte with 74-71—145 and another amateur, Ward Wettlsafer, paced the Atlanta tests with 71-69—140.

The sectional qualifiers — 18 Monday and 101 Tuesday—join 31 exempt players in the tournament proper at St. Louis. The exempt list includes defending champion Ken Venturi and such standouts as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Bobby Nichols, Tony Lema and Bill Casper.

Hal Woodeschick, who used to be the National League's safest late-inning risk this side of Al McBean, has become accident prone.

Houston Astros' southpaw relief specialist, who led NL pitchers with 22 saves last year and was a close second to Pittsburgh's McBean for fireman of the year laurels, handed the streaking Pirates a 7-6 victory Tuesday night by committing a two-out, bases-loaded balk in the 11th inning.

It was Pittsburgh's fourth straight victory and 16th in 18 starts, vaulting the Pirates into the first division for the first time since April 25.

In the other two weeks ago, they now share fifth place with St. Louis Cardinals, one game under .500.

The Astros, meanwhile, dropped their ninth extra-inning decision and 12th one-run game of the season. Woodeshick, 33, has been the villain in the last three one-run losers.

The veteran checked a Pittsburgh rally in the ninth Tuesday night and pitched out of a jam in the 10th before failing in the 11th.

The first-place Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 on Maury Wills' run-scoring single in the ninth; Cincinnati Reds edged St. Louis Cardinals 5-4 on successive sixth-inning homers by Leo Cardenas and pinch - hitter Art Shamsky and a two-run double by Willie Mays carried San Francisco Giants past New York Mets 2-1 in other NL night games.

Milwaukee hit four homers in the 10th inning for an 8-2 victory over Chicago Cubs in an afternoon game.

Lou Johnson opened the Dodgers' ninth with a single, moved around on a sacrifice and ground out and scored on Wills' hit, capping an LA comeback against Jim Bunning.

Cardenas, with one on, and Shamsky connected off St. Louis ace Bob Gibson, who has lost two of his last three after winning his first eight decisions.

Mays, hitless in 18 previous trips, doubled off Gaylen Pitts in the first inning at New York, scoring Dick Schofield and Jesus Alou. Mets rookie Ron Swoboda homered off Bob Shaw in the fifth.

Joe Torre's pinch-hit homer broke a 3-3 tie in the 10th inning at Chicago and, before the club went out, Felipe Alou, Gene Oliver and Hank Aaron had blasted homers.

South Hastings Little League

Carmel opened the 1965 South Hastings Little League baseball schedule with a 16-4 triumph over Foxboro last night.

The other scheduled game, between the two Cannifton clubs, the Jets and Comets, was postponed because of school examinations.

Don Skinner belted a home run and Steve McKeown hit two doubles for Foxboro.

Minor Softball Results

Woodland Braves nudged Barrett's Yankees 14-13 in one of three peewee games played in the Belleville Minor Softball Association last night.

The other two games saw a much larger spread in the scoring.

Mets doubled the count against Hyde and Son Giants, copping a 20-10 victory.

WHEN PUTTING UNDER PRESSURE

Every golfer, sooner or later, faces a putt under pressure. When this happens to you, I suggest you follow this tip:

Consciously loosen your grip (No. 1) on the putter before and during your stroke. Under pressure it is normal to grip the club tighter than normal and this inhibits a smooth, rhythmical stroke. A lighter grip is the answer.

Also remember to keep your head perfectly still throughout the stroke (No. 2). This is good advice on any putt, but there is an additional tendency to move it when you are tense.

Bower To Fight For Job

The five-foot-seven, 190-pound veteran of seven years in goal for Toronto Maple Leafs said in an interview Tuesday this is part of his regime of "watching my diet" during the off-season.

Bower, who broke into pro hockey with Cleveland in 1945, said when he's playing he can eat anything and never gains weight.

The Leaf goalie was here to present a car won in a TV contest during the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs.

If Leafs keep him next season, he said, "I consider the goaltending job mine."

"I expect Gerry Cheevers to make the Toronto club this fall after his fine year with Rochester last season. He'll have to fight me and Terry Sawchuk for the number one spot. I intend to keep going as long as I am the best man.

"Sure, if someone better comes along I'll gladly let him take over. But he's going to have to fight for the job."

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The top and the bottom of the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A league drew closer together Tuesday night following wins by Mimico Mounties and Long Branch.

Mounties got two points with their 16-7 victory over Etobicoke Terriers and moved into second place behind the pace-setting Oshawa Green Gaels.

Al Smith, a former goaltender, helped the Mounties by scoring five goals. Graham Gair and Phil Fadei scored three each while Ken Ellis and Mark Burgin got two each. Paul Parnell added the other.

Minor Baseball

The CNR Firemen got no-hit relief pitching while overcoming a 4-0 deficit to defeat Boiler's Little Giants 6-4 in the B.M.B.A.'s tyke division last night.

Boiler's scored two runs in each of the first two frames to take the early lead, despite the fact they got only one hit in the seven-inning contest.

Ted Eves started for the Firemen, allowing a single by Mike Burley, striking out three and walking five. John Mulvihill came on with the no-hit relief chore in the third frame, striking out 13 and walking three. Danny Lupenette was his catcher.

Robin Guest and Allan Wood shared the loser's pitching. They gave up just three hits, fanned nine and walked seven. Mike Burley was their receiver.

Four errors helped the winners to three runs in the third and singletons in the fourth, sixth and seventh. The Firemen played errorless ball.

Canadians Chase Top Drivers

NEW YORK (CP) —Two 26-year-old Canadians are chasing two Americans from North American harness racing driving honors, the Harness Racing Institute said Tuesday.

The Americans are Bob Farrington with 130 wins this year and Billy Haughton with 85.

They are followed by Ron Feagan of Goderich, Ont., with 74 wins and Gilles Lachance of St. Andrews East, Que., with 71.

Feagan so far this year has confined his racing to the hockey club circuit in Ontario, but Lachance, who was Canada's leading driver in 1964, sharpened his challenge by crossing the border to Buffalo Raceway, where he now is campaigning.

Beauchamp Bidding For Majors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jim Beauchamp of Atlanta Crackers is making a determined effort to make it back to the majors.

The 25-year-old Oklahoma native hit his third home run in four games and scored three runs as Atlanta turned back the last - place Buffalo Bisons 4-2 in an International League baseball game Tuesday.

TRAFFIC DEATHS RISE — The traffic fatality toll in Canada continues to climb with the total for the first quarter of 1965 at 782, nine more than in the same period in 1964. Among the four provinces with fewer fatalities in the first three months of this year, Quebec shows a decrease of 20 to 242 from last year's 262. Other provinces with lower totals for 1965 are Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan. (CP Newsmap)

Despite Drastic Measures, Canada's Traffic Toll Grows

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Death on the highway is again outstripping the efforts of Canadian authorities to put the brakes on the climbing toll.

Though every province is stepping up its safety measures in greater or lesser degree, the first-quarter fatalities for 1965 are greater than last year's and Canada could be headed for another record-breaking casualty list for the whole year.

An early bright spot, however, is Quebec. The province had a jolting 1,581 traffic fatalities in 1964, a record and away ahead of more populous Ontario. This year its figures are dropping, though there is nothing much new in its safety steps.

Here is the coast-to-coast picture on provincial governments' plans for promoting safer driving, as gathered in a Cross-Country Survey by The Canadian Press:

NEWFOUNDLAND: The province this year became the first to introduce reflecting licence plates. First-quarter fatalities were down to five from 10 last year.

SUSPENSION FASTER

NOVA SCOTIA: Has introduced automatic suspension of driving licences on conviction for drunk driving or criminal negligence. Previously, the convicted operator held his licence pending official notification, which could take months. School bus regulations have been tightened. First quarter fatalities: 29 (27 in 1964)

NEW BRUNSWICK: Experimental use of compulsory breath-testing in cases of suspected impaired driving has proved by legislature but not yet proclaimed into law. It is expected to be confined to the Saint John, Fredericton and Moncton areas at first. First quarter: 40 (23).

P.E.I.: Fines for unsafe driving increased to minimum $10 from $5. Vocational school driving courses have been introduced. First quarter: 4 (5).

QUEBEC: There are no legislative changes. Government officials say there would be fewer accidents if drivers followed the highway code. A government organization, Prudentia, is campaigning for safe driving. First quarter: 242 (262).

ONTARIO: New legislation compels drivers to use headlights one half hour before dawn and after dusk. Daytime use of lights must conform to atmospheric conditions such as fog. The government is assisting secondary schools in operating driver-training programs. First quarter: 272 (261).

REVIEW LEGISLATION

MANITOBA: The Highway Traffic Act is under review by a committee and it is expected major changes will be recommended at the 1966 spring session of the legislature. Motor vehicle branch officials say continuing efforts are being made to make Manitoba laws conform with those of other provinces. First quarter: 39 (22).

SASKATCHEWAN: A special legislature committee set up last spring is to report before Dec. 31 on a study of present traffic laws, their enforcement and the relationship between drinking and accidents. First quarter: 16 (31).

ALBERTA: New legislation subjects slow highway drivers to fines or to being ordered off the road if they are impeding traffic. The Alberta Safety Council is holding clinics for chronic violators of highway regulations. Magistrates send convicted persons to the clinic and take its recommendations into account when sentencing. First quarter: 61 (61).

B.C.: Motorists with bad driving records have licences restricted or suspended. A driver-training program has been instituted in high schools. Officials also report there is a tendency by courts to increase penalties—including use of licence suspensions. First quarter: 77 (72).

IMPROVE ROADS

Generally, the provinces report continuing programs to reduce hazards in the construction of highways. Some specific ideas:

Newfoundland is considering making all signs of the reflector type. Manitoba is trying to improve the safety factor of abutments at the beginning and end of four-lane stretches. B.C. is aiming at uniformity of highway signs.

Meanwhile, there are more drivers on the roads than ever before—and more deaths. The first-quarter toll adds up to 782. Despite drops in four provinces — Quebec, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Manitoba—that beats the previous record for the period of 773 last year.

The 1963 total was 537.

Total deaths for last year were 4,655. Again, this was a big jump over the, previous year's 4,210 and constituted a Canadian record.

MONEY IN BANK

Canadians had more than $9,000,000,000 in personal savings in chartered banks at the beginning of May.

Bonnie expects to leave June 30th.

Donna Douglas Signs On 3 Years With Hillbillies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Donna Douglas is vacationing from The Beverly Hillbillies to play Frankie to Elvis Presley's Johnny. It's a big step for a girl whose last movie role was as a secretary in Lover Come Back.

Donna has a philosophical approach to her life and work unusual for one of such tender (24) years. Her conversation is studded with observations like: "You can have success if you can handle it."

She seems to be handling hers. She came up the hard way, from beauty contests to letters girl on the Perry Como show to bits in movies like Career and Li'l Abner. Then producer-writer Paul Henning asked her whether she could handle the role of Elly Mae in his new TV series, The Beverly Hillbillies.

"I just looked at him and grinned," recalled Donna. "Could I handle Elly Mae? Boy, it was just like my own life."

Louisiana born Donna, who still struggled to erase her drawl, had to recover it for the series. The hillbillies became the No. 1 show in audience ratings. That meant instant fame for Donna Douglas (born Doris Smith).

"Some people can't handle success—it's too much for them," she said. "They aren't willing to give as well as receive. It's important to do both."

Donna is delighted to be playing opposite Elvis in Frankie and Johnny. Unlike most of his leading ladies, she hasn't dated him.

"I just met him when he recorded the songs before the picture," she said, "and we've been working steadily ever since. Who has time to date?" But her disinterested air doesn't cause Donna to fret. She had one ill - fated marriage as a teenager and has a son back home.

As soon as Donna finishes Frankie and Johnny, she heads back to her work as Elly Mae. She has several more years and is under contract for another three.

Can you think I'd go back to the series as a grump?" she asked. "Of course not. I'm grateful for the opportunities that the Hillbillies opened up to me. I'll be happy to do the show for another three years, if necessary. I don't fight life."

AT THE BELLE — What A Way To Go! Lucky John, Wayne goes half way across Europe with bewitching Claudia Cardinale and glamorous Rita Hayworth, in Samuel Bronston's exciting Wide West production "Circus World," (Technicolor - Technirama - Widescreen) at the Belle Theatre. The magnificent story is filmed in Color and CinemaScope.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Those mammoth legs are fake but not so the interest of stocking manufacturer Henry Fonda, nor the suspicions of his wife, Lauren Bacall. Scene is from "Sex and the Single Girl", Warner Bros. hilarious new comedy in Technicolor which opens tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Based on the best-selling book, "Sex and the Single Girl" stars Miss Bacall and Fonda, together with Mel Ferrer, Fran Jeffries, Leslie Parrish, Tony Curtis and Natalie Wood. Richard Quine directed the new release and William T. Orr produced. The screenrio was written by David R. Schwartz and Joseph Heller. 2nd new comedy hit, also in Technicolor "Island of Love" stars Tony Randall, Robert Preston, Georgia Moll and Walter Mathau.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Tony Curtis, clad in a woman's negligee while his own clothes dry after a fall into the water proceeds to warm himself — and get Natalie Wood tipsy—in this scene from "Sex and the Single Girl". Based on the best-selling book, the film stars Miss Wood and Curtis, along with Lauren Bacall, Henry Fonda, Mel Ferrer, Leslie Parrish and Fran Jeffries. 2nd comedy romantic hit also in color "Island of Love", stars Robert Preston, Tony Randall, Walter Mathau and Georgia Moll.

AT THE PARK — Rock Hudson and Gina Lollobrigida rekindle an irresistible spark that brought them together for a brief marriage seven years before when they meet to arrange a divorce in Universal's romantic comedy in Technicolor, Panavision and Frank's "Strange Bedfellows," opens Thursday at the Park Theatre for its first showings. FACE DEMANDS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The principal of Queen's University in Kingston says universities face demands from students on a scale never before seen. J. A. Corry, in an address read in his absence Tuesday to the Royal Society of Canada, said many students are finding themselves rootless in university, taught in bigger classes by harried professors in whom they lack confidence.

SUES JESUITS

TORONTO (CP)—The widow of Toronto architect Peter Dickinson Tuesday started suit against the Jesuit fathers for full payment in the construction of a seminary five years ago. Rev. J. M. Madigan testified Mr. Dickenson had verbally agreed to a fee based on a six per cent of the construction cost after signing a contract for six per cent. Mrs. Dickinson is asking the full six per cent.

United Church May Be Starting Its Last Decade

By DON HARVEY

TORONTO (CP) — Thursday, June 10, is the United Church of Canada's 40th birthday.

Celebration of the anniversary is taking on extra significance because many of its more than 3,600,000 adherents are hoping it will not see its 50th birthday in 1975.

Instead, they hope to see their church and the Anglican Church of Canada united by then into a new embodiment of Canadian Protestantism.

Basic principles on which organic union could come were announced at the end of May. Union would make the new church of more than 6,000,000 second numerically in Canada only to the Roman Catholic Church, which had about 8,400,000 adherents listed in the 1961 census.

United Church ministers and congregations across Canada have been asked by church headquarters here to hold a 40th anniversary service either Sunday, June 6, or a week later. Their response has been so enthusiastic that a special order of worship required a second printing.

Rt. Rev. Ernest Marshall Howse of Toronto, present moderator of the general council, will preach in Toronto's 1,500-seat downtown Metropolitan Church Sunday, June 20.

UNVEIL PLAQUE

Afterwards a plaque will be unveiled at 70 Mutual Street, the arena in which hundreds of Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists met Wednesday, June 10, 1925, and solemnly dedicated most of their memberships to the emerging United Church of Canada.

Very Rev. George C. Pidgeon of Toronto, the first moderator, hopes to attend the unveiling. At 95 and with failing eyesight, he seldom leaves his home.

Another former moderator, Very Rev. James R. Mutchmor of Toronto, plans to preach at an open-air service June 20 at Kagawong Lake, not far from his birthplace at Providence Bay on Manitoulin Island in Lake Huron.

While the church prepares to celebrate its birthday with special services, it also has published an anniversary booklet by Grace Lane of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Rev. Fraser Munro of Sackville, N.B.

Mr. Munro, now retired, based his contribution on Moses' reminder to the Israelites that God had been with them during their 40-year struggle to the Promised Land from captivity in Egypt.

SEES SIMILARITIES

He concluded with the Lord's advice to Moses: "You have compassed this mountain long enough. Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward."

In between, Mr. Munro traced what he believed were similarities in the heritage of the United Church.

Mrs. Lane, wife of Rev. Homer B. Lane of St. Andrew's United Church in Moose Jaw, looked at her church's history from a different angle. She delved into the lives of Canada's pioneers and saw in them the importance of a vital faith. This, she wrote, should be the backbone of Christianity in the United Church.

Rev. Ernest E. Long of Toronto, secretary of the United Church Committee of Ten on union talks with the Anglicans, said the work of his church is not finished. Its members must not dwell in the past.

Years ago the church declared itself to be a uniting force. Its members, said Dr. Long, must work with other churches in answering the prayer of Jesus for his disciples:

"That they may be one, even as we are one."

Wants to Make Film in Canada
Montrealer Is U.S. Movie Mogul

By DAVE PIKE

NEW YORK (CP)—Claud Giroux sometimes refers to himself as the only man in the United States who has worked his way down to the presidency of a big corporation.

That may be fantasy, but the fact is that native Montrealer Giroux, 36-year-old president of Allied Artists Pictures Corp., is the youngest chief executive of any major U.S. movie company.

He also is co-producer of one of the highlights of the current Broadway season—the 20th anniversary production of Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie.

And, for good measure, he has multi - million - dollar business interests in the U.S. and Canada.

Allied Artists is his major concern at present. He joined it as a director in 1962, became board chairman in 1963 and made himself president last February.

Much of Allied's hope of emerging as a real competitor among the "big four" U.S. studios appears to depend on Giroux's driving leadership.

"I don't want to be a gypsy," Giroux says. He is very alert to take advantage of an opportunity, but feels "too-income" to be a one-shot opportunist.

"I'm very afraid of a strike-out," says Giroux, who is a great believer in what he calls continuity.

WANTED MOVIES

That was some time before movie moguls Joe (The Carpetbagger) Fisz and Harry Saltzman's pressagentry campaign to convince the public Carroll Baker is another sex goddess. "Bridge" flopped, reinforcing Giroux's opinion that it's too risky to invest money in a single movie.

"I decided to seek association with a company I picked up some shares in this company and, not to my surprise, one day I found that I owned controlling interest.

"I like to do things the easy way," he adds with characteristically candid humor.

"We're last on the totem pole, I don't kid myself—we have no place to go but up. We need a few new blood injections around here."

His aim eventually is to distribute as many quality films as is possible profitably — as evidenced by a deal with the Rizzi andau organization (The Producers, The Pawnbroker)—and to become more active as a producing studio, going it alone and in collaboration financially.

HOLDS TIGHT REIN

"And when we distribute a movie now, I want to be in from the script up," says Giroux, who wakes up at 6 a.m. after five hours' sleep—so he can read two scripts.

The deals are beginning to trickle in." Recently, for instance, he had been talking with Norman Jewison, former Toronto CBC-TV producer - director now successfully directing in Hollywood.

But just running the whole show from behind his desk—he can swivel his chair around and from his 10th-storey viewpoint stare out at Times Square and the billboard - advertising first-run movies and Broadway shows—doesn't become frustrating.

He wants, for instance, to make a film himself out of Violent Spring, an anti-clerical novel set in Trois Rivieres by Robert Goulet (not the singer), a French-Canadian author who "can't get anything out of Canada, we'll go someplace else." And he means money.

Giroux feels Canada "has such an opportunity to build a film industry. It's incredible."

"The one big asset they have that they don't know about, or won't use, is their climate. It's the proximity of talent, American talent."

Giroux recently asked a noted American actress whether she was interested in playing in Violent Spring.

"Where do I have to go to make it — Canada?"

"Great, then I can take a train," replied the actress, who abhors flying.

And Giroux says he can name 20 others who would reply similarly.

He believes Canada would capitalize on a film industry by exporting a tourist-luring "image besides one of snow." He seriously presents the following in support: Before El Cid was made in Spain, that country had 1,500,000 tourists annually. Within two years of the release of El Cid, there were 8,000,000.

But doesn't the National Film Board of Canada present a Canadian image? "Ah, yes, but they make home movies for themselves at the film board, and that's culture. I don't call industry, but I'm told there is an industry will draw money."

Says Giroux: "The Canadian government has a lot of fancy ideas, and I think they're nonsense. They can stand on their heads and not get anywhere unless they do two things to get a $20,000,000 film industry —well, let's say $20,000,000 should be the production goal within three years."

He says the government must:

1. Subsidize, perhaps at 25 per cent, below-the-line costs (studio costs—sets, raw stock, etc. — as opposed to talent, script). Right now, a movie can be made 30 per cent cheaper in Italy than in Canada.

Establish bank - loan clearing facilities to enable producers to obtain financing.

"A bank of industrial expansion would guarantee either a portion or the whole of a loan, then the commercial banks would take over. With that, I might get a return of $20,000,000 in three years, say. The government could accumulate this money in a fund of $5,000,000 to start with."

But the government shouldn't necessarily get into the actual operation of the industry, as happened in Mexico where a government film board has been set up to tax every time to have his film played.

As in the theatre that Giroux feels he has found his real love, his film recently made a deal with Swedish entrepreneur Lars Schmidt to produce plays in his Berlin and Paris.

Counting The Glass Menagerie, his first on-Broadway venture, Giroux has been involved in 23 New York productions. His second production was the off-Broadway Tiny Alice, preceding, also by Williams, white and eight months.

Almost all productions next season will be a Broadway program of three one-acters—The Pedestrian, The Veldt and To The Chicago Abyss—by science fiction writer Ray Bradbury.

The plays were a hit in Los Angeles. Giroux had never read Bradbury. Typically, he "saw them, got the right package and bought them."

Giroux admits to having "a little" strong farmer's attitude. I relate to what is basic, universal. If I don't understand a thing, I don't move."

His first year in New York—his wife Maureen is an American—he wanted to live here. he was "very lonely." On Sundays, he would scan the business opportunities section of The Times, hoping to find something that would take up his slack time. Then, he was moved by "a new promoter every day who wanted to sell me the moon. I never bought; I had no real interest. But eventually I got talking with people who had Broadway shows, and wanted money."

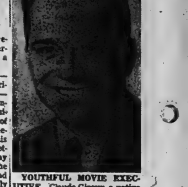
RENTED THEATRE

Giroux didn't want to lose money on a single play, either, so, with that old "continuity" in mind, he went out and bought the Gramercy Arts Theatre, plunging "into show biz by becoming a landlord."

Giroux's interest in theatre actually goes back to his McGill University days in Montreal when he was a member of the Compagnie des Compagnons Saint Laurent, a college theatrical group.

He still studies acting in New York under an assumed name ("I want to be able to tell a good actor from a ham") and occasionally sits in on an actors' studio director's class, again because he has no desire to act, but he does have a strong itch to direct.

Giroux, whose attracted by creative people, supports two writers out of his own pocket.



An astute businessman, Giroux traces his business background back to Montreal's Expo Est, who was in the wholesale grocery business in Montreal until the end of the Second World War. Claude started with Expo's apprenticeship carrying cases and standing on an orange crate to reach the cash register.

In his third and final year as a commerce student at McGill he met Maureen Wood—Dr. Post of Canada Ltd. offered him a job, only to discover that he already was running his own business, directing a staff of 60. He still is board chairman of Gold Star Sales Ltd., the premium company he started by selling premiums to theatres.

the premiums to help boost sales, so he bought the store. A few months ago, after four years' ownership, he sold it.

He owns a large number of shares in wholesale grocery concerns in Canada, with an investment company handling his interests.

After moving to New York, he became board chairman of D. Kalman and Co. Inc., fifth largest drug distributor in the U.S. with 245 products. According to painters, he happened to "know the banker who controlled it . . . and I just ended up owning it."

He wants to sell this $30,000,000 business because "it's too big and it's too small for me." Giroux lives with his wife and three children, all girls, in Mas a r a n e and Ridgefield, Conn., where he relaxes by swimming and horseback riding. His dream is to own a sailboat.

He recently was elected to the national board of the American National Theatre Academy. He is a member of the Young Presidents' Organization and the Montreal Reform Club.

Although still a Canadian citizen, he is active in U.S. politics, as a Democrat.

"I do everything but vote."

Well Dry 20 Years Goes Active To Meet Dry Spell - - - With Gas

STIRLING (Staff) — Just over 20 years ago they drilled down more than 100 feet for water on the farm now owned by Wesley Lake on the north west outskirts of this village.

There wasn't any water, so they drove a fence post into the hole and left it.

They made a strike alright. Only it wasn't water.

Instead, up the shaft came natural gas.

Meantime, they might as well use the gas.

So, for the consolation it's worth, they lit the gas jet and the baby of the family — seven-year-old Roger — toasted hot dogs over it for a barnyard picnic of one.

The rest of the family got back to the current rural preoccupation: listening to the weather forecast, watching the skies and worrying about water.

Russia's Moon Rocket Will Miss Objective Says Soviet News Agency

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia's Luna VI moon rocket has swerved off course and will miss the moon by 100,000 miles, the Soviet news agency Tass said today.

Tass had said earlier that all equipment aboard the 1½-ton rocket was working perfectly and it was expected to reach its goal late Friday or early Saturday.

Since the rocket took off Tuesday observers had speculated that its mission might be a "soft" landing on the moon, a task which its predecessor failed to accomplish a month ago.

In today's announcement Tass said an engine switched on Wednesday in a correction manoeuvre could not be switched off.

Luna V, launched four weeks ago, was supposed to make a soft landing on the moon, but it crashed into the moon's surface.

Observers had speculated that the Russians planned to land Luna VI on the moon's surface gently with the aid of retro-rockets and possibly some new device. Success would have given them an important lead in space exploration.

Appeasement, All-out War In Viet Nam Are Opposed

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin today rejected any appeasement of the Communists in Viet Nam but warned that an exclusively military response to aggression there may bring Russia into the conflict openly.

He told the Commons external affairs committee:

"If North Viet Nam succeeds in taking over the whole of Viet Nam by force, if the rest of the world is prepared to sit back and see this happen, saying wheels and people really feebly that it is after all only a domestic rebellion so why not accept the inevitable, we would, I think, be guilty of an error of the same nature as the mistakes made at Munich and, before that, in the League of Nations.

"Aggression is aggression whether it takes place in Europe, or in Ethiopia or in Viet Nam.

"I am deeply aware of course, of the dangers of responding to aggression by military means alone: apart from the prospects of escalation, an exclusively military response runs the dangerous risk of forcing the Soviet Union into a position where it too responds by open military means in order to demonstrate its willingness and its ability to support another Communist state.

"Such a Soviet response would, of course, undermine or destroy the progress that has been made in undertaking a meaningful, if limited, dialogue with the Soviet Union—and that is one of the cornerstones on which our peace must rest."

Mr. Martin, in his strongest statement to date on the Viet Nam situation, added:

"On the one hand, surrender to Communist aggression only postpones the day when a firmer stand must be taken; on the other, resistance in exclusively military terms raises the spectre of a wider conflict extending beyond the perimeters of Viet Nam. . . .

"The only acceptable alternative is to negotiate, and to get negotiations started is our objective."

Traffic Moving Smoothly Despite Montreal Bus Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—The third day of a strike by 3,900 employees of the Montreal Transportation Commission (MTC) began today as the deadline approached for a walkout of 600 drivers of the Provincial Transport Co. Both groups of employees are seeking higher pay.

With two days and four rush hours behind them, commuters who usually take MTC buses have been getting used to alternate means of transportation.

A newsstand operator told of travelling to work Wednesday in a station wagon and three trucks. One was driven by his wife, in which Males Bittner, who has a newsstand in the financial district, rode in the freezer compartment. "Very cool," he said.

"I frankly could not care less if the bus strike never stops. I get to work much faster and meet many friendly people this way."

Police have estimated that there are 25 to 50 per cent more cars on the roads, though they have not commented on the relatively free movement of traffic.

Crammed commuter trains have been coping with extra loads, absorbing at least some of the 1,000,000 passengers that the MTC normally carries.

As of 12:01 a.m. EDT Saturday, 600 drivers and 200 other employees of the PTC are set to go on a strike against the PTC, which serves Montreal suburbs and operates buses in the city's east end. It has announced that it will not accept express packages after Saturday today.

Meanwhile, two insurance companies published an advertisement warning car owners about charging their passengers for rides. The advertisement advises that car insurance is normally invalid if paying passengers are carried.

Employees of both the MTC and the PTC are seeking higher wages.

Viet Cong Takes Town And Camp; Every GI Casualty

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — A curtain of machine-gun fire cut down South Vietnamese reinforcements today as they jumped from helicopters at Dong Xoai, a district capital overrun by 1,500 Viet Cong. All the 21 Americans at a nearby special forces camp were listed as dead, missing or wounded.

Reuters news agency said survivors in the town garrison were holding out desperately.

A U.S. military spokesman said the town is Dong Xoai, 60 miles north of Saigon, were the heaviest suffered by the United States in a single engagement of the Vietnamese war.

The casualty reports varied. Official reports said one of the Americans definitely was killed, six were wounded and one was missing and 13 wounded.

(In Washington, the state department said in its latest figures there were seven Americans dead and 13 wounded.)

South Vietnamese casualties were staggering and still mounting.

BLOODY BATTLE

About 400 South Vietnamese soldiers were at Dong Xoai when the attack began Wednesday. They felt the brunt of a full regimental offensive by the Communists during a day of bloody battle.

A relief battalion of about 400 South Vietnamese Army men landed by helicopter at an airstrip near the town this morning. It was cut to pieces by enemy fire. A count of casualties was impossible at this point. Many of the men got only a few steps from the helicopters.

Reports reaching Saigon late tonight said a U.S. helicopter was shot down by Communist groundfire and all crew members were presumed killed.

The helicopter was hit by machine-gun fire and exploded in mid-air. It was not known how many Americans were in the chopper but it was thought to be at least four and perhaps as many as eight.

All of the wounded Americans were evacuated from the Dong Xoia area. No word was available on how this was done but it was probably by helicopters under intense ground fire.

First reports from the battle area said 14 Americans were killed and at least 13 wounded.

BUILDING UP FORCES

Some of the American casualties were believed to be navy seabees at the special forces camp. They were constructing an air strip.

The special forces camp has been abandoned and survivors fled to a district compound. A heavy pressure of armed troops were holed up there as the battle raged on this after noon.

Minister Blamed In Claim

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government pays an average of only $6.96 a day for care and treatment of patients in mental hospitals, a New Democratic Party member charged in the legislature Wednesday.

Stephen Lewis said more money is spent on prisoners in jails, reformatories and reform schools.

He presented figures showing that only four of 45 county and district jails spend less on their prisoners than mental hospitals are granted for their patients.

In many cases, mental patients would be treated better in jail than in mental hospitals, the member for Scarborough East told the legislature.

The 22 Ontario hospitals are short 484 psychiatrists, he charged. This means that between 10,000 and 15,000 patients are not receiving treatment.

LAYS BLAME

He laid the blame for the situation directly on the doorstep of Health Minister Matthew Dymond and said the government has consciously, systematically and premeditatedly starved the hospitals.

Dr. Dymond said he would reply to the charges when debate begins on the estimates for his department.

Welfare Minister Louis Cecile answered in an interview another charge, made in the legislature Tuesday by Mr. Lewis, that the Warrendale treatment centre for emotionally disturbed children at Newmarket, just north of Toronto, had not received welfare subsidies for 10 months.

The minister blamed lax bookkeeping by the centre as the major cause of the delay. His department has not received vouchers for operational expenses, he said, and he called the accounting system at the centre "extremely bad."

Premier John Robarts introduced a bill to provide compulsory arbitration between Toronto Hydro commissioners and Local 1 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC).

SETS DEADLINE

The union has set midnight Thursday as a strike deadline in its dispute with the commission over wages and several side issues.

The bill means that no strike can be called by the union as long as the bill is in force. It received first reading Wednesday and Premier Robarts said it would receive second and third reading and royal assent today.

The premier said: "Any threat to the power supply of the Toronto area will affect the

Rulings By Chair Studied

OTTAWA (CP)—Having won at least a partial victory in their cry for safeguards against time-limited debates, opposition parties in the Commons now are pressing for some protection against errant rulings by the Speaker.

While a special nine - man committee studied how to ensure that cabinet ministers won't abuse their proposed power to cut off debate, spokesmen for two opposition groups spent Wednesday's short day in the House rules-change debate calling for some recourse against ill-founded rulings by the chair.

Their initial efforts met indifferent success.

The issue under debate was a government plan, part of the first 4 of 20 proposed rule changes, to eliminate the right of members to appeal through a recorded House vote against Speaker's rulings.

Creditiste Gilles Gregoire tried first to have the government plan dropped entirely, only to lose out to combined Liberal, Conservative and Social Credit opposition.

SEEKS COMMITTEE

When that failed, New Democrat Leader Douglas called for creation of a House committee to examine that, if the Speaker makes a bad ruling, it at least will not stand as a precedent for the future.

This idea won wider, though qualified, acceptance from the major parties and observers, suggested Mr. Douglas' amendment might be accepted in some form by the House reassumes its debate, in the 14th day now on the clock.

Meanwhile, outside the chamber, three Liberal cabinet ministers sat with a trio of Conservatives and a representative from each of the three minority groups began consideration of the government's proposal to allow a minister to cut off debate on legislation after a specified period.

The committee, set up by the House Tuesday night, has until Friday morning to report back to the Commons on its deliberations. Some committee sources said there is "a good chance" the nine members will reach agreement by then.

The committee, which held two meetings Wednesday and has more set for today, has before it the government's desire to provide some means for eliminating debate on any specific measures.

While the government's proposal now stands, an all-party committee would seek first to agree on such allocation. If that failed a cabinet minister could set a

'Doctors Told Us Horror Tales' Cryptic Comment by McDivitt

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The weather pattern will continue the same today with the exception that there will be some afternoon cloudiness in southern Ontario and the chance of a shower by two. Friday's weather will see sunny skies in all regions with temperatures near the seasonal average across the province as an area of high pressure crosses the Great Lakes.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE

Time will tell on a man particularly a good time.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White — still recalling some grim expectations — hurried to the arms of their families today to answer a thousand questions about some of the wonders they met.

"I have known a lot of people and a lot of big times, but the biggest day of my life was June 7 (the day of splashdown)," McDivitt told the officers of the aircraft carrier Wasp.

"When we came down we didn't know what kind of shape we would be in—the doctors had told us a lot of horror stories about what to expect. When we got down in the water safely, I don't think there were two more pleased people than Ed and I."

McDivitt didn't amplify what "horror stories" meant.

Just one week ago, the astronauts blasted off from Cape Kennedy for their four - day space journey aboard the Gemini IV spaceship. Today, the aircraft carrier Wasp, their home for the last three days, delivered them to Mayport, Fla., for their first step on U.S. soil, and idyllic days, since then.

McDivitt and White moved through the ranks of sailors and marines as they disembarked to the tunes of Around The World in 80 Days, and Happy Birthday—the last for McDivitt's 36th birthday celebration.

They walked off the ship down a red-carpeted gangplank toward the crowd of some 2,000 spectators. At the foot of the gangplank, McDivitt received a plaque from the state of Florida, and in thanks said:

"It's the man on the street, the little man, who makes our space program possible, and they're the ones I want to thank for making my flight possible."

Within half an hour, the astronauts were winging their way to Houston and their waiting families.

Ahead for the astronauts are six days of heroes' welcomes, a weekend visit with President Johnson on his Texas ranch, a Monday ticker-tape parade in Chicago, and a Tuesday honors ceremony at their alma mater, the University of Michigan.

"Move your uranium into the rear stock - pile, then buy our Canadian "peaceful purpose" shipment, Charles."

Bad Blood Stirred Up Between Indonesian Reds And Army

JAKARTA (AP)—There is bad blood between Indonesia's military and the Communist party, the two strongest forces in the country.

For the first time in months, the Communists have been put on the defensive.

The current quarrel was triggered when Lieut. Sudjono, an army officer, was slain in North Sumatra during a Communist-inspired riot.

The peasant wing of the Communist party has admitted that its members killed Sudjono when he led a government force to clear squatters from a state-owned rubber plantation in the North Sumatra district of Simelungun.

The military newspapers Berita Yudha and Angkatan Bersendjata alarted a campaign condemning the incident. They also asked readers for donations to help Sudjono's family.

This irritated the Communists. The party avoided opposing the military, which apparently it fears. But through the leftist - dominated Indonesian Journalists Association the Communists criticized the military for making "a big fuss on small matters for political purposes."

The military, however, was not intimidated. The Subjono incident came at a time when the power of the Communist party was increasing noticeably. This has created concern among the military party.

Shortly before the Subjono incident, Communist boss D. N. Aidit, sensing that the political trends were favoring his party, proposed that a Nasakom advisory body be created in the armed forces. It was to be headed by President Sukarno's name for co-operation among the country's nationalist, religious and political groups.

The military chiefs, who are known to be opposed to any political interference in their internal affairs, immediately opposed Aidit's proposal. An army spokesman said that the army will never accept a political commissar.

To allay the military fears, Sukarno said the Nasakom plan is not needed. The military has—at least for the time being—succeeded in preventing Nasakom from being introduced in the armed forces.

Shortly after, however, Sukarno suggested the military consider a proposal to form "a people's armed force" that would include the 21,000,000 volunteers who registered after Sukarno launched his campaign against Malaysia. Sukarno said that this was once proposed to him by Chinese Premier Chou En-lai.

This proposal is in line with the Communist desire to arm the peasants and workers, who are mostly Communist-affiliated. Both Sukarno and the military rejected this when Aidit proposed it in January.

Replying to Sukarno, the army newspaper Berita Yudha said: "What is good or suitable for China is not necessarily good and suitable for our country."

It is not clear why Sukarno revived the proposal after rejecting it.

He allowed the Communist party to build up its strength to a membership of 3,000,000—largest outside the Communist camp—to maintain a balance of the power in the country.

Should the dispute take alarming proportions, Sukarno may intervene. But on which side remains to be seen.

Nazi Leader Wants Permit To Hold Rally

TORONTO (CP) — William John Beattie, self-styled leader of the Canadian Nazi party, has asked for a permit to speak in Allan Gardens—the scene of anti-Nazi riots May 30.

But his application is being delayed until the city's board of control hears a report on a study of the city bylaw governing public speaking in the parks.

The report was ordered after a disturbance involving 4,000 people in the mid-town park.

Beattie had announced he would speak at the park to outline his platform for the next federal election.

Nine persons—including Beattie—were arrested and charged with offences ranging from possession of a dangerous weapon to creating a disturbance as a result of the subsequent anti-Nazi riot.

Mayor Philip Givens said Wednesday he hopes the application can be refused to keep the public peace.

"If there's going to be a riot, and we know there will be—there already has been one—I would vote not to give a permit," he said.

Mayor Replies

Planning Director's Figures Based on 'Assumed Formula'

Mayor Jack Ellis said today that Council is awaiting preparation of an official plan on Belleville's housing needs before taking any action to enforce the occupancy and maintenance by-laws.

The Mayor was commenting on the statement by Planning Director L. P. Beavis that preconstruction of 600 sub-standard houses should begin immediately, and that half the city's 9,500 residential units will have to be replaced within the next 25 years, unless Council takes steps to see that they are properly maintained.

"The occupancy and maintenance laws came into being within the last 24 months and we have not been able to adopt them yet because of the need for an official plan," he stated.

Mr. Beavis' figures, the Mayor said, were "from an assumed formula."

"The city manager, at my request, has conferred with the planning director and I hope by next week we will have an outline of the material needed to prepare an official plan for presentation to Council."

He said he hoped the plan would be ready by fall.

"Council would then be in a position to know to what extent the occupancy and maintenance laws should be enforced."

The Mayor said that Council was also awaiting word from Central Mortgage and Housing before proceeding with construction of 40 low rental housing units.

"If there is a tremendous demand for low - rental housing then fine . . . we will then know the future."

23 Regional Nursing Schools To Be Formed

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government hopes to meet a goal of 5,000 nurses per year by 1971, Health Minister Matthew Dymond said Wednesday.

Dr. Dymond told a briefing session of 225 hospital board chairmen, administrators and directors of nursing' services and of nursing education that the government plans to establish 23 regional nursing schools to deal with the province's chronic nursing shortage.

The government will also undertake to expand existing facilities, he said, as well as increase its per-bed grants for building and expansion of nurses' residences.

A new system of training with the goal of a two-year RN course in all schools by 1975 begins this September. Present plans call for student nurses to receive no pocket money or reimbursement until their interim year when they would be paid $250 a month for the first six months and $300 a month for the last six months.

WILL COST MORE

Dr. Dymond said the new plans would cost $600 to $800 more to train a nurse than under the current system.

Dr. Helen Carpenter, director of the school of nursing of the University of Toronto, announced at the briefing that starting this September the university will offer the first year of its three-year nursing course in the evening, as well as during the day.

The province has nearly doubled the number of bursaries for student nurses, and it is hoped the increased financial assistance will encourage more to become nursing teachers, Dr. Dymond said.

He described the shortage of nursing teachers as "more serious than that of bedside nurses."

Mr. Canden managed to get into his life jacket while it grabbed one of the upset ropes and held on," he said. During their ordeal the men were unable to attract any of the numerous RCAF planes flying overhead. By dusk they floated to the safety of Baker's Island.

Gave Mayor NONG Shares But Knew of No Conspiracy About Franchise in Orillia

BARRIE (CP) — The former assistant to the president of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. testified Wednesday he passed stock certificates representing 100 NONG shares to former Orillia mayor Wilbur Cramp in 1957.

Gordon McLean also testified he never conspired with Mr. Cramp about a NONG franchise for Orillia and technical accounts with Continental Investment Co. of Vancouver, a brokerage house that had been handling NONG shares.

Mr. McLean was testifying under protection of the Canada Evidence Act at the trial of Mr. Cramp's trail. Testimony given under protection of the act cannot be used against a person in subsequent proceedings.

Mr. Cramp has pleaded not guilty to three charges of municipal corruption. The charges are that he accepted NONG shares for a consideration for granting the Orillia franchise for the company in 1958, that he accepted NONG shares to block the rival Consumers' Gas Co. franchise application and that he conspired with NONG president Ralph E. Farris of Vancouver in these dealings.

RECEIVED FROM FARRIS

Mr. McLean said Farris gave him the certificates for another 130 shares that were to be given to Orillia lawyer W. L. Moore.

Mr. McLean said he gave the certificates for all 300 shares to Mr. Moore an dtold him half of them were for Mr. Cramp.

There was a letter with the certificates, and Mr. McLean said he had written it according to instructions from Farris. The letter said the shares represented the technical accounts with Continental Investment Co. of Vancouver, a brokerage house that had been handling NONG shares.

Mr. McLean said he first received 200 shares of NONG stock in 1954 at $4 a share. He said that if he had kept the original 200 shares they would have multiplied by 1957 to $100,000 through stock splits and increases in the authorized capital of the company.

The trial continues.

The opposition parties, which already have agreed to a 36-day limit for debating most government expenditures, have voiced concern that the guillotine rule could be abused by cabinet ministers to shut off discussion on an issue of major national import.

The job of the special nine-man committee, on which the opposition parties have a solid two-to-one majority, is to find some common ground between these two points of view.

Inside the House, Creditiste and NDP spokesmen argued that, while they do not question the integrity of Speaker Lucien Macnaughton, they are concerned that human fallibility might creep in on a decision by him or a future Speaker.

Charles – Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste-Roberval) said Mr. Douglas both maintained that, as long as the Speaker is a member of and dependent on the political party in power, he is open to pressure from it.

SEES DANGER

To abolish the right of appeal, said Mr. Gauthier, would open the way for a dictatorship by the Speaker.

When it came time to vote on Mr. Gregoire's amendment, however, the tally was 50 to 18 to uphold the government plan to abolish appeals. Liberal, Conservative and Social Credit MPs, joined by Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) joined forces to out-vote 12 Creditistes and six New Democrats.

The government argument on the issue has been that appeals against Speaker's rulings should be abolished to strengthen the influence and prestige of the chair.

Mr. Douglas, supported by former Speaker Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West), then suggested the House follow the West German example and set up a committee to study Speaker's rulings as to whether they should stand as precedents.

The NDP leader said this would ensure that, if a bad decision was made during one Parliament, it at least would not bind future ones.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, however, refused to go further than suggesting the proposal could be considered by a proposed committee on procedure. He said that, while the idea had some attraction, he questions whether a group of MPs are more qualified than the Speaker to decide on the wisdom of his rulings.

Earlier in the day, Prime Minister Pearson outlined a lengthy, but relatively non-controversial, list of business the government wants completed before any summer recess.

It includes such measures as the resolutions arising out of Finance Minister Gordon's April 26 budget, two banking bills, extended housing and fisheries loans and a program to help move the unemployed to areas where jobs are available.

Mr. Pearson's statement received a moderate reception from opposition parties, although spoke-men for them were careful to suggest additions to the list of priorities.

The most extensive commentary came from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who grabbed the opportunity to assail government economic policy and demand quick remedial action. If the government is willing to take steps such as removing the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and production equipment, the Conservatives will be more likely to co-operate toward an early recess, said Mr. Diefenbaker.

FIREFIGHTING FANS! — Hockey star, Bobby Hull, is target for autographs after surprise visit to fire fighters' dance and banquet at Club Canara.

Art Duncan, Bobby Hull Delight Banquet, Dance Guests of Fire Fighters

With a bouncy band, a bubbling humorist—and Bobby Hull making a surprise guest appearance for good measure—Ontario fire fighters here last night topped off their 43rd annual convention.

Scene of the happening was the Club Canara where close to 400 guests and delegates to the Provincial Federation of Ontario Professional Fire Fighters sat down to banquet.

And they all laughed when they sat down later to listen to Arthur Duncan, Bata Shoe Co. public relations officer—and one of the drollest wits on the banquet circuit.

With his brand of blended humor and philosophy, Mr. Duncan turned his address into a personal highlight of the entire three-day convention.

The event was topped off with dancing—and an unexpected and burly surprise.

Midway through the evening president of Belleville Fire Fighters' local Bob Fair called a halt to the proceedings—then called Chicago hockey star Bobby Hull to the floor.

The famed forward spoke briefly—then put his wrists to work flicking off autographs as the visting fire fighters swarmed around him.

The dance was the last social event of the convention.

Today, two more business sessions scheduled for the convention assembly at the Hotel Quinte. Then the delegates return home.

lives of every resident and will lead to an emergency situation.

"Because of the fundamental importance of electric power to the city, the government of Ontario cannot allow this situation to arise."

Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said his party would support the bill only if it becomes obvious that a strike would imperil the city.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said the government had introduced the bill even though it had condemned compulsory arbitration.

"There's something wrong if the public interest has to be guarded by doing something you yourselves condemn," he said.

Opposition amendments and criticism continued in slow clause-by – clause consideration of the government's medical insurance bill.

For several hours, the legislature pored over the bill, rejecting all opposition amendments.

Dr. Dymond said poor risks, including chronically ill and aged persons, would be forced to pay higher premiums if they are to be covered by the bill.

Mr. Thompson said he was shocked. He had assumed, he said, that premium rates would be evened out so everyone paid the same rate.

"It is a horrible, revolting term. Because you are a bad risk, therefore you must pay more."

The government also announced Wednesday it had called tenders for 48 railway coaches and 10 diesel-electric locomotives to be used on the Burlington-Dunharton commuter line to be opened late next year or early in 1967.

CONVENTION LABEL is pinned on Fire Fighters' international secretary-treasurer Albert Albertoni, Washington, D.C., by Mrs. Robert Fair watched by banquet guest speaker Arthur Duncan.

Mandatory 42-hour Week Across Province Sought by Fire Fighters in Convention

Ontario fire fighters will seek a mandatory 42-hour work week across the province.

They also will seek to make it imperative on every municipality to provide fire protection for its residents.

The moves were among a series of resolutions approved in closed convention sessions yesterday of the Provincial Federation of Ontario Professional Fire Fighters.

The three-day convention ends today with the election of federation officers for the coming year.

The slate of resolutions approved yesterday behind closed doors chiefly concerned working conditions and benefits for federation members.

The call for a shorter work week seeks amendment to current provincial legislation which sets the mandatory maximum at 48 hours. However, some municipalities already have a shorter work schedule. Belleville adheres to the maximum.

A federation spokesmand said discussion on the resolution included a proposal that the motion call for a 40-hour week. However, this apparently, was overruled.

The decision to seek legislation imposing fire protection services on all municipalities called for standards set by the Canadian Underwriters Association. It would seek to have fire equipment installed by municipalities or fire protection contracts with neighboring, protected communities.

On their own behalf, the fire-fighters also agreed to seek:

(1) Tax deductions for Ontario hospital payments while hospitalized;

(2) Classification of heart and respiratory diseases as occupational diseases;

(3) Permission for municipalities to pay up to 100 per cent of medical and hospital plans – instead of the present 50 per cent;

(4) No loss of seniority or salary in the event of municipal amalgamation;

(5) No firemen as ambulance crews;

(6) Changes in the Ontario Municipal to allow firemen to collect 100 per cent sick leave credits – replacing the current allowable maximum of 50 per cent up to six months.

More resolutions were expected today before the convention winds up its deliberations.

Yesterday's business session also brought brief speeches from visiting firemen. On hand were Ontario Fire Marshal Martin Hurst and Albert E. Albertoni, Washington, D. C., secretary - treasurer International Association of Fire Fighters.

Gemini Space Flight

The United States' latest space achievement, bringing it once again virtually level with the Soviet effort, means that a landing on the moon by astronauts of either country is probably closer than might be thought.

Russia currently has an unmanned rocket on its way to a possible "soft landing" on the moon. If this succeeds where a previous attempt failed the Soviets may again have an edge on the Americans. Judging by previous experience they may easily accomplish something even more spectacular which would widen the gap once again.

A soft landing is essential to the success of any moon descent, and to the safety of the men on board. Previous descents have all resulted in crash landings.

Whatever the ensuing weeks and months reveal in the space programs of the United States and Soviet Union, the race is now definitely on. At one time, it may be recalled, the Russians said they were really in no hurry to reach the moon, Khrushchev said so himself, but he could easily have been blurbing in order to lull his western opposition into slowing up its own efforts.

It is clear, too, that the landing of a manned space vehicle on the moon, though now closer, is probably still some way off. Should it happen in say six months' time it would be something of a miracle, and in a sense an anti-climax.

Certainly the American achievement, surpassing all previous efforts originating at Cape Kennedy, has caught the public imagination at a time when most of us were becoming accustomed to such marvels. "Getting there is half the fun," according to an old saying, and we fancy there is a lot more space travel ahead for both Americans and Russians before man ultimately sets foot on the moon.

Japanese Columbia?

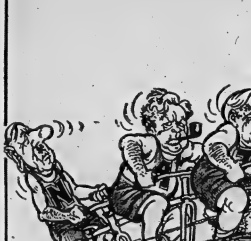
Premier W. A. C. Bennett has announced that Japanese interests will invest hundreds of millions of dollars in British Columbia.

The Canadian Pacific railway will get a new pulp mill, a new fertilizer plant, a new power development and a new railroad, amongst other things.

The general reaction in British Columbia, we feel sure, will be one of jubilation.

The rest of Canada can understand, and should share, in this feeling. But we may, perhaps, be forgiven for distance from the immediate bounty permits us to take a longer range view of the development.

Is it really in Canada's best interests that the Japanese should take such an active part in the development of our resources?



On the one hand we have to consider the complaints already heard that too much of our economy is foreign controlled. The success of British Columbia in attracting Japanese capital will do nothing to lessen this problem. On the other hand, the great majority of foreign-owned enterprises in Canada today is the product of U.S. investment. Having the Japanese enter the picture will at least diversify the control of our economy.

What policies are Japanese industrialists likely to follow if they become well-established? In Japan still the largest employers are paternalistic, undertaking to provide their workers with all of the necessities and with many of the luxuries of modern life—at a price, of course. Is this the type of living we would welcome in Canada? It is certain not a socialist system, but yet it is, in a way, socialistic. Neither the believer in orthodox capitalism nor the orthodox socialist will have much use for it—for diametrically opposed reasons. But is it, perhaps, the trend of the future? Or is it just a modern-day variation of an employer-employee relationship which western societies discarded as the industrial revolution got into full swing?

Japan as well as Israel, Canada appears to be launched into an era of experimentation, which could easily result in the evolution of patterns of life not merely distinctly different from those we have known in the past, but also at great variance, one with the other. We may see the day when Canada has three cultures, Pacific, Central and Quebecois.

The way to stop financial "joy-riding" is to arrest the chauffeur, not the automobile—Woodrow Wilson.

Kidney Ailment Unrelated To Husband's Sterility

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently my husband had a kidney infection. I have reason to believe this condition may have made him sterile. Is there such a thing as being temporarily sterile? If he is sterile, can the condition be corrected? — Mrs. M. E.

You say you have "reason to believe" that the kidney infection made him sterile, but you don't mention the reason.

Frankly, I doubt that you have reason to believe it. Oh, you may suspect that he is sterile, and attribute it to the kidney infection, but that isn't real "reason to believe."

I don't mean to argue over the meaning of words, but here's the way it looks to me:

First, the kidneys and the reproductive system are separate, and hence there is no reason to think such an infection would cause sterility.

Second, is he sterile? There's nothing to be gained by speculating on infection he had recently. The real question is his condition now. So by all means have tests made to determine whether or not he is sterile.

Third, yes, there can be temporary sterility.

Fourth, yes, many cases of sterility can be corrected, although not all. Correction depends on finding the cause and curing it. So I think you are probably leading yourself astray by assuming your husband's kidney infection instead of going directly to the question of sterility.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had infection which affects the hearing in my right ear. The doctor said my sinuses are bad too. I am dependent on nose drops, but for about a month now I have noticed a good bit of blood when I blow my nose. I seem to recall your mentioning a booklet about sinuses. Am I right? — Mrs. F. R.

My booklet, "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble" is available if you request it. Send 20 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed, envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Nose drops, as the booklet points out, are a temporary expedient to shrink the tissues. They won't cure anything. They will, however, tend to dry the surfaces and quite likely may help in the bleeding.

I feel sure the booklet will be of benefit, but with the presence of that infection and the ear trouble, I urgently suggest that you get further medical treatment immediately. With your hearing affected, this is no time to try to get along with nose drops or other self-treatment. See a specialist at once. Your problem is more than just sinus trouble.

Dear Dr. Molner: Every now and then I have a slight flittering in my upper left eyelid. Could this be something serious? — Mrs. S. H.

Nothing to worry about. This can be a tic or muscle spasm of the eyelid.

Dear Dr. Molner: On rising in the morning my legs are normal size but after walking a short time my ankles and calves increase. They also ache, and I have no idea what is causing this condition. My doctor mentioned that it was the veins, but I have none that show. Can you advise me? — Mrs. W. S.

Faulty circulation could do just that. It is possible for weakness in the veins to retard circulation even though the veins do not show. Some veins lie deeper than others, you know.

Or there might be some other cause of faulty circulation — a narrowing of the big artery which carries blood to the legs, for one. I suggest a thorough examination by a specialist (internist). You may thereby nip a serious problem before it goes too far.

The destruction of the Czechoslovakian village of Lidice was announced by German authorities 23 years ago today—in 1942—in reprisal for the assassination of Reichsprotektor Reinhard Heydrich, a senior SS officer, by British - trained guerrillas. All the male villagers and some women were shot and the remainder sent to concentration camps. The village was razed and all references to it in government records were removed. In sympathy, towns in Mexico and the United States took the name Lidice.

1857—The cities of St. Hyacinthe and Trois-Rivieres, Que., were incorporated.

Not All Are Red

The Scotsman, Edinburgh

There is more than one nation in South America which could benefit from a liberal revolution. It would be a pity if the presence of United States citizens in these countries — and of a few communists among the revolutionaries — caused the United States to interfere in such cases. What matters most of all is the wish of the Dominican people. The best way to find this out is by free elections; but meantime a provisional government is needed. It may be a mistake for the United States to antagonize the rebels; they are not all communists — yet.

Parkinson's Bi-bi Land

London Free Press

Regardless of how Canadians generally view the progress of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, Professor C. Northcote Parkinson would be delighted. What started out in modest fashion has divided and sub-divided, amoeba-like, until by the end of this year it will have cost us more than $4,000,000.

Nothing could have been more predictable than this proliferation of the Dunton-Laurendeau team. Of course, no one expected them to probe B. and B. by themselves. But who — save Parkinson — could have foreseen the following:

Cost since inception, in July, 1963, $1,653,316. Estimates for fiscal 1965-66, $2,485,000. Salaries for ten commissioners, plus living expenses, 234,332. Full-time staff, 123, including 63 research workers and 36 administrative and secretarial employees, plus 65 occasional and 18 part-time assistants.

This makes a pretty good-sized government department of its own. And some of its members — at $100 per diem, $30 daily living allowance, plus travel expenses — are wining their own Wat on Poverty long before Prime Minister Pearson's gets under way.

Co-chairman Andre Laurendeau has been paid $39,650. Commissioner Jean Louis Gagnon, $39,370; Co-chairman Davidson Dunton is a poor third at only $24,216. Other commissioners have earned amounts ranging from $14,000 to $20,000.

What do we have for all this? An interim report filling us how work has been. Further hearings and infinitum, each tending to extract out the view-points of the others.

This Help Unnecessary

The Printed Word

Government aids, like the boogey of unkind legend, apparently are always desirous of doing things they don't need to do. The Hanna, Alta., Herald has learned, that the Canadian Department of Agriculture has turned out a booklet on how to feed, breed and look after rabbits.

The Hanna editor remembers that in his childhood all one had to do with rabbits was to turn them loose. He thinks that rabbits haven't changed much in the intervening years.

Press Corps' Kiss and Tell Tactics Don't Frighten Heliyer

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Defence Minister Paul Hellyer flew home from Paris the other day with a supercargo of jumbling Parliamentary newspaper, radio and television correspondents.

Oddly, he came home without the Croix de Guerre. And so far no wounds.

For boldly and unfraid he flew to France well knowing that for some time now there has been a certain element of personal risk for politicians in taking the press-radio-TV corps along for the ride to Gay Paree.

There hasn't been a couple — shucks, let's be honest, a half dozen — incidents on such excursions, amusing to everybody, perhaps, except the mutually embarrassed principals, politicals and politicians alike.

But then, the Minister of National Defence is supposed to be a brave man, anyway, Hellyer — so perhaps it was not really heroism all that far above and beyond the call of public relations duty to haul along the touring rubbernecks.

Maybe it is just that Paul Hellyer does not mind living dangerously — as the boss of the surviving the integration of the Armed Forces and the furling of their cherished Red-Ensigned service flags.

PALS IN PICALLE

Some of the tales of the travelling publicists don't tie — telling — not in the public prints at least — but there is one that served as a first-class example.

After that particular one there was rather less fraternization of the politicians to conveniently find spare seats on their VIP planes for their current publicity favorites.

That was the time, not so long ago, when Hellyer was host — including the return air hop, one-to-some — to a champagne at the Canadian Embassy and other pleasure palaces — and then embarrassed them with their families, friends and constituents, told about gay nights in Picalle and grey days sleeping it off, as he so delicately phrased it, instead of attending to the supposed business of the trip.

After all, they had gone over to Paris to confer on NATO defences around the Alliance's council tables, and not to cut up jackpots in Pigalle.

Of course, it was all a bit on the ludicrous side, especially coming from a Prime Minister — not a breed particularly famous for taking such a high and mighty view of the joie de vivre.'

It got to be a sort of Parliamentary canard around Hellyer, with the words "booze" and "womanchasing" and such less-than-proper things being bandied, even in the usually well-mannered wire copy of the ever-meticulous Canadian Press.

There were even snide references to it in the Commons and the thing just might have broken down if Health Minister, Miss Judy LaMarsh hadn't happened to be one of the NATO Parliamentary Association delegates. Patiently, like a nursemaid, she listened to whispered tales, read .gossip and heard chuckling asides in the fiance about Woozy-Days-in-the-Sack.

And then, deciding that enough was enough, she delivered herself of a snapper that still pops and crackles in the records of Parliament:

"I hope," she sniffed, with a smile and a grin, "that nobody's accusing me of hanky-panky."

And that got into print, with the whole story of the Thousand-and-One - Parliamentary Rajah's — in fact — making another rollicking round.

It was then Cabinet Ministers sent memos to their Executive Assistants to remind them, when booking a VIP flip aboard, never to lump tattle-tale fare by hauling along kiss-and-tell free-rider in the name of Parliamentary public relations.

Somebody just forgot to remind Paul Hellyer.

Stating that extra curricular studies form a large part of present day school programs, Mr. W. S. Turner, Collegiate principal told the Belleville Collegiate Home and School Association that in his opinion only one should be taken up if the student intended to give both this and all his studies his full co-operation.

Guest speaker at the regular meeting of the association, Mr. Turner pointed out that absenteeism was responsible for a large number of low grades in school and the main reason for this was carelessness on the parts of both students and parents.

"Homework was another problem that confronts students and teachers," he said. He expressed his pleasure at the addition made by the newly formed Home and School Association and urged that all efforts be made to assure its continued success.

Political Byplay

Mr. Pearson taunts the Opposition with being afraid to defeat his Government in the House, but if it were defeated, he would fight the election on the grounds that the Opposition was to blame for bringing on a vote no one wanted.

Strictly Personal

Love May Perish From 'Indigestion'

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Of compliments or excuses, perhaps no more than 10 percent get ahead by their own merit and infancy; the other 90 per cent get ahead merely by the ineptitude of others.

An avant-garde thinker is one who begins to reject his own ideas as soon as any consider able number of the public shows signs of accepting them.

"Only" is the word that rules the world — the universal will o-the-wisp that makes each of us say to himself, "I could be content if only . . ." and off we go again, in quest of another "only."

There are two kinds of lies: those that are the opposite of truths and those that are the opposite of what we want to believe, and it takes an uncommonly sane man to be able to distinguish between the two.

Young lovers who are loath to spend even a day apart, would do well to reflect on Nilon de Lenclos' sage comment of three centuries ago: "Love never dies of starvation, but often of indigestion."

America is the only country in the world where two men get to be on a first - name basis before either is quite sure how the other spells his last name.

When a novelist tries to deal with abstract ideas and philosophical notions in his book, he usually reveals himself as a pitiful thinker; for it is the very unconscious symbolic power that gives his novel its strength that, at the same time, makes it hard for him to deal directly with abstract ideas.

In primitive societies, there flourish where the women grow old fast; in industrialized societies, the women stay young forever while the men die off on an alarming rate; there must be some possible combination that would achieve parity between the sexes.

The clever man laughs at fools; the wise man helps them the shrewd man uses them; and this is why clever men and wise men don't conquer nearly so much as shrewd men.

What most nations call "foreign policy" is not policy at all, in any rational sense of the word, but simply a construct for gratifying inner desires — like the little boy I once heard in a schoolyard, who said, "I hit him first in self-defense."

There is no limit to the interpretations people can make out of Bible stories: if one asked a booster-type person the moral in the tale of Jonah and the whale he would probably reply, "It proves that you can't keep a good man down."

Prison Camp Plan Opposed

Edmonton Journal

Mr. John R. Matheson, Liberal MP for Leeds, claims to have discovered a way of simultaneously punishing convicts and developing the North. Ivan the Terrible would have loved it.

Mr. Matheson wants "selected" prisoners sent into the North to work on "natural resource" projects on public works or an economic or scientific character, and in the "national interest."

How work camps in the midst of the North's mosquitoes, mosquitoes, blackflies and loneliness would rehabilitate offenders, is difficult to imagine. Granted, it would cut down the rehabilitation problem. But that does not appear to be what he has in mind. For one service, left today for Baffin by Australians it would touch off. All these years we have been thinking there was a role criminals played in their development. And now . . .

Perhaps, the project would be of economic value. Just consider, for example, the possible benefits of a four-lane highway running from Tuktoyaktuk to Resolute Bay, with branch roads and stopovers at Eskimo Point and Snowdrift, N.W.T.

How would Mr. Matheson "select" the lucky "volunteers" for the projects? There is an old aversion to that nasty business of forced labor.

But Mr. Matheson seems to think there are a lot of tasks in the North that need doing, and that volunteers could do them. Like mining salt, for instance?

Cheese Exchange

Compensating for elimination of the two-and-a-half cents per pound stabilization subsidy, announced recently by the Federal government, the price of cheese on the Belleville Cheese Exchange was increased this week.

The board price went up one-half cent last week with two cents being added this week, bringing the average price to 40.5 cents per lb.

Offered on the board were 7,241 large cheese, 7,179 square cheese, and 1,740 3-specials. Colored cheese brought a .2 cent premium.

Failure of the cheese exchange price to increas last week to compensate for the loss of the stabilization subsidy drew comment this week from Warden Fred Beckett at county council. He said the price last week had been deliberately kept down by the exchange.

Worth Mart Discount Store Crowded When Doors Open

The new Worth Mart Discount Store opened in Belleville today at 244 Front Street, and 500 customers crowded through the doors in the first 10 minutes of operation.

And the crowds didn't let up — they kept coming in droves, taking advantage of countless bargains in the spacious new store.

Manager Bill Shields said, "Every item in the store is discounted." It is our policy to serve the people of Belleville with quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices."

The old Woolworth Store was closed May 1, and construction began immediately for the reconstruction of the Worth Mart Store.

The new store is completely self-service — though there is always staff on hand to help the customer with her needs — and there are more toy goods and textiles than were in the old store.

The new improved lunch counter features 32 stools for the customers' convenience and the air-conditioned interior of the store allows the customer to shop in comfort regardless of the weather outside.

There are four check-out counters in the store to ensure speedy service.

The eye-pleasing decor of the interior features soft colors along the walls, such as green, orange, blue and yellow.

Carpeting is also available for the customer in such varied choices as hardware, children's clothing, jewellery, textiles and so on.

One elderly lady took full advantage of the bargains being offered. Seen with a cart full of light bulbs, she was asked what she intended to do with so many.

Her reply:

"They were just so cheap I couldn't resist them."

Councillors Believe Computer Slights Shannonville Gravel

Senior government direction of policy in connection with county roads and township school systems came under fire at Hastings county council today.

Specifically several members of council questioned the accuracy of a highways department computer which placed the "Shannonville Gravel" well down the priority list for county roads in need of direct assistance from the province.

And another councillor objected to what he termed force by the Department of Education in encouraging larger public school areas.

The discussion regarding direct provincial assistance for county roads arose out of the roads and bridges report which designated short sections of county roads as critically deficient and apparently more in need of rebuilding than the Shannonville gravel, which in the mind of Tyendinaga reeve Charles Long had prior rights.

HAD DELAYED DEMANDS

Mr. Long complained that his area of the county had held off in demands for improvements on the "Shannonville Gravel" until certain other county roads had been rebuilt under the roads development system.

But, as the result of a roads needs study completed last year, data fed through a computer in Toronto has come up with the answer that other county roads are more deficient than the Shannonville gravel.

Mr. Long and his deputy reeve, Delbert Harvey, said they felt "let down" by the report.

But members of the county roads and bridges committee, headed by its chairman Sidney Reeve Ernest Kells urged that the long term view be taken on the matter.

It was agreed that some parts of the county may be hurt because of the highways department policy regarding roads priority, but several members pointed out that in the long terms picture its miles of county road would get direct aid.

LARGER SCHOOL AREAS

The discussion regarding larger school areas came out of a report by Madoc village reeve Thomas Burnside as chairman of the county public schools consultive committee.

He urged county councillors to approve of a by-law which would call for the townships of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor and part of Montezgle to be formed into one larger school area.

The thinking would be to retain one present Bangor school and then take other pupils by bus to an enlarged school at Maynooth, which would house up to 340 pupils.

Mr. Burnside said the thinking of the Department of Education was toward larger public school areas, in some instances possibly as large as present high school areas.

He said, however, along with committee members William Marsh and Don Rodgers, that there was no thought of force being used to bring about the larger areas.

In North Hastings case the merger was their own idea, he said.

CARLOW REEVE OPPOSED

But Carlow reeve Gerald Caldwell didn't go along with the greatly enlarged school area idea, stating that there was a limit to the distance which public school children could be transported.

Neither did he accept the assurance the department would not use force to bring about the kind of larger areas.

He said it was a case if a municipality didn't go along, school grants would be cut.

"I don't know if you can call that force, but I don't know any other word for it," he said.

But Stirling reeve Rodgers said all the department was trying to do was eliminate township boundary lines.

He said that equal educational opportunities for all pupils was the important thing. And this would be demanded by parents.

County council agreed in principle to the idea of a four-county regional jail being constructed in the Napanee area.

STIRLING REEVE OBJECTS

But there was one objector who stated that a regional jail would mean a lot of implications.

He said that a regional jail would mean larger local police forces and would necessitate construction of overnight lockups.

Reeve Donald Rogers of Stirling could see police costs in his village jumping from the present $5,700 per year to as much as $15,000, if a central jail was built.

The report of the central jail committee given by Bancroft Reeve M. J. McAlpine, who noted that the department of reform institutions would have no objection to prisoner transportation costs being a charge against the jail and not against the local municipality involved.

Costs of such a regional jail would be met on a per-day-use basis, but it was felt it would be fairer to the municipalities concerned if this basis of cost was continuously updated.

The roads committe report indicated that work had now commenced on reconstruction of the first section of county road No. 4 south of Frankford.

The general contractor is Tripp Construction of Port Perry, who won the job with a tender of $11,963.50.

Cost of the road re - building is paid by the provincial roads department as part of its direct aid program, with the county buying the necessary right of way and doing the fencing.

Canada's Oldest Beatnik Again On the Move

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP)—Canada's oldest beatnik is on the move again.

This time 74-year-old Percy Leggett, who claims he has resigned from the human race, may trudge the whole 2,700 miles to Vancouver.

He says it's healthful as he shoves a pushcart full of eating utensils and food. An air mattress serves as bedroll, preferring to sleep on the roadside grass.

His immediate destination is North Bay, about 160 miles north of here. He left Hamilton, 130 miles southwest, on May 29 because, he said in an interview Tuesday, "I don't like to live in a room when the warm weather comes."

Percy last bobbed up in the news in May, 1964, when he became involved in a spat with the Hamilton Mid town Senior Centre, a senior citizens club, over his wearing of shorts.

In a protest over street maintenance he persisted in shovelling snow in his shorts.

The senior citizens were enraged when Percy refused to doff his shorts in favor of conventional long trousers.

"I will not dress for the sake of conforming," he said at the time.

The ensuing squabble and picture of Percy in his shorts hit newspapers across Canada.

He was still not conforming Tuesday as he went through here in shorts, while beard and long hair. He shopped around for a piece of cheese (he's a vegetarian who refuses to cook his meals) and had a cold shower at the YMCA before leaving.

In heading northward the one-time Montreal businessman in a sense is moving back toward old haunts.

In 1959, when he was known as the hermit of Savard Township, 30 miles south of Kirkland Lake, he was found in January suffering from malnutrition.

He had lived for three years in a make-shift canvas shelter, eating only potatoes and oatmeal. He was taken to hospital after he walked five miles into town and collapsed. Percy spent the rest of the winter in a warm jail.

He said Tuesday he wasn't sure whether he'd head for the coast from North Bay.

"I am waiting for my (old age) pension cheque to arrive and then perhaps I'll move from there."

But he's not going to change his way of life.

He said in Hamilton years ago: "When I got my pension I resigned from the human race. I began to live the way I wanted to."

EXPECT RENEWAL

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations Security Council probably will renew the mandate of the UN Cyprus force for another three months after it expires June 26, diplomatic sources said Wednesday. The council is to consider the question next Tuesday.

No 'Hot Line' Call Made Says Spokesman

LONDON (Reuters)—A government spokesman today denied that Prime Minister Wilson made a "hot line" telephone call to President Johnson over latest developments in the Viet Nam crisis.

The mass circulation newspaper Daily Mirror claimed that such a call from Wilson had led to "an American turnabout on Viet Nam."

The Mirror said that after a telephone call from the prime minister the White House in Washington denied that U.S. troops in Viet Nam were switching from the defensive to the attack.

Earlier in the week it was announced by the state department that they would be made available for combat support of South Vietnamese forces if this was requested by the Saigon government.

British officials said the government fully understood U.S. policy in South Viet Nam and that the state department announcement had not come as a shock.

Referring to the state department and White House statements, Richard Scott, Washington correspondent of The Guardian, said "never has the Johnson administration appeared to be more fumbling in its foreign policies than today."

CANCER NOT SO FAST

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. C. P. Leblond of McGill University has thrown doubt on the theory that cancer cells increase faster than healthy body cells. His biological research for the Canadian Cancer Society found normal cells in the intestinal lining grow faster than most types of cancer.

Higher Premiums for Aged, Those in Very Poor Health Under Ont. Medicare Bill

TORONTO (CP) — The aged and those in chronic poor health will have to pay higher premiums under the new Ontario medical care plan, Health Minister Dymond told the legislature Wednesday.

Answering a question by James Renwick (NDP—Toronto Riverdale), Dr. Dymond said that normally healthy persons might have to pay less than the maximum premium established by the legislation but age and health factors would require some to pay the maximum premium.

The bill does not give the maximum—to be set by an advisory council established by the bill.

Opposition Leader Andrew Thompson said the so - called "bad risks" often were. those who could least afford to pay more. It is revealing that insurance companies are making a profit from ill health, he said.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald suggested the difference in the premium might be from $20 to $30 more for the aged and those in poor health.

Dr. Dymond said the rate for persons expected to buy government-subsidized-coverage would be about $180 a year.

Ross Whicher (L—Bruce) said the government should not look at costs incurred by Physicians' Services Inc. when estimating how much the medical care plan will cost the province.

"There are thousands of doctors in Ontario who are fleecing PSI," Mr. Whicher said, by always charging patients the maximum amount allowed by PSI for certain services.

He said rural co-operatives run their medical plans cheaper and suggested Dr. Dymond go to them for representation on his advisory committee.

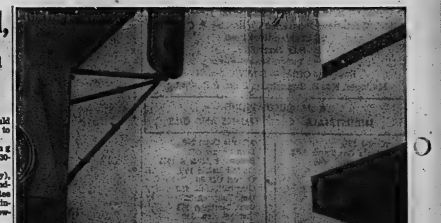
Mr. MacDonald said the advisory committee might set the maximum rate to be charged by private companies at as much as $250. The rate charged by the companies for people with normal health might be from $150 to $180, depending on benefits desired, with the result that old and sick persons would pay about $200 or from $30 to $50 more.

The legislature is giving clause-by-clause study of the 30-section bill.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury), who has moved several amendments to the bill in committee of the whole house, said the insurance companies are all-powerful in Ontario.

"We've seen the power of the insurance companies in the defeat of the leader of the Liberal party in the last election," he said, in a reference to the personal defeat of former opposition leader John Wintermeyer in his Waterloo North riding.

"They're so powerful that I could be destroyed," Mr. Sopha added.



Seven Bodies Found Under Bridge

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) United Nations officials here are investigating the reported execution last Saturday of at least seven men found slain under a bridge 15 miles from Santo Domingo.

An eyewitness said some of the bodies were partly burned and one was fingerless.

The bodies — five or six of them lying on the ground under the bridge and others in two shallow graves nearby — were investigated by UN officials after the office of Papal Nuncio Emmanuele Clarizio protested the killing and alleged atrocities.

The UN special representative, Dr. Jose Antonio Mayobre, reported the incident to UN Secretary - General U Thant, after sending Prof. Manuel Bianchi of Chile, president of the Inter - American Commission on Human Rights, and UN political officer Cesar Ortiz to view the site.

Tulips Refresh Memories Of Juliana's Canadian Stay

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—It's 25 years since Princess Juliana of The Netherlands arrived in Canada as a wartime refugee, but the memory of her stay here is fresh again each spring when the tulips bloom.

Juliana, now queen, lived in Ottawa from 1940 to 1945. When she returned to The Netherlands, she promised to send 20,000 flower bulbs to Ottawa as a token of her gratitude for the warm reception and hospitality accorded her by the people of Canada.

The first shipment of bulbs arrived in 1946 and they have been arriving every year since. They provided the impetus for the annual Canadian Tulip Festival, now one of the city's biggest tourist attractions.

The gay colors of the tulips today are a marked contrast to the austere beginning of Juliana's stay in Canada.

Only a handful of persons were at the Halifax docks at noon on that sunny June 11 in 1940 when the Dutch cruiser Sumatra arrived with the 31-year-old heiress - apparent to the throne.

She and her two daughters, Beatrix, then 2½, and Irene, nine months, had narrowly escaped from Holland a month earlier as the German panzers overran the Lowlands.

Huddled in the back of an armored truck, they had fled The Hague for Ijmuiden, outport of Amsterdam, where they boarded a British destroyer which took them to England.

SHIP UNDER ATTACK

The destroyer was sighted by German airplanes and several attempts were made to bomb the ship. A magnetic mine was dropped in its path but failed to explode.

A grim reminder of the hasty retreat was the two gas-proof bassinettes which travelled with the two little princesses.

After a short stay in London, Juliana decided to come to Canada with her children at the invitation of her aunt, Princess Alice, wife of Canada's governor-general, the Earl of Athlone.

The late Queen Wilhelmina, Juliana's mother, stayed in England where the Dutch government-in-exile had its seat. Juliana's husband, Prince Bernhard, also spent the greater part of the Second World War in Britain.

Word of Juliana's voyage across the U-boat-infested Atlantic was carefully concealed and when the Sumatra docked there was no royal salute or ceremonial.

Two days later, the princess and her children went to the secluded Seigniory Club at Montebello, Que., about halfway between Montreal and Ottawa, for a short rest before going to the capital June 24.

It was at Montebello that Juliana made her first public speech in Canada.

In a radio broadcast she told Canadians she did not want their pity. "Pity is for the weak and our terrible fate has made us stronger than ever before."

Instead, she asked for the "strengthening love" of the people of Canada and the United States.

Speaking of her two little girls she said warmly:

"You will see them among you. Indeed, you will see them quite often, for we do not like to lock ourselves up—it is just not in our nature. I hope you will be kind to them. Please give them your smile and they will be happy and they will ask for very little more."

True to the traditions of informality which have marked Dutch royalty in recent years, the princess and her children did not lock themselves up, but moved freely among the people of Ottawa during their five-year stay.

She is said still to cherish warm memories of the days when she walked casually through Ottawa streets going to church, doing her shopping, and visiting friends.

Said one newspaper account written soon after Juliana's arrival here:

"Unaccompanied, sometimes hatless and always quite unaffected, Princess Juliana comes to town from her suburban Rockcliffe home, buys what she wants in the stores or has her blonde hair fixed in a beauty shop. More often than not she leaves before other customers have recognized her."

Juliana first took up residence in a quiet home in Rockcliffe Park on Lansdowne Road, after a short stay at Government House with the governor-general and Princess Alice.

SWEPT FLOORS

In 1942 she moved her household to a graceful stone mansion at 541 Acacia Ave. in Rockcliffe. Now called Stornoway, it is the official residence of the leader of the Opposition, at present John Diefenbaker.

Life was simple for the heiress to the Dutch throne in those days, so simple, in fact, that Netherlands embassy officials here recall that Prince Bernhard thought his wife was roughing it a bit too much when he came for a brief visit at the time of the birth of their third daughter, Margriet.

The princess was doing household work, making the beds and sweeping the floors—while her friend and lady-in-waiting, Baroness Roell, did the cooking. Bernhard soon stopped that, hiring a Dutch cook for the household.

When the little princess was born on Jan. 19, 1943, a special suite in the Ottawa Civic Hospital was proclaimed part of Netherlands territory for the occasion, so that she could be born "on Dutch soil." She is believed the only royal child born in North America.

Prince Bernhard arrived from London in time for the birth of his new daughter, and later the same year, on June 29, Queen Wilhelmina came to see her new grandchild christened at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Three years after returning to her liberated country, Juliana became queen of The Netherlands on the abdication of her mother in 1948.

She has returned to Canada once, in April, 1952, when she revisited many of her favorite spots in Ottawa. Crown Princess Beatrix has been in Ottawa at least four times since the war, mostly for private visits with friends.

WARM MEMORIES OF CANADA — Queen Juliana of The Netherlands is said to still cherish warm memories of the five years she spent in Ottawa from 1940 to 1945 when she was a princess. The Queen, shown, in this recent photograph, still sends an annual package of tulip bulbs to Ottawa for the Canadian Tulip Festival. The festival began in 1946 when she first sent 20,000 bulbs to the capital as a token of her gratitude for the warm hospitality accorded her by the people of Canada during her wartime stay. Also attending were Baroness Roel, lady-in-waiting for the then Princess (wearing wide-brimmed white straw hat) and Queen Wilhelmina (in front of Baroness) who came from England for the christening. Sure Fish Bait

WESTWOOD, Ont. (CP) John Thompson, who celebrates his 104th birthday today, says the best way to catch fish with a worm is to spit tobacco juice on the worm.

"The juice makes the worm wiggle," said the former scrap dealer, who did not retire from full-time work until the age of 89 and fished regularly until last year.

Mr. Thompson was a sniper with the 49th Battalion from Belleville during the Riel rebellion and witnessed the surrender of 10,000 Indians without a battle at Fishreck, Sask.

Believes Women Could Cut Highway Accidents

By LINDA CRAWFORD

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP)—Women have a vital role to play in the prevention of traffic accidents, Mrs. Claire Casgrain, Quebec Transport minister, said Wednesday night.

"The same woman who ensures safety at home through her foresight, her initiative and her humane feelings, is also capable of promoting safety in our streets and highways," said the province's first woman cabinet minister.

Mrs. Casgrain was addressing delegates to the annual meeting of the Consumers Association of Canada, in session at Macdonald College in this Montreal Island town. The 100 housewives and professional men and women end their three-day discussions on consumer rights, problems and education today.

"The automobile forms part of our daily environment just like our living room, our kitchen or our bathroom, but any sudden changes in humor may have far more serious consequences there than in any other milieu," the minister said. "Some women do not realize that the highway is a place where more unexpected things may happen than at home."

The auto trip thus involves more urgent obligations than the daily obligations of a housewife, she said. Mothers then should avoid any tension or irritation while travelling and wait until they are safely home before bringing up family problems. The mother must also realize that a husband might be "put out of patience by the shouts and restlessness of the youngsters."

Earlier in the day the meeting heard of current developments of consumer interest from Dr. Ross Chapman of the food and drug directorate.

One of the problems now of greatest concern to the directorate, he said, is the control of ASA (acetylsalicylic acid) tablets, which in Canada yearly take the lives of from 10 to 12 children through accidental poisoning.

The directorate, he said, is beginning to require complete lists of ingredients even for its standardized foods in an attempt to furnish the consumer with sufficient information to make value judgments.

He said new regulations requiring 30-per-cent meat content in canned stews, 45 per cent lean meat in sausages, and limiting additives to cured ham to five per cent have been forwarded to the Meat Packers' Council.

Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre of Ottawa was returned as national CAC president. Vice-president is Dr. C. A. Morrell of Ottawa, former director of the food and drug directorate.

Esther Hughes Ballet School Gives Recital

BY EUGENE LANG

The third annual recital of pupils of the Esther Hughes School of Ballet was held in the Belleville Recreation Centre on Tuesday evening before a well-attended audience- made up mostly of proud parents- of the budding ballerinas.

Twenty-three young dancers participated, ranging in age from approximately kindergarten starter to high school Grade 13 teenager. During the two hours of the performance ample opportunity was given each student to exhibit the various degrees of proficiency that they have attained in posturing, pointing and precision. The art of the Ballet is a long arduous life's work to attain the role of perfected stature, and here it was demonstrated in the various steps and positionings that are necessary to the elementary learner as through continued application and practice more intricate work is gradually added. Setting aside that old spring called Nervousness that attacks all and sundry (especially now, because Mom and Dad were out front) and the closeness of quarters for performing, all the pupils demonstrated their very best under the able guidance of Esther Hughes as mentor and tutor. The informative commentaries throughout the ritual were spoken by Mrs. Hughes.

At the conclusion of the recital Mrs. Peter Belton, representing the Belleville Branch of the National Ballet Guild presented the certificates to the following girls:

Grade One—Lisa Bailey, Margaret Vanderwater, Laurie McQueen, Sally Horn (commended) and Leslie Sharp (with credit.)

Grade Two—Stephanie Howie, Angelika Bock and Sally Horn.

Grade Three—Susan Brickwood.

Others taking part in the recital were: Mary Wonnacott, Gail Ann Ellis, Susan Joss, Nancy Joss, Jane Letersky, Suzanne Couture, Mary Elizabeth Andrews, Linda Noakes, Marilyn May, Barbara Harvie, Dawn Hunt, Leslie Morton, Loretta Fleming and Barbara Jones.

The first girls in Grade Four deserve credit for the professional style of point work shown and also for their demonstration of Class Work. This group included the Misses Brickwood, Noakes, Andrews, May and Jones.

It is to Mrs. Hughes' credit as a coach and teacher that this spring four of her pupils have reached such attainment that they have been selected by the National Ballet School for enrolment this coming fall. The four girls chosen for this coveted school were the Misses Brick, Horn, Brickwood and Jones. To be eligible for the National School one must have the adequate physical qualities, above average intelligence and be the potential possessor of that infinite spark that when ignited at the propitious moment in the training career blossoms into a full fledged ballerina. Two of the girls have accepted, one is doubtful because of her tender age and the fourth girl, Barbara Jones, will take over Mrs. Hughes' School in the fall with enrolment taking place in the Recreation Centre. Mrs. Hughes will continue on in an advisory capacity. The piano accompanist for the evening was Mrs. Ina Miller.

Norwegian Housewives Buy Abroad

Thousands of them make the 24-hour round-trip to neighboring Denmark to shop up the vastly cheaper Danish foodstuffs.

That solution is available only to those Norwegians within easy reach of the southern ports, however.

Most of the 3,500,000 population must struggle for economic survival in a price-wage inflationary climb.

The price index, on which wage adjustments are decided, soared from 100 in 1959 to 120.8 today. There has recently been another round of wage increases with some salaried workers getting raises of 10 per cent.

Automatic and semi-automatic increases in wage rates accorded in general wage agreements will just help boost inflation in months to come, economists claim.

The Socialist government is facing growing demands from the opposition parties for action to stop inflation.

Meanwhile the people aboard fishing boats, behind machines and tools, counters and typewriters, are worrying.

"I must catch more fish today than five years ago to pay for the same amount of goods and fixed 'expenses,'" one fisherman complained.

The foodstuffs index (100 in 1959) rose to 121 last December. The meat index rose to 126 and the fish index soared to 136. Fish is one of the most important factors in every Norwegian's diet.

Two Belleville Nurses Off to World Parley

These days you never know where your next trans-Atlantic trip is coming from — or your first for that matter.

And when it's your first overseas flight, expenses paid, the excitement is that much greater.

For both girls it is their first time rubbing shoulders in the long - distance travel leagues. The experience also has that little something extra which makes getting there all the fun.

Their trip to the two - week world convention — starting July 13 — is courtesy of their 120 fellow students at the Belleville General's School of Nursing.

For the past three years the students have been placing aside funds to underwrite expenses of the trip.

This year, the kitty reached $1,500 and all that was necessary was choosing the lucky girls.

Both 21, the girls have now completed their third year studies and are on the threshold of nursing careers.

Judith intends carrying her studies further at the University of Western Ontario. Karen will take up general nursing at Belleville General.

Yesterday morning, the girls finished packing at their apartment at 127 Bridge Street. They bade farewell to friends and families, and caught the train for Montreal, and a rendezvous with a trans-Atlantic jet at Dorval.

They plan getting in some vacation time travelling through Great Britain, France and Spain.

They will return July 12.

BOW KNOTS AND RAISIN PINWHEELS

A package of yeast attracts me like a magnet. It sort of gives me the stabilities.

Over the past few weeks I have given you here, recipes for Seed Sticks, Fan Tans, Sesame Rolls, Pizza Pie and now I'm about to describe some rolls simply called "Wonderful". These are different because they call for 1 cup mashed potato. From this dough I made Bow Knots and Sweet Raisin Pinwheels and here is how:

risen yeast liquid to the milk mixture and beat in 1 cup of sifted flour along with the mashed potatoes until smooth. Beat in 3 more cups sifted flour as well as you can, then turn dough out on board floured with ¼ cup of the remaining flour and knead 100 times. Return to scraped down and greased bowl, cover and let rise at room temperature until more than doubled. Flour board with remaining ¼ cup flour and punch down dough on it and knead 100 times until dough in ball. Break off pieces of dough size of large walnuts and, to make bow knots, roll dough between palms into strips about 9" long and tie each into a single knot. Place on greased baking sheet. Proceed the same with remainder of one-half of dough, placing bow knots at least 2" apart.

If you want to do what I did roll out remaining half of dough to ¼" or ⅛" thickness. Brush it with about 2 tablespoons melted butter. Mix 1 teaspoon cinnamon into ½ cup light brown sugar and sprinkle this evenly over buttered dough. Cover this with about ⅔ cup nice moist raisins or currants. Roll up like jelly roll, starting at wide edge. With sharp knife cut into pinwheels about ¾" thick. Place 2" apart on buttered cookie sheet. Beat egg, add the 2 teaspoons sugar to it and neatly brush tops of all knots and pinwheels with this glaze. Let bow knots and pinwheels rise at room temperature until light and nearly doubled. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot if possible. But these are truly wonderful cold too.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

RIVER VALLEY WI

RIVER VALLEY—Mrs. Fred McDonell was hostess on Thursday for the June meeting of River Valley Women's Institute, with 25 members, one visitor and six pre-school children in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Glen Bush, opened the meeting and welcomed everyone.

Mrs. Ernest Carr gave her report, which included an executive meeting held on May 20, when plans were made to cater for a 50th wedding anniversary in September.

The correspondence included a message of thanks and particulars of a short course.

A booklet on frozen foods from the local agricultural office was displayed.

Mrs. J. R. Donohoe gave a full report of the expenses of the month and the proceeds from the Heasman sale.

On Sunday, July 4, a community picnic will be held at Bird's Beach, Oak Lake, with dinner at one o'clock. The tables have been reserved and all are welcome. Each family will provide its own food and dishes.

Brief conveners reports were given by Mrs. Roy Irven, Mrs. Jack Bush, Mrs. Roy Tucker and Mrs. Vernon Harry.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, public relations representative, told of the executive meeting of the Trent Valley area when plans were made to hold the convention at Club Canara, Belleville, in November. Souvenir copies of the "Country-woman" magazine will be on sale with profits going to the A.C.W.W. penny fund.

Canadian handicrafts will be forwarded to the eleventh triennial conference to be held in Dublin, Ireland. Items from the new institutes in northern Canada, including moose hair embroidery, slippers and caribou bone and ivory carving were chosen recently at the F.W.I.C. executive meeting in Ottawa.

Mrs. Roy Tucker gave the pennies for friendship report. F.W.I.O. will have one thousand dolars to forward to Ireland this autumn. She read an article from New Zealand's "Home and Country" magazine which stressed the common bond of friendship in this west organization.

Mrs. Allen McDonell brought a message from the farm safety council and displayed a flag and a red triangle for use on tracking and farm machinery when travelling on roads.

The president announced that beginning in August the W.I. will study the provinces starting with British Columbia.

The selections for the short courses were: first "Choosing and using materials," and second, "Embroidery stitches."

Mrs. Ross Bush opened the program with a sing song.

Mrs. Ernest Carr gave a summary of the morning session of the district annual. She read a timely article by Mrs. Omer Chisholm, which stressed that the Women's Institute has world-wide fame, and that the universe needs a woman's hand to help with the general planning of the world. Mrs. Carr stated that branch curators are to remain in office as long as they are willing and capable of carrying out their duties.

Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh, reporting for the afternoon session, gave a description of the home extension services. She said that short courses are not to be confined to Institute members only, but are open to all women of the community.

Mrs. Claude Tucker read a humorous poem.

Mrs. Roy Bush, who attended the seventeenth annual officers' conference at Guelph, gave a summary of the sessions. The theme, taken from Dickens, was "No one is useless in the world who lightens the burden of it to anyone else." Delegates enjoyed a tour of the Adelaide Hoodless Homestead at St. George.

GROUND HOG REPELLENT

Dear Susanna: I remember when one of your readers advised us to sprinkle moth crystals along the front of the flower beds to discourage the doggie trade — and I must admit this does help — but now my neighbor tells me he spaces a single line of moth balls between the rows of carrots he has planted to discourage ground hogs and other such marauders — What next? — J. Beattie

What next you say? Why, haven't you heard of the new Mammoth Moth Mist that big hunters use in India for stunning tigers? — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: If the grease in your frying pan should catch fire or the elements in your oven begin to burn because some food has fallen on them, douse them with a handful of salt. This will put out the flame immediately. — H. T.

Dear Susanna: My young daughter loves me to add a little cologne to the water with which I sprinkle the blouses and dresses before I iron them. It gives them, their drawers and their cupboards, a soft, flower-like smell. — Mrs. L. Grainger.

(If you have any hints for running a successful household —or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

Successful Living

Put Away Ball and Chain And You Will Enjoy Boy

DEAR DORIS — I have been dating this certain boy for the past three months. We broke up because he wanted to go out with guys and food around. He gave me the impression that he still intended to date me but did not want to be compelled to.

DORIS CLARK

Last weekend he spent his entire time with the guys. He said he wasn't allowed out Saturday night but I saw him out. He came over on Sunday and said he was sorry for hurting me but he was going to ask me out at his convenience. Help! — M.J.V.

DEAR M.J.V. — How about putting a ball and chain on him right now? Is that what you'd like?

Let him go, little girl. He'll enjoy you more, and you him, when he comes of his own free will.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My wife is ill with cancer of the spine. Most of the time she is in pain. She is also pining for her sister who is in England.

This sister is her only relative and a prominent, busy doctor, is it fair for me to ask her to come to Canada and stay with us for an indefinite period to be with my dying wife? — TOM.

DEAR TOM — The sister should make this decision. In spite of her demanding work, she may feel she wants to have this time with her sister. She would probably feel badly if she learned later that you had been "protecting" her from the facts of the case.

Write to her the complete truth. Tell her it would mean much to both of you to have her, even for a short time. Then make her free to come or not by saying you will understand and manage without her if she cannot arrange to come.

* * *

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster Universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

What Women Are Doing

Legion Branch 587

Mrs. Claude MacDonald, President

The Col. Phay Wills Branch 587 (Ex-Servicewomen) of the Royal Canadian Legion was formed in the fall of 1960. This is a rather unique organization since all its members at one time or another must have been a member of one of the armed services.

On the anniversary if the group's formation the members attend church at St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

To raise funds the branch has many projects such as rummage sales, dances, bake sales and raffles. The proceeds from these go to provide a bursary for the high school student who is the son or daughter of a veteran. The worthy student is chosen from a different high school, rotating from year to year.

For the last two years during Legion Week, which is being observed this week, donations have been made to the Cancer Society. This year a sum will be given to the Heart Fund. An annual donation is also made to Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion for the use of their hall.

One of the highlights of the year is the annual Silver Cross tea which is held on the Sunday previous to November 11, at which time the mothers of the boys who gave their lives overseas, are honored.

Members of the Branch also take part in the poppy campaign every fall; also the Remembrance parade when they place a wreath at the Cenotaph. The mural located at the front of the Legion Hall was donated to Branch 99 by members of Branch 587.

The Col. Phay Wills Branch always welcomes any lady who has served in the armed forces in either World War and this provides the renewing of comradeship shared in the life she knew then.

BIG WINDS

Club Activities

WHITE CANE CLUB

Members of the White Cane Club and their escorts met at the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday evening for a recreation meeting. President Helen Wardhaugh was in the chair and welcomed everyone.

Arlie Scott read the names of those having birthdays in May and June. Betty Woods was the winner of the birthday draw for May and Franklin Luft the winner for June.

The late B. H. Ross, minister of the First Pentecostal Church, was present and introduced Joe and Bill Hurst, and his son, Burrell. The boys sang several gospel hymns to the accompaniment of the Spanish guitar. Ted Rowe thanked the boys for their very fine selections.

Mrs. Vi White was a delegate to the convention of the Ontario division of the Canadian Council of the Blind, held in London recently. The delegates decided the public should be made aware that not all of Canada's 25,000 blind persons receive pensions.

Mrs. Ena Stokes of Port Arthur, a C.C.B. official, said the public's misconception that all blind persons are given a federal pensions must be rectified. In most cases, she said, it was the fault of the local clubs that it had not been done.

At present, only one-third of those registered receive the $75 monthly blind pension, which is administered after a financial means test.

The C.C.B. and C.N.I.B. have been pressing for a cost of blindness allowance for all registered blind persons in Canada.

Bingo, played on the special Braille Bingo boards was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening.

Members of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary served refreshments and Vi White expressed thanks on behalf of the club.

BANNED COAL

Edward I of England, believing coal poisoned the air, proclaimed its use illegal and at least one man was executed for burning it.

Agree Women Should Serve In Synods

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A discussion group of Anglican church men and women agreed Wednesday night that women should be allowed to participate in diocesan synods and parish vestries or advisory councils in the church.

The panels conducted during the annual meeting of the Dominion board of the women's auxiliary meeting, had as its moderator Rev. E. K. Clarke, director of Christian education for the diocese of Ottawa.

Other members included Mrs. John Robertson, Kitchener, Dominion president.

Rev. E. W. Scott of Toronto said that theologically there was no basis for differentiating and people should not be kept away from parish vestries because of their sex.

"Women should not be kept off vestries just because they are women, especially since some have the skill and ability to do the work."

Mrs. C. M. Wrenshal of Calgary said the privilege of serving on a vestry or diocesan synod placed great responsibility on women. If they wished this privilege, they should not misuse it.

A poll of delegates showed there were 14 diocesan synods which have women members elected. Canon Scott said two more synods are expected to allow women delegates within the next year.

Ann Landers

Reader Labels Roughneck 'Frank' as Chivalrous

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I just read the letter signed "Frank" and I think your advice was the worst yet.

It is a gentleman's place to protect his wife or his girl.

ANN LANDERS

When drunk called Frank's wife a mopey, bow-legged broad he had every right to belt him one in the kisser. Your suggestion that Frank was a roughneck, and that he and his wife should have left the restaurant, was strictly for the birds.

Why don't you ask your husband what he would have done if somebody called you a mopey, bow-legged broad? — MORE THAN FRANK.

* * *

DEAR MORE THAN — I asked him. He said he hasn't hit a guy since he was in the 6th grade and he is in no shape to start taking on drunks in restaurants. Any more questions?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was very much interested in your warning to the girl who wrote about kissing a boy who had a sore on his lip.

The girl was concerned about lip cancer. You told her (and correctly) that lip cancer was not nearly so deadly as another disease which could be contracted from kissing. Then you demonstrated great courage and named the real threat — syphilis.

Small sores on the lips or mouth are often not noticeable. So many teenagers have skin problems that most eruptions are passed off as "adolescent blossoms." I believe you would perform an invaluable service if you printed more information on this subject.

What does a syphilis sore look like? If a girl discovers, after she has kissed a boy, that he has a sore on his lip, would applying alcohol to her own lips protect her against the disease?

If a person thinks he has a venereal disease and is afraid to tell his parents, what should he do. I am a high school senior and must confess shameful ignorance on this subject. My friends don't know any more than I do. Most kids don't want to talk about venereal disease because somebody might get the idea they have done something wrong and are worried.

Please print my letter and give us kids some facts. — CHICKEN.

DEAR CHICKEN — The number of reported cases of VD in this country has tripled in the last 10 years. Almost 60% of the cases are in the 13-to-19-year-old group. If this isn't a serious social problem I don't know what one is.

A syphilis sore resembles a cold sore. It can appear on the lip, in the mouth, or anywhere on the surface of the skin. It often itches and it's different from most sores because it is very slow to heal. And this is the clue. If you have a sore that is stubborn about disappearing it is a danger signal.

Wiping your lips with alcohol is no protection against syphilis, if you have a small crack on your lip. It is likely that the germ has already moved into your blood stream.

Anyone who suspects he has a venereal disease should do either of two things at once:

1. Go to a physician. I know of no doctor who would tell your parents if you asked him not to. The treatment is simple, painless, and relatively inexpensive.

2. Go to the city or county health department and ask for a VD test. In most cities both the test and treatment are free. The doctors will respect your confidence if you ask them to. Public Health officers are not interested in turning kids in or punishing them. They are interested only in treating and curing patients of this deadly disease, which, if not treated can cause blindness, sterility, insanity and death.

Eating Habits Of Canadians Discussed

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Wednesday eating habits of a "significant number" of Canadians are not consistent with good health.

Speaking to 300 nutritionists, home economists, dieticians and physicians at the health department's third national conference on nutrition, Miss LaMarsh said:

"In a country where a generous supply of a great variety of food seems to be available to everyone" one might consider nutrition to be "one of the lesser health problems, except perhaps for the problem of overnutrition, of eating too much.

"But I am advised that in any survey there are always a significant number of individuals whose habitual food consumption patterns are not consistent with good health."

She added that nutrition services within the community should be directed towards well-to-do families as well as low - income groups. Instances of marked dietary inadequacy and malnutrition had been reported as occurring at all economic levels.

Many Nurses Have Poor Eating Habits

OTTAWA (CP)—Directors of many schools of nursing are concerned about the poor food habits of their students, the executive director of the Canadian Nurses Association said Wednesday.

Dr. Helen K. Mussallem told the third annual nutrition conference which is being sponsored at the University of Ottawa by the federal health department:

"I was really shocked, when I was a director of a school of nursing, when the head dietician told me only 35 per cent of the students were going to breakfast. We found out later that only 25 per cent were eating breakfast."

It appeared that an understanding of nutrition did not mean that the individual actually accepted these concepts.

"It seems that those who know the rules of how to live healthy lives do not follow them. Of course it is possible that the rules are not correct."

St. Julien Chapter to Mark 50th Anniversary

The June meeting of the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. took the form of a potluck supper on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Jack Parrott, Dundas St., East. Plans were made for the Chapter's 50th anniversary dinner to be held on September 18th, at Holloway Street United Church.

Mrs. William Slade distributed tickets to be sold on a draw for a doll dressed in 50 dollar bill. Proceeds of the draw are to be used for the Chapter's 50th anniversary expenses.

Mrs. Ralph Ellis, Regent, announced that the Chapter was losing one of its most valued members, Audrey Gibbons who has been services convener for three years. On behalf of the chapter Mrs. Ellis presented Mrs. Gibbons with a gift with best wishes for success and happiness in her new home in Montreal.

Mrs. Ellis expressed the thanks of all the members and their guests to Mrs. Parrott for her hospitality, and announced that the next meeting would be on Wednesday, September 8th.

Dior's Fashions for Fall Flashy, Phoney and Flirty

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Jaunty fedoras, flashing pleats, phoney pony furs, faux lashes, fake curls, flirty fans—that's just some of the fast-paced fashion fun that flashed past the audience Wednesday as the New York house of Christian Dior opened its fall collection.

In record time little manequins whipped in and out of 140 creations designed by Frenchman Gaston Berthelot for rich North American women.

The Dior house, a name husbands fear and women respect, proved that men have nothing to fear this year but the price tags, although there is plenty that wives can covet.

Like his counterpart designer Bare Bohan in Paris, Berthelot borrowed eastern styles, short rajah coat silhouettes in rich brocades and metallic clothes for evening wear, and luscious herring-bone wools and banker's tweeds for daytime life.

BUTTONS LOW

The rajah shapes — are they tunic coats or very long jackets?—button down low to mid-thigh over a flirty skirt full of deep pleats. Poofs and flounces bounce along the hemlines of the party kind of tunics.

Hemlines which go up and down like elevators at best fashion houses were down a little last season, but up again Wednesday, an inch above the knees.

A year ago, before designers Andre Courrege, Pnull Gernreich and Jacques Tiffeau began to pin them thigh high, the knee show might have been daring. But reaction of store buyers in New York for the fall fashion market was a jaded ho-hum.

Peep - like fabrics were sometimes blouses on tweed-like suits, sometimes snood hats, and sometimes crisply tailored jacket-dress costumes. Most dresses were loose-fitting, low-belted, flatly styled, and sleeveless, although the hems and collars of some fluttered with feathers, or lace ruffles, or white mink.

U.C.W. Meetings

REDNERSVILLE U.C.W.

The June meeting of the Rednerville U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Leon Ward with 17 members present.

A few members attended a tea held at Centre Church recently and gave a report from Dr. and Mrs. Swan who have just returned from Trinidad.

Three new members joined the U.C.W. group.

There will be a Bible Vacation School held in the church hall this July.

The meeting closed with lunch.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Ontario Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony, as a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot promise publication of weddings sent in later.

MELTS ICE

There's only one Father's Day a year.

Don't goof it up.

Give him Packards.

Once a year, you get a sort of official all-clear to tell Father that he's something special to you (the rest of the year, you're on your own).

So make Father's Day really count. Give him Packard Slippers. They're in a class by themselves.

You can't buy a pair of Packards for less than seven dollars. But that money buys you a lot of slipper. A lot of luxury. A lot of looks. A lot of years of making Father feel good.

Don't miss your chance. Give him Packard Slippers.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"It's getting so it's not safe for a man to venture ... on the street ... days!"

Inventor Not Recognized; Still Practises Medicine

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—On April 22, 1915, German artillerymen sent the first clouds of chlorine gas wafting across No-Man's Land toward unsuspecting victims in Allied trenches in France. The attack took a heavy toll.

It wasn't long, however, before an ingenious man came up with a defence against poison gas.

Capt. Cluny Macpherson, a 36-year-old Newfoundland doctor, became a hero among troops on the Western Front in the First World War, although his achievement was later almost forgotten.

Capt. Macpherson invented the gas mask, a device that was to save thousands of lives in the summer and fall of 1915.

Now 86 and still practising medicine in St. John's, Dr. Macpherson modestly dismisses suggestions that he did not receive adequate recognition.

He also says it is a fallacy that the Germans caught the Allies completely by surprise with their first gas attacks. The men in the trenches might have been surprised but a team of British scientists had been working on defences against gas warfare for months.

SOLUTION DIFFICULT

The greatest concern was trying to determine in what form chemical warfare might come. What would work against gases that attacked the respiratory system such as chlorine might not work against burning, blistering gases like mustard gas.

Until Dr. Macpherson arrived, efforts were limited to a study of simple contrivances made of chemical - soaked cotton waste used by the German troops who had released the gas. The small mouth masks had been taken from the bodies of German soldiers.

Dr. Macpherson was one of the first Newfoundlanders to receive a commission when war broke out in 1914. But he wasn't allowed to go overseas at first. His commanding officer said his services were needed to help train medical corps for future drafts.

Early in 1915 he persuaded his superiors to let him go overseas. In England, he began pressing the war office to allow him to go to the Western Front.

Eventually he obtained permission to go only to Calais to observe operations of the base hospital there for one week.

DISREGARDED ORDERS

Once on the Continent, Capt. Macpherson disregarded instructions. He headed for British field headquarters near the front and presented himself to General Sir Arthur Sloggett.

Capt. Macpherson produced orders giving him safe conduct to the Continent but concealed the pass restricting him to Calais.

"You've no business up here," said Gen. Sloggett after studying the orders.

Then Capt. Macpherson produced his trump card—a letter from the general's wife for her husband. Capt. Macpherson had seen her in London before leaving and offered to deliver a letter for her.

He was invited to stay on and see the methods of medical care on the front.

The day before his arrival a severe chlorine gas attack had hit the Allied lines.

The Newfoundland doctor visited a laboratory at St. Omer, site of British general headquarters. He found a group of British scientists studying the cotton mouthpieces used by the Germans and joined them in the study.

But the scientists needed more cotton waste to make the mouth pieces. Macpherson volunteered to find some.

CONNED SUPPLY

He remembered seeing a small ship on a French canal nearby and also remembered that ships used cotton waste in their engine rooms. He boarded the ship and took a chance that there would be a Scot in the engine room. He stuck his head in a hatch and shouted in a Scottish burr: "Hey, Mac, throw up an armful of cotton waste, will you."

A huge bundle of waste landed on the deck.

Back at St. Omer, Capt. Macpherson began with British scientists the tedious and painstaking task of developing a defence for gas warfare. Time after time, the tests failed.

On one trip to England, Capt. Macpherson had bought several yards of heavy cloth and some mica, without really knowing why. An idea was forming in his mind.

INVENTION WORKS

He sketched the design of a large helmet to cover the head and fit under the collar. He drew eye holes which would be covered with mica.

The helmet was soaked in the anti-gas solutions used in the face masks that had failed, and a British colonel volunteered to test it. After walking around in a makeshift gas chamber for several minutes, he strode to the chamber door and yanked off the mask. Macpherson quickly pulled him out and sprayed him with anti-gas solution.

"Why didn't you turn on the gas?" the colonel asked indignantly. He was aghast to find he had been walking around in a concentration of chlorine gas 10 times greater than that needed to kill a man.

The colonel had experienced no trouble breathing, had smelled no gas and felt no discomfort. Further tests proved the mask was effective against other gases such as the feared mustard gas.

Word of the discovery soon reached command headquarters nearby. One of the first high-ranking officers to arrive was Gen. Sloggett.

"Where did this come from?" asked the general.

"You gave it to us," said one of the scientists, pointing to Macpherson.

SENT BACK AGAIN

Gen. Sloggett turned, stared at Macpherson and said: "You still here?"

Macpherson, realizing he was supposed to be long since back in England, managed a weak "Yes, sir."

"Well, you're off to London again," snapped the general. "Grab your things."

Far from being sent back in disgrace for disobeying orders, he was accompanied by Gen. Sloggett's personal request for immediate large-scale production of his helmet.

The first crude type of mask was used only a short time before Macpherson and his staff in London devised improved types.

Dr. Macpherson is little remembered for his wartime contribution but is even less known for his humanitarian works at home. He was in charge of the famous Grenfell Mission hospital at Battle Harbor, Labrador, during a smallpox epidemic that scourged Newfoundland from 1901 to 1904 and played an important part in stamping out another smallpox outbreak in 1909.

He has been instrumental in founding several hospitals and is Senior Knight of Justice of the British Commonwealth in the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

LIFE-SAVING INVENTION — Dr. Cluny Macpherson, 86, still practising medicine in St. John's, Nfld., points at a gas mask he invented in 1915 to protect the Allied soldiers in France from German gas attacks. This mask, designed for defence against phosgene gas by Dr. Macpherson when he was a captain in the army, was also effective against other gases. (CP Photo)

New Bylaw Will License Nursing Homes

NAPANEE — At Napanee Council meeting a by law has been drawn up to allow nursing home operators to be licensed with minimum requirements.

Mr. Denis Caird asked for payment for two patients residing at his nursing home but was turned down due to the fact that Mr. Caird was working on last year's licence and the town could not get grants from the department of welfare until a by-law was passed and new licences were issued.

It was suggested that Mr. Caird submit the bill to the municipalities where the patients formerly resided. If they were Napanee residents then the town would be bound to pay.

As nursing homes are not subject to a business tax, councillor Reid felt the licence should be more than $10. There was some discussion on this point but no decision was reached. A recommendation was brought in that the grants be raised to $180 from $165 per patient as requested by the operators of the nursing homes.

WANT FINES RAISED

A letter was received from the Napanee Ratepayers suggesting that fines for dogs running at large should be raised. Councillor Douglas stated that the fine has already been raised $5. for the first offence, double for the second and triple for the third offence. The town's dog control officer has been given a raise for stanley fee of $15. and will be given $1. for each dog caught running loose instead of $3.

Applications from Frank McFarland and C.C. Clarke for taxi licences are to be studied by the police committee.

The wooden bridge which crosses the C.N.R. tracks on Ontario St., needs repairing badly but the problem is to find out who owns it and is responsible for looking after it. Council has sent a letter to the railway firm asking that the bridge be repired but they turned it down.

The federal board of transport suggested the town submit plans and estimates for improving the bridge, the transport commission would pay 50 percent of the cost of repairs up to $250,000 and 80 percent of the cost of a new bridge. One councillor said it would be difficult to determine ownership as the bridge connects two municipalities, Napanee and North Fredericksburg Township.

Jaycees Hold Charter Night

NAPANEE — The Napanee Jaycees received their charter June 5 when the members were welcomed to a "new way of life" by Zdengk Kvarda of Belleville who recently became president of Ontario Junior Chamber of Commerce.

During Mr. Kvarda's speech to the group he said the organization would provide trained leaders for service clubs, unions, church groups and municipal offices.

The young men develop civic confidence in themselves through courses in self-betterment and community programs.

Visiting units were present from Brockville, Picton, Smiths Falls, Carleton Place, Belleville and Kingston, who were thanked by the Napanee president Mr. Ernest Leaver.

The unit received congratulations from Mayor Lorne Smart and later from A. Douglas Vankenbrack, MP for Prince Edward - Lennox.

Guests at the head table were Rev. John Neal of Bath, Napanee Chamber of Commerce officials William Morris and H. Knuth, Napanee Clerk-treasurer Carson Graham, Mr. Kvarda, Mr. R. Clark of Kingston, Mayor Smart, Mr. Leaver and Mr. Walter Gargaro of Kingston.

The group has been very busy since it was formed just recently. A bicycle rodeo, fire-works night, a stage show and a street cleaning bee have been very successfully carried out, by the ambitious group of young men.

Seized Coins Sell Well At Auction

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Nearly 500 gold coins, seized from an accused smuggler, were auctioned Tuesday for $17,102 by the U.S. customs service.

The proceeds almost doubled the minimum $9,053 that customs officials said they would accept for the gold coins, mostly 19th and 20th-century.

Customs inspectors seized the coins in August, 1962, from Stephen Juskewycz, an Erie, Pa., coin dealer, at the Peace Bridge separating the U.S. and Canada. Juskewycz later pleaded guilty in U.S. district court to a charge of smuggling and received a suspended sentence, a customs official said.

Centennial Planning Will Be Theme

PICTON — Centennial planning will be the theme when the second one thousand members of Ontario Horticultural Association meet on June 17 and 18 at the OAC University of Guelph, Guelph. Local and district societies will be represented and will hear a distinguished panel of speakers tell how members, along with public-minded citizens, may enhance the beauty of the settings in which this and other communities will hold their celebrations in 1967. 'Plant now and reap a harvest in Centennial year' is being urged.

While Horticultural Societies have been in existence as long as 130 years, it was not until 1906 and the Association was formed and thus this is the 59th annual convention, and the second to be held in Guelph. There are approximately 45,000 members in the 230 Societies and they are engaged in a variety of projects with a view to making the world a better and more beautiful place in which to live.

Public plantings, flower shows, garden competitions, essay and photographic competitions, tree planting, and promotion of clean-up, paint-up and plant-up campaigns are but a few of the many endeavors which flourish in all parts of Ontario.

On the evening of the opening of the convention, Wednesday night, a tour of the botanical Gardens in Hamilton is planned with that city being host to a social hour at the close.

President James Deeney of Niagara Falls will preside at opening sessions and reports will be given by the Association secretary, Mitchell Geenes and Area Superintendent, F. A. Lashley of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Hon. W. A. Stewart, Ontario Minister of Agriculture will be among the speakers.

Other speakers on opening day include Arthur Bockley, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, on 'Trees for Canada's Centennial' and Leo Cullen, past president Canadian Nursery Association, A. W. Murdock, Superintendent of Government Record, Toronto. Professors J. C. Taylor, C. B. Kelly, E. M. Gable, T. J. Heeg of the University will act on a panel moderated by Rev. J. W. Siebert, Stratford.

Others to be heard during the convention include Everett Rigg, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, Norman J. Scott, Toronto, Leslie Laking, director, Royal Botanical Gardens, Hamilton, Mrs. F. Guadagni, president of Quebec Horticultural Federation. The guest speaker at the banquet will be Dr. Richard Jones, National Re-

Norman Rogers, Brilliant Defence Minister in King's Cabinet, Killed 25 Yrs. Ago

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty-five years ago today, with Allied fortunes at a Second World War low, Canadians received a stunning homefront shock to go with the bad news from the battlefront.

Norman Rogers, 46, brilliant minister of national defence, was killed in a plane crash while flying from Ottawa to Toronto to deliver a speech.

It was June 10, 1940. Italy had declared war on France and Britain that day.

A week earlier, the evacuation from Dunkerque had been completed and it was to be only a matter of days before Hitler's armistice terms would seal France's fate for five years.

The Mackenzie King government was planning to ask Parliament immediately to declare war on Italy and Rogers had some doubts about whether he should go through with his trip to Toronto.

The prime minister said cancellation might cause alarm among the Canadian people and Rogers agreed to fly out of Ottawa that morning even though the weather was poor.

The RCAF bomber with the minister and a three-man crew aboard was flying low through cloud near Newtonville, 50 miles east of Toronto. When it emerged from the cloud bank it was heading for a hill, the pilot banked but lost altitude and crashed. All were killed.

SABOTAGE RUMORED

The thought in the minds of many Canadians was that it might have been a case of sabotage. But when James Duncan, deputy air minister, made the results of an inquiry public later that year, he took pains to emphasize that it was an accident.

The sense of grief felt throughout the country was especially strong in Ottawa where the prime minister, a great admirer of the defence minister, told the Commons, his voice almost breaking with emotion:

"I do not believe that I have ever known a more faithful public servant . . . a better administrator of public affairs . . . nor have I ever known a more beautiful nature or a nobler soul than that of Norman Rogers."

There were heartfelt eulogies from other party leaders. Then, after formally declaring war on Italy, Parliament adjourned for the rest of the day.

The feeling of tragedy was compounded by the knowledge that the end had prematurely closed out a promising political career for the father of two.

Mr. Rogers, whose mother was Grace McLeod Rogers, well-known author, was born in Amherst, N.S., July 25, 1894. He graduated from Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., and went overseas in the First World War with the 6th Mounted Rifles.

Invalided out of active service in 1917, he stayed in England as a Rhodes Scholar from 1919 to 1922. With his training in law and political science, he became a secretary to Prime Minister King.

He was elected to Parliament from the Ontario constituency of Kingston in 1925 and was immediately named minister of labor, filling cabinet posts throughout his short political career.

A prolific writer, he wrote a biography of Mackenzie King and a 1927 history book about d'Iberville, the French explorer and trader.

RANG UP RECORD

The record number of changes for a team of bell ringers—21,660 in 13 hours, 28 minutes—was set in 1950 at Winsford, England.

Highjacking in Montreal Reaches Crisis Proportions

By JOE DUFUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — When truck of a $100,000 cigarette hijackers robbed a transport cargo last June 1 at a busy east-end street intersection in broad daylight, they were doing what has apparently become the natural—and easy—thing for them.

It was the latest in a two-year wave of hijackings that police say has reached crisis proportions.

Shippers, truckers and insurance companies, appalled at the situation, have met with law enforcement agencies in action.

"I tell you that if this keeps up, we're going out of business," said a spokesman for Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada Limited, a favorite target for the robbers.

Hijackers cost Imperial Tobacco $81,000 in stolen goods in 1964. So far, this year, the company has lost $222,000 to the road gangs—including the June 1 haul. "We just can't keep losing this kind of money, at this kind of escalation, and survive," the spokesman said.

J. P. Dessureau, assistant director of the Quebec provincial police, says hijacking risks are less for the crook and the rewards greater than robbing a bank.

A security officer for a major Canadian trucking firm estimated that hijackers in Quebec and Ontario last year escaped with loot worth $2,500,000. The majority of these hijackings occurred in the Montreal area.

CITES COMPLACENCY

What's the reason for the sudden crime wave?

Dessureau suggests that firms hire armed guards to "ride shotgun" on trucks carrying valuable loads.

Some firms have started using trained dogs Others, like Imperial Tobacco, are creating special security divisions

Ontario provincial police have set up a system of radio check points for clocking moving cars. stolen with comparative ease Some of them had keys still in the ignition, he said.

Dessureau suggests that firms goes. This has proved successful and a similar system is being studied for Quebec.

Shippers can protect themselves by buying separate insurance on cargo. "But if this hijacking business keeps up it won't be a question of higher insurance rates for us, it will be a question of not being able to find a company to insure our loads," the Imperial Tobacco spokesman said.

Great Variety Of Industries Amazes County Councillors

Annual Trip Covers Southern Hastings

The wide diversification of industry within the boundaries of county municipalities which they represent comes as a bit of a surprise to many Hastings county councillors.

Yesterday, taking their annual bus trip reeves and deputy reeves visited the southeast part of the county with many expressing amazement at the different industries which go to provide jobs in the district.

The diversification ranges all the way from agriculture in its different forms, plastics and metal fabrication, sawmill and quarrying operations.

Then at Marysville they stopped at the William Latchford feed barn where they saw beef steers being fed by the latest in mechanized equipment.

VISIT SAW MILL

In the afternoon a stop was made at the modern electrically operated sawmills owned by the Chisholm brothers at Chisholme Mills. Here up to three and a half million feet of lumber are sawed annually.

Then at Tweed village councillors toured the Tweed Veneers Ltd. plant where they saw thin veneers being turned out which later will enhance furniture and home decorations.

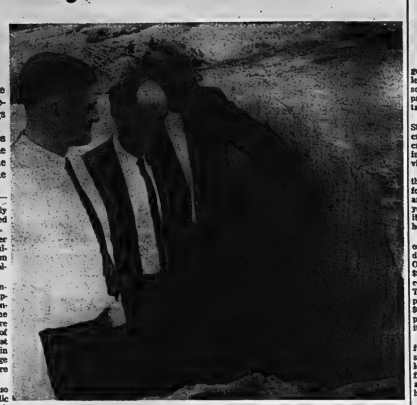
At Tweed Steel Works they saw steel being fabricated to customer requirements. One of the jobs, a big metal smokestack, will be shipped to Trinidad and another to a South American destination.

SEE MARBLE QUARRY

And finally county councillors visited the site of a former county reforestation area at Actinolite where a marble quarry is currently under development as the county's newest industry.

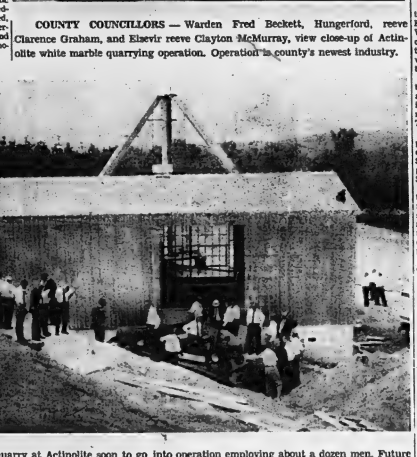
A new company—Ontario Marble—has been formed as a subsidiary of widely known Vermont Marble, to develop the quarrying operation soon to go into production, after over $200,000 spent in drilling and other development.

This spring a compressor building has been constructed and hoisting equipment installed.



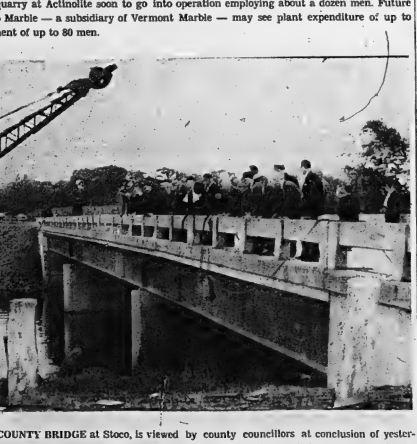
Sample quarrying has proven the white marble to be the best in the country. Ten to 12 men will be employed this year. If the development goes as planned up to 80 men will be eventually employed.

The white marble, quarried in 20 to 30 ton blocks, will be transported to Peterborough for cutting and then on to Toronto for polishing. But eventually the entire operation is expected to be carried out at Actinolite.



The day's bus trip was under the direction of county agricultural committee chairmen Reeve William O'Brien of Wallaston township.

In addition to the plant inspection tours, councillors stopped at Wayside Inn at Shannonville for morning coffee, at the Melrose township hall where they were dinner guests of Tyendinaga township, and at the Tweedsmuir Hotel in Tweed where Tweed village and Hungerford township were hosts for the evening meal.



The county councillors also visited the Roman Catholic Church at Read, the Tweed-Hungerford Arena at Tweed, the recently renovated Hungerford township hall at Tweed and the West Wind Motel at Actinolite.

COUNTY COUNCILLORS — Warden Fred Beckett, Hungerford, reeve Clarence Graham, and Elsevir reeve Clayton McMurray, view close-up of Actinolite white marble quarrying operation. Operation is county's newest industry.

WHITE MARBLE quarry at Actinolite soon to go into operation employing about a dozen men. Future development by Ontario Marble — a subsidiary of Vermont Marble — may see plant expenditure of up to $2,000,000 and employment of up to 80 men.

NEW HASTINGS COUNTY BRIDGE at Stoco, is viewed by county councillors at conclusion of yesterday's bus trip. Bridge over the Moira River costing approximately $165,000, is expected to go into use in the near future.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRES

WEDNESDAY, June 9, 1965

The Commons spent its 13th day on the rules changes debate, voting down a Creditiste amendment 50 to 18.

The amendment would have retained the ruling for members to appeal rulings by the Speaker by calling for a vote.

New Democrat Leader Douglas moved one to have future Speaker's rulings go before a precedent committee.

The committee would decide whether the ruling should be used as a precedent in future.

Transport Minister Pickersgill suggested this go to the procedure committee for study.

THURSDAY, June 10

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue the rules debate. The Senate stands adjourned until June 22.

Says Mental Hospitals In Ontario Are Starved

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government was accused in the legislature Wednesday of consciously, systematically and premeditatedly starving its Ontario mental hospitals.

The charge was made by Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party health and welfare critic, who told the house that in the last two months he has visited seven Ontario hospitals.

Mr. Lewis said he found that the government spends more for the care of prisoners in jails and reformatories, and for youths in training schools, than it does for patients in mental hospitals.

He gave the house examples of his findings: Costs of $6.24 a day per person for Brockville's Ontario hospital, compared with $9.85 a day per person for its county jail; $6.34 for St. Thomas' Ontario hospital, compared with $9.02 for its jail and $8.53 for Whitby's Ontario hospital, compared with $12.17 for its jail.

Besides being starved for funds, Ontario hospitals also are suffering from depleted staffs, low salaries, overcrowding, and from an increasing patient readmission rate, he told the house.

Mr. Lewis said he visited Ontario hospitals in St. Thomas, Hamilton, Kingston, London, Orillia and Toronto and "few hours" spent with them gave him a feeling that in some communities it would be preferable for a mentally-ill person to go to jail.

He read the house a list of the per-capita, per diem costs at all 22 Ontario hospitals, ranging from a low of $4.71 at Aurora to a high of $39.48 at Thistletown.

The average of $6.96 compared with the average per diem per capita net cost of $27.46 in group A general hospitals; $23.65 in group B, and $19.97 in group C.

Mr. Lewis said it is ironical that the department of health makes grants of $6.00 per person a day for domiciliary or nursing care homes, providing many of them with larger budgets than those of mental hospitals.

Only four of 45 county and district jails in the province had lower per diem costs than the average for mental hospitals.

Mr. Lewis, who represents the Toronto suburban riding of Scarborough West, listed staff shortages at each hospital he visited that he said were crippling any effective treatment programs.

St. Thomas has only 11 psychiatrists for 1,250 patients, but it should have at least 19; Hamilton has nine, but needed 20 for its 2,000 admissions a year; Whitby has five social workers instead of the 15 needed for its 1,500 patients, he said.

Low salaries and poor working conditions were making the situation worse instead of better. Over-all, Ontario hospitals are short 44 psychiatrists, meaning that from 4,000 to 5,000 patients are not receiving treatment, he said.

In one instance after another, the attrition of staff was related to salaries, Public service in Ontario may demand a certain dedication, he said, but should not demand self-imposed austerity.

Mr. Lewis also told of a rising incidence of readmission of mental patients. It had climbed from a 28-per-cent readmission rate in 1960 to about 46 per cent this year.

As two main reasons for the climb, he listed premature discharge of patients because of overcrowding and the pressure for new beds, and the "total absence of after-care."

Of all the hospitals visited, only one has an after-care program for patients who had returned to the community. Mr. Lewis said. He cited figures to show that readmissions could be cut in half if an after-care program was in effect.

Heavy Agenda Laid Out By Pearson for Parley

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday unveiled a heavy agenda for next month's federal-provincial conference ranging from health insurance to a government war on organized crime.

The conference opens here July 19 and is expected to run most of that week.

It will be attended by all provincial premiers.

The prime minister outlined the meaty agenda in a brief Commons statement after tabling the bulky exchange of correspondence between himself and the 10 premiers on the subject.

The conference originally was scheduled for May 31 but was postponed because Premier Bennett said he would be in Japan on that date.

Mr. Pearson's originally-suggested agenda, lengthy to begin with, also has undergone considerable change. In fact, every participant except premiers Smallwood of Newfoundland and Thatcher of Saskatchewan has contributed new items to the list.

The major ones cover the broad headings of social security and economic development.

Under social security, the closed-door conference will discuss first the proposed Canada Assistance Plan, Ottawa's proposal for collaborating existing joint welfare programs, and then turn to the key issue of health insurance.

On the latter, Mr. Pearson said in his original April 9 letter to the premiers the federal government wants to "improve the quality" of health services while ensuring their universal availability regardless of a citizen's ability to pay.

At the request of both Ontario and Manitoba, the conference will discuss whether mental illness and tuberculosis should be added to the provisions of the national hospital insurance plan. This debate also will cover administration of the hospital insurance program and possible federal aid to medical, paramedical and nursing education.

WILL DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Under the general heading of economic development, the conference will consider the best methods to tackle regional problems as well as the utilization of available manpower. Mr. Pearson said the premiers will be canvassed on the criteria to be applied in deciding designated areas for federal incentives to establish new manufacturing and processing industries.

The lone surprise item on the agenda is Mr. Pearson's suggestion that the two levels of government seek closer cooperation to fight organized crime. He called in his April 9 letter for a review existing machinery to improve its effectiveness, a suggestion backed by Premier Lesage of Quebec.

Among the other main headings for the conference are an interim report from the previously-appointed committee on tax structures, a discussion of transportation policy with the accent on highways and roads to resources, control and preservation of inland water resources, and improved liaison between Ottawa and the provinces.

Both Premier Roblin of Manitoba and Premier Shaw of Prince Edward Island said they plan to discuss aid to higher education. Alberta's Premier Manning is interested in discussing development of Indian communities.

Mr. Pearson's proposal for a national wildlife policy and such issues as electric power development, offshore mineral rights and provincial investment in chartered banks may also come up.

PRINTER SENTENCED

TORONTO (CP)—A striking newspaper printer was sentenced Wednesday to 30 days in jail on a charge of theft under $50 after being convicted of stealing about 60 newspapers from a suburban street corner Jan. 30 and throwing them in a ravine. Magistrate H. J. Cloney said the sentence against James Osborne Leitch, 37, of Etobicoke was "very moderate" in view of Leitch's record — a theft conviction 20 years ago.

Scenes Akin to Keystone Cops Movie Bails House Out of Explosive Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Comic scenes akin to a Keystone Cops movie surrounded the negotiations which bailed the House of Commons out of the explosive rules debate this week.

They became divided two party leaders talking at cross purposes but firmly convinced they were in complete harmony, cabinet ministers and opposition parties' negotiators hustling down back stairs to avoid reporters and a meeting to which a Canadian Press reporter had to be summoned to help clarify why those attending were there.

As in most such stories, it all came out right in the end as the Commons was put on the road to ending the rules debate by Friday.

The story opens with a scene in Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's office Tuesday, the 12th day of a rules debate which appeared to outsiders as destined to go on indefinitely.

In great secrecy Mr. Diefenbaker and a group of his lieutenants reached the decision to end the rules debate by Tuesday night.

Off they went to the Commons sitting where Mr. Diefenbaker, breathing conciliation and sweet reasonableness, made a proposal to Prime Minister Pearson.

Part of it had already been rejected by government spokesmen, including Mr. Pearson and House Leader George McIlraith. They had already turned down opposition demands that the government split its rules-change proposals and isolate the most contentious point — the machinery for allocating time for Commons debates.

Mr. Diefenbaker repeated it in the Commons but wrapped it up in a suggestion that a Commons committee consider the time allocation question while the Commons was disposing of the remaining rules changes.

Mr. Pearson surprised his followers by agreeing to a split, adding that the rules problem then could be settled by Friday.

At this point, the two leaders seemed to be in accord on purposes. Mr. Diefenbaker said, in effect, okay that's about on that. Mr. Pearson agreed and suggested Mr. McIlraith and the other House leaders of the opposition parties meet and get it all arranged.

Off went Mr. McIlraith and the other House leaders. But when they got around a table it seemed that nobody had the same idea about what they were to agree to.

The call went out for the Hansard shorthand reporter who had recorded the Pearson-Diefenbaker words.

But the House leaders could not agree on the vital point of whether all the rules questions, including the special committee on allocation of time, was to be settled by Friday. They decided to adjourn the meeting.

Meanwhile, a reporter was lurking outside the door to ask about their meeting. Rather than face the prospect of having to report a failure to agree, they slipped out one of the three doors of Mr. McIlraith's office, through the ante-room of another cabinet minister's office and down a set of back stairs.

Heads were put together on both sides of the House to determine what Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson had meant. Then the House leaders went back to their meeting and came up with the agreed - on procedure.

The opposition accepted in principle an allocation of time. The committee was to recommend its procedure for applying allocation by Friday. And this and the other rules changes were to be voted on before the end of Friday's sitting.

Council Wants Safety Chains At Federal Cost

CAMPBELLFORD — Town council, meeting this week, received a reply from the Federal Department of Transport to a letter asking for some safety measures on a water way in Campbellford with high cement walls. The reply gave three alternatives, safety chains, life rings, or fencing, the town to assume one third of the cost. Consensus of council was that since this water way was owned by the Federal Government it should be asked to install safety chains.

One tender only was received for the purchase of a new police cruiser. The offer of C. H. Davidson for a 2-door sedan of $3,297.90 less $2,300 trade-in, leaving a balance of $997.90, was accepted.

A request from a citizen asking that taxes be waived on the unfinished part of a building was said to be out of the jurisdiction of council and he was advised to go to Court of Revision with the matter.

DISCUSS AMBULANCE

The matter of ambulance Service again came under discussion. The D. Bennett Company have stated definitely its operation will cease June 15. Suggestions were made but no solution to the problem was arrived at for the present.

As Chairman of the Public Library Board, Clerk E. M. Ibey outlined suggestions from the Board in regard to renovations of the library building. Council granted permission for the Library Board to engage an architect to study renovations and estimate cost of same.

Councillor Torrance, chairman of property committee, reported new lawn mower had been purchased from Graydon Bell at a cost of $204. A painting contract had been given for painting of part of town offices for $156. Thirty chairs had been purchased for council at a cost of $146.

FIRES SMELLY

Clerk E. M. Ibey asked that some measure be taken to control fire at the dump, causing unpleasant odor drifting into the town.

A new nursing home has been approved by the fire chief and the County Health Unit, and upon certification by the County Medical Health Officer, will be visited by representatives of the Ontario Hospital Services to get accredited.

The Loyal True Blue Lodge of Campbellford was given permission to hold a tag day on June 26th.

A seminar will be held in Cobourg on Friday, June 11th, by the Department of Labor on building construction safety. Foreman W. Blake is expected to attend.

Council Hears Deputations

CAMPBELLFORD — Two deputations were heard at Monday evening's meeting of the town council.

Two deputations were present, Hector MacMillan appearing in the interests of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, asked for a culvert to provide access to some newly acquired land. in another relation, he wished to know if the municipal council would sell 7 or 8 acres of the town's industrial land, the price asked and if the town would consider installation of sewer and water mains to the property. The matter was referred to the property committee for recommendation to council.

F. M. Rutherford asked that one-hour parking signs be erected on locations in the town. Some of the council members objected, on the grounds they thought the areas were not in the zone outlined by the by-law.

Clerk E. M. Ibey was asked to bring in the by-law which had been brought into force some years ago and the two situations were found to be in the legitimate one hour parking area and council agreed to have the signs erected.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME—The six-storey building housing 600 enlisted men at the United States Air Force Strategic Command base, is the tallest building in Labrador. Problems of Labrador Life Seen Thawing Out for Service

By DAVE BUTLER

GOOSE BAY, Labrador (CP) — Don't feel sorry for the man in uniform serving in the frozen wilds of Labrador. It's getting to be a problem persuading him to go home when his tour of duty is over.

The United States Air Force has made its big Strategic Air Command base here as homey and almost as comfortable as bases in Canada and the United States and the men enjoy it.

With a population larger than the cities of Fredericton, Stratford, Ont., or Red Deer, Alta., the Goose Bay area includes the American base, RCAF Station Goose Bay, the town of Happy Valley and several small Indian settlements along the fringes.

United States airmen and their dependents now number more than 10,000 and RCAF personnel is being maintained at slightly less than 2,000. The town of Happy Valley, made up almost entirely of civilians, has a population of more than 6,000 and there are about 2,000 people living in villages in the area.

A USAF sergeant, about to board a plane that would carry him to Sacramento, Calif., to pick up various supplies for the base, said hopefully "We should be back in three or four days." The temperature when he left was about 20 degrees. The airman was a native of South Carolina.

COMFORTABLE QUARTERS

Facilities at the American base are highly rated. The quarters provided for the men are superior to those found on some bases in the U.S. although every pound of lumber and concrete used in their construction had to be shipped in during the short ice-free season or flown in.

One mess hall boasts panelled walls, murals, ultra - modern lipstng and tiled flooring. Table service compares with first-class restaurants.

In a huge club for non-commissioned officers, one of five on the base, American entertainers perform nightly and civilian girls working on the base come to listen and to dance with the NCOs.

One girl, employed in a bank at Happy Valley, said she had been in Labrador for two years after living most of her life in Moncton, N.B. She said she loves it in the north and has no intention of leaving.

At one party in the club a few weeks ago, men in tuxedos, women in evening gowns and waiters pouring champagne welcomed an officer back for his second tour.

REFUELLING BASE

It was not always such a good life in Labrador. In 1943, Goose Air Base was a cluster of draughty tents and it grew slowly. It first became an important installation in 1957 when it came under the control of the Strategic Air Command which began major permanent construction programs.

The U.S. base is employed primarily for refuelling SAC bombers which are continually in the air over the North Atlantic and must be refuelled while in the air.

The base now boasts of scores of large buildings, spacious living quarters for airmen, attractive seven-room homes for officers, paved streets and hundreds of automobiles. Taxi services, owned by civilians, are excellent and bus service also is available.

One of the biggest problems facing construction engineers in eastern Labrador is the lack of solid foundation. "The whole area is a big sandpile," said one frustrated airman. "We have drilled down to 500 feet and still nothing but sand."

But the future of the base appears to be bright. Officers say the SAC operations indicate that Goose Air Force base will grow rather than recede.

"We now have about 20,000 people in the area," one officer said. "When they get an access road with the outside in here and get better civilian facilities in Happy Valley, you're going to see one of the biggest population explosions in history."

FINDS HURRICANE SOURCE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Halifax meteorologist says he has found out where those annual fall hurricanes in the Atlantic come from. Cmdr. M. R. Morgan Tuesday told the Canadian branch, Royal Meteorological Society, he believes cold air from the south pole is to blame. When it pushes into the tropics, it creates a hurricane.

Rule Union Cannot Speak For Its Locals

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Labor Relations Board has ruled in effect that a parent union cannot assume the bargaining functions of its locals without their authority.

The decision affects an agreement under which Pigott Construction Co. Ltd. and six building trades unions signed province - wide contracts in 1963 aimed at ending jurisdictional disputes and strikes.

Donald Stevens, Pigott's industrial relations director, said Tuesday night the principle of the provincial agreement represented a progressive step in industrial relations in the industry.

He added he hopes any defects could be remedied.

The case before the labor board arose from an application by the Hamilton local of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (CLC) for conciliation services that would have forced Pigott and other contractor-members of the Hamilton Construction Association.

SAID UNNECESSARY

Pigott maintained conciliation was unnecessary because the company had signed a provincial agreement with the carpenters under which it agreed to honor terms between locals of the union and local employer associations.

The unions in turn agreed that a strike in any locality would not affect Pigott.

As a result of the board ruling, the carpenters' local at Hamilton, where Pigott withdrew from the construction association, would be free to strike against Pigott despite the provincial agreement.

The board's decision noted that the Hamilton local and not the parent international held the bargaining rights for the employees concerned.

It said the provincial agreement could be valid only if the parent union was empowered to act on behalf of the local, the board said.

Water, Sewage Disposal System to Cost $750,000

DESERONTO — Deseronto Council met on Monday, June 7 and it was learned from the minutes of a special meeting held May 27 that council has requested the Honorable J. R. Simonett, minister of Energy and Resources for the Province of Ontario to consider the financing of the installation of a water treatment and distribution system and a sewage disposal system for the town of Deseronto at an approximate cost of $750,000. The cost of both systems will be repaid by the town of Deseronto over a period of 50 years with interest at the prevailing rate on the date of completion.

Permission was granted to the Teen-Towne to hold a street dance June 25.

Mr. J. Layfield requested that one-hour parking signs be placed on the east side of St. George St., between Main and Edmund St. and the south side of Main St. This would ease the parking problem when stores are at the rush hour. The police committee is to investigate and report back.

A letter was received from the Ratepayers Association asking if council had ever been contacted by the Municipal Board re borrowing money in excess of $5 per capita and also if so why had the townspeople not been made aware of it. Mayor Lott replied that no communication had ever been received to this effect and he had learned at the Municipal Workshop that borrowing over 90% was common practice. He also stated that council had taken steps to reduce the loan but it wouldn't be evident for several years.

The streets committee report that $2500. has been spent to improve the sidewalks, and this has been a great improvement in many areas of the town. The roads are not yet completed as they are to receive another layer of asphalt, this will eliminate the dust which is quite a problem at present.

The old truck belonging to the town will be sold and tenders will be called for this purpose.

Mrs. Elvina Toppings was appointed to the Library Board to fill the vacancy made by Mrs. W. Jackson.

Deseronto police have had a busy month and the following is the police report: 45 general occurrences reported and investigated, one motor vehicle accident investigated with damage under $100, five charges laid under the Criminal Code of Canada, seven charges laid under the Highway Traffic Act, seven charges laid under the Liquor Control Act of Canada, one charge under the Indian Act and eight persons arrested and lodged in town cells. The mileage on the police car as of May 31 was 32, 839 miles and the total miles during April and May 3,601.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

There is a possibility that hockey fans hereabouts may see the first "live" National Hockey club in action here since the late fifties when the Chicago Black Hawks played an intra-squad game.

It has been officially announced that the New York Rangers will hold their 1965 training camp in Kingston's Memorial Centre. This is a first for the Limestone City arena.

The Rangers, general manager Emile (The Cat) Francis is reported as saying, will play exhibition games with the Detroit Red Wings and the Boston Bruins of the NHL and possibly games with the Quebec Aces of Oklahoma City.

The story says that Francis wanted to come east to train this year because last season the Rangers had no chance to meet other NHL teams in exhibition games.

"This season," he said, "by locating in Kingston we hope to play eight or nine games against NHL squads."

With Kingston a bare fifty-mile hop-skip-and-jump away, hundreds of hockey fans in this district will, no doubt, attend any and all NHL exhibitions staged down thataway.

Better than that, "wouldn't it be loverley" if the Rangers and another NHL team could be induced to play an exhibition game here in Memorial Arena.

Hockey men of the city have already taken the matter into consideration. A movement is afoot to contact Ranger brass, now in NHL session in Montreal to see what can be done about the matter.

Recreation director Lloyd "Red" Doron, an ex-Red Wing, and Bob Burrows, arena manager, were in touch via telephone with Ranger officials today but at this writing nothing was known of the outcome.

However, it is early yet and it is unlikely the Ranger bosses will make any commitments for out-of-town exhibitions at this stage of the game.

"There is plenty of time," agreed "Red." "Later when the Rangers are in training we can contact them personally in Kingston and see what can be done."

Personally, I think such an attraction would be welcomed by fandom here. The venerable building on McAnanny Street, which I hear has refused to hatch wrestling eggs this year, would have a relapse of the rib-tickin that bothered her in the days of the Roaring Fifties.

UNDAUNTED

Apollo Barbell Club manager-coach Ken Carr-Braint and his weightlifting champions John Lewis and Price Morris take off for Regina today to defend their national titles against the best Canada has to offer—and a possible place on the team which will represent Canada in the world championships in Iran later this year.

They left with hopes high in their hearts. The response to an appeal for financial help was very good. Two donations, one for $25 and another of $1.00 were received and a last-minute contribution of $100 was a life saver.

The National Fitness Council's "fifty percent travelling expenses and nothing else" policy may cost Canada national entries in other sports.

However, Carr-Braint and his boys hope to bring back to Belleville a "repeat" of their national titles.

PLANT WON'T TRANSPLANT

A story out of Montreal says that few if any reporters and hockey men believed Jacques Plante's announcement of retirement.

The Leafs' Stafford Smythe believes that most hockey players don't become very useful until they're over 28. He said Plante's retirement from the Rangers was "phoney." "I certainly will draft him if New York fails to protect him or he is not on any voluntary retirement list."

Emile Francis, Rangers' general manager, said he wasn't sure if he would protect Plante from the NHL internal draft, "but I'd be crazy if I did. I'm going to scare up another goalkeeper."

Senior Baseball

GALT (CP) — London Pontiacs stretched their season-opening unbeaten streak to four games with an 8-1 victory over Galt Rangers in a senior inter-county baseball game Wednesday night.

Rolf Scheel pitched a five-hitter to coast to his second win behind a 14-hit barrage which included Whitey Lapthorne's two-run homer in the ninth inning. Left-hander Eric Lomax was the loser.

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP)—An inactive internal draft, a governors' meeting that set plans for league expansion, a retroactive rule change and an active "reverse draft" was the main order of business at the National Hockey League's annual meeting Wednesday.

Boston Bruins, reeling from last place finishes in the last six seasons, grabbed four players in the draft for the asking price of $30,000 each, while three other clubs claimed one each.

Toronto Maple Leafs and the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens declined to add any new faces.

The board of governors decided to call a special meeting in New York before the end of this month to deal with applications for new league franchises already submitted.

The governors also ruled that from now on the Vezina Trophy will be awarded on both netminders on the team, if the club alternates its goalies.

The draft and the reverse innovation this year—was held late Wednesday night and saw the nine American league clubs and six from the Western League pick up 29 players at $10,000 each from a list of 40 supplied by the NHL parent clubs.

The Bruins, under new general manager Hap Emms, may well have solved their netminding problems as they grabbed Gerry Cheevers, 24, from the Toronto Engineering Man.

Cheevers was an all - star with the Calder Cup Rochester Americans of the AHL last year. In addition the Bruins managed to keep goalie Jack Norris who they had removed from their protected list in order to grab Cheevers.

He had been part of a two-for-four deal Tuesday which sent him to Canadiens. Wednesday he was left unprotected by Montreal in the reverse draft and was promptly grabbed back by New York.

Watson, who originally belonged to the Canadiens organization with Quebec Aces of the AHL for most of last season and was picked up Tuesday by Chicago Black Hawks on the deal that sent Don Johns and an undisclosed amount of cash to Montreal. However, Chicago left Watson unprotected in the draft and he was promptly snapped up by Detroit Red Wings.

Boston's other three draft choices all involved minor league players.

They picked up Paul Popeil, a Danish - born defence prospect from Chicago. He was with Buffalo of the AHL last season. Forward Norm Schmitz, a former Canadiens chattel, and Keith Wright, picked up by Rangers in Tuesday's interleague draft, rounded out the Bruins' activity.

Stapleton was originally Boston property but went to the Leafs in a deal Tuesday. He was an all-star defenceman with Portland Buckaroos of the WHL last season.

Boston, because of its last place finish, was allowed to protect 20 players throughout the draft, while the fifth-place Rangers covered 30.

Defenceman Ed Langlois was left unprotected by the Bruins, but was not picked up by any other club. He had seen service with Montreal, New York and Detroit, before being acquired by Boston.

Boston declared Parker MacDonald—picked up from Detroit and Ross Harris as excess players immediately following the draft. New York declared Ingarfield excess. No other club claimed the players.

In announcing the governors' decision to call a New York meeting this month to discuss league expansion, NHL president Clarence Campbell said definite applications will not be accepted and "promptly processed" before the caucus takes place.

The league president said the NHL preferred to expand to a second division six-team circuit, but there was no possibility of any new teams being added for next season. He did not disclose the location of future clubs.

However, he reiterated earlier statements that of the 12 applications received to date, nine were from U.S. cities.

Its said a proposal by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to immediately end its working agreement with the NHL had been rejected by the governors. Terms of the contract require two-years notice of intention to terminate by either party and the president said the league will call on the CAHA to honor this clause.

In addition, Campbell said that rules governing the awarding of the Vezina Trophy to the league's best goaltender had been amended, retroactive to last season.

With each team now required to carry two netminders, it will become a joint award with both goaltenders' names being inscribed on the trophy, if both have participated in 25 games or more.

The most spirited action of the day occurred when AHL and WHL representatives met Wednesday night to participate in the first reverse draft.

Under the regulations, each of the six WHL clubs names 10 players subject to draft by the minor league clubs. All players definite applications will not be definite applications will not have at least one year of pro hockey experience or a total of at least 60 pro games played. The requirements call for players to have participated in 35 games with their club during the previous season.

In all, AHL teams picked up 20 players and WHL clubs finished with nine.

Two AHL clubs — Cleveland Barons and Baltimore Clippers — both took four, while Vancouver Canucks of the WHL topped that circuit by claiming three players.

Breaks Snell World Record

Frenchman Runs Mile In 3:53.6

RENNES, France (AP) — Michel Jazy, who apparently runs best against the clock rather than against tough opposition, today has the world's fastest time of 3:53.6 for the mile and solid confidence he'll break the 3,000 - metre mark Friday.

The 29-year-old French veteran, a disappointment in the 1964 Olympics, Tuesday night lowered the world record by 3:54.1 set by Pet.r Snell of New Zealand. This brought the blue ribbon mile mark to France for the first time since 1931 when Jules Ladoumegue was clocked in 4:08.2.

Jazy's mile record capped an amazing series of races in the space of one week. On June 2, he ran the fastest mile by a European with a time of 3:53.3 at Saint Maur, a Paris suburb. On June 6, at Lorient, he erased the old European record for the 3,000 with a time of 13:34.4.

PACE-SETTERS HELP

Jazy had the aid of pace-setters who took relays in the lead, trying to pull him to a record. He ran third or second, behind most of the race and went into the lead about 30 metres before the three-quarter mark. He then rapidly pulled away from the nine-man field.

Jazy complained that the cinder track had been chopped up by earlier races on the program and said: "Now I know that I can still pick up a second on the mile. Certainly 3:52 is not impossible. On the contrary, it's even sure."

Conditions were ideal for Jazy's effort. There was a slight wind in the air, there was no wind, and Jazy was running among friendly anxious to help him. Jazy has always run best against the stop watch, for records, rather than against top flight competition.

NOTTS FOREST WINS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Nottingham Forest soccer team from the English first division Wednesday night defeated a British Columbia all-star team 2-0 in an exhibition game before a crowd of more than 7,500 under the lights in Vancouver's Empire Stadium. It was the eighth win of nine exhibitions the English League club has played on their North American tour.

Planes Nip Latta 3-2

Plane's Connects scored three runs in the second inning and hung on to tag Latta with a 3-2 South Hastings Baseball League setback at Camiffon last night.

Latta out the margin to a single run with Plane's two-run homer in the top of the sixth, but that was it in the scoring department.

Butch Clapp hurled strong three-hit ball for the Camiffon crew, striking out seven and walking a pair.

Howard Meeks started and gave way to Lorne Crockright in the third on the Latta rubber. They allowed only five hits between them but walked seven. They shared three.

Pat O'Connor clouted a double and single to pace the Plane's hitters. Ron Urch, Hugh Petrie and Don Forsythe collected singles.

For Latta, Larry Mavely homered and singles went to Doug Rollins and Doug Chisholm.

'9th Hole' Wins For Birdie

Twins In Stitches

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

A stitch in time might have saved two runs for Jim Kaat Wednesday night.

The ace left hander with Minnesota Twins dropped a 2-1 decision to Cleveland Indians that might have been a 1-0 victory if there, hadn't been a hole in his sweatshirt.

Manager Birdie Tebbetts of Indians spotted the hole in Kaat's sleeve while the pitcher was working on Rocky Colavito in the ninth inning. He complained to umpire Bill Haller.

The umpire sent Kaat to the dugout to have both sleeves shortened. When he returned, he walked Colavito, served up a two-run homer to Max Alvis, and that was the ball game.

Despite the loss, the American League leaders remained 2½ games in front of Chicago White Sox, who lost to Boston Red Sox 4-2. Elsewhere, Detroit Tigers downed Los Angeles Angels 4-2, Washington Senators edged Baltimore Orioles 3-2 in 10 innings and New York Yankees whipped Kansas City Athletics 5-1.

Kaat, now 5-6, was involved in a scoreless duel with the Indians' Ralph Terry until the Twins pushed across a run in the eighth.

SHOOK KAAT UP

Tebbetts then took a hand, apparently shaking up Kaat, and Terry posted the 100th victory of his career.

Tony Horton, playing his second game since being recalled from Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, stroked three hits and drove in three runs for the Red Sox.

Horton singled in two runs in a three-run third inning sparking against starter Bruce Howard and hit a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning following Tony Conigliaro's triple.

Willie Horton drove in two runs for the Tigers with a double and Al Kaline hit a two-run homer, his 12th, in support of Hank Aguirre's five-hit pitching.

The Senators won in the 10th when Jim King hit the first pitch thrown by Oriole reliever Stu Miller over the centre field fence, ending Miller's string of consecutive scoreless innings at 21.

Joe Pepitone and Tom Tresh each smashed two-run homers for the Yankees while Mel Stottlemyre stopped the Athletics on six hits and struck out 11.

Reverse Draft

Minor Pros Have Field Day

MONTREAL (CP)—The nine clubs of the American Hockey League and the six of the Western Hockey League had a field day late Wednesday night by drafting a total of 29 players in the first so-called reverse draft of National Hockey League and minor circuit operations.

At the $10,000 draft price in the innovation, $290,000 was tossed around, much of it from one owner to the other of the parent NHL clubs.

Under the regulations, each of the six NHL clubs named 10 players subject to draft by the AHL and WHL clubs. Virtually all the players were already minor - league farmhands who have been playing in the two leagues.

All players subject to draft had to have at least one year in professional hockey or a total of at least 60 games in all. The requirements specified also they had to have 35 games with their pro club the previous season.

Beginning after next season, NHL clubs will be allowed to draft one player from the two big minor circuits.

AHL teams grabbed 20 players in the draft and WHL teams took none.

CANUCKS TOOK THREE

Cleveland Barons and Baltimore Clippers of the AHL each took four. Vancouver Canucks of the WHL was highest in that circuit with three choices.

Portland Buckaroos of the WHL, who now own all their players, were the only club to draft no players.

Nick Leaf Hurler For 5 Homers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Charton, rumored to be up for an imminent call-up by big leagues, may have found the excitement a bit too much Wednesday night.

The 22-year-old righthander, ace of Toronto Maple Leafs' pitching staff, took the mound against Atlanta Crackers and the International League headers pounded him for five home runs on their way to a 7-2 victory.

So Charton, eyed by the parent Boston Red Sox as a possible addition to their injury-riddled roster, suffered his fourth defeat in 10 decisions and his six-and-one average balloon from 1.64 to 2.27.

Jacksonville Suns whipped Buffalo Bisons 4-1 and Toledo Mud Hens clobbered Syracuse Chiefs 7-1 in the remainder of the night's schedule.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A field of seven, including two of America's top trotters — Argo Kid and Dartmouth—was scratched Friday night. Friday night's $10,485 harness track of America four-year-old trot at Hamilton Raceway.

Completing Friday's class field over the one-mile track, the third stop of the seven - track Triple Crown series, are: Johnny Laird, owned by Clare Archdekin of Brampton, the Armstrong brothers' Late Frost, also of Brampton; Maston Hanover from Emil Cerullo of Denver, N.Y.; Lansing Hanover from Harrison Hoyt and Emil Kalik of Dorset, Vt.; and Rain Water for William Evans of Hamburg, N.Y.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A seventh-race exacta of $232.10 was posted at the Western Fair here Wednesday night when Molly Royal paid $44.20 to win and High Brooks came in second at $4.30.

A daily double of $5.00 — smallest of the season—was set up by Stewart's May and Lucky is Sallo in the second race.

Willie Shakes Slump With 18th Homer

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Herman Franks would like to give Willie Mays a day off, but every time the San Francisco Giants' star earns a rest he gives his manager another reason for keeping him on the job.

Willie, who came into New York two days ago nursing a heavy cold, walked over the Mets Wednesday night for the second straight game, driving in three runs with a single and his 18th homer in the Giants' 4-3 victory.

The previous night Mays had ended an 0 - for - 18 famine by doubling home two first-inning runs that stood up for a 5-1 decision over the National League tail-enders.

"I would like a real day off," the great centre fielder said after that game. "I'd like the manager to tell me stay away from the park for one full day."

Franks has held Willie out of his starting lineup several times but invariably has had to call on the 34-year-old slugger as a pinch hitter or defensive replacement.

At the outset of the Giants-Mets series, Willie was battling a prolonged skid that had lopped 75 points off his batting average since May 22. He had only one run batted in and three hits since that date and had not homered in 15 starts.

BOOST BATTING AVERAGE

Wednesday's night's spurt gave Willie 41 RBI and a .324 batting mark for the season.

Ernie Banks rapped a three-run homer, lifting Chicago Cubs past Milwaukee Braves 6-3 in an afternoon game. Philadelphia Phillies knocked out Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3, Pittsburgh Pirates ripped Houston Astros 11-3 and St. Louis Cardinals beat Cincinnati Reds 6-4 in other National League night games.

Mays put the Giants ahead 2-0 in the first inning with a towering drive over the left field fence following a walk to Dick Schofield. The Mets pulled even in the fourth on Charlie Smith's two-run homer but Mays broke the deadlock in the eighth by singling home winning pitcher Gaylord Perry.

Banks powered Chicago from behind with a first - pitch homer off Ted Abernathy in the seventh after two-out singles by Billy Williams and Ron Santo.

Tony Taylor's three - run homer in the third inning led Philadelphia past the first-place Dodgers and raised the major league debut of Los Angles' southpaw Mike Kekich.

Vern Law scattered eight hits and the Pirates routed the Astros with four-run rallies in the fifth and eighth innings for their 17th victory in the 39 games.

The Cardinals struck for five runs, including Bill White's three-run homer and a solo shot by Ken Boyer, in the fourth inning. Don Pavistich and Deron Johnson hit solo homers for the Reds.

DISPUTE SETTLED

TORONTO (CP) — A dispute over an architect's fee in the construction five years ago of a Jesuit seminary ended Wednesday with the announcement of an out - of - court settlement. Counsel for Vera Dickinson, widow of architect Peter Dickinson, said the parties involved had agreed to a settlement. Mrs. Dickinson was suing the Jesuit Fathers of Upper Canada Holding Corp. for approximately $41,100, plus about $10,000 interest.

Warners Set Back Cheesemen

A six-run explosion in the fourth inning provided the punch as Stewart Warner defeated Black Diamond Cheese 9-3 in a Commercial Softball League fixture last night.

The six-run blast put Stewart Warner ahead 8-0 at the time but the Cheesemen got on the scoreboard with a singleton in the fifth and two in the seventh to cut the margin.

L. Masters hurled five-hit ball over the distance for the winners. He clubbed four strikeout victims and did not walk a batter while getting errorless support afield.

Sonny Holway gave up ten hits on the Black Diamond rubber. He struck out nine while issuing no free passes.

John Trendall paced Stewart Warner with the stick, hitting a triple and a single. Rod Turner and K. Levick each contributed a pair of singles while Chuck Rowbotham had a home run. B. Benn, Gary Gee and Gary Wood also hit safely.

T. Kellar pounded a homer and single while Douglas also hit a home run in a losing cause. L. Woods and D. Archer got the other base knocks.

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Lorne (Gump) Worsley isn't convinced that New York Ranger goalie Jacques Plante will retire from National Hockey League competition next season. Plante has announced his intention of retiring. "Wait until the greenbacks start flashing next September," said Worsley, the current Montreal netminder during a visit here Tuesday.

CUT PITCHER

Three, Including Mantle, Fined $250

Houk Hits Yankee Playboys In Wallet

KANSAS CITY (AP) — New York Yankees, who last year gave up on harmonicas, have taken up whistling.

And the price still is the same—$250 fines.

The Yankees, mired in eighth place in the American League, announced Wednesday that three players had been fined $250 each for breaking training.

The Yankees refused to divulge the names of the players and the nature of the infractions. But reporters traveling with the club said the fines were levied for, among other things, whistling at waitresses in a restaurant.

The same reporters also said two of the fined players were $100,000 - a - year outfielder Mickey Mantle and relief pitcher Hal Reniff.

The fines were announced at a press conference by general manager Ralph Houk.

"A few people broke training," Houk said. "Three players were fined $250 apiece. A few others were talked to."

Houk said he would not divulge the names of the players involved but was annoyed at the fines because "we didn't like it to go unnoticed."

"It got out of hand. It was a public show. If somebody wants to carry on, there's a place for it. That was not the place."

The incidents took place Sunday after the Yankees' doubleheader in New York. The team had about three hours to spare before catching a plane and went to dine. When they eventually reached the airport, there was a 2½-hour delay and the Yankees again went to restaurant.

SUGGESTS ANSWER

VICTORIA (CP) — Governor-General Vanier said Wednesday inter-marriage of English- and French - speaking Canadians would be the effective answer to problems of national unity. "Our only real problem is one of language and that could be settled," he told a civic reception here. "It may sound absurd, but the answer is for all Canadians to intermarry.

New Words Now Around Are Like Greek to Some

By JACK HUTTON

Says Snell Fastest

TORONTO (CP) — John Davies of New Zealand, a sub-four-minute miler, Wednesday night called countryman Peter Snell the world's fastest miler despite the fact that his world record was broken by Michel Jazy.

Jazy, a 29-year-old French man, ran the mile in 3:53.6 in Rennes, France, Wednesday night. Snell's record was 3:54.1

Describing Snell as potentially the fastest miler in the world, Davies said he feels Jazy's time could be bettered by the New Zealander.

"Jazy's time i terrific, but i think Snell can beat it.

"This is an added impetus and is a challenge to him — a challenge for the first time in his career."

Snell and Davies will compete in an international track meet here Thursday night. Snell, sightseeing in Niagara Falls, Ont., could not be reached for comment.

"He believed that he was going to work hard this summer to get the record back.

Did it ever strike you that half the new words around today are complete Greek to most of the people who hear them? As soon as they're understood, they're instantly changed.

I mean how are we going to follow John Lennon and the boys unless they issue a handy pocket dictionary for the rest of us?

Even words or familiar phrases that we thought we understood mean something else now if you interpret them in the new jargon.

The following is a list of familiar words or phrases that illustrate what I mean. In the past pluperfect tense (five years ago) they meant one thing: they mean something different in the whimsical present tense.

Pandora's box: Since "b o x" means "guitar" today we can safely assume that Pandora was a featured performer on the coffee house circuit. And quite a bit too with that long blonde hair.

Box your ears: In the same way this is a quaint way of telling someone you're going to play your guitar for him.

Nonconformists: Anyone who goes around without a Beatle haircut.

Mercy, I beg of thee: A drunken Hightech patron begging to hear the Mersey sound of the Beatles.

King Arthur's Court: All the people who admire George Harrison's haircut. You did know, didn't you, that he calls it Arthur".

Rock of Gibralter: A nightclub on the lefthand side as you drive out of Madrid. But it's not popular: too many a p e s go there.

Teen-ager: Anyone up to the age of 30 because Elvis Presley is 30-years-old and still a teenager. This means the age limit will be 31 next year.

Lenin's Tomb: Obviously John Lennon's pad.

The Florida Grottos: These are all the nice people in Florida because anything g o o d is "grot" in the new jargon. Are you a grotto?

Judge: This used to refer to anyone over the age of 25. But because of Elvis Presley's advancing years the lower limit is now 35.

Musician: Someone who can actually read the notes and bars on the paper ahead of him.

Chariot: The family car. Thus was born the phrase, "Swing low, sweet chariot, radar's out to-night."

Thug: Transistor radio.

OUT OF DATE

Waltz: A prehistoric word understood to have meant something which everyone has since forgotten.

Board chairman: Head of the family. Sometimes also referred to as the Banker, although rarely in his presence.

Service Time : The process of going steady with one date who may be referred to occasionally as "the ball and chain."

Climbing: This describes an increasing feeling of exhilaration, usually with a group — "We're climbing tonight."

Fractured: No, this isn't a broken leg. The word customarily means very funny or terribly witty — "He's real fractured: or possibly "He fractures me."

The Charmer: This is sometimes used by his far-flung fan clubs across Canada to refer to sinter Bobby Curtola.

While we're on changing language, you may know that collective nouns vary in fascinating ways to describe d i f f e rent groups. For example: A pride of lions, a murmuration of swallows, or a gaggle of geese.

Why don't we add these to the language: a herd of folk singers (maybe you'd prefer "frolic"); a school-yard of principals; a shriek of Beatle fans; a placard of marchers; a joy of holidays.

Does that give you any ideas? Let me know if you think of any phrases or new words that you'd like to pass along for othe readers.

And remember to stay grotto.

TOP TWENTY HITS

1 Wonderful World, Herman's Hermits; 2 Crying in the Chapel, Elvis Presley; 3 Back in My Arms Again, The Supremes; 4 Ticket To Ride, Beatles; 5 Wooly Bully, Sam the Sham; 6 Help Me Rhonda, The Beach Boys; 7 Come On, Let's Go, The Rogues; 8 Ain't Nobody Home But Me, Twinkle; 9 Tommy, Reparata and the Delrons; 10 Let's Get In Line, Gilly Harner; 11 Mrs. Brown, Herman's Hermits; 12 I'll Never Find Another You, Seekers; 13 Summer Love — Happiness — J. B. and The Playboys; 14 Surfin' Bird, Trashmen: 15 Reelin' and Rockin', Dave Clarke Five; 16 The Price of Love, Everly Bros.; 17 Cast Your Fate to the Winds, Sounds Orchestral; 18 The G a m e of Love, Wayne Fontana; 19 Baby the Rain Must Fall, Glenn Yarbrough; 20 She's About a Mover, The Sir Douglas Quintet.

Gardner Reaches 5th Round

PORTHCAWL, Wales (AP)— Roy Gardner, U.S. Walker Cup star, shot a two - under - par round for 35 holes today to defeat England's Alan Thewell 4 and 3 and advance to the fifth round of the British amateur golf championship.

Gardner, one of seven Americans remaining in the field in the round of 32, played almost immaculate golf in the bright warm and windless weather on the 6,700 - yard, par - 72 Royal Porthcawl links.

Gardner went two up after three holes, birdied the long fifth, deuced the short seventh with a good eight-foot putt, and then birdied the long eighth with a four. At the turn he was three up and coasting against the man who has twice won the British title.

RELEASE TWO

TRAPANI, Sicily (AP) — Police here announced today they have released two men held in the investigation of the slaying of d e p o r t e d American and Canadian u n d e r world figure Teodrio Musacchia. Police said they would continue their investigation, looking for possible Mafia involvement in the killing.

Commonwealth Conference May Split Down Middle

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain is trying hard to find some unifying forces to prevent the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference from splitting down the centre when it opens next week.

The task is not simple and the outlook for a cohesive conference is not hopeful.

In some ways, the nine-day meeting may turn out to be no more than a "holding" action with the 21 leaders agreeing to implement the machinery for a Commonwealth secretariat but agreeing to disagree on world issues which tend to emphasize regional differences.

As host, Britain would normally be in a powerful position to influence the delegation. But any influence the British Labor government may hope to exert undoubtedly will be tempered by the reflection that the government is sustained in the Commons by a majority of just two votes.

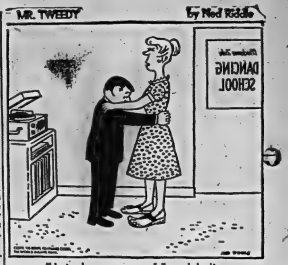
Moreover, the widening role of United States troops in South Viet Nam adds embarrassment to Britain and increases the prospects of dissension within the Commonwealth.

Prime Minister Wilson has been able to reject the demands of the left wing in his own party to dissociate Britain from U.S. policy in Viet Nam. But those demands remain and to these undoubtedly will be added the pleadings of many of the newer members of the Commonwealth who see American military action in Viet Nam as the aggression of the white man against Asiatics.

On one side stand Australia and New Zealand loyal supporters of U.S. action in Viet Nam which they see as a means of containing Communist aggression.

But many of the African and Asian Commonwealth members are less concerned about the advance of communism. They welcome stronger association with the Soviet Union and China.

PRESSURES FROM AFRICA



Rhodesia is another wrenching issue. Sir Albert Margai, Sierra Leone's prime minister, considers it "the most burning of all" problems that will be before the Commonwealth leaders.

There have been reports that Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith will attempt to grab independence unilaterally if Britain doesn't yield to his demands by the end of the year. Many of the African members of attention whether Britain has really stepped as hard as it could on minority white rule in Rhodesia.

And with two significant conferences ahead—the meeting of the non-aligned countries in Algiers later this month and the organization of African Unity in Accra in September—African and Asian leaders will want decisive action on the part of older Commonwealth members.

AT THE PARK — Gig Young, a high powered public relations man employed by an American oil corporation in London, explains to Rock Hudson that a vice presidency can be his only if the "family image" is good, causing Hudson to attempt renewal of his abandoned marriage to Gina Lollobrigida in Universal's zany comedy, "Strange Bedfellows," in Technicolor, opening tonight at the Park Theatre for its first showings. Complete shows at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Love triumphs — temporarily — on a romantic Aegean Island in this scene from "Island of Love," the rollicking Warner Bros comedy now at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. While Betty Bruce as his blonde ex-stripper wife looks on, Walter Matthau, as a New York mobster congratulates Robert Preston, as the fast-talking public relations whiz who slipped him for a couple million dollars for a flop movie, on his coming marriage to the gang lord's lovely Greek niece, Georgia Moll. Producer-director Morton DaCosta shot most of the high spirited comic caper in Athens and on the Aegean Island of Hydra. Tony Randall also stars in the Technicolor-Panavision production. The zany comedy hit also is in Technicolor "Sex And The Single Girl" stars Tony Curtis, Natalie Wood, Lauren Bacall, Henry Fonda and Mel Ferrer.

Even Other Actresses Like New Sex Symbol

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I already know who's destined to take my place. There can only one, without a doubt. After BB comes CC, no?"

That's Brigitte Bardot, the movies' sex symbol, talking about Claudia Cardinale, that gorgeous hunk of Italian lovely next.

It's the compliment supreme, because actress eat mostly lapped their competition.

But the 25-year-old Claudia, sex symbol she may be, is such a nice person that even other actresses like her.

One of her most famous co-stars sums up the Cardinale personality:

"A simple, readable girl. Finally, in a milieu of neurotics and hypocrites, such as the movie world is, a normal person." says Marcello Mastroianni.

WELL ENDOWED

With a 37½-24-37½ figure, Claudia is an earthy, smoldering sex queen in the Italian tradition of Loren and Lollobrigida.

But as John Wayne says: "How even a girl look like that and be so darn nice at the same time?"

Wayne co-starred with Claudia in Circus World. Now Claudia is in Hollywood for her first made - in - America movie-Blindfold, with Rock Hudson.

She plays a saucy New York showgirl, continuing to vary her roles.

"I do not want to be a sex symbol," she says. "I look upon myself as an actress. In Italy, I am regarded more as an actress than for my sex appeal."

She recently won Italy's version of an Oscar for her role in Bube's Girl.

The award was particularly sweet because, after eliminations, only two actresses remained — Claudia and Sophia Loren for Marriage, Italian Style.

It was the climax of a seven-year career for the pretty Tunisian girl who became an international star in spite of herself.

WANTED TO TEACH

"I always wanted to be a school teacher," she says.

But a charity bazaar, in which her mother was on the committee, sidetracked what could have been the solution to her future problems. One of the day's events was a beauty contest. First prize was a trip to the Venice film festival.

"They asked me to go on stage with them. But when the contest is started, they push me on."

Movie contracts were waved at the exotic beauty. I did not want to make cinema. I wanted to teach."

She returned home followed by cables and letters. One came from Rome and signed a seven year contract. That was 25 pictures ago.

Although her ample charms often have poured out of bikinis and towels, she never has posed nude.

IS WELL ADJUSTED

Claudia, unquestionably on the way to stardom, is well adjusted to it. One of her closest friends makes this comment:

"There will be no sleeping pills in Claudia's life."

What's the reason for this abnormal happiness in the movie hothouse?

"I thank my good family," she answers. "At home, nobody talks about my work, nobody throws me flowers, nobody hesitates to argue with the family star."

She adds with a shrug:

"If one doesn't like being a movie star, you can always quit and be a housewife."

ABC Makes Special Effort To Attract Young People

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Broadcasting Co. highly con clous that much of its current success is due to its large audience of young people, makes special efforts to attract them.

June 28, it will overhaul one of its daytime serials, Flame in the Wind, specifically to attract more young housewives.

When its 12 O'clock High returns next fall in an earlier time period, it will have replaced its star, Robert Lansing playing a general, with Paul Burke, playing a major. The switch was dictated by the network's theory that the added young viewers of the Second World War drama would identify closer with a more boyish-looking officer of lesser rank.

On the other hand, NBC appears to be actively engaged in sloughing off some of its younger fans.

Next week, for instance, it moves its early evening rock 'n' roll hour, Hullabaloo, to the end of its Tuesday night primetime schedule.

CHANGES NIGHTS

Next season, The Man from U.N.C.L.E. is plucked from its popular early Monday evening spot and placed in a 10 p.m. Friday time period.

The decision was made seven or eight months ago before the program emerged as a hit.

Meanwhile, protest letters by the thousands are flooding the network and the MGM studios which produces the James Bondish series. Young viewers, particularly in the 7 to 13 age group, are complaining that they simply couldn't miss the show, but couldn't do it again.

The series, incidentally, is the season's big rags-to-riches show. After it made its debut last September opposite Red Skelton and McHale's Navy, its ratings hit close to the bottom of Nielsen's list, and its principle sponsor wanted out. It was shifted into a Monday night spot and received a dramatic boost in ratings.

Al Hirt's forthcoming CBS variety series, which will replace the Jackie Gleason show for the summer, will be called Fanfare and will premiere June 19 with guest stars including Eydie Gormes, Errol Garner and Stan Freberg.

Bloomfield Trounces Trenton

TRENTON (Special) — The Bloomfield 'Yankees' continued their hot pace in the Belleville and District League here last night by dumping Trenton Commercial Printers 9-3.

The victory boosted Bloomfield into sole possession of first place in the seven-team loop standings, two points ahead of Belleville Trudeau Motors.

Trenton at Stirling scheduled for tonight has been postponed because of examinations.

League secretary Cliff Belch has called a league meeting for next week from tonight, at the Belleville fairgrounds, and postponed games will likely be rescheduled at that time.

Bloomfield lost no time in taking command last night. They scored five runs in the first inning. The first three batters hit doubles, followed by a walk and three singles.

It was 8-0 before Trenton got to a pair in the bottom of the seventh, on three consecutive hits.

Carl Stacey wound up with a six-hit victory on the Bloomfield mound after having a two-hit shutout for six frames. He struck out 10 and did not walk a man.

Pat Macrale was combed for 13 hits on the Trenton rubber, almost half of them in the first inning. He fanned four and passed two.

Gene Yorke rapped three Bloomfield singles with Ron Wesse banging out a two-run homer and a double. Lee St. Denis and Keith MacDonald each got a double and single. Dave Lockwood two singles, Frank Forester and Jim Guerney one each.

Terry Hutchison had two doubles, Lem Mowatt a double and single, Don Cole and Jim Whyte a two-bagger each for the losers.

Movie-makers Put Trust In Those Blockbuster Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie industry continues to place its trust in the blockbuster.

What is a blockbuster? It is a film made with several millions of dollars, a stellar cast, an excess of action and - or scenery, and high hopes that 'it will draw many more customers than the usual attraction. A wayside critic also calls them seat-busters, because of their extreme length.

There can be no doubt of the industry's efforts on studio fortunes by blockbusters (they can also be near disasters, as in the case of Mutiny on the Bounty and Cleopatra). The first four winners in Variety's May survey of the nation's box-offices were in that category: The Sound of Music, My Fair Lady, The Greatest Story Ever Told, The Train.

Far from being dismayed by its experience with Cleopatra—which is expected to pay off its first cost of these days—20th Century-Fox is putting its trust in the big picture. The company will release three road-show (reserved seat) films this year.

DEPICT MICHELANGELO

The first, 'The Sound of Music, appears to be a smash hit. There is equal promise for this fall's The Agony and The Ecstasy, the Michelangelo saga starring Charlton Heston and Rex Harrison.

Now comes Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines, or How I Flew from London to Paris in 25 Hours and 11 Minutes. Since it came from no hit book or play and was made without stars, it was an unknown quantity. The Fox moguls can now rest more easily.

The title tells all the plot you need to know. The time is 1910, and an enterprising London publisher (Robert Morley) offers a prize for the winner of an air race across the English Channel. Pioneer airmen from all over the world converge for the event.

AT THE BELLE — Rough and Tough are the words for John Wayne who stars with Claudia Cardinale and Rita Hayworth in Samuel Bronston's Technicolor production, showing today, Friday and Saturday at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

The film thus affords many of the same opportunities for fun of Around the World in 80 Days, which it somewhat resembles. Those Magnificent Men is funnier, though less sophisticated. ADV—for PMs THURS June 10

WHOLESALE PRICE INDEX CLIMBING — The wholesale price index — a diverse selection of the bulk trading prices of a broad range of primary and processed commodities — rose 1.4 points to 249.0 in May. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics says figures are still preliminary but it was the second monthly increase in a row. Wholesale prices have been relatively stable most of the last three years. The index was 245.2 and 245.9 in April and May last year. Wholesale prices of animal products, iron products, non-ferrous metals and to a lesser extent textile products were mainly responsible for the latest increase. The wholesale price index is based on the 1935-39 monthly average equalling 100. (CP Newsmap)

Does LBJ Himself Know What Is Next in Asia?

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deeper the United States gets involved in the war in Viet Nam the more complex the future looks.

For more than a year after he succeeded the assassinated President Kennedy in November, 1963, President Johnson put almost all his attention on the field where he was expert: Domestic doings and dealings with Congress. Under his prodding Congress made remarkable progress.

But within a month after taking office on his own last January, Johnson plunged into the foreign field where his experience was limited and his ability never proven because it was never tested.

He moved in a big way, ordering the bombing of North Viet Nam, an order still being carried out although the North Vietnamese have not visibly budged an inch.

Ironically, unless there is a quick solution in Asia where none is in sight, the final judgment on the success of failure or wisdom of the Johnson administration may have to be made in this field least familiar to it: Foreign problems.

At this juncture no one outside the administration, and perhaps no one inside it, can say whether the United States is going to get into a big land war in Asia.

Contributing to the uncertainty is the way in which American involvement is being stepped up.

PREMIUM A PUZZLE

No president could be expected to telegraph his punches to an enemy with detailed public announcement beforehand of policies and intentions but there is a certain puzzle about this.

Does Johnson have thought-out plans for each step the United States intends to take in Viet Nam or are those steps more the product of events than of planning?

For instance, last March, when marines were sent into Viet Nam, the U.S. defence department said the South Vietnamese government asked for them to guard the air base at Da Nang and gave this official explanation:

"The limited mission of the marines will be to relieve the government of South Viet Nam forces now engaged in security duty for action in the pacification programs and in offensive roles against Communist guerrillas."

That made it seem the Americans would sit tight, doing guard duty, while the South Vietnamese did the fighting. There were 27,000 troops and marines in Viet Nam in March. Gradually the number was increased until now there are 54,000.

And now the Americans' role seems a lot less limited. Last Friday a military spokesman in Saigon said these U.S. forces had a dual role: Of defence and taking part in battle in support of South Vietnamese forces when help is asked.

A state department spokesman indicated the same thing Tuesday, which seemed to be putting U.S. forces far deeper into war. And Wednesday a White House spokesman said that while the Americans are in South Viet Nam to guard important bases, they can be used in combat to help the South Vietnamese under certain circumstances.

So gradually American involvement has increased. There was a similar stepup in explanations when 4,000 more troops into the Dominican Republic. First, he said it was to save American lives; then he added that it was to prevent a Communist takeover.

There is another uncertainty about Johnson's future foreign policy: Will he be as quick to use American armed forces in other situations which may arise in these next four years as he was in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic?

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Times today urges President Johnson "to take the country into his confidence" and give the Congress time for a full debate before the war in Viet Nam is escalated any further.

In an editorial, The Times says the Johnson administration's decision authorizing a combat role for U.S. troops in South Viet Nam is only confirmed by Wednesday's White House statement, "yet the statement is carefully drafted to give the impression that the United States is not embarking on a radical new course.

"A land war on the continent of Asia, which many of the country's leading military men long have opposed, is not undertaken lightly or without premeditation and carefully planned.

"The doubling of American troops in South Viet Nam since March and the reports that the 54,000 there are being increased to 70,000 suggested implementation of a plan approved in February and prepared much earlier."

Hydro Strike Banned By House Action

Decision On Rules Nearing

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons headed towards a final decision today on its reform of rules and procedures with MPs uncertain whether the debate will conclude with a bang or a whimper.

Privy Council president McIlraith thinks there is unanimous agreement to complete the debate, now in its 15th day, by 5 p.m. and no opposition party has yet challenged this view.

But the gentlemen's agreement arranged Tuesday has not been written into the Commons official records and, as one MP close to inter-party discussions remarked, an easy conclusion may depend on how many gentlemen are around at the end of the day.

It was on Tuesday the government agreed to divide one resolution and send the provisions for a debate-limiting guillotine rule to a special nine-man committee with orders to report back to the House at 11 a.m. today.

Opposition leader Diefenbaker and some members of other opposition parties are opposed to the guillotine that would permit a simple majority rather than majority House support to place time limits on each stage of a government bill.

There would be a guarantee of six days debate at least, if as all-party business committee could not agree on longer or shorter times, plus up to two days for each amendment.

The uncertainty today results from the compromise reached Tuesday. Mr. McIlraith was unable to announce unanimous agreement for-handling the rest of the debate because the Creditistes were opposed to other parts of the resolution. For this reason the agreement was not written into the House records.

Although the Creditistes apparently were objecting only to the abolition of appeals against the Speaker's ruling, they were not formally a party to the agreement.

The nine - man committee, comprising three Liberals, three Conservatives and one

"Typical American color discrimination."

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government imposed compulsory arbitration in Toronto's hydro dispute Thursday night, less than half an hour before a midnight strike deadline.

After a stormy debate, the opposition waived its right to have the bill debated in committee and third reading was approved without a recorded vote.

Immediately after Royal Assent, Deputy Labor Minister J. B. Metzler handed a copy of the bill to William Baker, president of Local 1 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC). He had been listening to the debate from the gallery with members of his negotiating committee.

Mr. Metzler said later it was Mr. Baker's responsibility to see that the new law was communicated to the union's 550 members before the strike deadline.

BACK MOTION

The vote on the government's bill was 56 to 31. The Liberals backed a New Democratic Party motion that supported a combination of mediation and arbitration as an alternative to the strike ban.

Under the NDP plan, the union would have lifted the strike deadline if the government appointed a mediator. The mediator would have 60 days to seek a settlement, then all unresolved issues would be submitted to arbitration.

The formula was backed by the union and was recommended by the Toronto Hydro Electric System. The system suggested voluntary arbitration but this was refused by the union.

In proposing second reading of the bill, Premier Robarts said a halt or interruption in the supply of power would seriously threaten the health, welfare and economic well - being of the people served by Toronto Hydro — more than 10 per cent of Ontario's population.

The employees represented by the union include linemen required to repair breaks in transmission lines.

Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree, who presented a detailed explanation of his department's efforts to resolve the dispute, said there was intransigence on both sides. He indicated a clash of personalities was a big factor.

The union seeks a one - year agreement giving an 18 - cent - an - hour increase to linemen tradesmen and laborers. The hydro system has offered a two - year agreement with an eight-to-12-cent increase and improvements in the vacation plan.

Current salaries are $2.13 an hour for laborers and $2.97 for linemen.

Fringe benefits and side issues also remain to be settled.

Open-heart Operation Developed In Canada Applauded in Britain

LONDON (CP) — An open-heart operation developed in Canada and adopted here in the last five months is hailed today in Britain's medical and popular press as the latest news in medicine's long fight to help babies born with heart defects.

The operation, correction of a congenital defect known as transposition of the great vessels—producing "blue babies"—was developed by cardiac surgeon William P. Mustard at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Dr. Mustard first reported his technique in the medical press last year. It involves redirecting the flow of blood inside the heart by sewing in an artificial baffle. This counteracts the defect in which the vena cava and pulmonary arteries are reversed, and turns the blue baby into a normal child.

A team of doctors at London's Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children reports "dramatic" success with the Mustard technique in seven out of nine cases attempted since March. Two died of complications but in the others "the change is dramatic."

The Lancet, a British medical journal, says in an editorial accompanying the report that the new surgery is "exciting news" because Mustard's technique has been proved "a reliable method" of dealing with the defect.

The development was featured on a BBC television program Thursday night and made headlines in most national newspapers today. One paper notes that the surgical technique originated outside Britain.

The Sunday Daily Express describes the operation in an editorial as "a splendid breakthrough," showing that "British scientists can still lead the world."

Says the Daily Express: "Now, thanks to pioneering work by surgeons at Great Ormond Street Hospital, London, they (blue babies) may expect to lead lives of normal length and usefulness."

Machine-guns Bark In Quebec Bush

Police Battle Three Gunmen, Capture Fugitive

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — One of two prisoners who escaped from the Quebec City jail a week ago was recaptured Thursday night during a gun battle in the bush near this city 85 miles northeast of Montreal.

Antoine Levasseur, 23, was found unarmed Thursday night cowering beneath a pile of brush and leaves while provincial police and local police officers fought it out with two men armed with machine-guns, and pistols. The men had been with Levasseur earlier in the day.

Police said they were quite certain that one of these two men, who are still in the dense brush, is Roger Cote, 25, Levasseur's co-escapee.

A provincial police spokesman said early today that there had been no gunfire during the night, both sides holding their positions.

He said the men had little chance of escaping as the one-mile square area in which they were hiding was surrounded by police.

HAVE AMMUNITION

A police officer taking part in the search Thursday night that the heavily-armed men were reported to have ample supplies of ammunition.

The running battle began Thursday afternoon when two provincial police officers were sent to investigate reports of three suspicious - looking men walking along railroad tracks five miles northeast of here.

Police had been on the alert for three men who held up a bank in Bastican, 20 miles northeast of Trois Rivieres, last Monday.

Despite a number of shots which were fired as the men fled, no one was hit.

Sales Act Proposed To House

TORONTO (CP) — Sweeping legislation to protect institutional-plan buyers was proposed Thursday by the Ontario legislature's select committee on consumer credit.

The 14-member, three-party committee recommended a retail instalment sales act to include:

—Full disclosure of credit charges on both dollar amounts and an annual percentage;

—A two-day "cooling-off period" in which a buyer could change his mind on a credit purchase;

—Prohibition of automatic or blanket wage assignments on default of payments;

—Regulations to end misleading advertising, including a provision that when an interest rate is advertised it should be stated as a true annual rate;

—An end to the practice of separating a payment contract from the seller which alleges a finance company to collect payments on a used car without being legally responsible for any faults in the car.

—Establishment of a government debt-counselling service destined to help young married couples who get into financial difficulties.

—Provincial registration of door-to-door salesmen, to control irresponsible peddlers who move quickly into town;

—Making it impossible to repossess goods sold on credit after two-thirds of the price has been paid—the seller would have to go to court and sue for the balance if the purchaser defaulted in payment.

The report to the legislature came too late for any action to be taken during the current session, likely to end next week.

Premier Robarts said Thursday he has not had time to read the report, but it will be studied closely "with a view to implementation of recommendations."

The committee said it may be beyond the power of the province to make disclosure laws applicable to banks, and said the government should seek comprehensive federal legislation or complementary federal and provincial laws.

DEBATE BITTER

Much of Thursday's sitting was taken up with a bitter six-hour debate on the proposed Ontario medical services insurance act.

Opposition members failed to block a section of the act which will end the "risk" purchasers of health insurance for the aged, the sick and the infirm now pay higher premiums than normal risks.

The conservative majority also rejected opposition protests to a clause which would make fees paid to doctors 100 per cent of the Ontario Medical Association schedule in effect when the legislation goes into operation next year.

Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said the measure was a blank cheque and an open invitation to doctors to raise their fees before the legislation went into effect.

Bloody Viet Nam Battle Ends With Town Littered With Dead

SAIGON (AP) — The battle for Dong Xoai, one of the bloodiest of the Viet Nam war, ended Tuesday with heavy casualties on both sides and the province headquarters town a shambles strewn with bodies.

One American was killed, 17 were missing and 15 were wounded according to the latest official count, a U.S. military spokesman said. A newspaper man who visited the town 60 miles north of Saigon said several American bodies were found in the ruins.

The number of U.S. casualties in Viet Nam jumped again today when a C-123 transport crashed in flames in central Viet Nam, killing eight Americans. A U.S. spokesman said a ground party recovered the bodies of two air force men and six army men.

Military sources said bad weather could have caused the crash, but they did not rule out the possibility that the plane was shot down.

Government and Viet Cong casualties were heavy in the fierce fighting that began at Dong Xoai early Thursday. About 150 civilians also were reported killed, including many women and children.

The government reported 280 casualties for its forces — 108 killed, 126 missing and 46 wounded. It claimed that 700 Communist guerrillas were killed—300 in Dong Xoai and another 400 by U.S. and South Vietnamese air strikes three to four miles north of the town.

None of the government figures were confirmed by U.S. military officials.

U.S. and South Vietnamese planes flew 121 sorties against the Dong Xoai area Thursday.

Through the night the Communists probed at government positions in the town, and there was hand-to-hand fighting on the outskirts.

The shooting ended at 6:30 a.m. when the Viet Cong pulled out of the area and disappeared into the jungle, the U.S. spokesman said.

Most of the wounded Americans were evacuated Thursday afternoon. Maj. Harvey D. Stedfast of Houston, Tex., was his ground party through heavy Viet Cong fire to evacuate the wounded, military officials said.

Chief Talk Will Be On Viet Nam

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Ministers Shastri of India and Pearson of Canada settle down today to a solid three hours and 15 minutes of talk, chiefly about Viet Nam.

This is not counting the time they will have to chat over dinner tonight at the country club.

The two leaders are expected to discuss mainly:

1. How to get negotiations going on Viet Nam; and

2. How to help guarantee any settlement reached at such negotiations with an international peacekeeping force.

Prime Minister Shastri, 60-year-old leader of the world's most populous democracy, has called for a cessation of U.S. air strikes against Communist North Viet Nam.

Mr. Shastri, dressed in a brown achkan over a white dhoti and wearing a white Ghandi cap, arrived at a sunlit Uplands Airport here Thursday for a five-day Canadian visit.

"I am sure this visit and our forthcoming talks will help us both to play a more effective role in the present disturbed international situation and strengthen still further the ties of Canadian - India friendship," he said.

Williamson Gets 6 Months For Forging Dear Hal Note

VANCOUVER (CP) — Public relations man Al Williamson was sentenced Thursday to six months in jail and fined $1,000 in supreme court for forging and uttering the "Dear Hal" letter.

Williamson, 60, collapsed in the prisoner's box when found guilty last Friday. He looked pale but stoic when sentenced by Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe.

He embraced and kissed his wife before he was taken into custody before transfer to Oakalla prison to serve the sentence.

"Dear God, forgive them," sobbed his wife.

Williamson received the fine and prison term for forging a letter to Prime Minister Pearson's aide, Hal Dornan, in the name of British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

He received a concurrent term of six months on the second charge of uttering the forgery—causing Mr. Dornan to act on the letter as if it were genuine.

Mr. Justice Munroe said the $1,000 fine must be paid by July 30 or Williamson must serve an additional six months.

Williamson's lawyers, Lloyd McKenzie and Tom Braidwood, said the matter of appeal is under consideration.

In passing sentence, the judge said he took into consideration William's age, previous good conduct, and the jury's recommendation for leniency on the second charge.

The "Dear Hal" letter was written May 4, 1964, in support of an application by American businessman Ben Stonehill for landed immigrant status in Canada.

The application was denied. Stonehill left Canada and now faces charges in the United States over shipment of goods to the Philippines, where he made a postwar fortune.

The letter came to light after a press sensation over an alleged suggestion by Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to the immigration minister, that Stonehill should buy the status with a $25,000 or $35,000 contribution to the Liberal party.

Junta Says 'Execution Site' Smells of a Communist Trick

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) — Officials of the Organization of American States today swatted action on their bid to have executed prisoners sent to the Dominican Republic to examine an alleged suburban "execution site" where half-burned bodies were found earlier this week.

Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, leader of the "reconstruction" junta government, Thursday night denied that his forces had any connection with the killings claimed to have occurred there.

Usually reliable sources quoted residents living near the site, in the village of Villa Mella 12 miles from Santo Domingo, as saying Imbert forces carried out 33 executions there between May 22 and Saturday.

The criminologists were sought by Dr. Jose Mora, secretary-general of the inter - American organization, after the bodies and several possible grave sites were inspected by OAS, United Nations and inter-American human rights commission officials.

Mora asked his secretariat in Washington to recruit Dr. Daniel Schweitzer of Chile and two other experts to visit the site and investigate "alleged executions and other possible violations of human rights."

He also asked inter-American peace force chief Gen. Hugo Panasco Alvim of Brazil to send troops to the site to guard the charred remains and disturbed plots of earth until experts could examine them.

Guessing Game May Soon End

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker may end the guessing game about his future late this year at an annual meeting of the party.

Informants say that in dealing with the question Mr. Diefenbaker will not necessarily be announcing plans for retirement. His decision whether to stay at the helm will depend partly on just how close the government is to setting a general election.

If one appears to be close, he is expected to say he will lead the party into the fight, provided party unity is assured and no new efforts are made to dump him as there were at party meetings in the last two years.

However, if the government appears to be in a position where it cannot call an election for a year or more, Mr. Diefenbaker may urge the party to prepare for a leadership convention in 1966.

PRIME FACTORS

Factors in the government's decision about an election will be the imminence of registration of parliamentary redistribution and fall assessments of its political strength.

Once the Commons receives reports from the 10 commissioned chairmen of new constituency boundaries it will be virtually impossible for the government to call a substantive election except in the event of a defeat in the Commons.

Top Conservatives are considering a late October or November annual meeting at Montreal. However, as a precaution, the PC Association is booking reservations for Ottawa in the first week of November.

By that time it will be clear whether Conservatives are to go to the country or observing a tacit agreement to stop pressure for an immediate change of leadership.

BIRTHDAY IN FALL

The Conservative leader has his 70th birthday Sept. 18 and, if his health remains good, is said by friends to be ready to carry on at least until the summer of 1966.

Queen Attends Magna Carta Service

LONDON (CP) — The Queen joined her subjects Thursday in celebrating an event that occurred 750 years ago — and marked the first great constitutional defeat of the English monarchy.

Queen Elizabeth, and Prince Philip went to St. Paul's Cathedral — with soldiers in full church and state for a commemorative service in honor of the signing of Magna Carta June 15 in 1215.

Britain's most eminent judges, in colorful robes, had mounted the steps of St. Paul's. The Archbishop of Caterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, greeted the Queen. Prime Minister Wilson and other political figures were on hand.

One of the original copies of Magna Carta was carried through St. Paul's Cathedral and was described by Lord Denning, one of Britain's leading jurists, as "the greatest constitutional document of all time."

Council Told Madoc Road To Be Provincial Highway

A main Hastings county road artery which has been a local political issue for more than 30 years — the Madoc - Foxboro road — is to become a provincial highway next year.

Clarke T. Rollins, MLA for Hastings East, told county council Thursday he had the assurance of highways minister Hon. Charles S. McNaughton that the Madoc Road would become an extension of Highway 62 as of April 30th, 1966.

Although made by Mr. Rollins, the announcement was a joint one, made also on behalf of W. E. Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West, and Deputy Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, who is ill at his home.

Mr. Rollins said that he had been working since 1948 to have the Madoc county road become a provincial highway and had been assisted greatly by Mr. Sandercock.

UP TO STANDARD

Now completely rebuilt as a development road project, the Madoc county road is already up to highway standards, the main change being the process part of the provincial highways system next year to be in signs and in improved winter maintenance.

Local efforts to have the Madoc county road become a provincial highway date back at least to the 1930's.

The road has long been considered by many as the main artery leading to the north of the county, but it remained a county road ranked behind No 14 Highway to Marmora and No. 37 Highway from Belleville to Actinolite.

POLICY CHANGED

The position of the highways department has changed since been that a third north and south highway in the county would not be considered and the Madoc road would not be taken over unless either No. 14 or No. 37 Highways reverted to the county.

Yesterday, however, Mr. Rollins assured that under no circumstances would either of these two highway routes revert to the county.

Mr. Rollins said that highways minister Hon. Charles S. McNaughton would be prepared to come to Hastings for official opening ceremonies for the highway.

The announcement by Mr. Rollins brought a round of applause from county councillors. Warden Fred Beckett officially expressing appreciation.

"We are glad to know that the Madoc county road is being taken over by the province," he said. "It will relieve the county of considerable expense in maintenance."

Mr. Rollins noted that the money now spent on maintenance for the Madoc road could be used for improvement work in other county arteries.

Madoc village reeve Thomas Burnside added the gratitude of Madoc citizens.

He said the Madoc road becoming a provincial highway would be a benefit to Madoc because it is the main artery to the north part of the county who would now have a direct route to 401 Highway.

Faulty Dives Can Cause Serious Injury

Most of us know the saying "look before you leap." However, like many good pieces of advice, this one has become merely a saying and its implications are too often overlooked. Even in its literal sense it is frequently ignored.

According to Red Cross drowning statistics, diving into water is an activity which causes relatively few drownings in Canada. But its toll in serious injuries is frightening.

Every year, dozens of Canadians injure themselves seriously by making faulty dives into the water. Some dive into water that is too shallow, some injure themselves by attempting stunt diving, others fail to pull out of a dive in time and still others crash into swimmers already in the water. In too many cases the result is a broken neck. If these victims had looked before they leapt, they would have avoided injury.

The tragedy of these diving accidents is that most of the victims are under 30 years of age. They are in their prime. Such an accident snuffs out any future they might have had, leaving nothing for them but a life of misery in a wheelchair.

June 6 to 12 is Red Cross Water Safety Week in Canada. It's a good time for everyone to heed the advice of the Red Cross to be water wise and "look before you leap."

Vertical Parking Being Mooted By Authority

A plan for a vertical parking operation is being mooted by Belleville Parking Authority, city merchants were told last night.

Irv Shulman, member of the Downtown Businessmen's Association, indicated to a meeting voting on store hours at the Hotel Quinte it was among possible improvements projected by the Authority.

"We are presently considering more aspects of vertical parking and I believe this is in the plans for the future," he said.

He warned the merchants against using street parking space — to the detriment of their own business.

"Please keep your cars and your employees' cars off the streets of Belleville. It's most important that the customers who come downtown to shop in your stores have a place to park."

Athol Township Ratepayers In Favor of Own School

PICTON (Staff) — On a motion by Gordon Demore, seconded by Earl Brummell, the following resolution received unanimous approval at the Athol Ratepayers' meeting.

"That the Ratepayers meeting request the Athol Township School Board to take the necessary steps to build a new school in Athol Township at a tentative cost of $225,000 with a 30-year debenture terms".

That a copy be sent to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Township Clerk Douglas Moore said such motion is a routine preliminary step required by the Ontario Municipal Board.

The special meeting of Athol ratepayers called Wednesday evening by the Township School Board more than filled the Cherry Valley town hall. Well over two hundred ratepayers and interested School Board members from neighboring Hallowell and South Marysburgh Townships crammed the building.

Members of the Athol Township School Board, chairman Stanley Rankin, Harvey Ostrander, Malcolm Dulmage, James Whiteford, Lloyd Young and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Eldon McConnell, were on hand to explain what has been accomplished so far as Athol seeks their own central school and what is left to do.

On a motion by former reeve, George Demore and Sam Armstrong, Hutton Martin was appointed chairman of the meeting.

Chairman Martin welcomed the large turnout and thanked the Board for tireless efforts on behalf of the ratepayers and their children. "If we go down, we will go down fighting," stated chairman Martin and the meeting was under way.

Athol Township School Board Stanley Rankin was called upon to advise what had taken place so far and how the present situation had come about. Chairman Rankin stated "We're in the mess, and we'll see it through if possible."

The School Board had talked about forming a central township school as far back as last January, advised chairman Rankin, and they heard rumors that Athol might be divided under the proposed new system but they could not get any authentic proof that the rumor was true.

PETITION CIRCULATED

In February, the Board had contacted the local provincial member explaining the circumstances and were advised to get the feeling of the ratepayers. A petition for a township central school was carried out with 541 names secured. When contacted, only two people would not sign the petition at that time but have since advised of their support. Application to the Department of Education to build a seven-room township central school at a tentative price of $225,000 was given approval.

Upon receipt of a letter from the Consultative Board, Athol School Board Marysburg met with them on March 4th. It was at this first and only meeting with the Board that Athol were advised what policy had been adopted and of the proposed busing of the township, sending some students to Hallowell and others to South Marysburgh.

Chairman of the Consultative Committee, Arthur Moore, (who has since tendered his resignation to County Council) had asked for any comments from the Athol Board at this report. At no time were we asked, stated chairman Rankin for any proposals or our point of view. This was the last Athol heard from the Consultative Committee as the meeting adjourned.

After this one meeting, the Consultative Committee held a similar meeting with North Marysburg and then turned their attention to the Hillier-Wellington amalgamation.

When returning to the Athol situation the committee simply called a special meeting of County Council on May 31 to pass a by-law severing Athol to make the split. The proposed cut up of the township remained the same as was presented in the original March 4th meeting, concluded chairman Rankin.

Westhill-Hillcrest Bus Route Extended

The Belleville Transit Commission has been informed that its recommendation for a permanent extension of the Westhill — Hillcrest Mobile via Mc-Farlane Drive in the Hillcrest Area has been approved by Council.

Prior to this recommendation, a 30-day trial run had been made on this route. From various comments received, along with a survey of the passenger count, it appears that this improvement in service has been beneficial to the residents in this area.

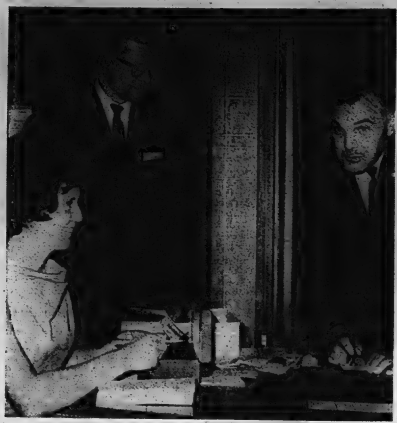
Enrollment Heavy

Teachers' Summer School Transferred to Moira

A month long summer school course in auxiliary education dealing with special problem classes in public schools will be held at the Moira Secondary School in Belleville this summer.

Originally planned for an expected enrollment of about 120 public school teachers from the Eastern Ontario district, the course enrollment has already reached 244 and is still rising.



As result of the increased enrollment, the summer school course will be held at Moira Secondary school instead of at the Harry J. Clarke public school as was intended.

Principal of the school will be Gordon Jorgenson, M.A. of London, with Mrs. Pamela Fuoco of the Belleville public school board office as secretary. The summer school course will run from July 5th to August 6th.

In addition to public school teachers with special problem and slow-learning pupils, the course will also be attended by training teachers from secondary schools.

Ask Worker if Job Is Safe Accident-reducing Prescription Offered IAPA by E. S. Booth

E. S. Booth, Assistant Vice-President, Manufacturing, Northern Electric Co. Limited, last night told members of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations to ask every worker in their plant today If what he or she is doing is safe.

Mr. Booth, former manager of the Belleville plant, and now of Montreal, was guest speaker at the I.A.P.A. Annual Meeting of the Belleville-Trenton Section and the Central Ontario Division at Club Canara.

"I believe that if we are to prevent more accidents we will have to educate people to be constantly aware of existing hazards.

"There is no magic wand that you can wave and endow people with a new feeling of precaution. The only way I know of to educate people is to subject them to a discipline over and over again.

"By asking everyone if what they are doing is safe — and if it isn't, by all means it must be stopped until the hazard is removed, — you can build better methods of getting people to become more aware of the hazards of their work.

"I also believe that if this kind of questioning is carried out sincerely, it will become a way of life for people to think about safety and will carry over with them, not only in their work but into their homes and on the highways.

COME LONG WAY

"As a youngster when I started to work in factories," he continued, "most of the machines were belt-driven. I used to see operators taking wild chances in shifting these belts manually. In those days it was a common sight to see a man with a few fingers missing and glass eyes were common.

"We have come a long way in the past 40 years—so much so that I understand a man is safer at work than he is on the road or at home.

"What we have done has been to guard everything — belts, chain driver, punch and dies—anything that moved that man could inadvertently get his finger into was guarded."

Mr. Booth went on to list a variety of safety features that have been added in industry over the last 40 years in an effort to prevent accidents.

"All these gadgets are to prevent operators from being injured," he said, "but we still have some injuries. Why? Because nothing man-made is perfect and perhaps we have been placing the emphasis in the wrong place.

"Accidents today are caused by a sense of unawareness of the dangers by the workers. We have the safety features in our machines, now let us resolve to be more aware as to what is going on and teach our employees to do the same."

G. J. "Mike" Cooper, Northern Electric, Belleville, was chairman for the evening. Mr. Cooper finished his term as chairman of the Central Ontario Division last night.

No Action Taken on Sale Of County Farm

Hastings county council will take no immediate action on the sale of its county farm west of the city.

Earlier this week a letter from a firm of sub - dividers was read in council offering to purchase the county farm for a housing development site.

Yesterday council referred the offer of purchase back to its county home committee and also the matter of an extension to the county home or the need of a new county home to relieve crowded conditions.

During the county home discussion it had been brought out that the home was taxed to its capacity with a waiting list of older people waiting for admission as residents.

Also at yesterday's concluding session of council, councillors approved a resolution asking that the price of cheese be maintained at 42 cents per lb.

Recently the 3.6 cents per lb. stabilization subsidy on cheese was dropped by the government and Hastings county Warden Fred Beckett reported farmers were disappointed that the cheese board price had not been increased accordingly.

Grant Made To Hospital

The Ontario government has approved a capital grant of $1,960,229.82 toward the construction of the new extension to Belleville General Hospital, it was learned today.

The announcement of the provincial grant approval came from Hon. M. B. Dymond, Ontario Minister of Health, through local member W. Elmer Sandercock.

The letter from the health minister to Mr. Sandercock said the government had established a credit of the above amount to Belleville General Hospital in accordance with a recent decision reached by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

The capital works grant is based on 373 active beds at $3,200; 40 physiatric beds at $8,500; 14 recovery beds at $3,200 and six emergency beds at the same figure.

The grant approval also included certain costs for ancillary services and for renovations.

The federal government is also expected to make a capital grant towards the hospital extension for which the overall cost has been estimated at $7,500,00.

90th Birthday Celebrated by Henry Burton

TRENTON — Stone mason Henry Burton, a former resident of Trenton, is celebrating his 90th birthday at home at Germans Landing north of here today. Mr. Burton will be remembered for the beautiful cairn he built on the Trenton Memorial Hospital grounds in memory of his wife, a cancer victim who willed her body to research. He has been living quietly in the little hamlet on the Trent River near Glen Ross for some years now and enjoys reminiscing with friends on his visits back here.

Once men used the excuse they were playing darts to stay out nights. No anymore; their better-halves decided to join them instead of trying to "beat them. A good example of this way apparent at the ladies' Zone #2 playoffs at the Legion Hall this week when Branch 110 "femmes" qualified for regional games June 26. Mr. Burton will be remembered for the beautiful cairn he built on the Trenton Memorial Hospital grounds in memory of his wife, a cancer victim who willed her body to research. He has been living quietly in the little hamlet on the Trent River near Glen Ross for some years now and enjoys reminiscing with friends on his visits back here.

Mr. Held is a partner in the firm of James M. Dunwoody and Company, and has accepted a promotion at head office. He will be returning to town from time to time to visit the local office on tours of inspection.

Thomas Fleming from the company's Port Francis branch has become the firm's Trenton manager.

A Costly Plan

Federal Revenue Minister Edgar Benson's statement at Brighton last week that a government information program will soon be launched to acquaint Canadians with their rights and obligations under the Canada Pension Plan will be welcomed by members of the public.

Meanwhile, the minister has revealed that he projected Canada Assistance Program will be operated without a means test, but on a needs test."

He said that provincial social workers will administer the scheme "so that we will be able to give to the old people, and other people who are disabled or blind, a sufficient amount so that they will be able to live decently."

This information is also of public interest, particularly to those who are eligible for the proposed benefits. These now await provincial approval.

At the same meeting in Brighton, Ontario Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson strongly criticised the profit motive behind the proposed provincial medicare plan. He said the plan, administered through private insurance companies, will cost a single individual an estimated $178 annually, for doctors' services alone. By contrast, he said, "one of the western provinces" charges $26-$56 for family subscribers—for a scheme providing doctor and other medical services.

While the amount of $178 annually may not be the final one—the bill still must go through third reading—it is nevertheless an indication of what Ontarians may expect to pay in the event of the bill being passed.

As in the case of the Canada Assistance Plan, federal enterprise, the medicare plan is one about which the people of this province should be kept fully informed. If, as in the case of the federal assistance plan, the medicare scheme is to be operated on the basis of need and without concern to cost, there would be little to worry about.

However, any sum in the region mentioned ($178) is a lot of money for most people, and prohibitive for some. Subsidies are proposed for those with low incomes. Whatever its final provisions and costs, this health plan may easily turn out to be one of the most costly in force anywhere.

High Endeavor

Most of the great endeavors of the world are performed by individuals. Co-operation there must be, but in the ultimate it is the individual who originates ideas in the first place and translates them into action.

The U.S. space program is a co-operative effort involving many people specializing in the realm of higher mathematics, but the men who perform the tasks in space are individuals like Gemini Mcdivitt and Edward White. Without forgetting the planners, for sheer courage and adventurousness the astronaut is the man on whom the eyes of the world focus. He is the hero of the day.

In identifying ourselves with the astronaut in his cosmic void we picture ourselves, Walter Mitty-style, in the same heroic mold. For those lonest to the astronaut, his family, the whole amut of human emotion is experienced in even reater intenseness. Such was the excitement, inged with anxiety, of the Gemini flight, for ins. Pat McDivitt that she was struck dumb, s it were. "I'm speechless," she exclaimed. or Mrs. White, surely one of the prettiest of pace age wives, it was the happiest day of her fe. "I can't tell you how proud I am," she aid.

In those words is the substance of what all usbands everywhere like to hear from their ives, however commonplace their own endeavors by comparison with the spacemen's.

As co-operative efforts then, the flights of S. and Soviet astronauts are masterpieces of uman design and ingenuity. As triumphs of individualism they are sublime. It is the latter haracteristic that the world needs more of; for he world, according to an apt judgment we came pon recently, "has formed a habit of thinking n groups, classes, masses, and civilization is reaking down under the burden of that error.

"Strength and growth are solitary," the writer aid in part. "Thought and growth are solitary; very final reality of a man's life is his alone, incommunicable." The astronauts, for all their lose contact with ground control, were, in the ast resort, alone.

I respect faith, but doubt is what gets you n education.—Wilson Misner.

There Comes Time to Die

Stratford Beacon-Herald

"Thou shalt not kill," says the ancient code, "Nor," adds modern man, "shouldst strive officiously to keep alive."

This latter-day corollary to the Sixth Commandment is becoming of increasing concern to medical man, whose improving science enables them to prolong the lives of dying patients for greater and greater lengths of time.

In the not distant future, it may be possible with tubes and pumps and injections to maintain a vegetable kind of existence in a patient for an indefinite period—at enormous expense in equipment, medicines and the services of large numbers of technicians, nurses and physicians, not to mention the emotional and financial cost to a patient's family.

Along with the growth of the awesome power of the physician has come a moral quandary.

"Need every patient spend his last hours on the pacemaker?" asked one doctor recently, "with a tracheostomy and artificial respiration, with tubes in every orifice and in the process of being dialysed and transfused?" I have gone to desolations as to when are becoming tougher."

The decisions, he added, often amount to "playing God."

The questioner was Dr. Thomas D. Hunter, of the University of Virginia, speaking before a symposium of 40 top medical experts at University Hospitals in Cleveland.

There are always, as Dr. Hunter declared, a few examples of seemingly hopeless individuals being restored to healthy, useful life as a result of heroic efforts of teams of attendants.

Even in those instances where death is inevitable, medicine learns something from the effort to postpone it.

Horse Flies Have It Rough

Windsor Star

Ontario farmers now are busy in their fields. We can't contemplate this scene without wondering what has happened to all the horse flies! Certainly they can't get any satisfaction from eating at tractors or other power equipment.

Time was when horse flies in June days, three or four to a head during seed-time and harvest in Ontario! At times, especially in hot muggy days, they were bad enough to drive a team into a frenzy.

Horses naturally are well equipped to deal with such pests. The long switch of the tail and the stamping or kicking of hoofs could protect the more sensitive parts of the under-belly. The shaking of the head and mane would frighten the flies off. But the harness, the harness, and the pulling of heavy implements, made it difficult for the horses.

There were two types. There were the small flies which bothered mainly with their bites, chin, or in other sensitive areas. These were bad enough but nothing to the big, black horse flies proper. They would buzz around, light quickly and take a bite that really hurt. And, if they were frustrated by a horse, they didn't hesitate to nip a man on the neck or elsewhere.

Good horsemen did all possible to protect their horses. They would have large brass sacks or other material thrown over the horses' backs, and a bit of canvas attached to the bridle to protect the underchin. For carriage horses there often were quite ornate meshes of leather or cloth.

Horse flies are a very frustrated species these days.

Who Wants An Election?

Kingston Whig-Standard

We are of the opinion that the nation does not want an election at this time. It is a disturbing influence on normal business and few people are interested in the issues are so clear today that any party is sure of a working majority in Parliament after an election. It is not difficult to see why the Liberals wish to escape from a position in which they must depend on other parties to support their legislation, but we believe the court of wisdom is to carry on, if they get reasonable support.

DAVID? OR GOLIATH?

To Your Good Health
Elevated Sugar Levels Not Automatically Diabetes

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a blood glucose test show "temporary diabetes"? I have gone to a competent doctor for the last four months. He did not find that my blood tests were anything to be alarmed about. He advised me to go ahead and eat anything. — M. J.

I think you've left something out of your letter, that is, I gather that sometime or other in the past you had a test with suspicious results.

It is possible to have abnormal results in a blood sugar (or blood glucose) test under certain circumstances. For example, preparatory to the test was not correct; if you were suffering from some infection at the time of the test; or if any of various drugs happened to be in use at the time of the test.

For a thorough understanding of what to look for and what to do if you have or suspect diabetes, read my booklet on the subject. (For a copy send 25 cents in coin, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., and request "Diabetes, The Sneaky Disease.")

Briefly, temporary diabetes is a bad term and might better not be used. Either you have diabetes or you don't. It is possible to have somewhat elevated sugar levels from time to time that do not mean diabetes. They may, to some extent, be a warning, however, that diabetes may actually develop later.

Therefore, if you have in the past had an abnormal reading, you should have further checks at reasonable intervals to make sure that diabetes will not develop — or to be ready to start treatment for it without delay. The sooner a case of diabetes is put under control, the less risk there is of developing serious or dangerous complications.

Generally, being checked once a year should be satisfactory unless, for some special reason, your doctor sees a reason for more frequent ones. In your case, M. J. if future tests are normal, I would suspect that you are in the clear.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking birth control pills. A few weeks ago my uterus and cervix were removed, and I'm still taking the pills. Can they harm a person after such surgery? This has me terribly worried. — Mrs. E. W.

Well, stop worrying, because they won't harm you. But with the uterus removed, you cannot become pregnant, so you might as well stop taking the pills and save your money.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My 25-year-old daughter has an awful case of acne or pimples on her face. The trouble started shortly after her first child was born five years ago.

She never was bothered with pimples in her teens; also, she was never regular in her menstrual periods.

They are still not regular, and her face problems seem to be getting worse. — Mrs. J. C. P.

This doesn't sound like the common (but very annoying) type of teen-age acne. True, there may be some basic similarity in cause, but the start of wisdom is to carry on, if they get reasonable support.

Bad to Have All Working

Vancouver Province

It has become almost axiomatic in North America that full employment represents the ultimate in economic efficiency and should be the goal toward which everyone should strive.

Some doubt as to the soundness of this view comes from New Zealand, which is as close to full employment as any country of which we are aware. At the end of 1964 New Zealand had only 700 unemployed out of a population of 2.6 million.

Mr. T. M. N. Rogers, Chief Executive of New Zealand Associated Chambers of Commerce, told the chamber's annual meeting that as a result of full employment New Zealanders don't like work, show almost no initiative and are slothful and slovenly to a degree which is blocking growth of productivity.

He said years of welfare state coddling and a general labor shortage have created a condition in which the unskilled, the lazy and careless are all certain of a total security regardless of their standards of work.

"It is a wonder," Mr. Rogers said, "that we have any self-reliance left." Job-switching has become epidemic and last year out of a total work force of about one million people, no less than a quarter changed jobs. One Auckland firm had a labor turnover of 172 per cent in 12 months.

Does this sort of attitude, he asked, inspire people to give their best in work; talent, enterprise and risk capital?

Conditions in New Zealand provide the answer to Mr. Rogers' question and should make Canadians ask themselves who they full employment is the only goal of a prosperous society.

How's That?

Toronto Star

Questioned in the House of Commons on the Canada-U.S. air deal, Defence Minister C. M. Drury replied: "... it is more likely that we shall not require price increases than that we shall have significant decreases, though I am hopeful we may have some modest price decrease. I should like to caution . . . however, that a price change, whether in the form of there being no increase, or a decrease, cannot be expected to take place until there has been some significant alteration in the cost of production."

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 11, 1965 . . .

The Conscription Act was introduced in the Canadian Parliament 48 years ago today — in 1917 — and the election which followed the act's passing was one of the most divisive of Canadian history. Sir Robert Borden's coalition government was returned with 153 Conservative and 82 pro-conscription Liberals, against 82 anti - conscription Liberals, all but 20 from Quebec. Borden thought conscription essential for the war effort, but Quebec looked on it as an attempt to anglicize French Canadians or use them as cannon-fodder in an "English war."

1509—Henry VIII of England married Catherine of Aragon.

1830 — First recorded earthquake in Canada.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—the Austrian town of Gradisca, on the River Isonzo, was captured by Italian troops; the French captured German supply dumps at Neuville St. Vaast.

Second World War

Twenty - five years ago today—in 1940—the French government moved to Tours; Malta was bombed eight times by Italian aircraft; U.S. Steel Corp. negotiated to sell $37,500,000-worth of surplus munitions to the Allies; Princess Juliana of The Netherlands and her children arrived in Canada.

They Ate Their Way to Glory

Sault Daily Star

One of the problems of today appears to be that we are eating more and enjoying it less. With the abundance of food we have an abundance of fears regarding overweight, constantly being reminded of the dangers of obesity.

However, dangerous or not, there are those who still do consume astronomical amounts of food. Of these, some eat great amounts of food simply because they have healthy appetites, some do it because they have a sickness which impels them to consume a lot of food, and some eat and eat and eat for glory in eating contests.

Those with a sickness which impels them to eat a lot have a rare disease named bulimia, which is a morbid craving for food. People stricken with this affliction spend as much as 15 hours a day eating, and some case recorded back in 1743 of a person consuming 384 pounds of food in six days.

For a really healthy appetite you'd have to go a long way before you could match that of the Bedouins. Arab desert tribes. The main dish for a Bedouin wedding feast consists of cooked eggs stuffed in fish, with the fish stuffed in cooked chickens, the chickens stuffed into a roast sheep carcass, and the sheep stuffed into a whole camel. (All presumably, roasted to a golden brown on a hot spit.)

When it comes to eating for glory there are feasts recorded which give you indigestion from just thinking about them. Do you like oysters? Well, one Joe Garcia at Seattle, in 1955, consumed 480 oysters in 60 minutes in Melbourne, Australia.

How many eggs do you like for breakfast? In 1902 an Englishman named George Dobbs ate 48 eggs in 108 seconds. Georges Gremplet of Belgium put away 45 eggs in 60 minutes in 1956. (Of course, neither of these eats would likely have been performed if the participants hadn't been egged on.)

Hamburgers? An American named Philip Yanzik—a good all-American name if there ever was one—ate 77 hamburgers at one sitting in 1955. And to top that? A 15-pound English lad, Roger McEwan, ate 30 bags in 50 minutes—and without a drink in whet his parched throat—back in 1950. How about a whole roast ox? In 1880, a German ate one whole roast ox in a period of 42 days.

After this, what can we say other than . . . . pass the bicarbonate, please. . .

Strictly Personal
Care Needed If Quoting Shakespeare

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"You remember what Shakespeare said about that?" remarked the man across the dinner table — and proceeded to quote a line from Macbeth, which he had recently seen.

But Shakespeare didn't say it — one of his dramatic characters did. Far from being a piece of the playwright's wisdom, this was a sentiment he put in the mouth of a character he evidently disliked.

When we take the trouble to quote an author (generally in order to bolster our opinion of something), we have a duty to know whether the author was speaking in his own voice. Otherwise, we run the risk of distorting his views.

It is extremely difficult, for instance, to know what Shakespeare himself thought about any fundamental question. His genius lay in his ability to place himself into a thousand minds and hearts, to take one position or another and make it sound plausible and sincere.

This is why, for centuries, Shakespeare's admirers have quarrelled about the "real" Shakespeare — some claiming him as an aristocrat, some as a democrat, some as a religious man, others as an atheist, and so on down the line. There is no resolving these disputes — even his privately printed sonnets do not reveal the full man to us.

The way an author feels about our attributing sentiments to him that are foreign to his life's fiction was brought out by W. S. Gilbert in a trial for libel just before the turn of the century. He was on the witness stand as the plaintiff, and the defense lawyer quoted a statement from one of Gilbert's plays, trying to show that Gilbert actually believed the opposite of what he was saying on the stand.

"Those were the words," Gilbert retorted, "of a character in my play. They were not my words. I would have you, sir, that I do not hold myself responsible for anything a fictional character happens to say."

More recently, I read the statement of a confirmed bachelor who considered himself as saying, "Every woman should marry, and no man." But this well-himself (a happily married man) never said this; he simply put it into the mouth of a character in one of his novels. His own feelings were quite the opposite: he was known as the most devoted husband.

A more frequent kind of literary distortion occurs when a taking a famous line and ignoring what comes after it. Kipling's "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," is a classic example. We use it to justify basic differences between East and West; but the point of the whole poem was precisely the reverse of Kipling was saying that two men of character and courage have much in common, even when they come from different parts of the world. You may quote me on that.

Batboys Are Scarce

Ottawa Journal

Someone was asking the other day where all the batboys had gone. A batboy is that eager little fellow who picks up the bat and returns it to a baseball team's bench after one of the players has hit the ball. Batboys usually have a host of friends who envy them madly after foul balls and generally try to make the bigger boys take notice of them. The service ultimately leads to a berth on the "big team."

At least it did once. Nowadays, it is hard to find batboys at ball-games. The man on the scene seems to be that they are off playing Little League baseball or the like. We hear of one suburban league for mopets that not only has an affiliate "farm" system for boys without enough talent for the main league, but yet another league for boys not good enough to play with the boys who aren't good enough!

We aren't suggesting it's a bad thing for every boy to have a chance to play ball. But oldtimers who watched their way up through neighborhood ranks by picking up bats and chasing foul ball help feeling that today's young fry are missing a character-forming experience.

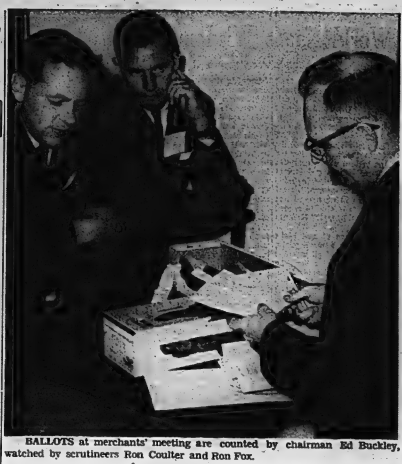
Breath of Life

Every year, the lives of many Canadian adults and children are saved because someone performs mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing on them. Yet, many more lives could be saved if more people knew this artificial respiration technique.

It is taught by Red Cross Water Safety Instructors and groups which are interested in first aid. It's easy to learn and takes no special skill.

We think everyone should learn this life-saving technique, and we think it's particularly important for every mother to know how to use it. Too many of our children die from drowning or suffocation every year. Many of them could be saved if they had the breath of life breathed into them.



This is Red Cross Water Safety Week in Canada. It is a good time to learn mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing from the Red Cross.

Night-time Shopping On Thursday and Friday Approved by Merchants

A majority of Belleville merchants has opened the door for another look at store-closing regulations.

Last night they voted 80-8 in favor of a city ordinance that would allow stores to open six days a week - with night-time shopping Thursday and Fridays. They will now seek city council's blessing on the measure.

However, should such a by-law be approved by city council, early Wednesday closing might still be retained - apparently if a gentlemen's agreement could be reached among businessmen.

This was the indication to the meeting called at Hotel Quinte by the Belleville Businessmen's Association.

Association president Ronald Keet and past president Irv Shulman said they both favored early Wednesday closing.

No alternative resolutions could be placed before the meeting - since it was advertised for a vote on a specific resolution.

WITHOUT RANCOR

With one brief exception, the meeting was therefore without rancor - due in part to the tattered tradition of Ontario's municipal store-closing legislation.

The pilot by-law presented the meeting is a carbon copy of a Hamilton ordinance - the only one which has yet stood the test of legal protest.

Therefore, DBMA lawyer Donald Templemen, explained, the measure had to be adopted or rejected as it stood.

The Hamilton by-law has been "thoroughly over by the courts and found to be adequate and found, by the standards of Ontario law, to be applicable."

But no amendments could be made in the law's format.

"You would then have passed a new test by-law and you would not be passing a by-law that has been blessed by the courts," he warned.

MOTION RULED OUT

George Fairweather, a Belleville Plaza store operator, moved to completely free merchants of any closing regulations.

However, Edward Buckley, school board chairman, acting independent chairman, said the resolution could not be accepted since the meeting was called to determine a specific motion.

"If you are not in agreement with it, then you vote no," he said.

Mr. Shulman said he had vigorously opposed any changes in closing hours in past years.

"Belleville does not need any more shopping hours at the present time," he claimed. "I have yet to hear of a consumer clamoring for additional hours."

However, the pattern of living has changed in the city and "we cannot sit back and allow our heads to be left in the sand as ostriches."

"I must without question support a new by-law in the city of Belleville that will be a valid one; that will stand up in the court and will not be kicked around by whoever wishes to do so."

He strongly appealed for support for the association's proposal as it stood.

His remarks sparked strong dissent about the meeting from another plaza merchant.

VOICES COMPLAINT

"I think this is being done in a very undemocratic way," objected Edward Toupsett.

"What they are trying to do I'm not going to argue the pros and cons of. I think the meeting should have been open in a democratic way so that changes could have been made (in the resolution) or people could voice their opinion."

"The Plaza was not recognized in any form. To the DMBA we don't exist. However, we are there and will be there for some time."

"I think it's democratic when you can express your opinions," retorted chairman Buckley.

Association member Douglas Dunmire wersned that wide-open store hours had worked against businesses in other cities.

In all, 92 ballots were handed out. Exactly 80 were returned—two of them spoiled.

Summing up the result, chairman Buckley said: "It would indicate most of you are tired of by-laws that have no teeth in them."

Mr. Keel said the next step would be formation of a seven-man committee to move the by-law before city council. It will be manned by three downtown merchants, one from the Plaza and three from other geographic centres.

Man's Plea Rejected by Magistrate

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today rejected the plea of a man charged with burglary so the accused could find $200 for his fine.

Calvin Wallace Van Ness, 23, pleaded guilty with Floyd Godfrey, 31, to breaking and entering with intent at Brown's Bread warehouse, West College Street, June 4.

Godfrey was given a two-year suspended sentence and ordered not to associate with Van Ness during that time.

Van Ness said he did not have the money for his fine. "If I put it up I would have to sell my car," he told the magistrate.

"That might be a good idea," retorted Magistrate Wills.

Both men were employed, Detective Inspector Harold Reid told the court and had gained nothing by the break-in. When arrested after being disturbed by a night-worker in the warehouse, Van Ness had $113 in his pocket and Godfrey $62.

Young Shoplifter Caught in Act By City Policeman's Wife Here

What must have been the world's youngest shoplifter was almost caught in the act yesterday.

It happened at the opening of the new Worth Mart store on Front Street when in the middle of the morning rush a cute little two-year-old got away from her mother.

The little girl made her choice of merchandise and was out of the store and on her way to the family car when she was spotted by a city policeman's wife.

The girl's mother took her back into the store where it was explained that all store merchandise must be paid for.

And just as an object lesson the girl had to return her "purchase"—a big bag of candy.

Gen. Kitching to Retire, Accepts Development Post With Large Toronto Firm

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — When young George Kitching landed in Canada in mid-Depression fresh from a hitch in India with the British Army, he figured to put his experience to use covering summer militia camp dogs for a newspaper.

It didn't work well. Space rates were low and the summer proved drier than expected. At the end, the amateur correspondent's meal bills outweighed his clippings by about $300.

He expects to do better in his next business venture. After 25 years of service with the Canadian Army, he's retiring as a major-general and joining a firm with a $75-million-a-year turnover as director of research and development.

Gen. Kitching, now verging on 55 and with enough big army jobs in his career to do for a half-dozen men, has ended it as officer commanding Central Command (Ontario), a post he has held three years. He retires June 14.

BOUNCED BACK

Though he's starting as an executive and his experience in civilian business is still about zero, he's remained enough to take the transition in stride, as he's shown before. He weathered a stiff punch in the career during the Second World War and bounced back strongly, and since then his versatility has been stretched to cover about 10 posts going as high as vice-chief of the army's general staff.

UNOFFICIAL AMBASSADOR

The tall and personable general also is a man of obvious friendliness, a trait not always associated with the high brass, and has served as an unofficial goodwill ambassador for the army in his various postings. Maj.-Gen. Men's Press Club warmed to him enough to make him an honorary member, bracketing him with just one other brass hat, Field Marshal Viscount Alexander.

In the beginning, he had trouble attaining the lowliest of commissions, a short-lived tenancy in the Canadian Army. Though he got a military education at Sandhurst and had been an officer in the Gloucesters seven years before coming to Canada, red tape apparently associated with the fact he was born in China stood up his commissioning in the Royal Canadian Regiment when he enlisted at the outbreak of war. He was on the point of joining as a private when the commission came through.

By 1943 he was a brigadier commanding the 11th Infantry Brigade in Italy, and in March, 1944—at a precocious 33 years —he was made acting major-general in command of the 4th Armored Division, then getting ready for the invasion of Europe.

REMAINED FRIENDS

But the hitherto-untried 4th had hard luck trying to close the pocket on the fleeing Germans in the hard fighting around Falaise, and among the casualties was Kitching's command. The army biography says he "reverted to his substantive rank" of brigadier; as he puts it more succinctly, he was "sacked." (He has stayed good friends with Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, the corps commander who demoted him.)

Shelved generals don't usually get back to the battlefield, but he was not long cooling his heels in England. Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, commanding the 1st Canadian Corps in Italy, brought him out as his chief of staff later in 1944 and he served with distinction in that post there and in northwest Europe for the rest of the war. He picked up decorations that included the CBE, DSO and Dutch, American and Italian medals.

He did it took him another 11 years to make it back to major-general the slow way, and until then he held such diverse posts as vice quartermaster-general, director - general of army personnel, commandant of the Army Staff College at Kingston, Ont., commander of the 2nd Infantry Brigade at Edmonton and British Columbia area commander.

GOT RANK BACK

He became vice-chief of the general staff with general's rank in 1956, and two years later was appointed head of the Canadian joint staff in London. He was also Canadian representative at SHAPE headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE) and military adviser to the North Atlantic Delegation in Paris, and in 1960 he moved to Paris. He transferred to the nearby Fontainebleau headquarters of his present command—largest in Canada—in 1962.

Now, another long - time friendship of the general's is behind his latest big business career. When he was 1st Corps chief of staff, the corps quartermaster - general was Brig. Preston Gilbride, a peacetime businessman and now a substantial financier in Toronto. Mr. Gilbride has just become chairman of A. Bradshaw and Son, an old drygoods firm which has been expanding under the direction of Bradshaw and Son, an old drygoods firm which has been expanding under the direction of Bradshaw and Son, an old drygoods firm which has been expanding under the direction of

Bicycle Safety Rodeo Held by Kiwanis Club

PICTON (Staff) — The Annual Bicycle Safety Rodeo sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis in co-operation with the Ontario Provincial and town police was held Wednesday afternoon at Gentile's Foods Ltd. parking lot.

Over one hundred boys and girls in age groups from five to fourteen and over participated in the competitive safety check.

After registering, the youngsters were required to go through six different phases of bicycle handling ability, plus having their bicycles checked out for the standard safety equipment. Once the mechanical shape of the bicycle was determined each contestant tried to maintain true form while riding down a six inch plank; then through the narrow which consisted of two planks placed closely together.

Test number four saw to it the brakes were in good shape while number five dealt with handling ability through an obstacle course. The final phase was conducted by Chief of Police George Pitt and constable George Wright who questioned each on traffic Safety Rules and signals. Points were awarded for each category of the course with first and second finishers receiving prizes.

First place winners received a silver dollar while second place was worth one-half dollar. Each winner received a free pass to the circus coming to town Tuesday, June 1, compliments of Dardi's Electric and manager Don Parks.

As each contestant awaited the final tally on their score, which was handled by recreational director Wayne Ring, they were presented with a book entitled "Safety is in Your Hands," published by the Canadian Highway Safety Council, showing the do's and don't of safe bicycle operation. Bicycle Safety Check stickers and pennant ribbons were also handed out, courtesy of the Ontario Provincial Police.

East Lake Girl Hit by Truck, Shoulder Hurt

PICTON — Eleven year old Lynn Lancaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lancaster of R.R. 1 Picton was injured Thursday evening when struck by a truck while riding her bicycle past her home at East Lake.

The truck driver, John Netzel, R.R. 1 Cherry Valley, was accompanied by his wife and daughter at the time of the accident.

The young girl suffered a broken shoulder and possible head injuries. She was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital at Picton by Ronald Gardiner. She was treated by Dr. LeRoy Hall. O.P.P. Constable William Chard investigated.

White Chapel Will Be Scene Of Service

PICTON (Staff) — The annual White Chapel service will be held this year on Sunday, June 13th at 3.00 p.m. The music will be conducted by Mr. A. A. Beavis, organist of Picton United Church, assisted by members of the choir. The service will be conducted by the Rev. V. E. R. Zubil, chairman of the White Chapel Board of Trustees, and the sermon will be preached this year by the famous United Church minister, the Rev. Dr. Herbert Ashford, M.B.E., M.A., B.D., D.D.

The Rev. Dr. Ashford hails from New Brunswick, himself born of a family of famous pioneers from that province. As a missionary, a chaplain in the RCAF and a combatant with the Heavy Bombers and one-time General Secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance Department of the United Church of Canada, he has literally travelled the world over. He served his church as a missionary in India for nine years. He is perhaps the only RCAF chaplain to be decorated in action. He has served down-town city churches in Charlottetown, Ottawa, Toronto, Brandon, Edmonton and Calgary. Dr. Ashford is a renowned preacher and his message will be a blessing to all who hear him.

Picton's White Chapel, or "Old Chapel" or "Conger Chapel" as it is variously called, is one of the historic landmarks in which this County should truly take pride. It was erected only seventeen years later than the "Old Hay Bay Church" now preserved by the Bay of Quinte Conference as the oldest existing Methodist Church in Canada. It has about it several uniquenesses which set it apart. For example, it has never ceased to be preserved and used as a Church. It has nestled about it the old cemetery, which is also a memorial to those early days. Not only is it the oldest monument to Methodism in this county but there are several local families, whose roots in religion go back to this old Church. Very few people know or realize that whilst other such objects of historical interest are preserved by large and organized groups who make the preservation of such monuments a business, the Old Conger Chapel owes it present state of fine care and upkeep to the long vigilant concern of five Trustees, Messrs. Carl Handley, Nathan Jones, Reginald Moore, Don Warren, and their faithful secretary-treasurer, Mr. Clifford Gyde, who is ever grateful for donations to help preserve this monument of early U.E.L. Methodism.

Q. What keeps all flowers, shrubs and plants Bug-Free?

A. New GREEN CROSS General Purpose Flower & Ornamental Spray

It works in two ways because it is both a SYSTEMIC and a RESIDUAL insecticide. Result: widest possible control of sucking and chewing insects and mites. We especially recommend it as an early season spray for evergreens and for all-season insect control on shrubs and flowering plants. It even protects new growth which appears after spraying.

Bonus: It's completely free of any objectionable odour.

For rose lovers, we advise regular use of GARDIAL ROSE SPRAY with SYSTEMIC action. It controls insects and diseases which attack roses in particular.

Remember: SYSTEMICS ARE NOT WASHED OFF BY RAIN SINCE THEY ARE ACTUALLY WITHIN THE PLANT. They penetrate right into the sap stream and kill insects which suck the plant juices.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN R. WICKETT

Wickett – Carr

Janet Dorothy Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Fewtrell of Belleville, and John Robertson Wickett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hume Wickett of Port Hope, were united in marriage by Canon DeBlois Wright in Christ Church, Belleville, on June 5, at 11 a.m.

The church was decorated with white gladioli and pink carnations. Mr. John Withers played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire waisted gown with a crocheted lace bodice and a floor length straight skirt of chiffon over taffeta. A bow at the back of the waist held her floor length train. Her short silk veil was caught up with a chiffon rose headdress. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, lily-of-the-valley, stephanotis and English ivy.

Miss Emily Busko of Toronto attended the bride, wearing a shell pink sheath dress with matching chiffon duster, with a wedding ring headpiece holding her short pink veil. She carried a nosegay of white and pink carnations.

Mr. Robert Newton of Toronto was the groomsman and Mr. George Carr, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

At the reception held after the ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents, 315 Bridge St. East, Mrs. Fewtrell received the guests wearing a pale aqua faille dress with matching jacket banded with lace, a veiled flowered hat of pale aqua, beige accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The mother of the bridegroom assisted, wearing a crocheted beige dress with matching jacket, an azure blue nylon draped hat and a corsage of pink rosebuds and lily-of-the-valley.

For her wedding trip to the Muskoka resort area, the bride chose a yellow flowered pure silk dress, a draped toque of the same material and a yellow Aline duster. Her corsage was of yellow and white carnations.

Before her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Emily Busko and the bride's fellow workers at Princess Margaret Hospital, Toronto. Mrs. Clyve Ryan entertained at a tea and shower at her home on Bridge Street, and Mrs. Robert Wickett was hostess at a coffee party in the bride's honor at her home on Port Hope.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Wickett will live at 1749 Victoria Park Avenue, Scarborough.

'June Frolic' Held by OES Big Success

On Friday evening, Belleville Chapter No. 53, Order of The Eastern Star entertained at a delightful 'June Frolic' in the Masonic Temple on Foster Ave.

A large crowd of members and their friends, from Belleville and many points in the surrounding district attended. The guests were welcomed by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Bobbe Locke, and the Worthy Patron Mr. Bruce Simpson.

The large auditorium of the Temple resembled a Japanese garden, with gaily colored Japanese lanterns overhead, providing the lighting; large rainbow hued fans, balloons, etc. added to the attractive decor. Surrounding the dance floor, the tables with their gay covers, were centred with candles in many colored holders set in wicker, the candle - light adding to the soft lighting effect. And on each table, a wicker basket of nibblers 'chips and cheesies'.

Over 100 dancers tripped the light fantastic to the delightful music of Dan Fairman's orchestra; while downstairs in the Chapter room, tables of bridge and euchre were in progress.

There was a drawing for door prizes, and a large number of prizes were won for spot dances, also for the bridge and euchre.

A buffet style lunch was served at midnight. All agreed it was a very enjoyable evening. Thanks to the hard - working dance committee, and all those who worked so hard to make it such a huge success. It is hoped to make it an annual event.

"Creeping Isolationism" Threat to Anglican W. A.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—"Creeping isolationism" is the greatest danger besetting the Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church of Canada and the Church as a whole, Rev. F. K. Clarke of Ottawa said Thursday.

Summarizing the three study sessions held during the 80th annual conference of the Dominion board of the auxiliary, Mr. Clarke said that if the auxiliary is isolated as an organization "it is only superseded by the isolation of the church from the world."

"We have said communication is a two-way street," added the director of Christian education for the Diocese of Ottawa. Therefore there must be a willingness to listen two ways at the same time and "this is necessary not only from the Dominion down but from the parish to the Dominion also."

There was a growing atmosphere of freedom all across the church which enabled men and women to express their deepest doubts and concerns, he said, and Anglicans must welcome this change in climate if they are sincere about helping people.

CRITICIZE BISHOP

In another session, delegates criticized the episcopal bishop of Michigan who earlier this week delivered a blistering attack on Toronto author and television personality Pierre Berton.

In a statement to the press, the group expressed "extreme disappointment" in Bishop R. S. Emrich's criticism of Mr. Berton's book, The Comfortable Pew.

Bishop Emrich accused Mr. Berton of creating Christ in his own image and said his book is one-quarter truth and three-quarters nonsense.

He said "the hatchet job Berton has done on the church can be done on any institution by anyone who has a nose for the negative."

The auxiliary's statement said Bishop Emrich's address was "almost vitriolic" and "unchristian."

The conference ended with the installation of officers by Rt. Rev. H. F. D. Appleyard, bishop of Georgian Bay.

One vacancy on the board was filled by Mrs. C. F. Mac-Rae, Hamilton, Ont., chairman of education.

Returned to office was the president, Mrs. John Robertson, Kitchener.

Christ Church Parish Guild Holds Centennial Tea

In marking the 100th anniversary of Christ Church the ladies of the church Parish Guild sponsored a most pleasant and successful event in the form of a Centennial Tea Wednesday afternoon which was patronized by a large number of women.

Upon entering the hall one noted at once the large dates in gold, 1865-1965, and the centennial theme was carried out in the decor throughout the hall with the color mauve predominating, and large arrays of colorful blooms at various strategic points.

CENTENNIAL THEME

The history of the church was illustrated by means of portraits and pictures, former rectors, choirs, organizations, and these all mounted on mauve covered stands around the tea room, were viewed by the patrons who had many nostalgic memories of the various pictures shown and past events.

The tea table was most striking and was highlighted with a green glass epergne from the Cauldrey collection of European Antiques and was loaned through the courtesy of the Hastings County Museum. This centrepiece was filled with yellow and white roses. The guest tables were also most attractive centred with little golden flower holders with the 100th theme carried out on the serviettes and plates. The beautiful floral display was arranged by Mrs. Leslie Lennox and the pictorial display in the tea room by the convener of the event, Mrs. F. A. Beeby and Mr. Beeby. Co-conveners for this occasion were Mrs. W. J. Hinchey and Mrs. Claude Tucker. The historical and Ecclesiastical display was arranged by members of the Hastings County Museum, Mrs. W. Sargent, Miss H. Walt and Miss M. Diamond.

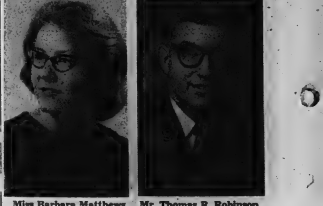
RECEIVES GUESTS

Receiving the throughout guests at the door were president of the Guild, Mrs. J. M. Cousins and the wife of the rector, Mrs. R. B. Wright. Inviting guests to the tea room were Mrs. T. Lasley, Mrs. W. J. Hinchey and Mrs. C. Tucker. Pouring tea were: Mrs. W. J. Dawson, Mrs. T. R. Slavin, Mrs. Everett Smith, Mrs. T. A. Carruthers and Mrs. Beverly Quinczy. Other members of the organization assisted in serving and replenishing the tasty refreshments.

Kitchen duties were performed by the collective efforts of a group of ladies including Mesdames Gilligan, Cooper, Boyle, Livingstone, Domosly and Pack.

SALES TABLES

The various sales tables were all appropriately decorated with each identified by the old-fashioned name and these included: "The Bakery Wagon" (bonecooking) with Mrs. I. R. Vesterfelt in charge assisted by Mesdames Thompson, Dawson, Bishop and Ostrom was highlighted with a most striking centre piece which was cake in replica of the first Christ Church. "Ye Olde Sewing Shoppe" was convened by Mrs. Horace Wright assisted by Mesdames Kempston and Hall; the "Towne and Country General Store" convened by Mrs. G. Day, assisted by Mrs. Ashton and Miss Hart; "The Toy Shoppe" by Mrs. W. Day assisted by Mrs. Button and Miss Hart; "The Sweet Shoppe" convened by Mrs. T. Schofield and Mrs. Green; "Ye Olde Flower Shoppe" by Mrs. W. Adams and Mrs. Bone, and a table consisting of mementos of Christ Church's centennial with many attractive wall plaques including a sketch of Christ Church done by a local artist, Mrs. Earl Hickey.



Taking tickets were Mrs. Hinchey and Mrs. Winter.

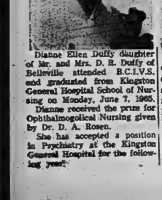
U.C.W. Meetings

BRIDGE ST. U.C.W.

The country home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fuke, beautifully situated on the bay, was the pleasant meeting place for the June meeting of the U.C.W. of Bridge Street United Church.

In warm sunshine, the members enjoyed the delicious, out-of-doors lunch, served buffet style from tables lent by the U.C.W. of nearby Albury United Church.

Mrs. A. Packman and Mrs. V. Summerfield in the worship service called the group to greater appreciation of the wonderful handiwork of God in nature.



The president, Mrs. J. B Leslie, conducted a brief business session. The delegates appointed to attend the School for Leaders in Albert College in August, are Mrs. A. Clare and Miss D. Young. Mrs. Leslie reminded members that the summer is a good time to prepare for the annual bazaar, November 17.

A skit, planned by the supply secretary, Mrs. G. Greatrix, "Packing the Missionary Barrel," was well chosen for this occasion.

The performers were Mrs. G. Greatrix, Miss H. Solman, Mrs. C. Hyde, Mrs. J. Reynolds, Mrs. N. O'Neil, Mrs. O. Summers, Mrs. S. Riley and Mrs. C. MacDonald.

Mrs. Leslie expressed thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Fuke and to those taking part in the program. Mrs. C. L. Massey closed the meeting with a prayer for God's care and guidance during the weeks of separation.

Wheels for Martha Allen*

Martha Allen is a book-keeper. She's single. And for twenty years, Martha relied on her friends and relatives for transportation. Until she decided it was time to buy her own car. Knowing nothing about cars, Martha asked her brother-in-law for advice. He recommended Goodwill Used Cars. He was a Goodwill owner himself. He knew that his sister-in-law could rely on the man who displayed the Goodwill sign to give her a good deal on a good car.

He was right. Martha's got wheels now. She's driving her own 1964 Beaumont convertible. And with the lift it's given her, her neighbours hardly know her. Martha Allen likes the deal she got. And the confidence she gets from knowing her car's protected by a Goodwill Warranty.

Word gets around. More and more people are shopping Goodwill every day. And for good reason. Goodwill dealers sell new Pontiacs, Buicks, Acadians and GMC Trucks. They've gots lots at stake in their community. So you can rely on them to give you the best deals on the best used cars in town.

Work First, Glamour Next In Television Career; CBC Employment Officer

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — If you're thinking of a career in television, the first thing to do is give up any idea that you'll find glamour without hard work.

Then be prepared to start at the bottom, says Majorie Hand, employment officer with the CBC in Toronto.

Mrs. Hand says the CBC gets letters from all over the world and from students across Canada asking about jobs. Some have little idea what type of job they might want; others have specific interests. But few are really sure of what's involved.

A brochure called Careers in the CBC is available to anyone and is distributed to school guidance officers in Canada, but it doesn't give the whole story.

"We speak at school career day assemblies and answer correspondence. A lot of talking goes on. We recommend, and may try to arrange, a talk with someone in the business."

When an applicant seems to have the right attitude, the CBC might give him a try as a messenger, running a duplicating machine or as a stage hand.

PLAN NEXT MOVE

"From there they can figure out what it is they have to do in order to get ahead. Once they prove themselves as being sound and reliable, we can move them on."

Before making an application, there are a few things that might help you decide whether a career in television is what you want.

"Joining a drama group helps. They get a lot of stars out of their eyes when they find it takes a lot of time. Sometimes it changes their minds about the business.

"Even if they can't work in broadcasting, they should put their summers in working so they know something about the business world. They get an awareness of responsibility, which is sadly missing in too many people, and a willingness to think.

"I admit this is kind of old-fashioned advice, but even in the case of office boys their attitude on the job counts.

"And you should tell young people conservatism in dress does pay off. You should look as if you are at business."

Mrs. Hand says there are electronics and business courses that will help an individual make the grade at the CBC but they should be chosen carefully.

ASK ADVICE

"I think kids are a little nervous about asking people in any business for advice. But most people would prefer to help them take the right steps than see them lose time. Besides, most adults would be flattered."

Someone in the business or in guidance office at school can help you choose courses that will be of real value. And Mrs. Hand says the CBC encourages employees to take courses that will help them, and will even pay part of the cost if they complete them successfully.

"The kids may be getting tired of hearing it, but I tell them that if they'll stay in school they'll not only get an education, they'll do some growing up. They may even decide broadcasting is not the business for them."

If you decide it is, she suggests trying a private station before applying to one in a big metropolitan area.

"At a private radio or TV station, if there is a talent, it will be exploited, and to the employee's advantage. It will help you find out what you do best."

CAC Wants Sale of Drug Made Legal

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP)—A resolution urging the federal government to introduce a bill that would in effect make the sale of contraceptives legal in Canada was adopted Thursday during the closing session of the 18th annual meeting of the Consumers Association of Canada.

Sale of contraceptives now is illegal under a section of the Criminal Code which reads:

"Everyone commits an offence who, knowingly, without lawful justification or excuse offers to sell, advertises, publishes an advertisement of, or has for sale or disposal by any means, instructions, medicine, drug or article intended or represented as a method of preventing conception or causing abortion or miscarriage."

The CAC wants the words "preventing conception or" removed from the code. As it now stands, the law tends to promote misleading or inadequate labelling of contraceptive products and a reluctance among welfare agencies to give family planning aid where needed, the association said.

The 100 delegates from across Canada began their discussions on problems confronting the modern consumer on Tuesday at MacDonald College in the Montreal suburb.

Baby of Family Deprived Of Right to Make Decisions

DEAR DORIS — I was the baby in our family. My mother pampered me, made all my decisions as I was growing up. She chose all my clothes for me and I had only friends of whom she approved. I didn't even date dishes or dust the furniture without her approval.

The result was that when I was in my 30's and going out with men, I could not make a decision about marriage, even though I was far from young. The only thing I could say with safety was "no." I was afraid to take the plunge.

Now I am 33, on my own and still nervous about every move I make, but I am trying hard. I will probably never be married. I am just writing this to urge young people to work at making decisions early — not big ones, at first, but we all need practice at having a mind of our own, before we can deal with important things. — SPINSTER.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR SPINSTER — You are right. We should start practising from the moment we can have one independent thought.

Mothers who encourage their children to select what they will wear to school or whom they will play with are off on the right foot. Many decisions are made in consultation during growing-up years, but girls or boys need to know at least part of the responsibility is theirs. Later it is all theirs.

Now that you know your problem, review your situation. Ask yourself whether the status quo is just what you want, and if it isn't, be bold about making a change. You can still plan poise in decision making, with courage.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I performed a marriage ceremony a week ago on a Saturday afternoon. Yesterday I received a letter from the groom thanking me for "wise counselling and warm interest" in his affairs. And for performing what he termed "a very stirring ceremony."

This letter is the first I have ever received from a groom. I think I will frame it. Just thought other young folks might like to know how a minister feels about such things. — REVEREND.

DEAR REVEREND — Grooms-to-be, take note!

Sometimes young people who are quite appreciative have no way of knowing what a written expression of thanks could mean. Many might think it presumptuous to write a letter showing their "approval." Some would be shy of their minister.

But for counsellors like you, your comfortable friendship was obviously given with your advice. I daresay the young people will keep coming to you for help over the rough spots. Orchids to you!

Susanna's Family Fare

CORN STARCH SHAMPOO

Dear Susanna: Many women have such excessively oily hair that it needs a dry shampoo midway between regular shampoos and settings. As a beautician I have experimented with corn starch and do not hesitate to recommend it nightly as a dry shampoo in such cases.

Part the hair as you go, and using a powder puff, apply it along the scalp. Leave it on overnight, then shake and brush the hair well in the morning.

I also always advise my clients to wear a porous paper shower cap underneath their plastic one in the tub or shower. With the plastic cap alone, one's scalp perspires and this of course has a poor effect on the set of the hair. I find this is a most important factor in how long a customer's hair stays attractive and manageable. Helen Day of London.

Helen also says that more harm is done to the hair in m' layd's bath by not having it properly conveyed than is ever done in the bed. — SUSANNA

HERE, KITTY, KITTY!

Dear Susanna: To delight a child's heart with a sense of accomplishment, encourage him to create art that is simple but realistic. One of my favorites is the pussy willow bush. Have him draw the willowy brown branches first, what ever way he pictures them himself.

Then give him a chunk of absorbent cotton and show him how to pull off little pieces, one at a time, and roll each bit between his fingers. Have him apply a tiny smidgin of paste with a small stick and then press the soft white buds one after the other, onto the long stems he has already drawn on the paper.

I'm sure you will find he is wide-eyed with wonder about the results of his efforts. — "Tender Teacher"

Peony Garden Opened for Hospital Tea

Readers' Friday Column

LETTER:

I have enjoyed and used many of your recipes over the past years, so now I am sending one which I found in an old cookbook, and which is a "boon" for that last-minute dessert. Strawberry Dumplings are easy to make on top of the stove . . . Today I made better-scotch sauce with 1 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 1½ cups water, then dropped dumplings on it . . . H. R.

ANSWER:

I made up your lovely strawberry dumplings recipe and it is indeed a boon. I did not try the butterscotch sauce but hope some of our venturesome reader-cooks will and let me know results.

FRIDAY
Dinner Menu
by Mary Moore

Cream of Vegetable Soup
Tuna and Celery Salad on Leaf Lettuce with Mayonnaise; Jellied Salad; Wonderful (Bow Knot or Pinwheel) Rolls (see Thursday); Pineapple Ambrosia; Tea.

STRAWBERRY DUMPLINGS (adapted from Mrs. H.R.'s recipe):

Strawberry Syrup: 1 qt. cleaned, stemmed and mashed strawberries, ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon butter.

Dumplings: 1 cup well-packed biscuit mix, 3 tablespoons sugar, about 1/3 cup water, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 2 tablespoons cooking oil, 1 egg.

In a large shallow pan (large frying pan will do) with a tight-fitting lid, mix together dry the ¼ cup sugar and cornstarch, then stir in the water to a smooth paste. Cook, stirring, until thick. Add butter and mashed strawberries and cook, stirring, until thick and boiling.

Mix together the dumpling ingredients, adding the water slowly and just enough to make a slightly stiff dumpling batter. Dip your spoon into the strawberry syrup, then spoon batter onto top of gently boiling syrup. Simmer, uncovered, for 10 minutes, then cover and cook 15 minutes longer.

Serve a dumpling on each tea plate or dessert saucer, spooning generous portion of strawberry sauce over each.

It seemed criminal to cook beautiful fresh strawberries this way, but when they are plentiful it is a lovely variation.

You mentioned making other types of dumplings, including rhubarb. I presume that if you use 4 cups cut-up rhubarb you would increase the amount of sugar in the syrup from ½ to 1 cup. Thank you, H. R.

STERLING W.I.

STERLING — On Thursday, Mrs. David Lacey was hostess for Stirling Women's Institute with 11 members and one visitor in attendance. Mrs. Frank Smith presided over the business and one new member was welcomed.

Reports of Hastings West District Annual were given by Mrs. Blanche Reid and Mrs. Arnold Wannamaker.

The meeting was closed on horticulture and the guest speaker was Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, president of Stirling Horticultural Society. She gave a vivid description of the propagation of shrubs and displayed the correct way to do the layering in order to have success. She outlined the place of fertilizers and gave a list of the approved varieties. She gave a special message on trees, written by Rev. R. A. Johnson.

Mrs. Armstrong provided two gifts for the group. They were a packet of garden flower seeds won by Miss Lenora Williams and a rose bush awarded to Mrs. Blanche Reid who held the lucky tea cup.

The hostess and lunch committees served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Turn of Century Styles Viewed in Toronto Show

Written for The Canadian Press
By MARGARET NESS

Leg of mutton sleeves, a high-collared shirtwaist and gored skirts hardly sound like an emancipated woman to the career girl of today.

But at the turn of the century this was the costume worn by the young woman entering the new world of office work. Once the office girl married she retired again into home life.

Today the situation is far different. There's even a new career superimposed on the accepted office pattern — temporary office help. Many married women now wish to keep on working to supplement the family income or, with their children grown up, to provide outside interests.

However, many of them are not looking for permanent employment. Others like the challenge offered by different office routines. So they prefer to work on a part-time or temporary basis. They have actually become an important labor reservoir.

The Toronto branch of Office Overload, one of the firms devoted to filling openings for part - time work, recently arranged with Simpson's, a Toronto department store, to stage a White Collar Girl fashion show for its temporary employees and their friends.

DISPLAY OLD COSTUMES

The difference in office dress between the turn of the century and this present was highlighted by four staff members modelling costumes from the early era. Here was the office uniform of white shirtwaist with the huge billowy sleeves, the gored skirt trailing the floor.

A street costume combined the long duster-style coat and the large feather-laden hat. For sport, there was a "bathing" costume of Mack Sennett comedy type, with tightly belted tunic, bloomers and black stockings.

An elegant evening gown was probably out of the picture for the office girl of that period. It was unlikely that she would be invited to formal parties. She wasn't quite socially elect. Working women were still in the minority. Man was the breadwinner.

Married women only went to work because of poverty or widowhood. Gradually the stigma of working for a living or returning to work after marriage began to disappear until today the reverse is true.

Until the 1920s unmarried women were relegated to a life of unpaid help in their own homes or had to live off the charity of relations. Married women had only social obligations to hold their interest.

'BLOOMERS' ARRIVE

The first stirrings for a more active life began in the 19th century. In 1849 Mrs. Amelia Bloomer of Seneca Falls, N.Y., introduced the idea of clothes freedom with her Turkish-style trousers. The idea didn't catch on, however, until the years after her death, in 1894. Then a sort of knickerbocker called "bloomers" became popular for the new bicycling craze.

Now some 70 years later the Office Overload audience saw on the runway a group of clothes geared to the active life of today's office worker, from bare-back, minimum-coverage swimsuit to tiered shorts for tennis and a sheltered fisherman's outfit.

There was even a demonstration of how you change your simple office hair-do to evening elegance with the increasingly popular pastiche. Sally Potter, Office Overload personnel manager, brought her own to add soft top curls to her own longer hair scooped back and upwards.

Oddly enough, women at the turn of the century were false hair too. These were the famous "rats," the sausage - like rolls over which the high pompadour rested. But no make-up was used then. No respectable girl wore any until the 1920s.

TYPIST TURNS TABLES

The typewriter led women's assault on the male-staffed offices. Still, the United States 1890 census placed women in offices at only 33,000.

The new viewpoint, that women have a right to live their own lives, was the basis of a short play by Sir James Barrie, written in 1908.

In The Twelve Pound Look, Kate, a typist, arrives with her typewriter at the home of a self-satisfied family, newly created a baronet. He is her former husband who believes she left him for another man. He gloats over the social position he has bestowed on his present wife and the jewels he has given her. Finally Kate dispels his ego by telling him there was no other man. She wanted to be free to do what she taught herself typing. When she had earned £12, she bought a machine and left him.

They are joined by the new wife, a timid young woman. But on Kate's exit the second wife supplies the punch line of the play.

"Are they very expensive?" she asks her husband. "These machines?"

CHANGING STYLES—Two young Toronto office workers demonstrate the vast difference between office attire worn at the turn of the century and at present. Christine Maleta (seated) wears a high-collared shirtwaist with leg of mutton sleeves and a long full skirt that was fashionable in the early 1900's. Sally Potter is dressed in a suit of raw silk, the preference of today's female office worker.

Large Crowd At Legion L. A. Euchre

Last night the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Royal Canadian Legion held a successful euchre.

A large crowd attended and the winners were: ladies, Mrs. Dennis, J. Houlke, L. Cummings and Mrs. Careful; lone hand, Mrs. Dennis, gentlemen, E. Woodcock, J. Bauels, Ethel Feeney; lone hand, E. Woodcock; consolation prizes, Myrtle Pearce and Charles Eaton. The door prize of a silver dollar was won by Mrs. J. Hoelke.

Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. This euchre was part of the Legion Week events being presently held in Belleville.

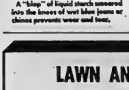
Teacher Had To Handle 110 Youngsters

HALIFAX (CP) — Educationists schooled in modern theories would be appalled at the situation that confronted Marie Bochie when she walked into her first class in 1922.

It was at Reserve Mines, N.S., and, in stark contrast to the relatively small classes today, she had to handle 110 first-graders.

She spent 30 years teaching in Cape Breton and classes of 80 to 90 were not uncommon, but she didn't mind.

"I loved it. In those days there was no such thing as a specialist. If you were a teacher you were also expected to be a physical education instructor, a nurse, a social worker. I've even pulled teeth for children.



"I like a large group and I particularly like this age group — five-to-seven-year-olds. Children are honest at that age. They say exactly what they think."

A native of Havre Boucher, N.S., who took her teacher training at Mount Saint Vincent College in Halifax, Miss Bochie has been teaching at Saint Agnes School here for 12 years.

Although she has retired after 43 years, she still hopes to be called back as a substitute teacher from time to time and plans to spend some time tutoring.

"I'd be lost without children around," she says.

WELLINGTON UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

WELLINGTON — The Centennial parlor was setting for a joint meeting of Units 2 and 4 of the United Church Women recently.

Quiet music was played by Mrs. Truax as Mrs. C. Cleave, leader of Unit 4 welcomed 40 members and guests to the gathering.

Mrs. Charles Duplain of the program committee was in charge of the worship service, assisted by Mrs. George Dorland who read the Scripture passages. Mrs. Duplain had chosen "Courage" and her topic, discussing both physical and morale courage and said "Courage is a matter of spirit, not of the body." Mrs. Reg. Bishop, accompanied by Mrs. Truax sang "I Found a Friend."

Mrs. Harold Nash introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Nathan Jones of Picton, who took the ladies on a delightful tour of South America. A background of the countries visited was given and, with Mrs. C. Freeman at the projector, many beautiful pictures were shown. Mrs. H. East expressed appreciation to Mrs. Jones. Mrs. Sherman Foster, leader of Unit 3, thanked Unit 4 for inviting them.

A cup of tea was served by Mrs. C. Clare, Mrs. G. Dorland, Mrs. H. East, Mrs. Gerrid Whitney and Mrs. Harry Wright.

ST. THOMAS' W.C.V.

The June meeting of the Women's Church Year was held at the home of Mrs. R. Pringle, Dundas St.

Following a delicious luncheon a short business meeting was held, with the president Mrs. H. Crowe in the chair. It was decided to buy five copies of the book, "See Here Mr Berton" and have them available for the benefit of the congregation, in the narthex of the church.

Archdeacon McConnell closed the meeting with prayer and a social half-hour was enjoyed around the pool.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

MOTHER, DAUGHTER BANQUET

The First Belleville Brownie Pack recently held a banquet at Tabernacle United Church, when Brown Owl Eakins received her certificate and ribbon for ten years' service, from Commissioner McCallum.

The Brownies introduced their mothers and the invocation was given by Tawny Owl Hannah, followed by a dinner served by the ladies of the church.

Following the dinner Virginia Irwin played a piano solo. Linda Truman gave a toast to the mothers and Mrs. H. Cansiff replied. Mrs. Britton thanked the ladies for the dinner. Cindy Kaye gave a baton selection.

13 COMPANY

Fifteen Guides in Belleville, during the past year, have become more fully aware of what it means to be a citizen of Belleville, of Ontario and of Canada. These are Guides of Company 13, Christ Church, who recently passed their citizenship tests, and on Tuesday were presented with their badges by Mayor Jack Elks.

Mayor Elks told the girls that citizenship was a privilege and a responsibility. The responsibilities include being active in community affairs, and when old enough, exercising their duty to vote.

While working towards their goal, several of the girls were able to attend the Citizenship Court, and many of them also sat in on a City Council meeting. The Company followed the local election in the year's end, and also were privileged to have Alderman Ben Corke present at one meeting to give a thorough grounding in election proceedings, the establishing of yearly mill rates, and the details of how the city council operates. The Guides made maps of Canada on which they time zones, etc., and they also noted Provincial populations, learned about Provincial and Federal governments, as well as the names of local M.P.'s.

Guides of Company 13 now proudly wearing the Maple Leaf which is the Citizen Badge are Carole Ann Boagard, Penny Clarke, Catherine Ford, Elizabeth Ford, Suzanne Foster, Susan Ironside, Becky Lee, Debbie Mohrer, Debby Platt, Jillian Roulet, Kathy Sine, Judy Settle, Aline Skuratt, Gail Spurgeon and Nancy Watkin.

The Guides were tested for their badge by Mrs. K. J. MacDonald, citizenship convener for the I.O.D.E.

2ND AND 13TH PACKS' BANQUET

The Second Belleville Brownie Pack and the 13th Belleville Brownie Pack held their annual mother and daughter banquet in Holloway St. United Church Hall on Friday evening, June 4th.

There were 46 girls and mothers in attendance. The Division Commissioner, Mrs. D. Stewart, Mrs. Edith Pringle and her daughter Nancy, who is a Girl Guide and Mrs. Gallivan and her daughter, who is a Brownie, were seated at the head. Lynn Bonck and Susan Bradshaw were presented with their Golden Hand Badges.

Thanks were extended to the Ladies' Auxiliary, 10th Belleville Cub and Scout Troop for catering for this event.

THE WOMAN

"I keep dreaming someone is sticking pins in my head."

Ann Landers

Writer Earns 'Meanest Man in Town' Award

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was very disappointed that a sophisticated dame like you would fall for that tear-jerker. I refer to the letter from the kid who wrote about his dog who was hit by a car and left in the street to die.

I'm with the driver. If I hit a mutt I would not ruin the inside of my car taking him to an animal hospital. And I wouldn't stop and try to cheer the kid up either.

ANN LANDERS

People should know that most dogs are stupid and no match for modern traffic. Folks who love a dog will not allow him to run loose. In many cities there is a law against it, but people ignore the law — and now and then a dog gets hit. If the dog means so little to the family that they don't keep him on a leash they deserve whatever they get. — NO PATSY.

* * *

DEAR NO — I agree that dogs should not be allowed to run loose, but that was not the question.

A driver who hits a dog should stop and do whatever he can to alleviate the animal's suffering. The dog is not to blame if a careless master allows him to run unleashed. You are my candidate for The Meanest Man in Town award.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 20-year-old (boy) and have a driver's license but nothing to drive. For three years I have been asking my folks for a car. They say, "Go out and earn it." It is hard to get a job when you don't have a car.

I've had six jobs since I dropped out of high school. None of them lasted very long. One of the problems is I can't get to work on time. If I had a car the problem would be solved.

When I am working I give my folks $15 a week room and board. Now they don't get anything. So you can see it would be better for them if they bought me a car, too.

It isn't as if they can't afford it. Both my parents are working and together they make $8,000 a year. I am not asking for a Rolls Royce. Any make will do. Please give me a hand. — NEED WHEELS.

* * *

DEAR WHEELS — A kid who can't get to work on time on public transportation is not likely to do better if he has his own car. He'd probably do worse.

My advice: Forget about a car and concentrate on a high school diploma. Either go back to school or take night courses. Drop-outs are a problem to society, to their families and to themselves. Right now you need education — not wheels.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I have been married nearly 20 years. We are in our middle 40's. We moved to this city seven months ago and like it very much.

My husband's mother wrote us several weeks ago that a third cousin of my husband lives in this city and she would like to see us. The woman was divorced several years ago and my husband remembers her as a "beautiful blonde." He hasn't seen her in 23 years.

Now my husband is nagging me to invite this woman to dinner. I keep making up excuses. The truth is if she has any looks left, and if she behaves like most divorcees, it could mean trouble.

Am I right or wrong. — MRS. XXX.

* * *

DEAR MRS. — Wrong. If Cuz had ulterior motives she would have called your husband at his place of business. She would not have written to his mother.

Invite her to dinner and fast. Be relaxed and friendly. Your reluctance may give your husband ideas he never had before.

Canada's Oldest Beatnik Killed, Hit by Truck

ORILLIA (CP) — Canada's "oldest beatnik," 74 - year - old Percy Leggett, was killed by a truck Thursday while hiking to North Bay.

The eccentric vegetarian, on a walk expected 280 miles from Hamilton, was hit by a pickup truck on Highway 11 near the 12th concession of Orillia Township, nine miles north of here.

Provincial police said the accident occurred on the traveled portion of the highway at 3 a.m. and that the hiker was thrown some distance by the impact.

No charges were laid against the driver, Charles Edward Lannen, 36, of Newmarket, Ont. Police were unsuccessful Thursday in locating next-of-kin who years ago were reported to be in Montreal, where Leggett once was a businessman.

Percy, who liked walking at night because there were few cars, slept during the day in the roadside grass.

HINTED AT LONG WALK

In an interview here Tuesday he hinted he might walk the 2,700-mile trip to Vancouver. He left Hamilton May 29 because "I don't like to live in a room when the warm weather comes."

He pushed a shopping cart containing cooking utensils and food.

The bearded man wore a cloth cap over his light hair and wore the billowing Bermuda shorts that once got him into trouble in Hamilton.

That was in May, 1964, when a Hamilton senior citizens' club initiated the short pants-industrial fog tow troopers.

He retired and the subsequent argument, with pictures of Percy and his shorts, were published in newspapers across Canada.

Percy claimed when he began to wear his old-age organization at the age of 70 that he had resigned from the human race because men had given him the way he wanted. He loved to call himself Canada's oldest beatnik.

SINGER REMANDED

HALIFAX (CP)—Charlie Chamberlain, step - dancing singer with Don Messer's public television show, appeared in city police court Wednesday charged with impaired driving and was remanded without plea until June 16. Chamberlain was arrested Tuesday and released on bail five hours later.

Commonwealth's Main Value

Blunt Talk Among Races Expected at Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — Race relations in Africa again are expected by Canadian authorities to be the chief subject of discussion at the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference opening in London June 17.

Canada regards the Commonwealth as more important than ever before because it can act as a channel for frank consultation between the white and non-white races.

In the capital's view, relations between whites and non-whites will become even more dangerous in the years ahead than the Cold War between the West and Russia has been.

Communist China's basic strategy now is to exploit the tensions, fears and resentments between the races, especially in Africa.

The main value in the Commonwealth, which now has 10 African members and only four white originals, is seen to lie in the opportunity for blunt talk between the races.

When he met Soviet Prime Minister Shastri of India here Thursday, Prime Minister Pearson said the word "race" in referring to the "new Commonwealth."

Mr. Pearson and his predecessor, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, have been instrumental in developing the Commonwealth from a cozy white man's club into an inter-racial forum. They have played a major part in reading South Africa out of the Commonwealth in protest of race segregation.

Mr. Pearson helped to resolve last year's Commonwealth conference from the possibility of an African walkout when Britain tried to prevent the discussion of the Rhodesian issue.

The issue is not only discussed Rhodesia but supported the African position that Rhodesia must take be given complete independence by British under the present constitution whereby a small white minority rules the black majority.

There is a nationalist drive among the more than 30 new African states to obtain political independence for blacks in Rhodesia, the Portuguese territories of Africa and in South Africa.

Thus it is expected Rhodesia will be the focal point of the prime ministers' discussions—and that time Britain itself will introduce the subject.

It is believed here that the attitude of suspicion and resentment at last year's conference — which prevailed until Mr. Pearson broke the ice—won't be repeated.

In Ottawa's view, there will be "bell to pay" if there is unilateral declaration of independence by the white Rhodesian government under the present constitution. There is some hope here that there won't be such a declaration fimmediately and that prime minister Ian Smith may be more moderate.

Will Celebrate Anniversary Of Waterloo on Saturday

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain will celebrate the 150th anniversary of Waterloo Saturday.

On the evening of Saturday, June 17, 1815, the Duchess of Richmond was giving a ball in Brussels in honor of Gen. Sir Arthur Wellesley, first Duke of Wellington, the commander of the British Army assembled on the continent to fight Napoleon of France.

During the dancing, news was brought that Napoleon's army had made an unexpected thrust towards Brussels. The duke, attended by a few staff officers, slipped away.

During the night, he drew up his army on a slope between the two Walloon villages of Waterloo and Quatre Bras, and there waited for the emperor of the French, who had escaped only 100 days earlier from captivity on the Italian island of Elba.

Next morning, battle was joined. Throughout that Sunday it swayed to and fro along the muddy ridges of Waterloo. As he watched his sweating redcoat soldiers, often in hand-to-hand combat with the French, the Wellington murmured "would that night or Bluecher would come"—referring to the German general whose army was also marching against Napoleon.

Bluecher did come—just in time. His army's charge into the French flank broke their morale. Napoleon's veterans broke and ran from the allied lines. Napoleon was taken prisoner.

The Saturday date for celebration of the anniversary was chosen to coincide with the Queen's official birthday.

The Queen will be the guest Saturday night at a dinner given by the army in the centuries-old banqueting hall in Whitehall. Opposite the hall a public pageant in color and sound will be staged by 20 regiments that fought at Waterloo.

One other small tradition will be preserved. Next Friday, the present Duke of Wellington will go to the Queen to pay her his annual rent for the house and estates given by the nation to his ancestor.

It is a strange rent—a small silk French tricolor, a replica of the standard captured during the battle.

Bishop Family To Join Rodeo In England

WELLAND, Ont. (CP)—The Bishop family, three Ontario rodeo performers from nearby Ridgeville, left here Thursday to join a rodeo and Canadian exhibition formed by seven Ontario cowboys in Blackpool, England.

The Bishop family is the vanguard of a new contingent of 20 Ontario rodeo entertainers going to Britain.

The seven cowboys already there decided to form their own rodeo when a $800,000 cowboy and Indian show, sponsored by Transatlantic Exhibition Services Ltd., ran into financial difficulties and left the group stranded at Blackpool.

The rodeo was originally scheduled to open at Blackpool June 23, with about 50 Canadian cowboys and 10 Indians from the Six Nations Reserve near Brantford and continue until Sept. 11.

Following the project's collapse, the cowboys repudiated their agreement with Transatlantic Services and signed a contract with the Royal Lancashire Agricultural Society to put on a show at the society's exhibition July 27 at Blackpool.

The group plans to perform at various centres in Britain before the Blackpool exhibition and then use the Blackpool facilities to run their own show after the exhibition is completed.

The Bishop family includes Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bishop and Mrs. Cleo Aylett, wife of one of the cowboys now in England.

The Canadian performers in Blackpool are: George Hewitt, Ed McAuthin, Jeff Chase and Don Matthews, all from Woodstock, Hugh Vivian, Oakland, Ron Forsythe, Maple, and Chuck Aylett, Niagara Falls.

Police Chiefs Complain EMO Plans Lacking in Co-ordination

BARRIE (CP)—Chief Constable Robert McCarron of Guelph appealed Thursday for better co - ordination of emergency measures as the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police ended its conference.

"So help me God, I don't know what to do about emergency measures nor does a single man on my force," he said after watching a presentation by six members of the emergency measures branch of the attorney-general's department.

Chief McCarron said he believes Guelph will become a hospital centre for evacuees from Toronto, but he is not sure. He was also not sure who is the emergency measures chief in his area.

Other chiefs had similar complaints. One said auxiliary police in his area had been issued flashlights but no batteries. Another noted that a clock in an underground emergency installation at Camp Borden was running 15 minutes slow.

Chief Constable Carl Farrow of Windsor said as far as he knows his city has the only complete emergency measures plans.

OPP Commissioner Eric Silk added that he has seen good emergency plans for Ottawa and Perth.

But spokesmen for the emergency measures branch admitted that 33 of the 52 Ontario areas designated by the emergency measures office had made separate plans.

Chief Farrow criticized them for giving the impression that these measures would work—no one when questioned directly seemed to know if they actually would work.

Commissioner Silk said he has no wide - powers until a state of national emergency has been declared. He urged the association to form a standing committee on emergency measures.

Earlier in the day, Irvin L. Robinson, an adviser to the Ontario police commission, said a lack of personnel in small Northern Ontario communities seriously hampers law enforcement.

Most of these little towns—usually with less than 5,000 population—have one- or two-man police officers with insufficient tax yields to hire more, he said.

But community leaders want their own forces, as larger municipalities have, and do not want law enforcement by the provincial police, Mr. Robinson said.

He said such small forces are ill-trained because constables cannot afford to leave to attend the Ontario Police College at Aylmer.

Two Railways, Four Major Unions Agree on Joint Body To Handle All Grievances

OTTAWA (CP) — The two major railways and four of the large railway unions have agreed on the creation of a joint body to hand down final and binding decisions on employees' grievances, it was learned Thursday.

Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan of Windsor, Ont., who is retiring this month as senior magistrate of Essex County, will head the new system as a one-man tribunal.

The deal is the result of 18 months of secret negotiations involving the CNR, CPR, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC), the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers (Ind.), the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees (CLC) and the Transportation Communications Workers Union (CLC).

These unions represent 40,500 workers.

First hearings under the new system will open July 5 in a new office being set up in Montreal.

It replaces the old Canadian Railway Board of Adjustment which was scrapped last year after 46 years of operation.

Only two permanent representatives serve on the new body. T. A. Johnstone, assistant CNR vice-president for labor relations, and G. C. Gale, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, are the initial appointees.

Informants said the new system will work this way:

Grievance matters involving the interpretation or application of union agreements will be filed with the Secretrat office. They will first be discussed between labor and management representatives. If agreement is not reached in reasonable time, they will be placed on a monthly docket.

Magistrate Hanrahan will hear arguments from both sides and then hand down a decision that will be final and binding on both parties. There can be no further argument or appeal.

Magistrate Hanrahan, a veteran of nearly 20 years in labor relations work, was reported to be a unanimous choice of both labor and management.

He is one of the few magistrates in Canada who has never been a lawyer and has no formal training in law. He began as a court stenographer, moved up to deputy magistrate and emerged as a self - taught jurist. He is retiring at the compulsory age of 75 after 36 years in the juvenile and county courts.

Survival Rate Has Increased For Lung Cancer Victims

TORONTO (CP) — The five-year survival rate of lung cancer victims was increased 6.5 per cent during the last 10 years, a University of Toronto surgery professor said here Thursday.

But the disease could be prevented if people would stop smoking, said Dr. Norman C. DeLarue, who is also chief consultant surgeon to the Ontario Cancer Institute.

Dr. DeLarue was addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian tuberculosis association.

The five-year survival rate—the period of time after which a patient is considered past the danger of death—now stands at nine per cent.

This improvement is due partly to better diagnostic methods and partly because patients are being referred earlier for specialized diagnosis, he said.

The cure is close to 100 per cent if lung cancer can be detected when found, still extremely small, Dr. DeLarue said.

But by the time symptoms appear it is too late to stop the growth of the disease, although there has been considerable gloom even in treating persons who already have symptoms, he added.

He advised pre-symptom examinations "of those he called high-risk persons — males over 40 who are heavy smokers.

If cancerous cells are detected and the individual is observed closely until the tumor has grown sufficiently to be found and then removed, 100 per cent of the patients can be cured, he said.

Billion-dollar Question

What Effect, If Any, Will Stock Market Break Have On U. S. Economy?

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—What this week's New York stock market break did to investors' pocketbooks—whether in actual cash loss or trimming of paper profits—is clear enough. What, if anything, it may have done to public confidence, or consumer and business psychology, can have a more serious bearing on U.S. economic prospects.

Rumors can race through Wall Street and be disproved and forgotten. But just how much importance do most Americans now place in such price gyrations? Or on stock traders' views of economic prospects when these vary from the official ones in Washington or those aired by corporate executives?

In this matter, observers usually separate the business community from the consumers themselves. How business executives will react to the most recent stock market tumble can be far different from how the general public does. And what each group does about it can affect the economy in different degrees and on different time schedules.

Stock traders try to guess ahead of time which way the economy is headed and how prospects for individual companies will change. This brokerage boardroom preoccupation makes traders extra-sensitive to rumors, however wrong they may prove to be.

But the stock market's scoreboard in this game isn't too impressive. The market slumps following president John F. Kennedy's assassination, the Bay of Tonkin incident, the Viet Nam conflict and like events were quickly reversed. It took the 1962 break the market erased the crash of May and June, 1962, and went on to new heights.

Business executives were far less disturbed by these market breaks than were the traders. This year corporate chiefs have been steadily upgrading their plans for expansion of plant and equipment. This is based on belief that the economy will continue to grow and that new productive facilities can be put to profitable use.

Could the tremors on Wall Street this week cause corporate directors to revise or shelve such plans? This could slow down the economy much more than the mere paper profits on the stock exchanges.

Business leaders are aware of the age of the economic upswing, now in its 52nd month. They are aware of the Viet Nam, Dominican and other world trouble spots. They've long known about the balance-of-payments problem. They still seem to believe that the economy will continue to expand. Whether they will go on betting on it is today's question.

Consumers are another matter. In recent years they've ignored the stock market gyrations. The crash in 1962 had little effect on consumer spending, largely because personal incomes continued to rise and because most of the damage seemed to be confined to stock traders themselves.

And because consumers went on spending, business took heart and in time started another round of increased spending for plant and equipment.

Together this kept the economy on its upward course. In turn, this brought the stock market back in line. Many fledgling stocks that had been bid up too high were left behind. But the key stocks regained their old position.

This week's tremors, whatever the causes, may sober up any would - be speculators. Whether the price break will frighten business executives and consumers remains to be seen. At the moment the odds seem to be it won't.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

There's a brand new battle looming in major league baseball. (Al Kelleher, buddy Shaddy, Jim Tobyworth and the rest of the mask-and-pad clan will love this.)

The grand viziers of the sport have introduced that electronic gimmick, the isolated camera that met with such success in professional football games last year.

It will match offsets with the natural orbs of the boys-in-blue behind the plate and on the bases.

Horsemen, harness and flat, place implicit faith in the fact that "the camera doesn't lie" and prove it with their photo-finish shot-takers.

At least they've proved it until a lens has been invented that will bring out in full view the various lengths of horses' "whiskers." And if that ever comes to pass some barbirous will come up with neutrli falsies for nags with abbreviated mousetaches.

But those eminent gentlemen, the judge and three-man juries of the Ancient and Honorable Order of Umpires feel that the isolated camera is creating problems for them.

In fact they claim they can and will prove that the camera does lie.

The dean of all the National League umpires, Al Barlick, says he is satisfied that the umpires' eyesight will hold up against the new electronic competition.

Besides the heat and hostility of grandstand and bleacher spectators Barlick feels his fraternity will be the recipients for the blasts of millions of television fans who will be shown the alleged errors of the plays through the unblocdied eye of the isolated shot-taker.

"We're taking the position," Barlick told a TV magazine, "that, regardless of what picture the guy sees in his living room, it is not as accurate as what we see in the flesh."

Barlick said that on plays at first base, "the umpire not only operates by sight but by sound as well" (for example, the pop of the ball in the glove.)

"But the camera is going to catch that accurate[illegible]," he added.

Perhaps if they wired the umps for sound it would make it highly interesting for "we-uns" who watch the games on old square-face.

For instance some years ago a batter was griping and kicking dirt over a called strike until the umpire squelched him with "Just a minute, son, I want to show you something."

He pulled a deck of playing cards from a pocket and asked the player to select one unseen to the umps. "You got the ten of diamonds," he nibs said.

The batter astonished at the call had forgotten his big beef and asked "how'd you ever figure that out?"

"The same way I figured the last pitch was a strike. Now let's play ball and leave smart matters to smart people," snapped the umps.

Or like Larry Doyle of the Old New York Giants who went into a comedy fall in an effort to avoid getting hit by a fast pitch. Getting up he trotted to first base. He knew the ball had not hit him but figured he might bluff the Ole Arbitrater, Bill Klem.

Klem yelled for him to come back—and he walked slowly to the plate, his arms folded. One hand was pinching the skin over his chin. John McGraw—rushed out to argue and by the time the squawk was over, Doyle yelled at Klem, "You say he didn't hit me. Well looks thin"

He pulled up his shirt and displayed a huge red mark on his side.

"Well, I'll be durned," swore Klem. "If's swore it didn't toucha. Go on, take your base."

City Hotel Beats Juniors In Exhibition

Undefeated City Hotel stepped out of their league to pick up another victory last night.

City came from behind to top Ellis Juniors 15-11 in an exhibition game at the CNRA Park. City tops the Commercial Softball League while the Juniors share third place in the B and D. League.

Ellis' held a 10-2 lead over City after four innings of the seven-frame exhibition but the winners took over in the sixth, scoring seven times to tie the game 10-10. Four walks, three hit battery and a triple told the story. City got three more in the seventh to pull out the decision.

Garry Genereaux was the winning pitcher, throwing two hit ball over the last three frames. Dave Feeney gave up seven hits as the starter. They fanned six and walked six, five by Feeney.

Bob Ethier was tagged with the loss, allowing half of the winners' six hits while working the final four frames. He fanned three and passed eight. Bob Boyle whiffed four and pass[illegible]one while allowing just one run.

Doug Morgan had a triple, Dave Feeney a double and singles went to Moe Hawkins, Bucky Ethier and Doug Hall, with two, for the winners.

Bob Boyle and John McKibbon had homers for the Juniors with McKibbon also hitting a single. Stu Muirhead doubled and singled twice, Jim Rutherford also doubled and Bob Moon hit two singles.

Snell Looks At Bill Crothers' Back

By ED SIMON

TORONTO (CP)—An Olympic runner-up gained his revenge and an underdog challenger set up the second-fastest three-mile race in history at the Toronto International track meet Thursday night.

The loudest cheers greeted the victory of Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., over Peter Snell, the world's greatest middle - distance runner, in the half-mile after four previous defeats at the hands of the New Zealander, including a second-place finish in the Olympic Games at Tokyo last October.

But Crothers, who runs for the hometown East York Track Club, had to share the plaudits of the 28,823 spectators with Ron Clarke as the Australian ace covered the three-miles in 13:02.4, second only to the world mark of 13:00.4 he set a week ago at Los Angeles.

It was a Los Angeles runner, Ron Larrieu, whose spirited run at Clarke over the first 13 laps enabled him to break the listed world record of 13:07.6 for the second time in a week. Larrieu, the dark horse in a star-studded seven-man field, was generously applauded as he held off Olympic 10,000-metre champion Billy Mills for second place.

EQUALS WORLD RECORD

Wyomia Tyus, the Olympic 100 - metre champion, equalled the seven-year-old world record of 10.3 seconds, set by Marlene Mathews Willard of Australia, in the 100 yards but the time, like several others in the shorter events, may be nullified because of excess wind velocity.

In addition to the world records, four Canadian open marks were broken and a fifth tied, a Canadian native record was broken and another equalled and eight winners established new marks for Varsity Stadium.

Apart from Crothers' upset of Snell, the first time the New Zealander has lost over the distance since George Kerr of Jamaica nipped him in 1961, the results ran largely true to form.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver, the Olympic bronze medallist at 100 metres, edged Mel Pender of the United States Army, who finished three places behind him at Tokyo, in the 100-yard dash with both being timed at 9.3.

In the 220, Jerome was second behind Paul Drayton of Cleveland as the winner equalled the Canadian open mark of 20.9. Jerome, who finished fourth in the 200 metres at Tokyo while Drayton was second, was clocked in 21.1.

OPEN MARK EQUALLED

Canadian open records fell in both women's sprints. Besides the victory of Miss Tyus in the 100, in which second - place Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver equalled the native mark of 10.7, Edith McGuire, the Olympic 200 - metre champion, won the 220 in 23.7 seconds with Miss Piotrowski again second in 24.4.

The two Tennessee State speedsters, together with Soeia Gusa and Lorraine Dunn, broke another Canadian open mark by winning the women's 440-yard relay in 45.8 seconds.

The Crothers - Snell duel saw the 24-year-old Canadian turn the tables decisively on the Olympic champion, who outgeneralled him at Tokyo.

In that race, Snell suddenly zoomed past Crothers with about 200 yards to go and opened up a safe lead before the Canadian was able to match his burst.

This time Crothers never let Snell out of his sight. When the 26 - year - old New Zealander made his bid on the far turn, the bespectacled druggist moved with him. They were level with 22 yards to go and Crothers pulled away to win by two yards. His time was 1:48.4, well under the stadium record, to Snell's 1:48.6.

SNELL PHILOSOPHICAL

Both runners agreed the slow 55-second first lap may have influenced the result but Snell was philosophical about it.

"You can't go on finishing first time after time," he said. "If I had to be beaten, I'm glad it was Crothers."

While the New Zealander plans to retire after a forthcoming campaign in Europe, Crothers said he is getting stronger and plans to continue.

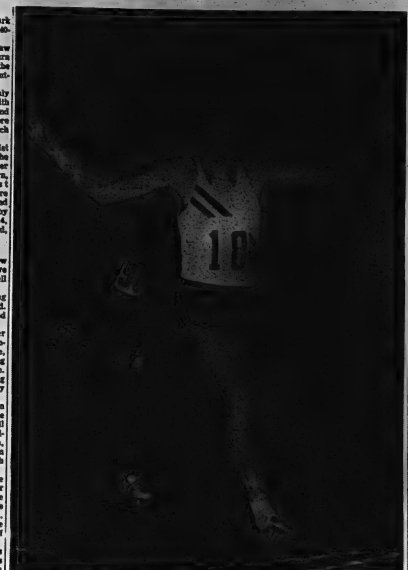
"As long as I enjoy running I'll keep running and I really enjoy it," he added.

Clarke turned the tables on Bob Schul, who beat him in the 5,000 metres at Tokyo, as well as Mills. Schul was a well-beaten last in the field of seven, reversing the Olympic result in which the Australian was ninth of 11 runners.

His fellow - Australian, Albie Thomas and New Zealander Bill Baillie were next in line behind the first three. Dave Ellis of Toronto was sixth, breaking the Canadian native record with his clocking of 13:29.0.

Clarke blamed the stadium's sharp corners and his rigorous North American tour for his failure to lower the world record.

Pressed by Thomas for the first mile and with Larrieu at his elbow for another five laps, the muscular Aussie pulled away steadily to finish 50 yards in front.



Mary Rand, the British world - record holder in the women's broad jump, competed in two events, winning the 100-metre hurdles in 13.4 seconds and finishing second behind U.S. Olympian Estelle Baskerville in the high jump. Sue Nigh of Toronto was third in the latter event which all three cleared five feet, four inches.

Jim Grelle of Portland, Ore., won the mile in 3:53.3 over John Davies of New Zealand and Gary Weidner of North Carolina. The quarter - mile event in Ollan Cassell of New York in 47.2.

Ron Morris cleared 15 feet, seven inches, to win the pole vault and a U.S. Army team from Fort Campbell, Ky., defeated an East York foursome in the men's mile relay, despite a gallant attempt by Crothers to overtake Drayton in the anchor lap.

Predicts Snell Victory

LONDON (AP)—Alan Simpson, Britain's fastest miler, predicted Thursday that New Zealand's Peter Snell will regain the world record when the two men compete against each other at Dublin July 5.

Michel Jazy, 28 - year - old French runner, shattered Snell's record in 3:53.6 at Rennes, France, Wednesday night. Snell's mark is 3:54.1.

Last Monday Simpson ran the mile in 3:56.6—the fastest time ever clocked by a British runner.

Simpson said Jazy's achievement was tremendous. But he added:

"Jazy's run will mean that the world record will go again when I race against Snell in Dublin, because Snell will be eager to get it back."

Pirates Hot - - - Buc-Passing Is Over

—Win 18 Of 20—

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pittsburgh Pirates are the hottest team in the major leagues with 18 victories in the last 20 games after a 4-2 victory over Houston Astros Thursday night.

Juan Marichal, meanwhile, continued feeding New York his personal steady diet of blanks as San Francisco Giants defeated the Mets 3-0.

The Pirates victory stretched their latest winning streak to six games while the Mets' loss was their sixth in a row.

The last time New York won, Pittsburgh lost. In fact the Pirates' only two setbacks in the last three weeks have come at the hands of the cellar-dwelling New Yorkers.

Bob Veale won his fifth straight complete game against the Astros with home runs by Willie Stargell and Donn Clendenon the key blows for the Pirates.

Pittsburgh's surge, which came on the heels of an eight-game losing streak, has lifted the Pirates over .500 for the first time this season and has them in fifth place, just 5½ games behind Los Angeles Dodgers.

The league-leading Dodgers were blanked 4-0 by Philadelphia Phillies' Ray Herbert, who pitched his first National League shutout.

In afternoon games, Milwaukee Braves moved within 2½ games of the lead with a 6-4 victory over Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds edged St. Louis Cardinals 8-7.

Veale had his string of scoreless innings snapped at 28 when Houston pushed a run across in the fifth, but the tall left-hander went on to his seventh victory in nine decisions.

Marichal shut out the Mets for the third time this season and has allowed them just one run in the last 52 innings dating back to May 31, 1964. The victory ran his career mark to 12-0 against New York.

Jesus Alou and Jim Davenport provided Marichal (9-5) with all the runs he needed, homering solo home runs. Alou's sixth of the season came in the fourth inning and Davenport's first in inning later.

Richie Allen and Dick Stuart supported Herbert with back-to-back homers in the sixth inning as the Phillies' right - hander evened his record at 5-5.

Frank Robinson ripped his 300th career homer and Tommy Harper had four hits for the Reds. Leo Cardenas, who had three safeties, tagged a bases loaded triple as Cincinnati built an early lead.

But St. Louis came back on two homers by Bill White before Pete Rose singled in Harper with the winning run in the sixth.

Milwaukee spotted Chicago a three - run lead, then roared from behind on homers by Rico Carty and Hank Aaron to win its seventh game in the last nine.

Aaron's ninth homer got the Braves started in the third and Carty slammed his second in the seventh.

Harness Meet

Thirty-Eight Will Start

Thirty eight horses, a record for the season, go to the barrier tomorrow night at the third seasonal meeting of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club.

Eight entries will get the "go" signal in the first mile heat and each of the double events in the second, third and fourth races. Five entered in the feature free-for-all dash and mile events.

Two "Wann" horses Brian and Irene will attempt to duplicate Mablemate "Margaret Wann's" victory in last week's opening mile dash.

Atomic Seiba is looking for a repeat double win in the third and seventh heats. It won the second and fourth last week.

There has been a shake-up in classification. Lastlin Scout which won both the fourth and eighth events last Saturday is entered in the free-for-all.

"Chuck's Delivery" will race in the fourth and eighth events pitted against "Mighty Lass Jr" which took honors in the third and sixth races a week ago.

R. Yankee Wann a consistent winner in the last two meets is not entered in the feature events, nor is Elz Enden Hanover who set the seasonal track record last Saturday.

With weather permitting directors are looking forward to the best crowd of the season.

There was some dissatisfaction among bettors regarding the quinella last week.

This is the ruling laid down by the official rules of parimotuel betting by the federal government and Ontario government and enforced by representatives of both bodies.

This is quoted from the rules. Here it is:

"Entries will be treated as individual horses or coupled in the betting. If an entry finishes first and second, either one of the horses must finish first and the winning combination will be 1-1 or 2-2 as the case may be. Should your selection couple any entry with another horse, either horse of that entry may finish in your selected position."

Lightfoots Swamp Ter-Haar

Lightfoot Construction buried the hapless Ter-Haar Daubers under a 23-0 score in a Commercial Softball League tilt last night.

It was strictly "no contest" from the first frame, when Lightfoots scored four; until the seventh, when they finished up with eight big runs. Only in the third did they fail to score.

George Young got the pitching victory by tossing two-hit ball over the five innings. Joe Harvey cleaned up for him with two hitless innings of relief, fanning two. Young struck out 10 and walked three.

Ray Ryan allowed 14 hits and 22 runs before Ron Pointer took the Daubers' rubber in the seventh. Neither fanned a man but Ryan walked 13. The team erred eight times and the winners played errorless ball, while collecting a total of 16 hits.

Doli Dolan slammed a home run, double and single; Ken Brooks a grand-slam homer and double; Don Smith a three-run homer and a single to pace the hit parade. Just about every man in the lineup added to the total as George Young stepped and singled, Rusty Garvin and John Hazard each had two singles, Joe Harvey a double, Doug Rose and Jack "Deacon" Whiting a single apiece.

HALIFAX (CP)—A 10-round non-title fight between Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo of Toronto and Jack Bailey of Philadelphia, scheduled for nearby Glace Bay June 19, has been cancelled.

The Cape Breton Boxing Commission said Thursday it did not consider Bailey a worthy opponent for Chuvalo, third-ranked heavyweight in the world.

Promoter Gus MacLellan said he was seeking a world ranking opponent for Chuvalo in Glace Bay at a later date.

Beats Twins 4-1

Tribe's Bonus Baby Earning Bonanza

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sam McDowell, 22, Cleveland left-hander, continued his outstanding pitching Thursday night by striking out nine in a 4-1 Indians victory over first-place Minnesota Twins and became the first American League to reach the 100-strikeout level this season.

McDowell now has won three straight, lifting his record to 6-3 and justifying the $100,000 bonus the Indians paid him five years ago.

Relying only on a fast ball and curve, he put together an 11-2 record over the final half of last season. And now he suddenly has blossomed into the league's strikeout artist, challenging Sandy Koufax for the major league lead. McDowell has struck out 108 in 80 2-3 innings to 119 in 101 1-3 innings for the Los Angeles Dodgers' southpaw.

Baltimore's Wally Bunker took his second straight swing at the sophomore jinx, allowing only an unearned run while scattering eight hits in a 5-1 Orioles' victory over Washington Senators.

In the only other AL game scheduled, Chicago White Sox moved to within 1½ games of the front - running Twins by beating Boston Reds 4-3.

McDowell struck out Twins' slugger Harmon Killebrew three times and allowed Minnesota's only run in the second inning on a walk and singles by Jerry Kindall and pitcher Dave Boswell. He allowed only six hits until the ninth when the Twins threatened and Gary Bell finished up.

Camilo Carreon hit a two-run homer in Cleveland's three-run second inning uprising against Boswell and Leon Wagner wrapped up the scoring with a solo homer in the third.

Bunker, who had a 19-5 record last season but has been plagued by arm trouble, came through with his second straight strong performance, losing his bid for a shutout in the seventh inning when Dave Johnson's error contributed to an unearned Washington run.

Bunker, now 3-2, also collected a two-run single in the eighth inning after the Orioles had snapped a 1-1 tie in the seventh when Johnson doubled and scored on a single by Russ Snyder.

The Red Sox led 2-1 and Dave Morehead was working on a three-hitter when the White Sox suddenly threatened in the seventh. Boston reliever Dick Radatz came on, hit Don Buford with a pitch to load the bases and then was tagged for a triple by Floyd Robinson.

Gary Peters, who gave up Tony Conigliaro's 12th homer, got the victory for a 5-4 record with Hoyt Wilhelm's relief help.

NHL Ups Awards Money

MONTREAL (CP) — The National League series was a busy four-day meeting Thursday, cleaning up odds and ends and giving formal approval to matters dealt with earlier by the club owners.

The number of individual units per club for award money in league standings and the Stanley Cup series was increased to 21 from 18, meaning three more allotments to each participating club. The amount of the money awards was not reduced.

The previously - announced meeting to consider applications for franchises in the expected expansion of the NHL was set for June 24-25 in New York. Expansion is not likely to come about until the 1966-67 season.

The annual rules conference will be held Aug. 27 in Toronto.

By increasing the number of units in award money, the league will shell out an extra $30,000.

It was felt that with the decision last season requiring each club to carry two goalies, and to provide leeway for part-season play when a club may vote full or fractional units instead of overlooking a player, the number of units should be increased.

The amounts are $2,250 per unit to the club finishing first in the regular season, $1,500 for the second-place club, $750 for the third and $250 for the fourth.

Units for clubs winning semi-finals in the Stanley Cup series are $1,500 and for the losing clubs $1,000.

Units for the winning club in the final are $2,000 and for the losing club $1,000.

'Speedy Scot' Costs Bettors $116,000

Top Trotter Finishes 'Dead'

NEW YORK (CP) — Speedy Scot, regarded as the world's top trotter, finished dead last in the $25,000 Rodney Trot at Roosevelt Raceway Thursday night, but took a lot of bettors to the cleaners.

The five-year-old horse was a prohibitive 2-to-5 favorite with the crowd of 25,000 and caused $116,302 in across - the - board money to go down the drain.

Canadian - born Ralph Baldwin, Speedy Scot's driver, was roundly booed. Baldwin, one of harness racing's greats who was born in Lloydminster, Sask. blamed Chuck Vogel, the starter, for "holding the gate."

Baldwin said Vogel had been "slow in getting it away," and, as a result, Speedy Scot broke stride at the outset. Almost before most fans saw what had happened, Speedy Scot was a dozen lengths behind the other five starters. The disadvantage in the mile race grew progressively worse.

...Speedy Scot, who has lost only when he has failed to remain in stride, suffered his 11th loss in 53 races.

The winner was Speedy Count, a 25-to-1 shot. The payoff was a whopping $52.10, $13.20 and $8.20 for $2 across the board. Speedy Count, driven by Billy Haughton, won by three-quarters of a length over Big John and was clocked in 2:03 2-5. Su Mac Lad, an 11-year-old, was third.

While Baldwin blamed Vogel for Thursday night's shocker at Roosevelt, three other drivers in the race defended the starter.

Stanley Dancer, in the sulky behind Su Mac Lad, said "Chuck has done the best job of starting I've ever known."

Vogel rejected Baldwin's complaint. "I got the gate going in normal fashion," he said. "None of the others complained and the fact that they went to the quarter in 0:29 4-5 is proof that it was a good start."

Baldwin hinted that Speedy Scot may pass up the next big race at Roosevelt. "I'm tired of fighting with the starter," he said.

Baldwin explained that he had been criticized by Vogel for not having brought Speedy Scot up to the gate fast enough in a previous event in Westbury.

British Amateur

Youth Is Giant-Killer

PORTHCAWL, Wales (CP-AP)—Clive Clark, a 19-year-old English youth who has risen like a rocket in golfing circles, was cast in the giant-killer role at the British amateur golf championships here today.

Clark made himself a near-certain choice for the British Walker Cup team by knocking off defending champion Gordon Clark, no relation, 4 and 3 in Thursday's fifth round. And today, young Clark faced Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia, the lone survivor from among 34 Americans who started in this match-play competition.

Other matches in the 18-hole sixth round, first of two today, brought together Mike Bonallack of England and Paddy Hales of Wales; Rod Foster of England and Alister Low of Scotland; John Povel of Wales and Martin Christmas of England.

The seventh round, is the afternoon will have two survivors for the 36-hole final Saturday.

FINISHES 28TH

NEWCASTLE, England (Reuters)—Cyclist Joe Jones of Toronto finished 26th in Thursday's 12th stage of the Tour of Britain cycle race. Jones covered the 109 miles from Scarborough to Newcastle in four hours, 54 minutes and 17 seconds. The stage winner, Luis Santamarina of Spain, did the trip in 4:52:30. Jones retained seventh place in the over-all classification with an aggregate time of 48:29.15.

Crackers Crush Leafs 20-0

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs fell with a resounding thud Thursday night as league-leading Atlanta Crackers shook loose for 20 runs and shut them out in the process.

The usual strong support the Leafs get from their pitching staff was whittled away by stronger Atlanta hitting as the Crackers chipped off 20 hits, including four home runs. The Loss left the Leafs 4½ games behind Atlanta.

Elsewhere in the International League, Jacksonville Suns took a doubleheader from last - place Buffalo Bisons 6-4 and 9-4. In Columbus, Syracuse Chiefs stopped the Columbus Jets from moving ahead of the Leafs into second place by defeating them 6-1.

KITCHENER (CP) — Seventeen-year-old Dave Heffernan pitched a one-hitter Thursday night as Guelph C-Joy's defeated Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers 2-0 in an Inter-County Baseball Association senior contest.

Heffernan, pitching his first game in senior company, had a perfect game until second baseman John Shimer bobbled a ground ball with one out in the seventh inning. One out later, a solid line single by Kitchener's Dave Smallwood broke up his no-hit bid.

Heffernan, who struck out nine, then leaved his only walk of the game and struck out pinch-hitter Barry McCarthy to save his shutout. The only other Panther baserunner came on a ninth-inning error.

A scheduled Bradford-at-Listowel game was postponed.

Howe Going Strong

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Gordie Howe says he hopes to play another three or four seasons with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

Howe, interviewed on a visit here Thursday, said his ambition to play 20 seasons in the NHL will be realized in the 1965-66 season opening next October. The 37 - year - old right winger, highest scoring player in the league's history, broke into the NHL in the 1946-47 season and has been with Detroit ever since.

Only one other player — Dit Clapper of Boston Bruins — played 20 seasons in the NHL.

PROSECUTING AGAINST THE HOOK
4-H
® © 1965 by HAPL Hous. Syn. Inc. of America
Golfers whose shots either fly straight to the left (pull) or fly and bend to the left (sharp hook) should check their shoulder action on the downswing.
If the shoulders turn on too level a plane (No. 1), the club may move into the hitting area from outside the target line. Normally, this will drive the ball to the left.
A simple solution to this problem is to work the shoulders on more of an up-down pattern on the downswing. Concentrate either on lowering your right shoulder or raising your left (No. 2) as you move into the hitting area.
This proper shoulder action will keep the clubhead moving well inside the target line on the downswing and along the target line in the hitting area. The clubface will drive the ball forward, instead of to the left.

Approve Banff Ski Site

MAMAIA, Romania (AP) — The International Ski Federation (FIS) decided Thursday to recommend the Canadian Rocky Mountain resort of Banff, Alta., to the International Olympic Committee as the site for the 1972 Winter Olympics.

Agyerpres, the Romanian news agency, said the annual FIS congress, meeting in this Black Sea resort, recommended Lahti, Finland, as its second choice and Sapporo, Japan, as its third.

Delegates of the three competing countries and their national Olympic committees submitted reports to the congress, outlining the qualifications of the cities to stage the games.

The three bidders lost out to Grenoble, France, in the race for the 1968 games, awarded by the International Olympic Committee at Innsbruck, Austria, during last year's Winter Olympics.

Canada, which has never been host to the Olympics either in summer or in winter, had neither sought the 1964 games and then made a particularly strong bid for the 1968 games.

Finland was host to the Summer Olympics in 1952. They were held in Japan last year.

The International Olympic committee is expected to pick the site of the 1972 winter games at its meeting in the fall of 1966.

DUBLIN (AP) — Canadian-owned Meadow Court, second to Sea Bird in the derby at Epsom, and Niksar, fourth in the June 2 running of the English Classic race, were among 36 three-year-old colts announced Thursday night as final accepters for the 1½-mile Irish Sweepstakes Derby at the Curragh Track June 26.

Meadow Court is owned by Calgary publisher Max Bell.

Reliance II, winner of the French Derby, was in the list of 36 accepters from an original nomination list of 643.

The actual starting field is expected to be about 25, but all 36 names will be drawn in the sweepstakes on June 23-24. The race is expected to be televised live to North America via the Early Bird satellite.

Also accepted was Nentego, owned by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor and trained by Sir Gordon Richards. Nentego was scratched from the derby when his condition was in doubt following a bout of illness.

Bell's horse, Meadow Court, is trained by Paddy Prendergast.

Names of the 36 accepters: Balsour, Ballycipile, Ballymacoll, Bedelia, Blue Strong, Connamore, Craighouse, Convoys, Donato, Duz Bonus, Flaming Red, Ga Grieve, His brother, Indian Snow, Jealous, Khalifie, Kilcoran, Mahrouk, Meadow Court, Mournelion, Neandale, Nentego, Never is Ever, Niksar, Nobel Record, Prince Baladin, Reliance II, Royalgo, Salt Lake City, Scrapani, Sierra de Mizza, Solewsi, Sparrow Hawk, Wedding Present, Western Wind, Zend Acesta.

The field is expected to be narrowed to about 25 starters.

Fox Entrusts Book Editor With Production of 3 Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can a book editor make movies? Twentieth Century-Fox has bet $16,000,000 that Saul David can, and the company doesn't seem concerned about the outcome.

The Zanucks, father and son, saw fit to let him produce Von Ryan's Express at $2,000,000, Fantastic Voyage at a like amount, and Our Man Flint for $4,000,000.

"They said to me: 'We'll put our money where your mouth is,' David said. "It was as simple as that."

The Springfield, Mass., boy started out to be an artist, but became a $75-a-week reader for Bantam Books. Four years later he was chief editor and in 10 years he was vice-president and editorial director. But he was restless for new challenges.

"I was always fascinated with the movie business," he said. "Besides being a fan, I was bemused by the relationship of films to paperback books: Both are an impulse buy, both are sold to a large degree on the basis of illustrative material, they are relatively inexpensive; and they are available everywhere."

FINDS BOOKS

David had a knack for locating and creating books with film possibilities. He picked up paperback rights to Bridge on the River Kwai for $2,500. Out of a one-word suggestion from Jerry Wald came The Interns.

A writer friend, David Westheimer, showed David the manuscript of Von Ryan's Express. David saw its potential as a film and offered it to the Warner Bros. Studios with himself as producer. Warners were willing to pay $50,000—if Westheimer would get rid of David. The author remained loyal.

Fox bought Von Ryan's Express for nearly double the Warners' offer, hired Frank Sinatra as star and started David on his spending spree.

JOHN WAYNE IN "CIRCUS WORLD"

A Wild West Show Loaded with Action and Excitement

From "The Big Trail," to a Western saga over half of Europe: That's the star blazed trail of John Wayne, whose first real break was playing a rugged pioneer hero in a tale about the early American West. Although Wayne has since flown out for a change of pace from gunslinging roles to play variety including being a jet pilot, a seaman in O'Neill's "The Long Voyage Home," as well as a Texas fighting Marine, he's portraying a different type of character in the new Samuel Bronston production "Circus World," that opened last night at the Belle Theatre.

As a wild western impresario, he'll be seen riding bellybest-for-leather, since besides running a troubled circus through Europe, Wayne participates in hair-and daring life-death clinches.

Although the exotic European atmosphere is a departure from his usual rugged characterization, Wayne nevertheless, was not only enthusiastic about the film and Bronston's star script, but also the fact that Henry Hathaway was set as director. Wayne and Hathaway had made two pictures together previously.

Both as actor and a director have worked together, it makes things a lot easier," Wayne observed. "We didn't need to go through that difficult phase of getting used to each other. Hathaway knows how to get to know Henry's directorial style. He knows my capabilities, and what's really important—how to get the most out of them.

"Cowboy or 'Duke' as he is generally called, took a keen interest in every aspect of "Circus World" and not only the casting of his co-stars, Claudia Cardinale, Rita Hayworth, Lloyd Nolan, Richard Conte and John Smith, but also smaller roles as well.

An exceptional note goes to a young girl billed as "Katharyna," who plays a significant role of a wire-walker in the film. Wayne enthusiastically asserts, "We all felt that Katharyna" has every chance of becoming a very important teenage actress after other producers see her work in the film.

from each minority party, met after the House adjourned Thursday evening. But information were guarded on a unanimous report.

The reforms touch almost every way of House business, including a 40-day time limit for debating most appropriation measures, more committees with greater abilities to investigate spending estimates, longer sitting hours for the Commons, abolition of appeals against Speakers' rulings and a 30-minute oral question period four days a week.

The changes are expected to go into effect Monday.

Abstract Art Out

Russian Artists Well Off, Contented, Rather Smug

John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, joined other foreign reporters on a tour of Soviet artists' studios. In this story he describes the effects of the restrictions of theme and style within which they work.

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—A portrait of the artist as a Soviet man:

Well off, contented, rather smug; has no qualms about painting within state-prescribed forms; no worries about financial security; inclines to sympathize with insecure, struggling artists in the West.

The unusually candid portrait emerged from a series of interviews with working artists arranged by the Soviet government for foreign correspondents.

The round of visits to artists' studios was intended to show that different forms and styles can flourish here even though art is dominated by socialist realism and abstraction is rigidly outlawed.

Among the works displayed by the artists there was a minimum of happy - Soviet-workers fare—the usual stuff of socialist realism—and an interesting variety of themes ranging from satire to Russian period paintings.

The satire, principally practised by graphic artist Leonid Soyfertis, was on "safe" subjects, and carried more than a little propaganda content: American tourists photographing a Moscow garbage can, dangerous - looking German generals, seamy habitues of a Parisian wine house.

RESEMBLES MATISSE

A strain of impressionism was evident in a couple of the artists. But this particular form of naughtiness was suitably camouflaged with protective coloration.

Alexei Ivanovich's paintings, described by one Western expert as having a notably "Matisse - like quality," were for movie film sets. It is perhaps doubtful whether much of his work would be acceptable for public display.

"He can be as non-representational as he likes," remarked the expert. "He just gives the idea for a movie set."

There were shades of impressionism in the richly-colored homespun paintings of Tatiana Alexeyevna Mavrina.

But this captivating, vivacious grandmother paints in the tradition of Russia's highly effusive folk art. Such historical painting is a respectable alternative to socialist realism. Her works often are used to illustrate children's books and fairy tales.

Asked whether she considered her works impressionistic she replied: "Not exactly . . . they are simply Russian art."

COMMAND GOOD PRICES

One of the most indelible impressions with which one came away from the series of visits was how handsomely obedient mediocrity can be rewarded.

Dmitri Zhilinski got 3,000 rubles or about $3,370 for a large though ordinary painting of a group of his artist friends.

(Paintings are normally sold to a museum or state purchasing agent for public viewing. Some few eventually find their way onto the open market, and Soyfertis, for one, says he sometimes sells directly to private buyers.)

For a similarly undistinguished portrayal of some gymnasts Zhilinski is bidding for 5,000 rubles and has been offered 3,500 by the state. A painting of his family will bring him 2,000 rubles.

Besides painting Zhilinski, 37, also lectures two days a week at a Moscow art institute.

"I don't really need to sell my paintings," says Zhilinski.

Occasionally he gets a portrait commission—and collects 800 rubles for his efforts.

"My position is good," remarks the artist contentedly.

BETTER LEFT BLANK

Thus provided for, Zhilinski says he feels no temptation to experiment with abstracts. He treats the very idea as somethire repulsive.

"If on a wonderful surface like that," he says, pointing to a spotless white board prepared for creative working, "you make a bad picture—better to leave it white."

Most artists, the rank-and-file with no great talent but possessed of a certain amount of craftsmanlike ability, probably find little difficulty in toeing the party line.

Not only have they a vested interest in behaving, but abstract art may be something largely foreign to their conception and experience.

"It would be too much to be torn from old forms in which one has been educated," says Ivanovich candidly.

"Absolutely not," replied Mrs. Mavrina when asked whether she ever felt the temptation to dabble in abstracts.

"I'm a concrete thinker."

Mrs. Mavrina does all right without experimenting. For her book illustrations she gets up to 5,000 rubles a volume. She averages one book a year, in addition to smaller volumes.

Additional income is earned by her husband, Nikolai Vasilevich Kuzmin, who is both a painter and a writer. He illustrates his own books.

'CLOSED DOOR'

Soyfertis says abstract art is the "closed door" for him. "It doesn't touch me. It doesn't say anything. . . . I always feel I have something to tell people in my work."

Soyfertis, an artist of considerable ability, sells 20 to 30 drawings a year at an average price of 500 rubles. In addition, he does sketches for the satirical magazine Krokodil.

Ask Soyfertis the principal difference between the circumstances of an artist here and one in the West and he will tell you: "Life is not guaranteed abroad."

Similarly, Ivanovich says: "There is no guarantee in the West. We have a guarantee. Our work is guaranteed."

Obviously the Soviet artist in good standing does not have to worry where his next ruble is coming from.

About the only way an artist can lose hold of the comfortable life is to be turfed out of the Union of Artists. Ivanovich was asked the grounds on which an artist can be expelled from the union. His answer: Violation of "moral principles" and nonfulfilment of the rules of the union.

In Soviet art, ideological and moral content are synonymous. Ivanovich's reply seemed to boil down to one main point: That disgrace and banishment from violating the rules of approved means of expression.

Plan Sculpture Exhibit At Stratford Festival

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—Visitors wandering around the sloping lawns of the Shakespearean festival Theatre this summer may find themselves confronted by a six - foot, welded - steel sculptures or a stark figure in bronze.

Apollo by Augustin—Filipovic and the bronze Queen—Greek Dynasty by Harold Town are part of an outdoor exhibition of 30 works by Ontario artists.

On view June 14 to Sept. 6, the exhibition is sponsored by the Ontario chapter of the Sculptors' Society of Canada, the Stratford Festival and Robbins of Fall Mall Canada Ltd.

The idea for the show came from Alan Jarvis of Brantford, Ont., former director of the National Gallery of Canada and for the last three years art adviser to the Stratford Festival.

"Good sculpture is always best outdoors," he said, adding that the lawn around the theatre with its terraces and wooded nooks provides "a superb setting."

Town, eccentric Toronto artist, is perhaps the best-known of those represented but other familiar names include Robert Hedrick of Windsor, Ont., and Walter Yarwood, Gerald Gladstone, Sorel Etrog and Filipovic, all of Toronto.

Jarvis, a sculptor himself, says sculpture will replace painting as Canada's most popular art form in the second half of the 20th century. He attributes a growing interest in the art form to a new awareness of space and depth created by air travel and the space age.

Shastri, Pearson Hold Purely Military Solution In Viet Nam Not Practicable

OTTAWA (CP)—The war in Viet Nam and Red China's nuclear tests figured prominently in talks between Prime Minister Shastri of India and Prime Minister Pearson.

The external affairs department today released a communique summing up the Indian leader's visit to Canada, which ends today, and the substance of his closed-door meetings with Mr. Pearson and other government officials.

The prime ministers expressed their "deep regret and concern" over the nuclear test series "in which the People's Republic of China has devoted itself in defiance of a world opinion which strongly opposes the continuance of tests in any environment."

On Viet Nam the leaders reviewed their efforts to bring about a ceasefire and regretted that "lack of respect for the ceasefire agreement" had led to the higher level of hostilities.

They were convinced that "a purely military solution was neither practicable nor desirable." They also expressed the hope that earlier proposals for negotiations without pre-conditions would still yield results.

Both were concerned at the "increasing tendency to use force for the settlement of disputes." Mr. Pearson "reiterated Canada's sympathy and support for India in her border conflict with China" and hoped it would be resolved peacefully.

The prime ministers reaffirmed their support for "the attainment of general and complete disarmament under effective international control."

The Chinese nuclear tests represented a "setback to current efforts to achieve non-proliferation of nuclear weapons." Mr. Pearson expressed "particular satisfaction" that India decided to use nuclear energy for only peaceful purposes.

The leaders discussed Canada-India relationships, questions expected to arise at the forthcoming Commonwealth prime ministers conference and "the main international problems of the day."

They reaffirmed their support of the United Nations and hoped that difficulties that stood in the way of the General Assembly session would be overcome and the world body would emerge stronger after the crisis."

Both governments wanted to see "practical arrangements for UN peacekeeping" strengthened.

U.S. Battalion Flown To Face 8,000 Viet Cong

DONG XOAI, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — Some 1,850 South Vietnamese and American troops took up positions in this battle zone 60 miles north of Saigon as intelligence reports indicated the presence of perhaps 8,000 Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

About 850 U.S. paratroopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade are dug in around the vital Phuoc Vinh airstrip 20 miles south of Dong Xoai.

The Americans are manning a perimeter 1,000 feet deep around the dirt airstrip.

They are supported by their own artillery—six 105 - millimetre howitzers, mortars and recoilless rifles.

U.S. army spokesmen at Phuoc Vinh said the paratroopers have a dual mission: to protect the airstrip and to stand by to move against the Viet Cong if any further substantial contact is made with guerrilla forces.

Recent intelligence reports indicated that a large Viet Cong force planned to overrun several important centres in the Dong Xoai-Phuoc Vinh area.

NO CONTACT YET

More than 1,000 South Vietnamese paratroopers were flown today to an airstrip at An Loc, 20 miles northwest of Dong Xoai. Field Dong Xoai now is flanked on the north and south by South Vietnamese and American paratroopers occupying airstrips.

Little contact with the guerrillas apart from sniper fire was reported today in both sides were apparently regrouping for possible further clashes later in the week.

Elements of a government battalion which were landed by helicopter at the scene of Sunday's ambush of a Vietnamese patrol, were engaging.

They were lifted out of the area quickly again. Apparently contact is now impossible. Forces in the area, after they had found about 100 bodies of government troops.

Other Ranger and infantry units conducted patrols around Dong Xoai as U.S. and South Vietnamese aircraft made repeated air strikes on suspected Viet Cong guerrilla positions.

HUNDREDS LOST

Military sources said a total of 1,850 Vietnamese paratroops were killed or missing. About 75 were wounded and 160 had escaped Sunday's ambush unharmed.

Government forces in the area now comprise more than three battalions: the two battalions of South Vietnamese paratroopers at An Loc and the U.S. airborne battalion at Phuoc Vinh.

This concentration of troops was in response to intelligence information that four Viet Cong main force regiments totalling perhaps 8,000 men may be operating in the forests and rubber plantations that cover the area, U.S. military sources said.

Ten-man Junta Rules In Viet Nam

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Viet Nam military leaders announced tonight they had agreed to set up a 10-member national leadership council under Maj. - Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu to rule the country in place of the former civilian government.

The membership of the council is 100-per-cent military and corresponds roughly to the former "restricted committee" which ruled the now - defunct armed forces council.

Earlier today, informed sources reported the generals had agreed to set up a three-man council as the country's highest authority.

The sources reported tonight that further discussions led Thieu and his colleagues to change their minds and establish, instead, the expanded body.

One of the main reasons behind the change was understood to be the attitude of the United States as expressed by U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor, who returned to Saigon from Washington today.

EXPRESSED CONCERN

Taylor, who conferred with Thieu upon his return, was believed to have expressed concern about the projected three-man council.

The new government structure of Viet Nam now is as follows:

A national leadership council headed by Thieu and nine other military leaders.

Under them will be a legal advisory council composed of lawyers and technicians to advise the military leadership on legislation and decrees, and an executive council.

Thieu today began a round of talks with Buddhist and Roman Catholic leaders and representatives of political groups and religious sects to outline the projected policies of his regime.

House Aims At Recess

OTTAWA (CP)—With the parliamentary reform legislation finally out of the way, the Commons today begins whittling away at the many bills that stand as obstacles between it and a recess.

The reform legislation, designed to streamline the business of Parliament and speed the legislative process, was given approval Friday after 15 days of horse-trading debate. With some nudges and pushes, give and take, it was finally put through.

Today, the Commons will begin tackling revisions to the Bank Act—a heavy legislative chore that could easily snag on controversy. The detailed studies will take place in committee, while the Commons itself tries to clean up the pre-recess legislation.

When Prime Minister Pearson outlined the pre-recess program last week, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said: "Certain will be many days ahead before the program will have been completed."

Because committee study of the Bank Act revisions is expected to go beyond July 1, when the present bank charters expire, there will be special legislation introduced to extend the charters.

There will also be the necessary legislation to implement the proposals made in the budget. The prime minister said it also is important to implement the program he announced recently to pay grants to unemployed workers who have to move to get jobs and the new incentive program for industries in designated areas of high unemployment.

In addition to this, he listed a number of other bills, mostly non-controversial, which he said the government wanted to bring forward at "an early date."

Kutch Quarrel Rocks Ottawa

SHASTRI MEETS INDIAN CHILDREN IN OTTAWA — Prime Minister Shastri pats cheek of girl during visit with children of the Indian community in Ottawa at the high commission office. Prime Minister Shastri, on his first visit to North America, held talks with Prime Minister Pearson and other Canadian leaders. (CP Wirephoto)

OTTAWA (CP) — A surprising attack by Prime Minister Shastri of India against Pakistan over the Rann of Kutch territorial dispute between the two nations overshadowed other events of the Indian leader's five-day visit to Canada.

It was not mentioned in the formal communique, but the incident touched off a full-scale diplomatic row that astonished Canadian officials.

It began Friday when the Indian high commission ran a full-page newspaper advertisement of "naked aggression" on the Kutch, an almost uninhabitable area lying between the two Asian countries.

ADDS MORE FUEL

The tiny Mr. Shastri poured more fuel on the fire Saturday when he spoke to a gathering of Ottawa's Indian community and referred to an alleged specific aggression in the Kutch by Pakistan a few weeks ago. He said Pakistan would have to withdraw its troops before any settlement could be reached.

The same day, Pakistan hit back with a charge that Indian troops were massing along its border threatening war.

Ironically, the communique reported that Mr. Pearson and Mr. Shastri had "expressed concern at the increasing tendency to use force for the settlement of disputes."

On Viet Nam, it said:

"The prime ministers examined the situation in Viet Nam and considered the measures open to them to try to bring peace to that country. . . .

"They were convinced that a purely military solution was neither practicable nor desirable.

"They hoped that it might well be possible for the combatants to curtail hostilities or initiate periods of cease-fire which might become permanent; they also expressed the hope that earlier proposals for negotiations without pre-conditions would yield results.

WILL SEEK SOLUTION

"They agreed to work for a solution to the Viet Nam problem . . . suitably guaranteed by the international community."

However, the formally-worded communique lacked the punch of Mr. Shastri's surprising decision to use the Canadian visit —and his first to North America—as a vehicle for a stinging attack on Pakistan.

Getaway Plane Found

LARDER LAKE, Ont. (CP)— Quebec provincial police said Sunday they have found the plane used to make a getaway after Friday's $164,000 gold robbery from a railway station near here.

The plane was found Saturday night by a group of fishermen on Grand Lac Nominigue near l'Annonciation, about 250 miles southeast of Larder Lake.

A police official said Ontario police will go to the lake to look at the plane, a single-engine Cessna-180 reported stolen Friday night.

Three men, wearing Halloween masks and carrying pistols, grenades and rifles, burst in on station agent Lloyd Thomas, 64, and made off with two bags containing five gold bars weighing a total of 300 pounds.

No trace of them had been found since the car they used to escape in was found beside Larder Lake, 17 miles west of Kirkland Lake. Clothing and a mask were found in the car.

The float - equipped aircraft believed used in the getaway was reported stolen Friday from a wharf at Lac-a-la-Tortue, near Grand'Mere, Que., 100 miles northeast of Montreal.

The robbery ranks among Canada's largest in recent years. Thieves took $214,000 worth of gold bars from Toronto International Airport in 1952, but the still unsolved theft did not involve armed bandits. In 1962, masked gunmen and robbers trucked away nearly $100,000 in gold bars from Montreal International Airport.

S. C. Yule, manager of Kerr-Addison Mines Ltd., at Virginiatown, 11 miles east of here, said the men took bars awaiting shipment to the mint in Ottawa.

The gold is shipped to Larder Lake every Friday under guard, he said. Mr. Tonkin is left alone for about four hours until the gold is placed on a train.

Police said the masked bandits burst in on Mr. Tonkin about 5:03 p.m.

The station agent was tied to a baggage car, and was not able to spot the licence number of the car used by the robbers.

Shastri Will Not Visit LBJ

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Shastri of India said today President Johnson has invited him to go to Washington in the future, but it won't be possible for him to accept.

He told a press conference he won't be able to go to Washington then because the Indian parliament will be in session.

President Johnson in the spring cancelled an invitation to Mr. Shastri to go to Washington in June on grounds that he would be busy with Congress and the Viet Nam situation.

Says Canada Is Facing Explosive Income Boom

TORONTO (CP) — Professor O. J. Firestone, a leading Canadian economist and former special adviser to the federal government, said today the country is on an explosive boom in incomes as well as in additions to the labor force in the next five years.

For one thing, it will mean another 2,200,000 motor vehicles on the roads, bringing the total to 8,100,000 in 1970.

Prof. Firestone, now vice-dean of social sciences at the University of Ottawa, said Canada needs to plan for balance in meeting the effects of the coming - of - age of young men and women born in the baby boom at the end of the Second World War. He proposed that:

—The federal government prepare two budgets, its traditional year-by-year spending and taxation budget, and a new five-year planning budget.

—The Economic Council of Canada make concrete and alternative policy and action recommendations which can be widely discussed in Parliament and outside it before hard decisions are taken by the government.

Prof. Firestone spoke to the annual convention of the Automobile Dealers Association of Ontario. His address took the form of a carefully - annotated economic paper on the subject of motor cars and economic growth.

Text of the paper was given to reporters in advance of delivery.

"It has become accepted practice among forecasters to speak of the population explosion of the early '70s. But even more startling is likely to be the income explosion that will take place in Canada in the next five to 10 years."

Per capita personal income, which was $1,821 in 1964, will be $2,451 in 1970 if current projects are realized. For a "statistical" family of four this means an income level of close to $10,000 a year in 1970.

Prof. Firestone said all available evidence points to the income explosion taking place "if Canada manages her economic affairs wisely and effectively."

The Economic Council had done good work in setting out guidelines in its first annual review, made public in January, but it now should propose more specific policies and actions.

He also said Finance Minister Gordon had gone further in his 1965-66 budget than any previous finance minister in declaring the government's determination to give a lead in growth to achieve the nation's potential.

Plan Year-long Research Into Magistrate's Sentences

TORONTO (CP) — Sentences handed down by magistrates in Ontario courtrooms will be the subject of a year-long research study to begin this summer.

Deputy Attorney - General A. R. Dick says there is almost no material available for presenting magistrates with guidelines, background or philosophies in sentencing.

The study will consider sentences in terms of rehabilitation of offenders and what probation or suspended sentences accomplish.

The University of Toronto's criminology centre, which inspired the provincial study of sentences, has provided several magistrates with test forms for analysis.

Professor John L. J. Ford, director of the centre, persuaded the Ontario Magistrates Association to participate during the association's seminar on sentencing here in December. He and research associate John Hogarth are working on details of the research program.

Magistrate R. G. Groom of Woodstock, chairman of the sentencing committee, said Friday the research will deal with sentences in certain types of common criminal offences.

Any Silver, Gold, Mercury, Platinum Scraps?; They're Valuable

NEW YORK (AP) — Attic trunks, basement darkrooms and dentists' plumbing are being mined more intensively for precious metals.

High-prices for silver, mercury and platinum are making it worthwhile for dentists and photographers, among others, to salvage metals that once literally went down the drain.

William Parry, refining operations manager for Handy and Harman, a leading silver refiner and dealer, notes "a substantial increase" in the amount of such scrap being saved.

Dental equipment now comes with traps to catch excess filling material—a silver-mercury amalgam — that's rinsed from the mouths of patients. Even the bit of cloth the amalgam is mixed on is saved.

Big photography firms have saved developing solutions for years to reclaim silver, but more of the smaller shops, one-man photographic studios and very active amateurs can also save money through salvage.

Hospitals and physicians have long sold outdated x-ray negatives for their silver scrap. "Now we're trying to get more veterinarians to save theirs, too," Parry said.

Spiral Metal Company of South Amboy, N.J., recently refined the silver out of 55 tons of coins from Ecuador. The increase in the market price for silver had made the silver content worth about twice the face value of the coins. The firm also refines gold from metal eyeglass frames and jewelry and silver from candlestick holders, torpedo batteries, detonation kits used to purify water and military insignias.

Army sharpshooter medals contain about 70 cents worth of silver and army uniform buttons are gold-plated. Gold braid on navy uniforms and caps contains real gold and items up often in scrap shipments.

Market prices for the pure, refined metals are: Silver $1.293 an ounce, platinum $97-$100 an ounce and mercury $700 and up for a 76-pound flask. Gold transactions, regulated by the government, are at $35 an ounce.

"Just when I had a wonderful speech prepared on debate cutting, they pass the recommendation."

Belleville Girl Killed When Car Turns Turtle

A car accident on the old Madoc County Road, about one mile north of Foxboro, at 12:30 a.m. Sunday, took the life of a Belleville girl and sent a Peterborough man to hospital.

Dead is Margaret Elizabeth Day, 18, an employee of the Hastings County Home.

Reported in satisfactory condition at the Belleville General Hospital is Raymond Dellios, driver of the car. He was taken to the hospital by City Ambulance.

Police report the car rolled over and threw Miss Day out. The rolling car landed on top of the passenger, and she was dead at the scene.

Miss Day had been employed at the Home for the past two years. She moved to Belleville from Newburgh where her parents still live.

Sunday Night Rain Fails To Bring Fall to Average

Last night's rain was welcomed by farmers generally a n d also by city residents with parched lawns, but the less than half an inch of rain received left the countryside only barely moist. A real rainfall up to this time of year.

Officials at the city pump house reported that .41 inch of rain fell from midnight to about 8:00 o'clock this morning.

But all told this month less than half an inch of rain has fallen in the Belleville a r e a, while total precipitation since the first of April is only about one-half what is normally received.

During April only 2.01 inches of precipitation were received, while throughout the month of May to date 1.2 inch of rain fell over the Belleville area.

The below normal rainfall has resulted in drastic reduction of the expected pea crop and has also slowed the growth of spring grain crops, meadows and pastures.

Consumer Price Indexes Rose During April

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer price indexes rose during April in nine of the bureau of statistics' 30 regional cities and city groupings, the bureau reported today.

The advances ranged from one-tenth of 1 per cent in St. John's, Nfld., to six-tenths of one per cent in Saskatoon-Regina and Edmonton-Calgary.

The index, mainly based on 1949 prices of consumer goods equalling 100, does not measure whether it is cheaper or more costly to live in one city or another, but the change in price levels in the individual cities.

Canton Said Suffering From War Tension

HONG KONG (AP)—Chinese travellers report China's southern metropolis of Canton is tense and suffering from a bad case of war nerves.

The refugees from Canton to Hong Kong report Communist authorities are whipping up war fears and urging older residents to move to rural areas for safety.

Many travellers said young men are being recruited for military service on the Chinese island of Hainan, off the coast of North Viet Nam in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Some Hong Kong newspapers speculate that a "war preparation evacuation" has begun.

Western intelligence sources here said they had no immediate confirmation of any mass movement of people, but they did not discount the possibility that Communist authorities were whipping up war tension in an effort to move some civilians out of crowded Canton, which now has a population estimated at more than 3,500,000.

Lock, Stock and Stores

Man, Wife Buy Town

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) In the sagebrush and jackrabbit country of southwestern Nevada, Kenneth Krueger, a train-weary San Francisco Bay area commuter, found the little town of Currie — population 80 — for sale.

It was just what the 42-year-old Krueger and his wife Kenneth had been looking for. So they bought it with their life savings of $85,000.

Tuesday, Krueger and his wife will pull up stakes at their apartment here and point their station wagon east for Currie.

The six-suburbanites are assured of a cordial reception. Krueger will take over the motor vehicle inspector for Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company in San Francisco, will automatically become the town mayor, sheriff, fire chief, ranger, assessor and landlord.

That's because he not only bought the town's 8 acres but its few houses and businesses as well. Krueger and his wife will run the general store, the service station, a bar and a trailer park.

Until 1900, Currie was a railhead for cattle and sheep growers. Now the livestock goes to market in trucks but Currie still caters to hunters and fishermen. It lies at the foot of the towering Goshute and Ruby mountains whose slopes abound in elk and deer and whose streams tumble with trout.

Rain Caused Blaze? Fire on Hydro Pole Cuts Off Prince Edward and City Power

Part of the city of Belleville and much of Prince Edward County were without hydro early this morning as a result of a fire on a pole carrying 44,000 volts.

The fire occurred on a double circuit hydro pole outside the municipal hydro sub-station in the north end of the city, cutting power to the city's power system, and Prince Edward county as far south as Picton.

Power was off for only a few minutes to four to about 3:30.

At mid-morning hydro crews were still working to repair the damage with service being given over other lines.

Included in the hydro cut-off were Northern Electric and both the rural provincial police headquarters.

RAIN CAUSED FIRE?

Hydro officials were still in doubt this morning as to what might have caused the pole fire, although it was stated the blaze may have been caused by rain before rain resulting from the morning rain.

The blaze started below the arms and, as it burned upwards, put the circuit conductors out of commission, cutting power from the two areas which the lines serve.

A complete new pole and circuit conductor assembly will be necessary before power is restored over the two lines. In the meantime power was being supplied over alternate lines.

Montreal Harbor was up 4.9 inches to 12.94 from the April figure of 13.45, a record low for the that month. The record low for May of 12.36 was set last year.

Lake Erie, measured at Buffalo, was up 3.28 inches to 571.49 May figure for Lake Superior is 600.17 compared to the record low for the month of 599.16 in 1926.

The May figure for Lake Huron is 578.40 compared to the record low of 577.85 for the month set last year.

All the lakes except Superior were up from the last year's May figures. Superior was a shade below with last year's May average at 600.20.

Sick Children's Hospital Fund Half Raised

Jack climbed $500,000 higher on the Beanstalk in front of Sick Hospital for Sick Children, as the Hospital's drive for $13,- 900,000 in public donations passed the half-way mark. Just over $7,000,000 has now been received, in outright gifts and pledges of future support.

The Hospital Family became the first division of the Fund organization to reach its objective. The division, consisting of doctors, nurses and other hospital employees in addition to the Women's Auxiliary and the Board of Trustees, had so far contributed a total of $972,200 to the appeal.

The response of the Hospital Family is especially encouraging," said Dr. J. H. Ebbs, chairman of the Fund, "in view of the fact that these are the people who are in the best position to know what is being accomplished at this hospital, and who know at first hand the urgent need for this work. Dr. Ebbs expressed hope that his division's success in exceeding its objective would provide an incentive to others in giving their all-out support to the campaign.

The Hospital's appeal, launched in the spring of this year, is scheduled to close at $30,000,000 to relieve serious overcrowding in its building on University Avenue in Toronto. More than half the needed funds are expected to come from private sources. The amount of $13,900,000 is being sought in public solicitations from corporate and individual subscribers throughout Ontario and from a selection of national corporations in Montreal.

Rules Machine Signature Not Good in Court

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP)— Magistrate Alan S. Stewart of Owen Sound has ruled that the machine - reproduced signature of Ontario's registrar of vehicles is unsatisfactory as evidence under the Criminal Code.

Police Consta Walter W. Cameron of Toronto was defending Alexander Carson Torrie, 22, of Galt on a charge of driving while his licence was suspended.

He challenged letters and a registrar's certificate attached to a notice of suspension of a driver's licence introduced as evidence by the crown. He cited the Canada Evidence Act to show that they were not public or official documents and therefore not admissible as evidence against the accused.

Defence counsel said that if public official responsibility for the document were not present for cross-examination, the signature on such important evidence should be at least signed by hand.

Africans, Asians Want Commonwealth Dissociated From U.S. Peace-keeping

By LOUIS NEVIN

LONDON (AP)—African and Asian leaders assembling for a prime ministers' conference here want a clear-cut declaration dissociating the British Commonwealth from U.S. action in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

Informants reporting this today said African leaders are also seeking a showdown with Britain on the issue of helping Independence to white - ruled Rhodesia.

Top leaders of one-quarter of the world's population are arriving for Thursday's opening of a conference of Commonwealth prime ministers at a time when the 21 countries are perhaps more profoundly and seriously divided than ever before.

Fourteen of the 21 members are feuding among themselves or with other countries.

They are divided over Rhodesia, relations with South Africa and Portuguese Africa, conflicts in Southeast Asia, the East-West relations in general, and even over the question of whether to have a permanent secretariat for the Commonwealth.

But the informants said the basic issue is the Commonwealth's future.

Britain, Australian and New Zealand support for American policy in Viet Nam and Rhodesia.

CANADA 'FLEXIBLE'

They suggested that Canada alone of the four original Commonwealth members appears to have the flexibility to avoid the Viet Nam question. Prime Minister Pearson has been among world leaders advocating a let-up in U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam to create a climate favorable for peace talks.

Twelve Commonwealth countries are said to be demanding strong conference statements dissociating the Commonwealth from U.S. policies in Viet Nam. On one side are Prime Minister Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia. He told reporters on arriving Sunday that the people of Viet Nam should solve their own problems.

On the other was Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies of Australia, senior statesman of the so-called "old white Commonwealth." He supported U.S. policy in Asia at an airport press conference.

British sources indicated that Prime Minister Wilson will try to head off the expected storm over Southeast Asia by pointing to his efforts to bring the Viet Nam conflict to the conference table.

CLAIM NOTHING DONE

The Rhodesian issue will certainly bring angry A f r i c a n charges that the British government has done nothing to bring about a solution since the last Commonwealth summit meeting last July.

At a communique at the time spoke of calling a constitutional conference attended by dele-gates of all Rhodesian parties to bring majority rule to the white-dominated country where Prime Minister Ian Smith's government rules over a Negro majority.

Wilson is expected to plead for forbearance to see whether the promised "constitutional dialogue" with Smith will produce any results.

He will certainly promise, sources said, not to weaken on the basic principle that Britain's job is to lead Rhodesia to independence until majority rule is assured.

A further problem that Wilson hopes to thrash out during the conference is the question of limiting Commonwealth immigration into Britain. But he hopes to discuss this with individual delegates in an attempt to keep it out of the open conference, where it might embarrass Commonwealth members that have a policy of permitting only white immigration.

LIMIT EMIGRANTS

The British prime minister wants the mother countries of the nations mainly Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago, Pakistan and India, to limit the number of emigrants they allow to come to Britain each year. Uncontrolled migration, he will argue, has put an intolerable burden on the British taxpayer.

Wilson won't be the only minister delegation has to talk to. Efforts to patch up some of the Commonwealth feuds and differences will almost certainly:

1. The India - Pakistan fight over Kashmir and the Rann of Kutch.

2. Last week's dissolution of the East African Economic Union by Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda.

3. Malawi's charges that Tanzania is harboring opponents of Prime Minister Hasting Banda's regime.

4. Malaysia's demand for Commonwealth backing in its struggle with Indonesia, which has claimed seven of 50,000 British troops and some Australian forces.

5. The exchange of angry words between Ghana and Nigeria, each charging the other with wanting to overthrow the established regime.

India's 'Dry Diplomacy' May Cost It Friends

BOMBAY (CP) — India is practising an interesting brand of diplomacy, known in political and journalistic circles as "dry diplomacy."

Under a cabinet order, no liquor is served at any government parties or dinners. The strongest drink available is fresh lemon juice.

This "no alcohol" policy is in keeping with the Indian government's prohibition policy.

Officials of the external affairs ministry are worried that "dry diplomacy" may be costing India some valuable friends. Indian newspaper correspondents covering Prime Minister Shastri's recent tour of the Soviet Union reported that no liquor was served at Indian embassy functions. The correspondents noted the Russians always like to have some wine or vodka with their food.

Some columnists have criticized the government for carrying the prohibition policy a little too far, and suggested foreign susceptibilities and tradition should be respected.

Official sources reject the criticism and say that if Soviet Prime Minister Kosygin has asked for vodka, or even just hinted at it, he would have been readily obliged.

Teen-age Yearnings

Beneath the sophisticated exterior of teen-agers today there is a great deal more than might be imagined. Buzzing inside their minds are the deep yearnings of youth everywhere.

What lies ahead for them? A university education perhaps, leading to a place in industry, sometimes more accurately described as the "rat race," or maybe early marriage and the responsibilities that that entails.

But life has more to offer than security and a home in suburbia. Young people in school learn about the world around them and many feel the urge to see the places they read about. The time to travel is during school vacation or before entering industry and the professions, and certainly before taking on family responsibilities.

In a Belleville restaurant recently two girls of about 19 were discussing life. Both felt there was nothing to do in Belleville after working hours and one suggested it would be fun if there were a restaurant in Victoria Park where young people could gather in the evening. But this would simply be another place for them to congregate, as they do now in downtown restaurants.

Young people should aim higher than this. They should know that hundreds of their fellows from Canada and other countries are daily en-route by ship and airplane to various destinations overseas. It takes little effort of imagination to project one's thoughts to a vessel at sea or a jet flying above the clouds.

Consider for example how the imaginations of the children of the Gemini pilots have been fired by their fathers' exploits and how their knowledge of the world has been improved accordingly.

Belleville may be home to 31,000 people, but there is a lot of world to see beyond this and other communities in Canada. Only a hundred miles away is Brockville, now preparing for its Summer Carnival. One of the candidates for Carnival Queen there is 18-year-old Marion Kunsiku who speaks fluent German and Estonian, the languages of her parents. She is hoping to become an airline stewardess and see something of the world.

So it goes on. It takes only a little imagination and not so very much monetary sacrifice to embrace the world beyond one's home. A boat or plane can pave the way to completely new and rewarding experiences. Young people should realize the possibilities before they get to the stage of the Belleville businessman (and he is not alone in this problem) who was heard to say recently that he wished he had more time to himself.

Violent Deeds

Only a short time ago a California youth who killed two persons and wounded several others emptying an arm from a hillside, was described as a "quiet, studious" individual. A friend was quoted as saying the shootings were the last thing he would expect of the youth.

Now we read that the main suspect in a macabre bank robbery in Nebraska in which four persons, including a woman clerk, were shot in cold blood as they lay on the floor, is a 22-year-old Kansas farm boy who was a college football hero and a "fine person" in nearly everyone's estimation.

As he left the bank after the shootings the young man said "good morning" to a customer entering the building and drove unhurriedly away.

Just what all this proves, if anything, we are uncertain. But it does seem to be a peculiarity of North American society, particularly the United States, that every so often some young man, liked and respected by his friends, with an excellent scholastic and sporting record and all the rest of it, is unaccountably transformed into a soulless maniac who sets out to kill innocent people.

Twenty or thirty years ago we used to draw a sharp distinction between war and peace. For most of the time nations were at peace; sometimes they quarrelled, but their armies were kept in the background. If their quarrels could not be settled by peaceful diplomacy, they might fight and, when one side decided it was time to give in, they would make peace and things would go on as before. But since the Second World War there has never been a real peace. Fighting has almost always been going on somewhere, and more than once we have been on the brink of world war.—Dr. F. S. Northedge, Reader in International Relations at London University.

Bureaucracy Wins Praise

BBC London Letter

The average man uses the word "bureaucracy" as a term of abuse, indicating all sorts of evils and frustrations, which are not always described in full. But as Donald Macrae, Professor of Sociology at the London School of Economics, pointed out in a BBC World Service series of talks on "The Uses of Bureaucracy," to the sociologist the word is a necessary, technical part of the science, described in full as "the whole specific and important social facts. "Bureaucratic administration is administration by professional, economic behaviour, bound by precedents, hierarchically organized, treating like cases dispassionately alike, is carried as far as is possible." A certain degree of this in all advanced societies, bureaucracy, and the process of bureaucratization could nonetheless raise difficult problems for developing societies.

Professor Macrae listed as among the social pre-conditions for the establishment of bureaucracy the sort of wealth that was produced not simply by nature's bounty but by the specialization and division of labour; the size of society, for bureaucracy was the means of the effective administration of authority; and the ability to read, write and calculate. The great early industrial bureaucracies of ancient Egypt and China, Byzantium and India, and modern bureaucracy, depended on letters and numbers", although this certainly did not mean there was universal literacy. A fixed system of weights and measurements and currency was helpful, but not essential. "What is essential is that in the communications areas of society a highly rational habit of mind should rule, and with it would go a rather dedicated attitude to work."

The keeping of law and order, the allocation of tasks, rewards and punishments could be done without bureaucracy — as in tribal and feudal societies; but with it these things were done with maximum efficiency and continuity and minimum cost, and for a modern or modernising society bureaucracy was undeniably necessary.

As in the natural sciences, said Professor Macrae, "the inexorable impersonality of bureaucracy — and of the highly specialized knowledge it uses — is its strength. But it brought its own problems, difficulties and dangers.

For a developing society these problems were obvious, but hard to solve. Bureaucracy was the foe of established custom. Also, the obligation to treat like cases alike, even in small ways, between wife and family, might put an all but impossible strain on simple kinship. In neighbourhood Africa and much of Asia, the family extends to remote cousins and the obligations of the family are the first principles of conduct."

Even in developed industrial societies the price of bureaucracy — impersonality — was often there — was heavy, because the division of labour had been carried so far that few of life beyond the home could be contacted on a truly personal basis. Morality accordingly, Professor Macrae was neutral: "It can serve justice or oppression, freedom or slavery equally well. Only if freedom and democracy were the goals, then the training of the bureaucrat had to be one of life than honesty and zeal, in the techniques of law, administration, computers and accounting.

To be efficient, bureaucrats must be incorruptible," Professor Macrae said, and no developing country could hope to have enough trained civil servants, clerks, accountants and administrators without a massive and expanded investment in education. In countries like Britain and the United States, the proportion of white collar workers was shrinking as that of bureaucrats grew. True economic abundance and the use of the computer might change the picture, but unless that happened bureaucracy would remain a key interest of the sociologist.

Reason for Boost

There is likely to be bad news ahead for Canadian consumers when prices of commodities are going up and this normally is a prelude to higher retail prices.

There may be several factors contributing to this, but authorities put their finger on one. That is four per cent increase in the price of steel by the Steel Company of Canada back in February. This is a built-in reason why the cost of all products using steel including the steel in machines which make other articles.

Just Knowing Pill Is Safe Not Reason for Taking It

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister has given me a month's supply of pills, claiming they are safe to take after menopause. Not that I don't trust my sister, but I would like professional advice. I took about eight of the pills, but have stopped now until I hear from you. Did I do wrong? — A. P.

The pill you named is an excellent preparation containing estrogen (the female hormone) and I think that we can be rather sure that you haven't harmed yourself.

Nevertheless I can't conscientiously tell you to continue taking them without the advice, and following of your doctor.

I'll admit that your doctor might very well tell you to go on taking these same pills, or some like them, but he wouldn't do so any such flimsy basis as saying that they are "safe for anyone."

The first question is: Do you need them? Is there going to be any benefit to you?

Second: How much should you be taking?

Third: Suppose some side effects develop? Would you recognize them, and know what to do about them? Side effects (unwanted additional effects from a medication) are possible, for some people, from just about every known medication. They may be common or rare; may be mild or very severe; may be obvious or may develop subtly.

Your protection against side effects is what I referred to as "follow-up" by your doctor. He should examine you at occasional intervals to see whether any side effects are threatening to occur, whether the medication should be continued or might better be stopped because it is no longer needed, or to see whether your dosage should be changed.

Passing around medicine that happens to suit one person is not a safe thing to do, because the medication may be entirely wrong for another person.

This isn't just my advice. It is also the law. The government insists that any medication of such potency must be distributed on prescription. The purpose of prescriptions? To make certain that a doctor is on hand to see that no harm can come from too much use of a drug, too long a continuation of it, or any unusual sensitivity to it.

Dear Dr. Molner: If a person in the family dies of cancer, what can be done with her beautiful clothes? Should they be dry cleaned, or washed and given to someone, or be burned?

I would not want anyone else to get this disease. — S. A.

No, don't burn such clothing. Use it, or give it to someone to use. There is no danger. Cancer is not caused by germs.

Naturally the clothing should be dry cleaned or washed just for the sake of cleanliness, but not because it has anything to do with cancer.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son is nine years old and has one undescended testicle. I have heard about an operation to correct this, but am not decided whether this should be done. I would like your advice. — Mrs. B. P.

At the age of nine there is no necessity for deciding on an operation right now. Sometimes giving hormones will bring the undescended testicle down and operation is not needed. If, after one or two years, this has not succeeded, then the operation is wise.

CPR Policy Under Fire

Calgary Herald

Canadian Pacific Railway has given clear indication that it has yet of its intention to abandon trans-continental pass engers train operations.

In a letter tabled recently in the House of Commons, CPR's president, Mr. R. A. Emerson, states that the company has been unable to retain patronage in the face of competition from the private automobile and the aircraft.

Many Canadians, however, will question this statement as well as the assertion by Mr. Emerson that low railways as the continent have done as much as CPR to develop rail passenger service.

The experience of many would-be train-travellers implies the opposite — that Canadian Pacific has been discouraging passenger patronage.

A case in point is The Canadian, long considered to be one of the world's great trains.

It is frequently impossible in peak summer seasons for The Canadian unless application is made long in advance. The widespread demand for accommodation on this train would seem to refute CPR claims of declining patronage.

If train usage is, in fact, falling, it is more likely because many potential patrons are becoming fed up with the frustrations they encounter when they attempt to book sleeper or even day coach space.

The Canadian is now CPR's only fully-equipped trans-continental passenger train operating on a year-round basis. Its second main line express, The Dominion, has deteriorated to little more than a milk train except during the holiday period. And even The Dominion is reportedly threatened with extinction next autumn.

In sharp contrast, Canadian National now provides two cross-country trains, fully equipped with dining and sleeping service. Furthermore, CN's aggressive salesmanship has increased its passenger revenues, and it is planning to provide new facilities and equipment to meet growing demand.

The CPR, on the other hand, continues to curtail its facilities and retire much of its rolling stock.

The 324 million loss claimed by CPR as a result of its 1964 passenger operations is disturbingly high, but was such a loss really necessary?

Mr. R. W. Dixon, the Social Credit member for Medicine Hat, seems to think that it wasn't.

Speaking in the House of Commons, Mr. Olson offered this illuminating observation:

"Every time it reduces service and reduces the amount of revenue derived from a particular train, the CPR has a new bench mark of revenue against essentially the same level of expenses, and it uses this in its argument . . . to allow it to abandon a service completely."

Canadian Pacific, like its subsidiary - owned counterpart, Canadian National, has an obligation to provide adequate passenger train services in Canada. We concur in Mr. Olson's view that it is the beginners of the federal government and Parliament to see that this obligation continues to be fulfilled.

Public school children in different parts of Hastings County commemorated V-E Day by planting Victory Oaks in their campuses, according to public school inspector for South Hastings.

On Arbor Day pupils of at least three public schools in Belleville and immediate district planted oaks provided by the Belleville Horticultural Society. The oaks were shipped from the Windsor Forest in England prior to the beginning of the war and have since been held as nursery stock planted on a hillside in Belleville. Schools planting the Victory Oaks on Arbor Day were Prince of Wales in Belleville, Point Anne and Foxboro.

Planting of Victory Oaks in Public school yards as a living memorial for each former pupil having paid the supreme sacrifice, is recommended as a fitting gesture.

The old timers know, but many citizens of more recent times and new comers over the years, do not know that this city was a thriving lumber town years ago with mills here and a large mill across the bay. The following item from our file copy at this time in 1905 is of interest in this connection: "The saw-log drive is being rushed. The river today was filled with logs to the first dam and more are constantly arriving. Another gang of river-drivers arrived here today. Many people are attracted to the bridges daily to watch the logs being tallied through the gap. The soles of the heavy boots worn by the river-drivers were well covered with spikes to help them hold fast when running the logs and the plank walks on parts of Front Street, especially the south end, were penetrated to resemble pox marks. Some of the lumber or sawmills here in the early days were owned by Lingham's, Rathbun's, Flint and Holton, and the Paige or Eagle mill across the bay. The Gilmour mill was in Trenton and this mill also received logs down the Trent River."

Cleanliness Overdone In America

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

More than a dozen years ago, I wrote a couple of columns dealing with our national mania for clean bodies — even though our sidewalks, roads and public places are filthy with refuse and debris.

I suggested that our incessant washing and bathing was a symbolic act of some sort, and had little to do with the physical fact of cleanliness. Nobody needs to be that clean.

I was hooted down in hundreds of letters, most of them asserting that daily washing and bathing was the best germicide in the world; many of them pointed to the scrupulous way in which doctors "scrub up" before operating on a patient.

Now comes a report out of Great Britain demolishing the myth of the surgical scrubbing-up. Studies at the Department of Bacteriology of St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London and the Royal Victoria Infirmary at Newcastle show that those "who wash obsessively before entering sterile areas dispersed far greater quantities of bacteria than persons who came in without washing."

One subject, indeed, gave off 40 times as many staphylococci after flicking showers. And all, whether in street clothes, surgical gowns, or nude, contaminated the environment more after taking a shower.

According to the journal, MD, "a surgeon who scrubs with soap and hot water before operating may actually shed many times more germs over the sterile area than he would without washing."

The theory is that washing "removes the outermost layer of epidermal cells and releases many bacteria which would otherwise remain trapped below the skin surface," the journal explains.

Now, please don't send me any silly letters accusing me of being "against washing." I am merely opposed to our national fetish for endless bathing and showering, which have little to do with real cleanliness. This compulsion, as I see it, is a displacement: instead of taking action against our filthy environment, we rub and scrub on our own bodies — just as we keep taking more vitamins than we need, rather than eating a balanced diet.

Doctors have long known that the so-called "germ" atmosphere in the hospital is more septic than the average home. Here is, for instance, the lower infant mortality rate among babies delivered at home, on our newspapers, than it is when they are delivered in "sterile" hospitals. A hospital is almost the easiest place in which to pick up a bacterial or viral infection.

The old adage tells us that cleanliness is next to Godliness. We have been trying to make it a substitute for Godliness, and it won't wash.

Larcenous Folk Warned

Brantford Expositor

As motels become more luxurious and the number of portable articles in the rooms increases, the proprietor must strike a balance between welcome signs and the other kind. On the bedside table for example, the guest may now find a sticker which says, as if addressing no one in particular, "This receiver is equipped with an electronic theft alarm. Do not unplug or remove without notifying management." And pasted on the door there is this small rectangular target: Forgetful. "Please check. Did you accidentally include towels or other motel property in your luggage? Your licence number is on file at motel office."

After that even the most obtuse or larcenous guest will have second thoughts about his lamp or chair he has thoughtlessly included in his luggage.

Firm Comments on Hastings Farm Sale

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

We believe an incorrect impression may have been created by your news item of Tuesday last concerning our offer to the County of Hastings to purchase their surplus farm land at the County Home.

The news item stated that the writer was acting for Mr. Ernst Kneisel and James Jenkins. Our letter to County Council simply stated that we held an option on the acreage to the north and west of the County Home property and the offer was made in behalf of the Tatham Company Limited. Since we have no connection whatever with the two gentleman mentioned in the report, we feel you may wish to correct this error to prevent any embarrassment to them.

Yours truly,
W. Tatham

Latvian-Born Toronto Resident Denies Red War-Crimes Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Puntilis, who came to Canada from Latvia in 1948, said in an interview Sunday night that Russian war - crimes charges against him are completely untrue.

In a note delivered Friday to the Canadian Embassy in Moscow, the Russian government demanded Mr. Puntilis's extradition, saying he led a reprisal detachment that shot 47 persons in the village of Barsuki in January, 1942.

Interviewed at his home in suburban Willowdale, Mr. Puntilis, a builder, said:

"I was never in uniform during the war and I have never heard of the village of Barsuki. I don't even think it is in Latvia."

The Times atlas of the world lists no Barsuki in Latvia but shows a Barsuki about 105 miles south of Moscow near Tula.)

Mr. Puntilis said he and his wife left Latvia for Sweden in 1944 because the Communists had taken over the country and had seized some building supplies he and his wife had ordered for a new house.

His wife's relatives in Latvia now are building a new house and Mr. Puntilis thinks the authorities may use the charges against him as an excuse to seize it.

"We have been sending parcels both to my wife's relatives and to my two brothers and my 82-year-old mother in Siberia," he said. "I do not want to say too much."

Western governments in the past have refused extradition demands from Communists countries on the ground that the defendants could not be guaranteed fair trials.

Ancient Bridge Scheduled to Get Attention

WASHINGTON (CP) — Ancient Beringia, the bridge that linked Siberia and North America as recently as 11,000 or 12,000 years ago, is scheduled to get special attention in August from international scientists.

Beringia draws its name from the Bering Straits which now cut through the former bridge. That bridge, some American and Soviet scientists have just concluded, was a large one of grassy plains connecting western Alaska with Siberia.

Anthropologists are generally agreed that surges of migrations from the Old World used it, although science also has produced evidence of a two-way current in ideas as reflected in tools and other remnants.

Canadian, United States, Soviet, British, Icelandic and other scientists are to have a symposium on Beringia at Boulder, Colo., in August in conjunction with the seventh congress of the International Quaternary Association.

Recently American and Soviet scientists, via correspondence, got together on a paper published in the U.S. on the Bering land bridge.

Orthodox Church Patriarch Is Old Man of Great Heart

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

An old man of great heart and towering physique is a subject of wide concern these days among Christian leaders.

The site of his historic post and the trouble whipping around he has stirred the worry about him—and the prayer.

"O Lord, take under Thy protective cover Thy people in this time of crisis . . ." went a plea in a special service recently. "Extend from on high Thy mighty arm to give strength to . . . Patriarch Athenagoras."

Athenagoras I, patriarch of Constantinople and primate of the world's 200,000,000 Orthodox believers, occupies one of the most venerable seas in Christendom, and it is situated in the midst of sharp current tensions.

There have been fears, resulting from intimations by the Turkish government, that he might conceivably even be expelled.

That would be about like forcing the Pope to leave Rome.

Although the patriarch, a gentle, warmly hospitable man of 79, fills a strictly spiritual office, his location puts him in the riptide of the Turkish-Greek conflict over the island of Cyprus.

There have been recurrent rumblings of pressure against him.

MANY EXPELLED

Orthodoxy is a minority faith in Turkey, and many of its adherents, at all levels, although mostly of Turkish citizenship, Several thousand Greek nationals have been ousted, and expulsion of others threatened.

Turkey is predominantly Moslem. Ancient Constantinople is now its modern capital, Istanbul.

Both Roman Catholic and Protestant leaders in many countries have voiced keen anxiety about the patriarch's welfare and urged that his position and world - wide ecclesiastical functions be safeguarded.

At a recent meeting in Buck Hills Falls, Pa., the U.S. conference of the World Council of Churches expressed grave concern at reports of "restrictions in the freedom" of the patriarch to carry on his responsibilities.

A great, six-foot, four-inch figure, in flowing black robe and cascading beard, Athenagoras, as patriarch of Constantinople, is the 261st successor of the Apostle Andrew, legendary founder of the church there, as Pope Paul VI is the 261st successor of the Apostle Peter, considered First Bishop of Rome.

The two had a dramatic meeting last year in the Holy Land—the first encounter between pope and patriarch in five centuries —, opening the way to closer relationships between the two influential sees, divided since 1054 AD.

Kutch

ering Saturday left little doubt that the high commission's newspaper ad the day before was a deliberate move to generate the fuss.

"India will not allow even a small point or post to remain under the continued occupation of Pakistan," he said, Shastri.

Earlier Saturday, President Mohammad Ayub Khan of Pakistan said in Rawalpindi that Indian troops were massed along his country's border and that India was using "imaginary protests" to threaten war.

The two leaders are to meet in London, at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference which opens Thursday.

Mr. Shastri is scheduled to hold a press conference here early today before leaving for Montreal.

The Toronto Globe and Mail today quoted the Indian leader as saying in an interview that commitment of United States troops to Viet Nam could have dangerous consequences.

WOULD 'CAUSE CONCERN'

If the U.S. commander in Viet Nam sends troops into battle, it would "cause concern for all who are interested in peace," Mr. Shastri is quoted as saying.

Mr. Shastri toured Niagara Falls and parks in that area Sunday, accompanied by Health Minister Judy LaMarsh and Roland Michener, Canadian high commissioner to India.

As aide reported Mr. Shastri was delighted with his outing and found the falls "remarkably beautiful." He skipped a 30-minute planned rest so he could pack more sightseeing into his brief visit, the aide said.

Back in Ottawa, Canadian officials said on the weekend they were appalled that Mr. Shastri had chosen to discuss the Kutch dispute in public during his five-day visit here, and such a short time before the Commonwealth conference.

The Indian leader had told his cheering countrymen that the whole territory of Kutch "belongs to us . . . India knows its responsibility and how to discharge that responsibility."

Mr. Shastri's comments on Pakistan overshadowed his talks with Mr. Pearson and other Canadian government officials. He spoke with Trade Minister Sharp, Industry Minister Drury and Finance Minister Gordon on economic relations between the countries.

Extend Efforts To Ward Off Maritime Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal mediators continue efforts today to avert a possible maritime strike at midnight Tuesday night.

Some shipping lines have been taking precautions against the threatened tieup.

The Isbr United States, flagship of the United States Lines, has been rescheduled to sail at midnight tonight instead of noon Tuesday.

Talks between the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association (AFL-CIO) and the American Merchant Marine Institute, which represents 12 shipping lines, ended Sunday night without agreement on a new contract.

A strike would affect immediately 107 ships operated by the 12 institute lines. A strike, however, could spread to ships operated by companies that are not represented by the institute but which traditionally follow the pattern set by its agreement.

Motorboat Marathon Won by Allen

Allen piloted his class D (heavy) utility outboard motorboat over the 100-mile course Sunday in 1:52:31, second place went to last year's winner, Ray Lenk of Taylor, Mich., also in a class D boat, in a time of 1:55:53.

Finishing behind the two leaders was George Publow, 18, Picton, Ont., class 36, 2:15:54. The standings are decided on a handicap basis depending on the size and weight of the boats.

U.S. Air Force Aims to Put Cabbages, Carrots into Orbit

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—The space craft of the future may have a vegetable garden.

The U.S. Air Force at nearby Brooks Air Force Base is studying ways to grow plant life in space vehicles — maybe even cabbages, carrots and the like. The plants would have two purposes: To provide food and oxygen.

The messy-like substance on some lakes may be the key. It might turn out to be the basis for life support for men on extended space journeys—say a year-long flight to Mars.

Known as algae, the moss-like substance has no roots. Each plant is a single cell. They clump and colonize together. In one day, one plant can multiply into as many as 1,000 plants with protein content approximately twice that of beefsteak.

Equally desirable, scientists say, is duckweed, the smallest known flowering plant.

Algae and duckweed need carbon dioxide, water and light to grow, points out Dr. Syrel Wilks, chief of the biological section of the school of aerospace medicine.

They throw off oxygen—man's most precious need—as waste. In turn, man throws off carbon dioxide as a waste in breathing. So you end up with one supporting the other.

SEEK BALANCE

Scientists hope to develop a completely balanced system—one where oxygen is produced and carbon dioxide is removed within a space capsule. The body wastes will provide the necessary nutrients for a crop to recycle itself over and over again.

A problem: A system that can handle enough carbon dioxide and produce enough oxygen to be useful.

What the scientists still do not know, however, is how plants will react in the weightless conditions in space.

To help answer this question, the small satellite will test algae and duckweed growth in space. For 12 to 30 days, scientists on earth will receive electronically data on growth and other conditions inside the vehicle, which will not return to earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration also has scheduled a series of satellites early next year that will, among other things, test growth of plants.

Wilks' laboratory has developed an edible substance from both algae and duckweed. It tastes and smells like fish, officials. While it isn't the best tasting food around, an algae or duckweed diet can provide almost all the 2,300 calories a man needs daily to keep going, Wilks said.

SUSTAINED MICE

Four adult mice were kept alive 30 days in 1961 with oxygen supplied by duckweed. The mice were fed the crop later.

Space leaders say it probably will not be possible to carry enough oxygen and food for a year - long flight and remain within the load limits. In addition, astronauts would tire of an algae or duckweed diet.

Dr. H. G. Clamman, chairman of the department, said broad-leafed plants such as cabbage are under study.

Clamman noted that earth's gravity determines where plants put their roots. Which way would the roots grow in a space capsule, where there is no gravity and no up or down? no one knows.

"You might get some rather odd growth patterns," said Clamman.

A farmer might lose a crop now and then and still survive, Clamman pointed out. "But on a trip to Mars, we couldn't."

Clamman said there is not yet much emphasis on systems to support man for long flights.

"But we're not talking about within the next 10 years," he said, "but the late 1970s."

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Every so often communications from readers reveal most unusual situations — a property on which no real estate taxes are paid trip into this classification. The following letter tells of one way in which these fairytales from the tax rolls can come into being.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a secret and it is causing me sleepless nights. I don't pay taxes! This has been the case for over 30 years — the length of time I owned my home.

The house I bought was formerly the minister's residence owned by a church. Naturally it was tax exempt. When I took title the change in ownership was apparently overlooked by the tax assessor.

When I received no tax bill for the first few years I thought it was lonesome. After that, the back taxes amounted to such a large sum that I was afraid to do anything. I don't pay taxes! It amounts to thousands of dollars and not even all of my savings are enough to pay the bill. I'm afraid to mention my situation to anyone. How do I get out of my predicament? — Tax Payer ? ? ?

ANSWER: Your predicament is one in which many taxpayers would love to be. While it is rare, I have known of similar instance of so called lost properties.

You need have no fear that you will lose all your savings. I have checked with the tax authorities in your community and I am informed that their practice in situations like yours is to collect only the current year's taxes. I am told that this is the limit of your legal obligation. If any of my readers are in a similar circumstance I would advise them to make it peace with the tax collector. I have inquired of many localities and find that, except for small differences in the time of tax liability, they are all compassionate when it comes to getting lot properties on the tax rolls.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer! I am insulted! My family has lived in the community for over eight generations. We are civic leaders — yet the real estate broker thought so little of us that he drew a receipt on me immediately after I signed the agreement of sale. He must have thought I was selling lies when I made out the mortgage application. I don't want to do business with a man of this type. — An Old and Respected Citizen.

ANSWER: Stop throwing brickbats at the real estate broker. You misinterpreted his actions. He is not doubting your integrity or financial worth. Banks require a credit report as part of the papers submitted with the mortgage application. This bit of red tape is necessary and is in no way a personal reflection on you, your family or your ancestors.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Maybe I am softhearted (my wife says I am softheaded) but I have a problem that has occupied me for over $700. I need your advice.

I'm a master plumber and shortly after I sent my bill for a new heater the man of the house suddenly passed away. Naturally, at a time like that I did not want to press the widow for payment. After that, I knew she was having a hard time making ends meet with two small children so I accepted excuses for the next two years.

Recently the widow remarried. She wants me to wait for another year or two because she thinks her husband can afford to tell her new husband about the old debt. What would you do in my shoes? — Mr. A. B. O.

ANSWER: Old husbands or new husbands notwithstanding, I know from experience that the older the debt the harder it is to collect. Asking another year or two will only make it that much more difficult.

Courteously but firmly demand payment. If you are put off then I recommend that soft hearted step out of the picture and turn it over to your attorney for collection.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a bright new house but a dirty one. I can't get the soap to dissolve in the water. It is impossible to work up a lather and ugly streaks are left everywhere I clean. Am I using the wrong soap or is there a little leprechaun in my new house? — Irish — Of Course.

ANSWER: You are not being bedeviled by fairies but by water conditions — just hard water. The chemicals in the water are combining with the materials in the soap to form waxes and gums. The result is no lather and streaks.

A water softener installed and connected to the incoming water pipe will solve your problem. Since the type of chemicals causing hard water and the degree of hardness differ greatly from locality to locality, you had better get advice from your local plumbing inspector or a municipal engineer as to what type will do the best job.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he cannot enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many as possible through his column.

Need Sun to Grow Another Bumper Crop

By IRA DEYDEDALE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Western Canada wheat farmers are hoping for lots of warm June sunshine to coax their 1965 crop toward a fourth straight bumper harvest.

So far, the odds are on the farmers' side, thanks to good moisture conditions built up by good rains last fall, better-than-average winter snowfall and substantial spring rains.

It adds up to what one grain research authority in Winnipeg described as one of the brightest over-all pictures in some years.

There were dull spots as wet weather extended into June, delaying seeding in some areas while growth was retarded by the accompanying chill.

On the other hand, the bulk of the wheat crop across the three Prairie provinces was in the ground and moisture already in the soil could help carry it through a dry spell later if there should be one.

A United Grain Growers report June 2 said the heavy-clay belt of the Red River Valley in eastern Manitoba was the only Prairie area badly behind in seeding. The report also said moisture as good to excellent across the rest of the west.

Prairie Pool Limited said, however, there were some seeding delays in northeastern and northcentral Saskatchewan.

SEEDING NEARLY DONE

Generally damp, cool weather persisted for much of the first half in June, especially in Manitoba. But in the second week, warm, sunny weather moved across the Prairies from the west.

Saskatchewan produces about two - thirds of the Prairies' wheat, and by June 10 it had 85 per cent of its wheat in the ground, 90 per cent of its coarse grains and 70 per cent of its flax.

Manitoba by June 8 was nearing completion of seeding wheat, with acreage reduced by the wet weather. About 70 per cent of coarse grains were in and about 60 per cent of flax.

In Alberta, wheat seeding was completed by June 9 as far north as Olds, Drumheller and Coronation. In other areas wheat acreage was expected to drop because of the late spring and rain. In the Peace River district, seeding was 80 per cent complete with only late barley and rapeseed remaining.

North of Red Deer and Coronation some farmers in the west and central districts of Alberta had done no seeding.

MAJOR CROPS

Wheat accounts for more Prairie acreage than all other grain crops combined. And the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says that if farmers seed the wheat acreages they had indicated, they will yield in part with the long-term average of 17 bushels an acre, the harvest will be 471,000,000 bushels. This compares with an average 453,000,000 bushels for the last 10 years and 578,000,000 last year.

Farmers generally try to finish seeding before June, or in early June at the latest, to give it time to mature before the first autumn frost. Frost is likely some farmers in areas soaked by late May rains would switch to flax or coarse grains which often are planted later.

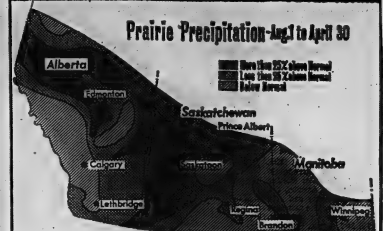
There is another disadvantage in heavy spring rainfall. Some experts believe grain sprouting in wet weather spreads shallow roots ill-equipped to reach deep for a drink in time of drought. And in many areas wet weather has hindered spraying of wild oats and other weeds.

But there is still general optimism since spring rains, whatever their disadvantages, are needed for germination. And in addition the soil moisture built up since last summer will help get the wheat off to a fine dry.

PROTECTED BY SNOW

Good rains in August and September last year helped build up the soil moisture and subsequent snowfall protected soil from excessive evaporation during winter.

The only problems caused by wind were in southern Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan in late May where it caused some soil drifting and exposed seedlings in some fields.



Statistics prepared by the federal meteorological branch for the period April 1 to May 31 generally show normal in Alberta and most of Saskatchewan. There were deficiencies in the southeastern quarter of Saskatchewan and in scattered parts of Manitoba.

The greatest precipitation excesses in the period were in west - central Saskatchewan where Kindersley recorded twice the normal amount. The biggest deficiencies were in southeastern Saskatchewan where three stations reported less than half the normal precipitation.

For the corresponding period in 1964 Alberta had an average 17-per-cent deficit, Saskatchewan an eight-per-cent average deficit and Manitoba a 25-per-cent average deficit.

The Searle Grain Co., reporting on conditions when precipitation in April and May this year, says Alberta was 82 per cent of normal compared with 153 in its corresponding period last year, Saskatchewan 98 per cent as against 104 and Manitoba 170 compared with 118.

WHEAT PROSPECTS BRIGHT — Moisture supplies built up by good rains last fall, better-than-average winter snowfall and substantial spring rains gives wheat farmers on the Prairies one of the brightest over-all pictures in some years. It described the situation as good to excellent across the rest of the west. There were some seeding delays in northeastern and northcentral Saskatchewan. (CP Photo)

The report says that in the May 31-31 period, precipitation was above normal in all districts throughout the Prairies except in east - central and southern Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan, where precipitation was generally light.

And in both Saskatchewan and Manitoba, Searle says, the latest mid-June, after which nine weeks of uniform rainfall sent crops soaring.

The last poor crop was in 1961 when drought cut the wheat harvest to 302,000,000 bushels. The record was 703,000,000 bushels in 1963. Given warm, sunny weather soon, and summer rain at the right time to bolster now good-looking soil moisture supplies, there might be a better-than-average yield this year.

Common Market Council Gathers for Crucial Meet

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The council of ministers of the six European Common Market countries gathered here today for a crucial two-day meeting with hopes for economic and political unity improved by talks between French and German leaders.

Before the council were important proposals by the market commission on agriculture, community funds and greater powers for the European parliament.

Among the achievements of last week's meeting between French President de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Erhard was French agreement to attend a summit conference by the leaders of the six nations, to discuss political union later this year.

Pressure for agreement was heaviest in the field of agriculture, where a decision must be made by the end of this month because existing agricultural arrangements expire at the end of this year.

The commission has proposed that a single market—including uniform wheat prices within all six countries—come into effect July 1, 1967.

It also has proposed greater powers for the European parliament, to give it more control over spending of community funds.

France so far has opposed extending the European parliament's powers in over a common policy on farm products.

Since the formation of the six-nation grouping of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. Internal tariffs have been gradually reduced while those for goods entering from outside the six nations have remained.

Magna Carta Fashioned Modern Law Cornerstone

On June 15, 750 years ago King John set his seal on the Magna Carta at Runnymede, setting the basis for modern democratic government. In the following article, Lord Shawcross, famed British lawyer, tells of the meaning of Runnymede to modern man. Lord Shawcross—was in the United Nations Chapter prosecutor at the Nuremburg war crimes trials and later British attorney general 1945-51.

By Rt. Hon. Lord Shawcross

No high - sounding declarations about the rights of man, no democratic government or rule of law were heard on that pragmatic occasion at Runnymede, a meadow on the River Thames. But yield is on part with the long-term average of 17 bushels an acre, the harvest will be 471,000,000 bushels. That the Charter secured its position as the bulwark of the liberties of all men in England. Indeed, some of its original chapters were clearly drafted to protect all men, high and low. One looks, however, to the 11th century to see it in become in practice and politics, a fundamental law. It was upon the solid legal foundations of the great Charter that Parliament challenged the Stuart kings and their doctrine of divine right. By this time few English law in the courts regarded Magna Carta as Imperishable, too, for all countries to which the influences of English law spread. When Englishmen set out to find new homes across the Atlantic they carried a Charter confirming their heritage of freedom. Later the constitution of the United States of America echoed Magna Carta in its Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. The words "due process of law" used in the 14th century in the application of the great charter thus became the symbol of liberty for all free men.

Parliamentary government, though not directly sprung from the great Charter, is inseparable from the concepts of the rule of law and the freedom of the individual enshrined in it. It is fitting, then, that the 750th anniversary of Magna Carta should be joined with the 700th of Simon de Montfort's gathering together in 1265, the Legislator of the parliaments which wrested supremacy from the Crown in the 17th century and sent three great constitutional landmarks to the statute book — the Petition of Right (1628), the Bill of Right (1689) and the Act of Settlement (1701), together making England a constitutional monarchy — beside the corner stone of all, Magna Carta.

F/O ERIC A. JOHNSON AND MRS. JOHNSON

Johnson – Miller

Standards of white 'mums and pink gladioli formed the background setting in Eastminster United Church on Saturday, June 5, at 2 p.m. when Joy Ann Miller became the bride of Flying Officer Eric Arthur Johnson, Belleville. Rev. Alexander McDowell officiated at the ceremony and traditional wedding music was played by the church organist, Mrs. Rennie.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Marz Donald Abenstein, was dressed in a white sheer over taffeta gown highlighted with silk embroidery. The fitted bodice featured a portrait neckline with long sleeves ending in lily-points. The semi-bouffant skirt flowed into a slight train at back and her elbow length veil of tulle illusion was held by a cluster of white roses. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and lily-of-the-valley mingled with ivy.

Mrs. Beverley Keller, sister of the bridegroom as matron of honor wore a French pink peau de soie cocktail length dress with fitted bodice enhanced with round neckline and cap sleeves. The skirt was accented with a bouffant over-skirt. A bouffant veil flowed from a rose headdress. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of white and pink tinted 'mums.

Mr. Douglas Rose, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man, while Mr. Larry Day of Belleville and Mr. Frank Rock of Toronto, uncle of the bride, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in Eastminster United Church hall where the bride's table was centred with a tiered cake topped with lily-of-the-valley under an arch and misted about the base with white tulle. The colorful bridal bouquets and glistening candelabra completed the attractive nuptial setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing an aqua sheer over silk dress with matching three-quarter coat, white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a navy blue sheath with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For the honeymoon trip Northern Ontario the bride chose a powder blue three-piece double knit suit, white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will reside in Belleville before moving to Winnipeg.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

BROWNIE REVEL

The seven Brownie Packs of the southeast district held a Brownie Revel at Wasgoose Camp, near Picton, on Saturday, June 5th.

The 170 Brownies and 14 leaders left Queen Elizabeth School by bus at 9.30 a.m. The ride was enjoyable, but confining, and the Brownies were ready for games and fun when they arrived at the campsite at 10.30.

One of the first games played was a caramel race. This proved a source of much amusement, as each Brownie had to chew her candy completely before running back to her place in line.

The activities planned by the leaders also included a nature hike. During this period each girl collected different flowers and leaves to make a miniature garden to take home.

The day would not have been complete without some of the games familiar to Brownies everywhere. "The Grand Old Duke of York," "Hey, Little Lassie" and "Good Morning Friend Brownie" were in the group.

The happy day ended on a quiet note about 4 p.m. when everyone present joined hands for the Brownie Taps and Squeeze.

The local association assisted financially and Commissioner Mrs. Colclough helped plan the outing.

Those Packs taking part were —Pack 8, Mrs. A. Crabb; Pack 3, Mrs. W. deBoer; Pack 9, Mrs. J. Driscoll; Pack 14, Mrs. Bourke; Pack 18, Mrs. M. Chartrand and Pack 1, Point Anne, Mrs. M. Akey.

Ann Landers

Sweetest Sound on Earth Is Husband's Snoring

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was upset by the letter from the woman who complained to her husband's snore together with a pic and begged him from experience.

Some women may think I'm nutty as a pistachio but the sound of my husband snoring is the sweetest sound I know. It tells me that he is at my side — where he belongs.

ANN LANDERS

Not only do I enjoy hearing him snore, but I love to look at his face when he is asleep. He looks so much like our son when he was a baby. There is a quality of innocence in his face that reduces me to mush. His hair is mussed up like a little boy's, and his lips have a mischievous curve.

My husband has no idea I like to watch him sleep so please don't print my initials or the name of this city. Just sign me — MRS. CONTENTED.

DEAR MRS. — You sound like a lady in love. How lovely — for both of you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — When I was 17 I fell for a handsome guy who played drums in a well-known band. L was stubborn, foolish and full of romantic fantasies.

When I became pregnant I was glad because I thought sure he would marry me. I was wrong. He said if I tried to force a marriage he'd swear the baby wasn't his and get two or his buddies to testify in court that his story could be true.

A friend of my older brother heard of my trouble and asked me to marry him. He said he had always been in love with me and wanted to take care of me and the child. I agreed.

It is not true that you can't learn to love a person. I learned to love my husband and I'd put our marriage up against anyone's. Ed's child is now four years old. And I now have a little girl.

The drummer boy called yesterday from Detroit. He is playing a job here next week and wants to see me and "his son." He says he has never been able to forget me and now he wants to patch things up. When I told him "No," he said he has legal rights. Does he? I am so confused and frightened I don't know what to do. He is calling against next week. Please give me some advice. — BAD PAST.

DEAR PAST — The drummer boy has no legal rights. When he calls again tell him to take his drum and beat it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I want you to know before you read this letter that I am no kid. I'm a married woman. My friends tell me I am behaving like a 5-year-old. Am I?

My little dog was very dear to me. I thought more of Poke than I do of most of my friends.

Last week Poke became ill. I was in bed with the flu and could not take him to the vet, so I asked my sister to take him. She died on the way to the hospital.

I was so attached to Poke I can't stop thinking about him. I find myself getting his food and listening for his scratching at the door. My friends have told me to get another dog. I'm afraid I couldn't bear to go through this agony again. What do you say? — HOUSTON.

* * *

DEAR HOUSTON — Life is full of risks. Those who are afraid to make an emotional investment for fear of being hurt cheat themselves of the most meaningful part of living.

Your suffering, in a sense, is a measure of the joy Poke brought to you. If he hadn't been a great deal you wouldn't be so bereft. Get another dog. You'll be glad you did.

Addresses Women's Press Club

Lynch Speaks Out on China

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — How would the United States feel if China was so influential in Canada as the U.S. is in Viet Nam? This question is often asked in China today, Charles Lynch, director of Southam News Services told 250 delegates to the 47th annual convention of the Canadian Women's Press Club here Sunday night.

"China thinks of Canada as a victim of American economic aggression and that is partly why they have set up an embassy here," Mr. Lynch said in his first public address since returning from a six-month visit to the Communist country.

A former war correspondent and a reporter on international affairs for many years, Mr. Lynch said he is "less worried about admitting China to the United Nations than before he went there.

"If China is admitted to the UN, she will do two things," he said. "She will attack the United Nations in the most outspoken way, with language even Russia would not use in the United States and she will try to wreck the UN itself because she thinks it is a useless organ."

NO GOOD WILL

"If we can accept this we should let China in but we must remember that "they have not an ounce of good will in that direction."

China, he said, is prouder than ever before, because, for the first time, she has become the centre of the world's stage.

"But I don't think they want to go outside of their borders

Mr. Lynch said the Chinese showed him everything he wanted to see except Tibet and western China but would not grant him high-level interviews with heads of state.

He said his initial one-month visa was extended for a month despite his often critical writings about China.

"Everywhere I went, the hospitality was almost embarassing," he said.

HATE AMERICANS

But, noticeable was the Chinese hatred of the government and people of the United States. "I stopped going to the theatre because every production ended with an American shot, bayoneted or humiliated by women.

Chinese beliefs about the United States was based "on the worst aspects of American foreign policy of the last 20 years," and similarly, Americans are "not likely to believe that there is more to Red China than a plot to spread communism throughout the world."

Mr. Lynch said Canadians in international reporting could contribute to nations' understanding of one another because "a Canadian brings a less abrasive view of the world than is likely to be brought by the so-called great powers." Canadian publishers are sending more journalists abroad and "our newspapers are reflecting a much different tone as a result.

NOTHING FOR MIND

"The unhappy people in China are the intellectuals because there is nothing for the mind in Communist China today," he said.

The peasant - worker entertainment seems tailored to the lowest common denominator. "It is as if the CBC put on Don Messer 20 hours a day, seven days a week," he said.

Chinese women, he said, are told they have been emancipated, this means they have been freed from housework to work in the fields "pulling 300 pounds of rock up hill and down dale."

Another amazing thing about China is the young people, "these are hot young kids who believe implicitly in communism as the correct system for China," the travelling reporter said.

But, the Chinese brand of communism could not work for other countries because "no people in the world would work as hard as the Chinese.

"I came away wishing I could think of a better system for them but we have to wish them well in terms of their own, and hope they keep it to themselves," he said.

China's Industrial Progress Halted by End of USSR Aid

MONTREAL (CP) — Communist China has made no industrial strides forward since Russian aid was withdrawn in 1960, a Canadian newspaper man who recently returned the country said Sunday night.

"China has been at a standstill ever since and has apparently been unable to overcome the loss of Russian help," said Charles Lynch, chief of Southam News Services.

Addressing the Canadian Women's Press Club at its triennial convention, he said the Chinese tried to show him Dunlap his two-month stay what a "cruel blow" the Russian withdrawal had been.

Mr. Lynch, former war correspondent and reporter on international affairs for many years, said he tried to concentrate on the social dimension of reporting when he was in China — what the common people thought and did.

SUFFERED SETBACKS

"When I arrived in Peking they told me China had suffered setbacks in its drive forward, but said I could write as I pleased with no interruption of dispatches."

Mr. Lynch said the Chinese had taken their word and showed him everything he wanted to see except Tibet, including the farming communes and factories—some of which were working and others which were not. He was refused permission to interview Chinese leaders such as Premier Chou En-lai.

He said China has the most "strongly entrenched Communist government in the world today—one which has a stronger hold on its people than any other government."

"However, I came to the conclusion that Chinese communism is not expectable, and that it wouldn't work in India, Pakistan, Indonesia or other countries I have visited.

"There is also nothing for the mind in China today. There is no place for the intellectual to go. There is nothing but the peasant-worker theme."

U.C.W. Meetings

CANNITON U.C.W.

The afternoon unit of Canniton U.C.W. held a meeting in the church auditorium recently. There was a large attendance with members of several visiting units present.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. D. Brenton and Mrs. P. Packman. Mrs. Helen Brenton read a poem. Mrs. A. Dilts accompanied by Mrs. H. Harrison at the piano sang a lovely vocal selection.

The president, Mrs. D. Brenton, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Jozef Williaert of Belleville who recently graduated from Covenant College, Toronto, the only United Church college of its kind in Canada.

Mrs. Williams prefaced her remarks by telling how she came to enter this particular college and showed pictures of the buildings, the staff and outlined the day's routins at the school. She also explained the field work involved outside the college. Her line of work involved working with a Mothers' Club in St. Luke's Church.

The speaker said that she found the year's work most strenuous after being away from study for so long, but also most rewarding and gave her a deeper understanding of the Bible, of the needs of others and of God's needs. She also dealt with some of the highlights of the college year, among them the fellowship of new friends, of meeting girls from other lands and to worship each morning in the chapel.

In closing Mrs. William said, "We should ask, what do I want out of life, but rather, what does life want from me."

Mrs. Flossie Bird thanked Mrs. Williams for her fine talk.

The president e. ed the of all the visiting ladies thanking for their work meeting and lunch was served and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. H. Harrison on behalf of the Canniftos U.C.W. for the fine meeting and the tasty lunch.

Curon Wall Covering features another interesting aspect, it absorbs almost 100% of the sound that contacts it! This makes it an ideal investment for rec-rooms, dens, offices, etc. Another point . . . it provides additional insulation! Helps keep out heat in summer and locks in heat in winter.

Best point of all . . . Sills are featuring this wall covering at less than half price! A 50 ft. square wall that would normally cost $45.00 to cover can now be done for $21.60 if you deal with Sills. Curon Wall Covering comes in an attractive assortment of 9 colors, see it at Sills now!

World Trip Described To BPW Club

NAPANEE — The final meeting of the year for the Business and Professional Women's Club was held recently in the Superior banquet hall with president Jean Pratt presiding. The ladies enjoyed a buffet dinner.

A full and interesting evening followed, highlighted by the easy completion of business items.

The Sunshine Draw was won by Mrs. Gladys Reid and the members thoroughly enjoyed reports on how each had made her talent money.

Mrs. Florence Sexsmith and Mrs. Marjorie Powell had journeyed to Sault Ste. Marie recently to attend the annual provincial conference. They enjoyed their flight from Toronto and a bus tour of this northern city. They found the business club had much to offer in comfortable modern accommodations, attractively served meals and sincere friendship. The Conference was highlighted by excellent speakers and a well-planned banquet. Both delegates gave fine itemized reports of the business and events of these three days.

Mrs. Gladys Reid introduced the guest speaker Mrs. Harriet Maybee of Napanee, a former club member, who gave a most informative and interesting account of her recent trip around the world. Much of the trip was taken on the Canberra, one of the fabulous floating hotels of modern time. Stops were made at Honolulu, New Zealand, Australia, Suez and Gibraltar, among others. Each day brought new excitement, from colorful costumes and music at Honolulu and Fiji, the unique beauty of New Zealand, desert camels and King Tut's tomb in the east. Interesting statistics were interspersed throughout the travelogue.

Mrs. Annie Haggerty expressed the club's appreciation to Mrs. Maybee for sharing her travels with those present.

Mrs. Mary Hinch reported plans were underway for the Regional Conference to be held in September with Napanee members acting as the hostess club.

NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. Bea Lasher conducted the installation of officers for 1965-1966 as follows: past president — Jean Pratt; president — Betty Simpson; 1st vice-president — Yvonne Wilson; 2nd vice-president — Nan Alkenbrack; recording secretary — Bessie Vine; corresponding secretary — Mary Hinch; treasurer — Eleanor Aylsworth.

A past president's pin was presented by Jean Pratt and the club expressed appreciation of a year's work well done. The new president Betty Simpson adjourned the meeting.

DANGER TO FEET

Children's feet should not be fluoroscoped when shoes are being fitted because over-exposure to radiation can damage bones.

SALAD MEAL WITH HOT SOUP

What I plan to give you this week are the recipes I used for a complete meal for a June guest dinner: Bean and Vegetable Soup, Cheese Muffins, Tuna Salad and Strawberry Cheesecake Pie.

The idea for the soup came from Paris where my sisters were visiting. They were served a rich soup at the home of some Parisian friends and proudly described it by letter as having a bean base with all kinds of vegetables added and finished her description with "Delish!"

In a French cookbook I found a recipe for "Garbure" that fitted her account of it. I went to market and gathered up the ingredients and went to work in the kitchen. This soup is full of vegetables and rich in flavor and different from most of the soups Canadians know.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Beef, Mushroom and Noodle Casserole; Buttered Asparagus; Caesar Salad; Rhubarb Custard Pie; Tea.

BEAN AND VEGETABLE SOUP::

1 cup dried white beans, 3 cups cold water, ½ to ¾-lb. piece smoked bacon end (or ham bone with some meat left on), 1 lb. shredded green or white cabbage (measures 4 cups when shredded), 2 cups thinly sliced potatoes, 1½ cups thinly sliced carrots (2 large), 1 cup thinly sliced Spanish or Canadian onions, 1 cup thinly sliced celery (outer stalks will do), 3¼ (or 3) teaspoons salt, 2 chicken bouillon cubes.

Soak the dried white beans in cool place overnight (or for at least 6 hours). Drain and put in large covered soup pot in the cold water. Add all remaining ingredients and simmer, covered, for 3 or 4 hours.

At serving time, lift out the meat, cut it into bite-size pieces, discard bone if any, and return meat pieces to soup. Taste to see if it has enough salt to please you.

I made this soup into an important feature of our June dinner by serving it from the silver soup tureen with hot cheese muffins (see tomorrow Tuesday). Guests had second servings but I had enough left over for lunch the next day and it was even better reheated.

NOTES:

As any experienced cook will see, this type of soup lends itself to endless variations. If you do not have all the vegetables on hand that are called for in the above recipe, simply add what you have and then throw out the dried navy beans — they are the essential base which gives it its smooth richness. A small amount — about ½ cup — turnip and cauliflower could be added or substituted for some of the carrots and cabbage.

Go ahead, try it, to start off an otherwise cold summer meal.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Are there any openings in Tahiti for a middle-aged housemother?"

Susanna's Family Fare

HATS ON EVERYBODY!

Dear Susanna: Would you please be able to tell me how to make the tshat items covers which slip over the extra roll that one leaves out in the bathroom? The only ones I have seen were made from tulle, or sheer curtain material, trimmed with lace. — Mrs. W. Dewer

Even though I do not have the instructions on hand for that particular type of roll cover, I'm thrilled to say that I have just received from a reader called "Dusty Miller" a perfectly precious modern-looking substitute. These directions are for crocheting a roll cover which is so eye-catching and adorable that every single person who sees it gives out with an "AH" or an "AHH" and wants to know right away where she can get one.

The one I have made up is turquoise trimmed with maroon ribbon finished off with a small matching artificial orchid. It looks exactly like a large doll's fashionable high crown hat. You just wouldn't believe anything could be that adorable! I feel sure that for all of you greenthumbed gals who are planning diligently already for fall fairs and bazaars, this will be a must in the way of a money maker.

The directions Dusty sent me are delightfully explicit and we have carefully put them down on a typewritten sheet. I'm going to thoroughly enjoy sending them out to you, my friends, because I know you can't help but be as happy about the results as I am.

The ones that are made up as a sale item have a little poem and fatiera across the top with two colorful-headed pins — here it is:

When guests are coming to call,
And supply is low on the wall,
Just fill up the bid,
And that will be that.
You'll find there's plenty for all!

I know you'll be anxious to get started on this gay project so I'll do my very best to fill your requests immediately — and don't forget to share the wealth will you? One of your good ideas in return for these directions (including the poem ready to pin on) would be just super! — SUSANNA

Club Activities

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The bay shore home of Mrs. Frank Reed was the meeting place for the June meeting of Avondale Neighbors' Aid.

An out-of-doors potluck dinner was planned, but it was found to be too breezy and dinner was served indoors.

After dinner, the president, Dorothy Maclean, opened the meeting with a poem. After a brief business meeting a travelling basket, prepared by Emma Reid was presented to which each member had been asked to donate an article to start it on its way for the summer months.

The roll call was answered by each member giving a collection of odd buttons to be used at Hastings Manor.

Prizes were given to the winners of euchre parties held during the year. It came as a surprise to Betty Lough to see a birthday cake in honor of her birthday. She also won the prize given by the program committee.

Hastings Manor report was read by Olive Mayell. A reading was given by Wyn Reed, after which she and Gladys Honour assisted by Barbara Joan Newman led in a sing song and contacts.

Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harold Wright on September 9th.

From Worst to Best In Space of a Year

WINNIPEG (CP)—Mrs. John Miller calls her foster boys the best in the neighborhood now. A year ago it was a different story.

That was when the Children's Aid Society of Winnipeg established the first group foster home.

There were three requirements: A good neighborhood, a stable home setting, a chance for an active and confused teen-age boy to become part of a community and develop responsible values.

They had been beaten, abandoned, discriminated against. They had come from broken marriages, unmarried mothers and women living together; mothers who drifted into prostitution or a career on city welfare.

They had been in juvenile courts, receiving homes, corrective institutions and often in foster homes after foster homes.

The CAS spent about $20,000 last year to buy a house, equip it and hire a full-time mother.

The objective was to provide a setting for boys who had been failures wherever they went. Mainly they needed what nobody had been able to provide them before: permanency and security for as long as they would need it, probably until age 21.

The boys in the home are 12 to 16 years old.

FINDS FUN IN JOB

Mrs. Miller, a small chubby blonde in her 40s who used to be in charge of a lumber camp kitchen, was interviewed in the kitchen while she prepared a meal for the boys coming home from school.

"Sure, my day starts at 6 a.m. and I don't get into bed until I fall into it . . . a very, it's fun—and the boys are just like my own. It'll be darn hard to lose them someday when they leave. I don't even think about that now."

She said two of the boys now call her "mom". Her carpenter husband they call "Uncle John."

When the home was opened there were four managers. The boys reached across the table at random during meals, ate like little animals. Their places looked like tornado landscapes when they got up.

Its siblings with their foster parents and one another, they were unidisciplined, egotistic, insecure.

Now they are well-mannered, a short passage is keeping with Protocol. The devotional portion of the meeting was led by Mrs. R. Randall assisted by the members and Mrs. H. Trapnell read the Scripture verses. Throughout the devotional, many old and familiar hymns were sung and enjoyed by all. Mrs. McCool gave a reading with caring the lack of young people training for the diplomatic service.

Mrs. W. Higgins gave two vocal selections.

Plans were made to cater for a wedding in September, Mrs. R. Ayerworth will be convener. Mrs. L. Bird will make the necessary preparations for Communion Sunday, June 20. Mrs. Bird gave a report on the Little Messengers group. It was decided to buy the "Around the World" magazine for this group. The next meeting of the unit is to be held in September, this will be in the form of an open meeting with a potluck supper. A short section will be held at the October meeting.

Dues were accepted from three new members after which the lunch was served by the committee in charge.

MOIRA — Moira Women's Institute held its regular meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Frank Hall with an attendance of nine members and several children.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner by the president after which a business session ensued, when plans were made for the annual decoration day for Moira Cemetery. The date for this will be announced later.

The program portion of the meeting was turned over to the conveners Mrs. Kate Ketchesson and Mrs. Frank Emerson. In this being grandmothers' meeting several of the ladies gave appropriate readings and contributed readings by Mrs. Katy Ketchesson, Bessie Hulbert, Minnie McKee and Florence Mumby. The topic was taken by Jean Thompson and Alice Mumby rendered musical selections.

The meeting closed and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

Winnipeg Socialist Ignores Usual Political Promises

By ALLEN SACKMANN

WINNIPEG (CP) — A politician who admits he isn't interested in campaigning for lower taxes seems a likely candidate for quick defeat at the polls. But this sort of frankness hasn't hurt Morris Gray. He has been winning elections since 1936.

"I've never fought for lower taxes but for...better service, giving the people an opportunity for a decent living," says the 76-year-old Socialist member of the Manitoba legislature.

"So what do I care what it costs?" he says, arms spread wide, when discussing social legislation.

His pleas for higher old age pensions, welfare benefits and comprehensive medical insurance have echoed through the legislative chamber many times since he won his first provincial election in 1941. He was sponsor of a resolution that resulted in a $5 increase in supplementary pensions in 1953.

"You talk millions of dollars," Mr. Gray told Welfare Minister Jack Carroll during one session this spring. "I don't understand that much. They're only figures to me. Never mind what it costs. Do what your heart tells you to do."

Social legislation has been his passion since he arrived in Canada as a penniless orphan. And though he plans to retire when the next Manitoba election is called, it's difficult to believe he will abandon his long campaign.

LIFELONG SOCIALIST

The Winnipeg Democratic Party member for the metropolitan Winnipeg constituency of Inkster says he was born a Socialist and his youth served as his confirmation.

A Jewish orphan—his parents died before he was two—didn't have much of a chance in his native Russia. Classroom space was allocated on a basis of five per cent for all nationalities other than Russian—and it was first-come, first-served.

After completing an equivalent to a high school education, taken on a hit-and-miss system, he became a revolutionary and then fled the country.

A three-month voyage brought him to Canada.

"I had no documents, no nothing and all the immigration man did was look at my hands," he recalls with emotion. "I was free."

He had never been accepted so readily before.

The young immigrant arrived in Winnipeg cold and hungry. It was 40 below zero and he had spent his last dime for a three-cent loaf of bread in Fort William, Ont.

That was the day that changed his life. He went to a meeting to discuss establishment of a Jewish library and to discuss the immigrants' problems.

WALKED TO MEETINGS

"After that, I was on the go all the time. I was hungry for communal work. I had seen so much agony, hunger and poverty that I wanted to do something."

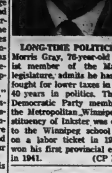
The energetic young man began his active political career in 1912 for various labor organizations—he was affiliated with five predecessors of the New Democratic Party — and was elected to the Winnipeg school board on a labor ticket in 1926.

He walked to the meetings. His $10-a-month wage as a lumber yard worker didn't allow for such luxuries as streetcars.

A four-year stint on the school board prepared him for city council where he spent 11 years.

His interest in welfare made him a logical choice for the city's special relief committee during the 1930s. It was a full-time job and his only payment was $90 a month, but he received as an alderman.

Mr. Gray's welfare interests continued during a recent interview he had three telephone calls on business and two from people needing help.



"I just sent a woman over 35 out for an interview. She needed a job. I get more satisfaction out of trying to help her than she will if she gets the job."

Along with his political duties, he operated a travel agency until ill health forced him to retire three years ago. His business, he says, however, was seconding.

Now his health is forcing him out of politics.

"I'm sorry and because I can't do more, that I have to retire. I've had a good life, I've shown a few people that immigrants aren't liabilities, I'm repaying the debt I had to Canada for giving me a chance."

The genial, whitehaired politician says: "Now I'm old and people ask me where are my millions. I show them this (a picture of his four children, all university graduates) and this (a Yiddish Bible presented to him by Israel Prime Minister Ben Gurion). These are my millions."

LONG-TIME POLITICIAN — Morris Gray, 76-year-old socialist member of the Manitoba legislature, admits he has never fought for lower taxes in nearly 40 years in politics. The New Democratic Party member for the Metropolitan Winnipeg constituency of Inkster was elected to the Winnipeg school board on a labor ticket in 1926. He won his first provincial election in 1941. Teeming China

A Land of No Flies, Cats, Dogs or Fun

By JOHN HAYLOCK

PEKING (AP)—"The native quarter with its narrow, filthy streets. . . ." says Everyman's Encyclopedia (1931 - 32) on Shanghai.

The streets may be narrow in parts, but they are filthy.

All the streets of the four cities I visited in China were completely free of litter.

I was told that the people had been educated to keep the streets clean and that if someone drops a piece of paper a passerby will politely remonstrate with him.

Shanghai, "known once as the centre of gangsterism and a city of beggars and prostitutes" (Encyclopedia Britannica 1962) is today the most moral of China's Shanghai, where people starved to death in the streets and on whose thoroughfares fathers carried babies to whose backs "for sale" notices were fixed, now is without beggars; no one is in rags and everyone has enough to eat.

There is no doubt that the people have enough to eat. In their blue cotton clothes they look poor but do not seem undernourished. The children look healthy and are full of energy.

ESSENTIALS CHEAP

Luxuries are expensive, essentials are not. The average salary for a worker is $28 to $32 a month (there is no income tax), but rent is never more than 10 per cent of salary.

Rice is rationed but cheap and at the moment the ration is liberal. Eating apples (rather poor ones) were selling at 17 cents a pound this spring, eggs three cents each and cooked him at 30 cents a pound. A bicycle costs $36 and a steel wrist watch $36. In the station restaurant in Peking prices ranged from 17 cents (bacon and egg) to 80 cents (a pork dish).

The anti-U.S., anti-imperialist theme is played up more in Communist China than is the anti-Soviet revisionist one.

But there is a fairly deep feeling that the Soviet Union let China down by talking of "peaceful coexistence" and by withdrawing atomic weapons from Cuba.

HOUSING POOR

Housing in the cities is poor and in many parts squalid. On Changan Avenue, the main thoroughfare of Peking, are low, standardized one - storey dwellings without bathrooms. In many cases housewives have to fetch water from a faucet in the street.

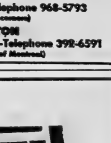
In the lanes behind my hotel on Changan Avenue I saw families with one room or two rooms to live in, rooms furnished with rough wooden beds and upright chairs and lighted by one naked globe.

As far as one can judge, the population seems hardworking, docile and anxious to do its best. China is the outlook will become more moderate, but not perhaps for 15 years.

The sudden withdrawal of Soviet technicians hampered China's progress but the departure made China more on herself. One is told with pride that China now produces her own oil, enough for her home consumption. Anything mechanical that is made in China is pointed out, such as the Phoenix and Red Flag automobiles. There are lots of them on the streets and their design is not modern but for China to be making motor cars at all signified a considerable advance.

INDUSTRY GROWING

In industry, China has made great strides but has a long distance to go.



One is almost staggered by the number of bicycles everywhere. In the cities there are buses and trolley-buses, invariably filled to overflowing. Passenger trains are few and far between. There are only three trains a day from Peking to Shanghai.

One is surprised to find that there are no bars at all and no cafes except in the parks. This perhaps explains the number of people one sees strolling about the streets staring at anything there is to stare at, such as a foreigner or pictures of the war in Viet Nam. One has the impression that people do not have many places to go to. Bookshops are full of readers if not buyers.

It is true that there are no flies in China. They really did succeed in killing them all by having a national campaign against them. There are no dogs and no cats either, and also no fox.

It is rather the land of no. More important, the Chinese are sensitive and serious and want to be recognized and loved.

Chinese Find New Russian Chiefs More Cunning Revisionists Than K

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China fired a sharp new broadside at the Soviet Union Sunday charging that the new Russian leaders are more covert and cunning than Nikita Khrushchev in trying to change the ways of Communism.

Peking also accused the Soviet leadership of co-operating with the United States in seeking to dominate the world. It said Soviet diplomats are "busy in Washington, London and Paris" trying to bring about peace negotiations on Viet Nam.

The charges were made in a broadcast dispatch by the New China news agency which quoted from an article published by the Peking People's Daily, the official newspaper, and The Red Flag, the Chinese Communist party's theoretical magazine.

Hours before, Peking radio had announced that an important document would be broadcast.

The broadcast followed publication by Pravda, the Soviet Communist party organ, of a new call for a world Communist party conference to discuss the Soviet-Chinese split. Western diplomats in Moscow said Pravda article as a new drive for a showdown with the Chinese.

The broadcast dispatch from Peking said the People's Daily and Red Flag article claimed that "although the new leaders of the Communist party of the Soviet Union have put on a new camouflage and played many tricks, they have in no way departed from their essence."

This, it said, was "Khrushchev revisionism, splitting tactics and great-power chauvinism and Soviet-U.S. co-operation for the domination of the world."

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Communist Party organ Pravda published Sunday a new call for a world Communist conference to discuss the Soviet-Chinese dispute.

The proposal was in the form of a resolution adopted last month by the pro-Soviet Portuguese Communist Party.

Pravda's publication of the resolution was read by westerners here as a possible first step in a new Soviet drive to convene a showdown conference on the split with China.

The Chinese have refused to attend any world conference sponsored by the Russians But there was some speculation here on the heads of recent Russian and other Soviet-bloc comments, that the Kremlin might make Viet Nam a top item on the agenda of a world Communist gathering.

It was thought the Chinese would hardly afford to boycott a conference—even one dominated by a pro-Soviet majority —at which the Russians might accuse them of bad faith and obstructionism in the Vietnamese conflict.

The Portuguese resolution proposed no date for the world meeting. It omitted any recommendation on a course of action if the Chinese continue to refuse to attend.

Old Rail Law Means Canada Subsidizes Reds

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadians are subsidizing Communist China's grain purchases because of a 40-year-old railway law, a Kingston, Ont., economist said today.

Dr. J. L. McDougall of Queen's University said the Crowsnest Pass Act forces Canadians through their income tax to lower the export price of wheat down, "A benefit shared by grain growers and foreign buyers."

In a paper read to the Canadian Political Science Association, Dr. McDougall said rates for transporting grain by rail from the Prairies to Vancouver, Churchill, Man., or the Lakehead are by law held to the 1898 level.

"The current statutory rates are clearly non-compensatory," he said. "The situation is growing worse as the rise in prices and wages continues under official Government policy, and with the blessing of the National Economic Council."

MAKE UP DEFICIT

He said the grain rates were set because of a deal made by the Canadian Pacific Railway and the federal government in 1880. In exchange for a federal subsidy for building a railway line from Lethbridge, Alta., to Trail, B.C., the CPR agreed to maintain certain grain transport rates forever.

This was extended in the Canadian National Railways in 1925 and expanded to cover all grain shipments for export.

"The rates are sub-normal prices by any standard," he said, "and given the size of total grain exports, the subsidy does not go exclusively to Canadian grain growers, but is shared with foreign buyers."

Dr. McDougall said that since export grain moves at a loss on Canadian railways, other rates have to be increased to cover the deficit.

"Since this is a statutory matter, only the government can change it," he said.

The Canadian Political Science Association is one of 25 learned societies meeting at the University of British Columbia this month for the Learned Societies Conference.

Pacifists Jeer Defender Of U.S. Viet Nam Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—Participants in a conference on the war in Viet Nam decided Sunday to send an apology to Liberal MP John R. Matheson, who was heckled and jeered roundly by 200 pacifists when he defended America's policy in Viet Nam.

Mr. Matheson, a war veteran who heads the Commons external affairs committee, drew boots of derision and hostile jeers from participants in a speech defending United States military intervention. Several persons walked out.

Rt. Rev. E. S. Reed, Anglican Bishop of Ottawa and moderator of a panel discussion sponsored by the Canadian Friends (Quakers) service committee, had to appeal for order repeatedly.

Sunday's two - day conference ended Sunday at Carleton University, the organizers agreed to write to Mr. Matheson to apologize for the demonstrations.

The move was suggested by Colin Cameron, New Democratic MP for Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands. He said he had no sympathy for Mr. Matheson's views but felt he could have been given more consideration during his speech.

Mr. Matheson, MP for Leeds, said he was invited by the South Vietnamese government to help that country fight Communist infiltration.

Canadian officials on the spot were convinced that Chinese Communists were the real aggressors in the Asian country. This statement prompted more heckling.

Another panellist, Congressman George E. Brown of Los Angeles, condemned the U.S. role in Viet Nam and was applauded many times.

Mr. Brown, a Democrat, said the U.S. had spent billions of dollars "to build a democracy" each year to match the country's entire gross national product—every cent it earns—to solve the country's problems "because the U.S. is wrong and the people of Viet Nam know it."

The other two panellists, Dr. Vo Thanh Minh, a former professor at Saigon University, and Gerry Hunnius, secretary of the International Confederation for Disarmament and Peace, sided with Mr. Brown.

Over Million Of Mutilated Money Found

VICTORIA (CP)—A total of $1,185,365 in mutilated money—loot from a sensational robbery in which Vancouver policemen were implicated — was found Saturday in a garage that rented for $5 a month.

Four men, one dressed as a policeman, took $1,250,000 from a Canadian Pacific Railway warehouse in Vancouver Feb. 11. The money, contained in three, 70-pound boxes, was being sent to Ottawa to be destroyed. Each bill had three half-inch punched holes.

Last April, Vancouver constable Leonard Hogue, his wife and his six children were found shot in their home in what a coroner's jury later termed murders and suicide.

After the bodies were found Police Chief Ralph Booth said Hogue had been suspected of being implicated in the theft and had been questioned. He said several other policemen were being questioned in connection with the robbery and two bank holdups.

Police did not explain Saturday what led them to the garage in Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Creamer, janitors in the building where the garage is located, told reporters they watched a month ago as two men calmly unloaded cartons from a rented truck and placed them in a garage.

About $12,000 of patched money had earlier turned up in Edmonton.

Anniversary of Waterloo Falls on Queen's Birthday

LONDON (Reuters)—A day of brilliant pageantry marking Queen Elizabeth's official birthday ended Saturday night with a spectacular floodlit celebration to mark the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo.

The anniversary of the Duke of Wellington's famous victory, which in 1815 smashed Napoleon's empire, included displays by massed bands of 14 regiments, and more than 1,200 officers and men representing the units that fought at Waterloo.

The Queen — actually born April 21, 1926 — watched while troops — carrying the banners of their regiments and all wearing the brilliantly colored uniforms of 1815 — marched and countermarched.

Among the banners was a Napoleonic eagle.

Earlier Saturday, crowds flocked to the parade ground and streets around Whitehall government offices for the annual trooping of the color to mark the Queen's official birthday.

The anniversary celebration was climaxed by fireworks, parades of flaming torches and the firing of field guns by a Royal Artillery troop.

While celebrations were at their height the Queen and Prince Philip, with 250 guests, attended a glittering banquet given by the army.

Shastri Had Fun at Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) Prime Minister Shastri of India climbed a stone fence, rode an elevator, and donned a raincoat to get-ogery possible view Sunday of Niagara Falls.

And his tourist-like efforts delayed by 45 minutes his return to Ottawa.

When Shastri arrived here a crowd of 200 was on hand to greet him. This swelled to 1,000 persons and Shastri responded by shaking hands and waving.

Jaycees Plan to Educate Public in Municipal Affairs

LAKE COUCHICHING, Ont. (CP)—The executive and local leaders of the Ontario Junior Chamber of Commerce this weekend adopted a program to help educate the public in municipal affairs.

John Pearson of the Ontario department of municipal affairs presented the program to 214 delegates at the annual Jaycees leadership training conference at the department of education training camp here.

He said the Jaycees' "get out the vote" campaigns are useful but it is more important for the group to plan some sort of precision meeting to help the voter understand the candidates and platforms better.

The purpose of the program is "to contribute to the raising of standards in local government through public education, promote unit participation in local government activities and support candidates who are or have been Jaycee members or whose platform merits Jaycee support."

The courses will deal with the history and powers of local government in Ontario, policy versus administration at the local level and historical and current problems of some areas of the province.

Szeeles Kvarda of Belleville, newly - elected Ontario president, said the program will be implemented immediately by the new Ontario board.

The new honorary president of the Ontario Jaycees, J. R. Meakes, publisher and editor of the Sudbury Star, told delegates that if they are to succeed in their aims and programs as Jaycees, they must not concern themselves with the English fact or the French fact or the other fact but with the Canadian fact.

Lesage Calls Separatists of Quebec 'Warty Swelling of Our French Qualities'

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Lesage attacked Separatists Saturday with particularly caustremists he called "the warty swelling of our French qualities" and "childish dreamers."

Addressing the Canadian Women's Press Club convention, he said extremists were "nevertheless remain "dangerous dreamers, dreamers who take the symptoms of their inhibition for an ideal, their violence for force and their beards for manliness."

The Quebec premier said the announcements of establishment of new major industries in the province constitute "the saving answer to the foggy conjurations of scornful theoreticians."

"This is also the answer those who believe a Quebec they describe as outrageously colonialized can not affirm itself other than by building walls around its reserve," he said.

Mr. Lesage said Separatist nationalism deals with symptoms rather than attacking the causes.

"They believe that a house can be heated by holding a match under the thermostat.

"I believe that with continuous realizations, I am doing more to assure the well-being dignity and happiness of the future little Canadian in Quebec than those who wish to make us lose the substance for the shadow, than these bizarre persons who agitate gravely while caressing the tundra on their cheeks and who give us lessons in national pride."

The premier said Separatists, who advocate the separation of Quebec from the rest of Canada, have particularly quiet suffering, the flight of capital, economic disruptions and inflation their ideas created. These would inflict on "two or three sectarianized, impoverished and humiliated generations."

"During this time, the mystical idealists of the Separatist party would stick out their noisy well-paid posts where their functions would consist in indicating the sacrifices others should make to save the desmired motherland," Mr. Lesage said.

He suggested a slogan for the Separatists: "Bankruptcy, here we come."

It would not be Separatists who would suffer bankruptcy and it would not be them who would pay.

"I insisted children, these jacks-of-all-trades without apprenticeship, these nourishers of the political jungle, these creators who have discovered all the deep truths which escape the science of laboratories, love to immitate all the gesture of adults except one—paying the bill."

Premier Lesage appealed for national unity.

"Instead of hurling ridiculous and childish challenges to an entire continent of English-speaking persons, instead of imitating these 'professional patriots Inc.,' I would much rather see Quebec hold itself upright before the rest of the country.

"Instead of falling into the perversion of extremist nationalism, I would much rather that Quebec to make itself respected not only in knowing what it wants but in proclaiming it, instead of being ephemeral and shamefully imprecise," he said.

"Criticize, attack, expose," he told the women journalists, "but never write a line which provokes disunity, which could incite a Canadian to hate another Canadian."

He said it is not extremists, "these warty swellings of our French qualities," who cause French-Canadians in Quebec or Quebecers in Canada to be received throughout the country with a "cordiality surpassing cold protocol, up to the point of the warmth of friendship and deep respect."

One Dead, 7 Hurt

FENWICK, Ont. (CP)—A man was killed and seven members of one family were injured, one critically, in a two-car collision early Sunday near Fenwick, eight miles northwest of Welland.

Dead is John Scholman, 57, of Fenwick, driver of one of the cars.

Police said Mr. Scholman's car was in collision with an auto driven by Dr. Bernard Balahin, 37, of Toronto at a rural intersection. Dr. Balahin was returning to Toronto with his wife and five children.

Canada's Integrated Forces Stage Their First Parade

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's forces Saturday displayed their weapons at a sunlit parade of 5,500 troops reviewed by Prime Minister Pearson.

Among weapons rolling or flying by the reviewing stand in front of the Peace Tower were four nuclear carriers, without their nuclear warheads. They were the CF-104 jet bomber, CF-101 jet interceptor, Bomarc anti-aircraft missile and Honest John artillery rocket.

The Bomarc, never fired in Canada, was towed backwards along the parade route. The missile was one of 36 nestling 5,000 troops reviewed by Prime Minister Pearson.

As the first parade by the newly integrated defence force, the marchers were not as well integrated as they might have been, officers said later. There were some long gaps between units which made the huge crowd a bit restless.

Fifty-three RCAF, navy and army aircraft of 11 different types flew along the Rideau Street parade route and periodically interrupted conversations visiting Prime Minister Shastri of India was having with Finance Minister Gordon Prime Minister Sharp and Industry Minister Drury.

The parade passed Mr. Shastri's Chateau Laurier hotel window.

Many onlookers were impressed with the marching of 2,000 soldiers in combat uniform. The marchers included the 1st and 2nd battalions, the Canadian Guards and the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment.

There was no army unit from Quebec in the parade. Nine bands provided martial airs.

The hour-long, $36,000 parade marked the Canadian Armed Forces Day.

Congress Becomes Restive Under White House Control, Begins to Reassert Itself

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is becoming restive under White House control, is reasserting itself and is beginning to reassert its prerogatives by pin-pricking President Johnson on sensitive issues.

Qualified observers believe that the frustration and uneasiness members feel over the inability of the U.S. government to end the war in Viet Nam have contributed, as a kind of political release valve, to several recent actions to curb presidential authority.

House members seem to feel that if they aren't going to be consulted on Viet Nam they are going to have some say about what is going on closer to home.

A majority of members not only cut $200,000,000 off Johnson's $3,440,000,000 request but they wrote into the bill an amendment designed to limit it—instead of the 30 per cent the administration wanted—the amount of money the president could transfer to international agencies from the $700,000,000 development loan fund.

By a voice vote the Senate also put into the bill a ban on directing the president not to extend aid to countries which have confiscated American property. Presidents don't like to be tied down by such restrictions.

For practical purposes Congress's ability to pass these political potshots in three general fields: (1) It can reject or alter his legislative proposals, (2) Deny funds to carry out his program or revise money bills to restrict his operations, or (3) Reject his appointments of key officials.

The House of Representatives vote Thursday to give Congress a veto over the closing of military bases followed a White House parley which failed to decision to close 11 veterans administration hospitals.

Because of the congressional revolt, the number of hospitals to be shut down was reduced to six.

But the House veterans committee has appeared to bill to give it a veto over construction of new and closing of old hospitals.

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson named his personal banker - lawyer Edward A. Clark as ambassador to Australia, it was announced publicly. Clark is a member of the Austin, Tex., law firm that handled Johnson's personal affairs before Johnson won a U.S. Senate seat by 87 votes in a runoff primary with former governor Coke Stevenson. The Australian diplomatic post has been vacant since late last year.

Editors to Meet Here Next Year

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Thirty-five editors from Ontario daily newspapers met here Saturday at the annual Ontario regional meeting of The Canadian Press.

The editors discussed various aspects of the report of the news-gathering co-operative. Marshall Yarrow, managing editor of the host paper, the Port Arthur News-Chronicle, was chairman of the meeting.

The meeting voted to accept the invitation of the Belleville, Ont., Intelligencer, to hold the 1966 regional meeting in Belleville.

Following the meeting, the editors attended a dinner as guests of the city of Port Arthur and the News-Chronicle.

Secrecy in Canadian Government Is Called Worse Than in U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Donald C. Rowat says news should be given to the press by government information officers and not by politically appointed executive assistants.

Dr. Rowat, chairman of the political science department at Ottawa's Carleton University, criticized administrative secrecy does not enable parliament, which he said is worse than that in the United States.

"Executive assistants are, after all, political appointees and are expected to cover up for their ministers," he told the annual meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association in this city.

"Ministers should not be able to use them (their assistants) for anonymous news leaks trial balloons and statements for which the ministers themselves are unwilling to take responsibility.

"Senior information officers and certain other officials should be clearly designated as official spokesmen so that objectivity does not enable them mysteriously from some unknown source. . . ."

Unfortunately, he said, information officers in the Canadian government are not sufficiently qualified in their profession and are at too low a level in the hierarchy to be purveyors of important news.

Dr. Rowat said other countries, notably the U.S. and Sweden, have adopted policies which give the press relative free access to information while insuring that top secret information will be withheld.

He said he favored the Swedish system.

"Whereas in most countries all documents are secret unless a specific authority is given for their release, in Sweden it's are public unless legal provision has been made for them to be withheld."

Dr. Rowat was given a Canada Council grant in 1962 to travel to Scandinavian countries to study their ombudsmen.

He has written a book about to be published, on the subject.

SPORT SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

It is a far cry from the "Sweet Afton" that flowed gently past the old office to a husky-tailed autocrasher.

From the wide windowed news room sorts overlooking the starting point of the Picturesque Drive "stock" crack-o'-dawn newspaperman beat down on deserted Bridge Street East.

That is how we met "Hopalong."

"Hopalong" is a raven-black gentleman squirrel whose roam territory extends from Church Street south to Bridge to the United Church with an option on the Carver lawn and trees north of the library.

Precisely on the hour the little cuss starts his daily dawn patrol. So precisely that some of the bat-skinned wretches in the composing room set their watches by him.

He has established a home next to the shrubbery of the Dr. Jim Forrester property. From here he squints his bright eyes across the street looking for territorial poachers.

When he sees one he is across the street in a series of hop-skips-and-jumps that would leave a Derby-running Mirabilt in the rack.

With sharp chattering invectives, Hopalong chases the intruders across church property to the edge of the territorial limits at Campbell Street.

He is a friendly little fellow. He's not averse to chattering at, from a fairly safe distance, the 17-pound fellow heavyweight of Church Street, "Ginger," who was born in the Carver menage 18 years ago.

The big tabby merely yawns and tolerates the showy visitor.

Apart from that Hopalong is living dangerously. Intruders or no intruders his favorite sport is hop-ping across Bridge Street a few yards south of the church intersection.

That has worked out fine so far. Before the daily traffic rush starts Hop has a field day—and each morning sets out to break his own records.

Hoppy's nutty diet hasn't, apparently, affected his mental status. He thinks the "white line" on the highway is a stop-off spot for jaunketing squirrels. This sense that refreshes has saved the little fellow's life on not a few occasions.

He stops dead on the line, tail arched over his back and steps defiance at speeding cars or trucks. On not a few occasions mere inches have separated him from becoming the prime ingredient of a tasty squirrel stew.

He has brushed off the kiss of death from speeding tires with the bare length of his whiskers. His life expectancy is from day to day.

Someday Hopalong, the rabbit-hopping squirrel, is going to a be a split second too late in his timing. Some day he will misjudge a hop distance. Some day a whirling tire will crush the life from that spirited little fellow and a blob of black fur on Bridge Street will mark his last effort.

And the early, early show from the news room window will have us for ours.

MACS' REUNION

Efforts to lay the groundwork of a reunion of the Belleville McFarlands, last club to win the world championship for Canada are in the formative stages.

Leo Gatlin, Jack Devine and this agent talked the matter over recently and came to the conclusion that with the proper co-operation out the Macs reallly here—and their overseas supporters—a reunion is not beyond the realm of possibility.

Available Macs are asked to contact Jack Devine or this scribe at their earliest convenience on the matter. If favorable, efforts will be made to contact such people as Al Dewsberry, Denis Boucher, Pete Comeau, Billy Graham, Red Berenson and others living in faraway places.

As was noted, such an undertaking requires the full-est co-operation of all concerned. We're sure the "old "Gang", like the 1958 Dumlops, would like to get together and talk over and "play" over the days of early 1958, the last time the Red Ensign waved over a world champion hockey club for Canada.

Jim Clark Wins In Europe

FRANCORCHAMPS, Belgium (AP)—Jim Clark of Scotland, winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile race two weeks ago, drove his Lotus to a clear-cut victory in the European Grand Prix Sunday and took the lead for the world driving championship.

Clark finished the 32 - lap, 279.7-mile race with a margin of nearly one minute over Jackie Stewart of Britain, who drove a BRM. Bruce McLaren of New Zealand, in a Cooper, was third and Jack Brabham of Australia, in a Brabham, finished fourth. Both were a lap behind Clark.

It was the third race of the year counting toward the world driving championship and the second won by Clark, giving him 18 points toward the title. Graham Hill is second in the drivers' race.

Stewart fell during the race but the wet track didn't slow Clark. He turned the 36th lap at a speed of 134.715 miles an hour and averaged 131.130 m.p.h. for the full distance. His time was 2:23:54.8, and Stewart's was 2:24:18.4.

A Lotus driven by Richard Attwood of Britain caught fire on the fifth lap but the driver jumped out, suffering only slight burns.

WINS TITLE

LILLE, France (AP) — Rene Libeer of France won the European flyweight boxing championship Sunday on a technical knockout over Paul Chervet of Switzerland when Chervet's handlers threw a towel into the ring in the 15th round. The European title had been vacant since Italy's Salvatore Burruni gave it up last January.

'Moose' Beats Nats Single-Handed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bill Skowron is still attending to a bit of unfinished business.

Shortly after the Moose helped New York Yankees win the 1962 pennant, they decided the big first baseman was surplus to their requirements and dealt him off to Los Angeles Dodgers.

One mediocre season later, Skowron was back in the American League, first with the lowly Washington Senators, then with Chicago where he contributed a number of clutch hits to a drive that left the White Sox just one game out of first place.

This year, at 34, he's out to finish the job.

Leading the White Sox in runs batted in with 30 and in home runs with seven, the Moose did practically all the offensive damage Sunday in a 5-1 victory over Washington. He tied the score with a home run in the seventh inning and drove home the winner with a triple in the ninth.

In other games, Detroit Tigers edged Minnesota 5-4, New York blanked Los Angeles Angels 5-0, Baltimore Orioles stopped Boston Red Sox 10-3 and Kansas City Athletics defeated Cleveland Indians 8-4 before losing 5-2.

DEROLES EDGE BOX

Saturday Baltimore edged Boston 5-4, Washington trimmed Chicago 7-1, Detroit defeated Minnesota 9-6, Kansas City downed Cleveland 7-6 and Los Angeles overwhelmed New York 12-4.

Skowron's game-winning triple off Pete Richert Sunday followed Floyd Robinson's leadoff double. The first baseman's home run offset Don Lock's second-inning homer and ended Richert's string of 29 scoreless innings.

Rene Aguirre posted his seventh victory against two defeats and singled across the eventual decisive run in the seventh. Bob Allison's two-run homer in the Minnesota eighth sends it close.

Pedro Ramos recored Whitey Ford in the ninth inning and saved the Yankees' victory. Ford, now 6-4, permitted only one Angel hit for as second base. The Yankees scored all of their runs in the fourth inning, two on a bases-loaded single by Hector Lopez.

John Orsino brought home Brooks Robinson with a sacrifice fly in the fifth for Baltimore's only run. Milt Pappas picked up his first triumph in nearly a month.

The Athletics won the opener with five runs in the seventh inning, three on Ken Harrelson's homer and two on short-stop Dick Howser's error.

Chuck Hinton's leadoff homer in the second inning of the nightcap spared a four - run Cleveland rally, helping Lee Stange pick up his first victory of the season.

British Amateur

Teen Wonder Beaten By Stroke

PORTHCAWL, Wales (CP) — Miss Bonallack spoiled young Clive Clark's "golf holiday" Saturday by defeating the 18-year - old architectural student 2 and 1 to win the British Amateur golf championship.

Clark built up a six-hole lead over Bonallack at the 13th hole before the 30-year-old golfer rallied to win his second British Amateur title.

It was the third straight all-English final in the event, played over the 36-36—72 Royal Porthcawl course. The final was played over 36 holes.

Bonallack didn't win a hole until the 10th as Clark went out in 33 to Bonallack's 41 and was 5-up after the first nine.

Clark chalked up a birdie on the 12th hole and went 6-up on the 13th when Bonallack's second shot was trapped, but then the older golfer took over.

All 'Up' At Harness Meet

Everything was "up" at the Fair Grounds "Greenbine" Saturday night—the crowd, the prices, the mutuels, the wind and the dust.

Despite a chilling wind that gusted dust clouds off the infield some 700 fans saw the best racing of the young season.

Reg Bailey drove Leo Wann to victory in the feature mile in the seasonal record time of 2.12.2. He nosed out Early Lakes John, who won the fifth event dash in 1.38. Wann paid $8.80; John $7.80.

Magic Charm and Mighty Lass C were the only double events winners, the first paying $18.80 and $6.00 and Lass paying $5.40 and $8.00.

Mighty Lass C's twin wins gave driver Leo Mailholland five firsts in six starts. The other was a place shot. Mailholland led an earlier rival Brighter Days to the post in both events.

J. Rathbeck brought Magic Charm under the wire ahead of Moonlight Dolly in the 1.41 dash and defeated last week's double winner Atomic Seiko, the favorite in a thrilling three-horse photo finish mile. Jackson was third.

In another two-horse camera finish, Ben Ettawa nosed out Space Pick in the second event dash but finished out of the money in the mile. Braden Volo took this, paying the night's top price of $46.80. Capital R. galloped the best and was placed sixth.

Al Vandervoord Mida Dillard all the way in the opening mile event with Perchance close behind. It paid $9.60.

The prices were "tops" for the season, the lowest being Magic Charm and tops paid by Braden Volo $46.00.

The daily double in the second and third heats was also a record for the season, bettors taking home $98.10. The quinellas paid $11.00 and $8.40. The mutuel handle was $6,920.

Riding and Driving Club president Gerald Vance said the meet was satisfactory despite the cool winds and dust.

"With real racing weather we are looking for good crowds as we feel interest is increasing. This is evidenced in the advance of paid admissions," he said.

Lombanks Slip Past Madoc 3-2

MADOC (Special) — Tweed Lombanks needed ten innings to pull out a thrilling 3-2 win over Madoc's young batters in Belleville and District Softball League play here Saturday night. It was the loop's best game of the season, according to observers.

Lombanks and Belleville Elks Juniors meet here tonight. In another game, first-placed Bloomfield plays host to Trenton, in Picton.

Tweed got a single run in the top of the tenth to snap a 2-2 tie that had existed since the fifth frame. Gray was hit by a pitch, took second on a passed ball, third on Bill Salmond's sacrifice and carried home the deciding tally on Don Lesage's two-out single.

An error, two passed balls and Gray's base hit shoved Tweed one up in the initial frame. Madoc went in front 2-1 in the fourth when Hamilton followed Griffin's single with a home run.

An error, a ground out and Gray's single tied it for Tweed in the fifth.

Sparkling fielding plays by both teams were numerous, topped by the efforts of Madoc's Albert Reid and Tweed's Terry LeSage, both in the sixth inning, to end dangerous scoring threats.

Joe Barrons pitched eight - hit ball over the route for the Lombanks, striking out 11 and walking but one.

Larry Griffin was the Madoc loser after taking over from Darrel Kramp in the eighth inning. Kramp gave up five of Tweed's eight hits, fanning nine and walking one. Griffin struck out five and walked none.

Elden Gray was the lone Tweed player with two hits while Les Shire had a double. Terry LeSage, Bert Sherry, Don LeSage, Joe Barrons and Ray LeSage split the other singles.

Charlie Hamilton clouted a homer and single, Harold Bailey a double and single and Larry Griffin two singles for Madoc. Murray Birch and Clayton Whitehead also hit safely.

Kingston Shades Parsons

A three-goal effort by G. Tomaschewski sparked Kingston German Sports Club to a 4-3 Kingston and District Soccer League victory over Belleville Parsons' Cleaners here Saturday night.

The loss evened Parsons' record at two and two. The team is walking on word from the league as to when they play further scheduled games.

Parson's jumped into an early 1-0 lead when Joe Jaeger scored on Steve Klingle's rebound from a long shot. Kingston tied it minutes later when Thomaschewski spun the ball round Parsons' goalie Bob Vanguysen during a goalmouth scramble.

Marek gave Sports Club the lead for the first time on a penalty shot after being fouled while breaking through.

Alan Brown hit the goalpost on a free kick for Parsons', leaving it a 2-1 game at half time.

A high wind hurt play in the second half and Belleville had a hard time getting the ball out of that end of the field. Romano Degenova's strong play helped prevent further Kingston scoring as play became rough and rugged by both teams.

Bob Rutherford made it 3-2, ripping through the Sports Club defence, but the lead was short-lived. Tomaschewski sank a narrow angle shot to snap the tie and followed up with his third marker on a penalty kick after Bob Main handled the ball in the Belleville goalmouth. That made it 4-2.

Parsons' fought had to cut the margin and Brown's pass put Bob Rutherford in the clear for the final goal late in the game.

Gene Mauch, the explosive manager of Philadelphia Phillies, doesn't throw spare the say more. Now he conducts lecture sessions at 9:30 in the morning.

The subject of Mauch's dissertation Sunday was the lackadaisical play of outfielder Tony Gonzales.

And the result of Mauch's disciplinary action was a homer, double and single by Gonzales that carried the Phillies to a 5-0 victory over Houston Astros for their fifth straight triumph, lifting them to the .500 level for the first time in almost a month.

Mauch, who has been known to throw spare ribs around he clubhouse when he's fuming, has kept his temper all season long while the Phillies have languished in the second division. But Mauch and Gonzales had their chat Sunday for what the Philadelphia manager termed the outfielder's failure "to execute four plays much less than his capabilities."

"He was right," admitted Gonzales. "It was my fault. I just go out now and do my best."

He did it right away, leading off the first with a homer, kicking on the other two hits and raising his average to .326 while Mauch, the only support Chris Short needed in subduing the Astros on five hits.

Los Angeles Dodgers, meanwhile, stretched their National League lead to 3½ games over Milwaukee, defeating New York Mets 5-2 and 4-3 while the Braves split, beating St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 before getting walloped 12-2 in a wild, rhubarb-punctuated game.

CUBS, REDS SPLIT

Elsewhere, Chicago Cubs rapped Cincinnati 9-7 before the Reds took the nightcap 7-6 and Pittsburgh Pirates edged San Francisco Giants 2-1.

In Saturday games, Los Angeles tripped New York 5-0, Philadelphia downed Houston 5-4, San Francisco turned back Pittsburgh 4-0, Chicago edged Cincinnati 4-3 and Milwaukee defeated St. Louis 6-1.

The Dodgers put Sunday's opener out of reach with a four-run fourth-inning uprising keyed by Willie Davis' two-run single.

In the nightcap, the Dodgers overcame a 3-2 deficit in the sixth on a game-winning double by Wally Moon that sent the Mets to their 10th straight defeat.

Milwaukee snapped a 3-3 tie in the opener on Gene Oliver's two-run single in the eighth inning while Wade Blasingame completed a four-hitter against the Cardinals.

The Brewis not only lost the nightcap but manager Bobby Bragna and their starting battery—pitcher Hank Fisher and catcher Gene Oliver—in a series of ejections during the fourth inning as the Cardinals pushed across seven unearned runs.

Rookie catcher Chris Krug and Ron Santo each hammered three-run homers while Billy Williams connected for a solo job in the Cubs' first-game victory.

The Reds came back to take the nightcap as Frank Robinson drove in three runs with a double and single in support of Joey Jay's five-hit pitching.

Golfer Has Two Aces In 5 Holes

WESTPORT, Mass. (AP) Two holes-in-one by one man the same year is a golfing novelty. But a pair of aces in a string of five holes in one day is downright fantastic.

Bob Rawson did it Saturday at the Acoazet Golf Club's open tournament. He clicked on the third and the seventh holes, both par threes. His nine-hole score was 35.

Canadian Wins U.S. Marathon

HOLYOKE, Mass. (CP-AP)—Canadian runner Ron Wallingford, of Hamilton, won the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union's marathon championship Sunday, covering the 26-mile, 385-yard course in two hours, 22 minutes and 29 seconds.

Wallingford, a physical education instructor at McMaster University, fought off a last-minute bid by Johnny Kelley of Groton, Conn., to win over a field of 99 starters. Kelley finished in 2:25.31.

Wallingford was the top Canadian in this year's Boston marathon, finishing 11th.

MAKES PAST TIME

CHISWICK, England (AP) — Morio Shigematsu of Japan, winner of the famed Boston marathon six weeks ago, triumphed in the Windsor-to-Chiswick race Saturday and posted a time of two hours, 12 minutes for the 26-mile, 385-yard jaunt. It is the fastest time listed for a marathon. All marathons have the same distance, but the terrain varies and no world records are kept.

John Lewis Failed To Show Up

Morris Wins 'Lift' Title

Price Morris of the Apollo Barbell Club of this city, won the Canadian heavyweight weightlifting championship at Regina on Saturday.

John Lewis, Canadian middleheavy champion and Olympic representative, passed up a chance to repeat his title and possibly a spot on Canada's team.

It was learned today that Lewis' did not make the trip. He changed his mind at the last minute with no reasons given.

Coach Ken Carr-Braint is still in the west, as is Morris. Lewis could not be reached for comment.

Lewis' refusal to go his hurt his chances for public support in the future. Three citizens donated $136 to help finance the trip for the Belleville team.

Morris captured the title with 926 pounds in three lifts, George Dean of Vancouver was second with 886 and Rene Bertrand, Quebec, third, with 870.

Yves Chouinard, Quebec, is the new mid-heavy champion, lifting 825 pounds, 150 below the record held by Lewis. Murray Veno, Sudbury, won the light-heavy title with 855.

Marcel Boucher, Quebec, won the lightweight title with 765 pounds. Allan Salter, Sudbury, raised 730 to take the featherweight crown.

Leafs Snap Nine-Game Loss String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Columbus southpaw Frank Bork stole the spotlight as the worm turned in weekend International League baseball action.

Bork fanned a minimum 21 batters in pitching a one-hitter to give the Jets a seven-inning 1-0 victory in the nightcap Sunday after Rochester Red Wings took the opener 5-2.

Otherwise it was a weekend of vengeance. Toledo Mud Hens, losers of nine of their last 11, swept a pair from Syracuse Chiefs 6-3 and 7-1. The last-place Buffalo Bisons, losers of 10 in a row in Atlanta, dumped the league - leading Crackers 4-2 and 3-0.

Andy Etchebarren's single in the sixth was the only hit off Bork, who threw just 98 pitches. Etchebarren was promptly erased in a double play.

London Jrs. Apply Again For 'A' Status

TORONTO (CP) — London Nationals of the Western Ontario Junior D series have applied again for membership in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The application, turned down last year, will go before the OHA Junior A council here wednesday for approval. A unanimous vote is required to allow a new franchise.

The Western Ontario group is interested in forming its own Junior A series with teams in Chatham, Windsor, St. Thomas, Sarnia and London.

Jack Oakes of Strathroy, Ont. a spokesman for the western Ontario group, said he would delay any action on moving up to Junior A until the OHA deals with the London application.

TELL ME DID IT DROP? — Dan Sikes has eyes closed and looks as though he might be praying as his 35-foot birdie putt drops in the hole on the 18th, bringing him the $25,000 first prize in finale in the Cleveland Open golf tournament. It took the pressure putt to win over defending champion Tony Lema, who finished one stroke back at 273 in the 72-hole match.

To Probe Kidd Charges

TORONTO (CP)—The registration committee of the central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union will meet next week to investigate charges that middle - distance runner Bruce Kidd of Toronto has violated his amateur status.

"We have received a number of complaints about Bruce Kidd writing and broadcasting on the international track meet," Imre Szabo, president of the central Ontario branch of the AAU, said Friday night.

Kidd, one of Canada's best-known international competitors now has both feet in casts as a result of corrective surgery. He has not competed since the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo last October but has said he may run again if the operation to correct tendons is successful.

"Kidd was told by the AAU he could write, but not on sport," Szabo said.

"I have not seen his articles, but they would appear to place us in a very, very difficult position. It would seem he has broken the rules."

Kidd wrote a number of articles for a Toronto newspaper in connection with the Toronto international track meet here Thursday and broadcast during the meet for a radio station.

Cleveland Open

Sikes One-Strokes Lema

CLEVELAND (AP) — Easy-going Dan Sikes knew what he was doing when he rolled in a 35-foot putt on the final hole to capture the $135,000 Cleveland open golf championship.

"I had to make that putt. . . . Who wants to play off with Tony Lema?" the rangy Sikes quipped after he whipped Champagne Tony by one stroke Sunday.

Sikes sank his pressure putt from the edge of the 18th green for a five-under par 66 on the Highland Park 6,821-yard layout and a 72-hole total of 273—12 strokes under par.

Sikes, 12th leading money winner going into the tournament, jumped all the way to third and now has pocketed $48,029.

Bruce Devlin of Australia kept the pressure on the leaders right to the end with a sizzling 65, best round of the tournament, and finished third at 274.

Wants Mark Back

Mile Record Snell's Goal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Snell said Sunday he has one object — to get back his world mile record before his world tour ends in August.

The famed New Zealand runner arrived here for his first whack at his objective at an invitational track meet here Tuesday.

Snell's pending world record of 3:54.1 was lowered last week by Michel Jazy of France in a time of 3:53.6.

"I want to get the record back," Snell said in an interview. "This will be my main goal for the rest of the tour." He gave two reasons why he expects the mile Tuesday will be a fast one. One is that Jim Grelle of Los Angeles will be running and Grelle has been needling him. The other is that Gary Weidner of North Carolina will force the field into a fast pace.

"The confirmation of Grelle in the race puts a different slant on the whole race. He has made a lot of remarks about being out for my scalp since I beat him in Los Angeles (10 days ago)."

"And then at Toronto, Grelle said after Bill Crothers beat me in the 880 that he (Grelle) was going to be the next one to whip me."

The event will be held in Empire Stadium where John Landy and Roger Bannister, the first four - minute milers, staged their famous "miracle mile" in the 1954 British Empire Games. Bannister won.

New Twist

Met Fans Blast Umps

NEW YORK (AP) — Are New York Met fans losing their sense of humor?

For four years the Mets have stumbled through the National League, lovably clowning their way into the hearts of fans everywhere. Never did the faithful suggest that their heroes' hard times were the product of anything except good old fashioned ineptitude.

But a strange thing happened Sunday. There were 37,175 fans squeezed into Shea Stadium and midway through New York's 10th straight loss —this one against Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3—they turned on plate umpire Chris Pelekoudas.

What set the fans off was Pelekoudas' call on a close play on Johnny Lewis at the plate which ended the sixth inning.

Lewis, pinch hitting for Danny Napoleon, had been purposely walked with Ron Swoboda on third and New York leading 2-1. The Dodgers had won the first game 5-2.

When Billy Cowan dropped a hit off Willie Davis' glove in centre field, Swoboda scored easily and Lewis came racing around third, heading for home. Dodger catcher John Roseboro grabbed the relay and planted the tag on the sliding Lewis. When Pelekoudas called him out, Lewis and the rest of the Mets rushed the umpire.

The fans began chanting "kill the umpire" after the call, waving handkerchiefs and tossing debris on the field.

Finally Pelekoudas walked into the Mets' dugout to confer with manager Casey Stengel. The fans' booing all but drowned out the public-address announcement that the game would be forfeited unless they stopped throwing debris on the field.

Needless to say, after the fans calmed down, the Mets went on to lose in their accustomed fashion.

Atlanta Gets NFL Franchise

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The National Football League will grant a professional football franchise to Atlanta for 1966 and acquire rental of the new Atlanta Stadium, the Nashville Banner says.

The newspaper says the official announcement is expected within the next two weeks. It adds:

"It is understood that Cox Broadcasting Corp. which obtained an American Football League franchise for Atlanta earlier this week but did not secure use of the stadium, will return the franchise to the AFL.

"If every NFL owner is said to approve a franchise for Atlanta except George Halas of Chicago Bears, but NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle hopes to win him over. Halas may oppose the move in the belief that the AFL, if foiled in its plans to add Atlanta, might expand into Chicago."

Captain in McHale's Navy Finally Wins Star Billing

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Joe Flynn finally made it full circle in films—from extra to star.

Flynn is the harassed captain on television's McHale's Navy. McHale, of course, is Ernest Borgnine.

Last year, defying all tradition, Universal made a movie about the TV show. It turned in a $2,000,000 profit.

This naturally called for a new movie—so up came McHale's Navy in the Air Force.

The TV cast, minus Borgnine, is in the movie, and for the first time in Flynn's career he is billed with his name above the title—the sole star of the movie.

"I want to thank Ernie for making this possible," says Flynn.

Borgnine and the producer of McHale's Navy don't get along.

"When universal told me that Edward Montagne was not only going to produce but direct the movie, I told them that my price would be triple," says Borgnine.

"So," he adds, "they made a story about 'McHale's Navy' without 'McHale.'"

Flynn explains how they handled this.

"In page one, scene one of the script, the ensign (Tim Conway) says: 'The skipper's left, so I'm in charge.'"

Flynn, who studied at the University of Notre Dame and the University of Southern California, once thought he would be a politician.

"I once ran for the legislature back in my home town of Youngstown, Ohio," he recalls. "And I lost. So I came to Hollywood and became an actor.

"I worked as an extra for many years, then bit parts, then second banana on television shows. And now, for the first time in my career, I am billed as top banana.

"It's really quite a thrill. Besides Ernie, I'd also like to thank those voters back in Ohio who drove me out of politics."

HEADS UNIQUE CLASS — Professor Gordon Peacock, 37, who has become a director, designer and teacher of drama since his high school days 20 years ago, heads the drama division of the University of Alberta. The only institution in Canada offering a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in drama. More than 230 students registered in the program when it was announced last fall. (CP Photo)

Alberta University Gives Degree in Fine Arts

By WALT NAGEL

EDMONTON (CP) — Twenty years ago Gordon Peacock was taking part in high school plays.

Today Prof. Gordon Peacock heads the drama division of the University of Alberta, the only class of its kind in Canada providing graduates with the degree of bachelor of fine arts in drama. The experience of Prof. Peacock—who has become a director, designer and teacher of drama since his high school days—typifies what he calls a "cultural explosion" in Western Canada.

A few years ago high school students with a flair for drama took leading parts in amateur plays, then perhaps a few courses at university. The next step, to a career in professional theatre, was too great for most to manage.

Last fall, as part of what Prof. Peacock terms a "process of natural growth," the University of Alberta formed a full-fledged drama division to help bridge the gap. Even though the program was announced so late that only Alberta students register, there were 233 in the first-year class.

Prof. Peacock and three colleagues teach acting, stagecraft, directing, design and theatre history in specialized quarters.

Alberta, like universities in Saskatchewan and British Columbia, has since 1947 offered a few drama courses as part of its general arts program.

TAUGHT IN HIGH SCHOOL

The province has had drama courses in its high school curriculum since 1935, and a school of fine arts has operated at Banff since 1932 under university supervision.

Prof. Peacock says "the affluent society" and this background of drama training—especially among high school students — have done much to prompt formation of the drama division at the University of Alberta.

A husky six-footer born at Hanna, Alta., Prof. Peacock went to the United States for most of his own studies in drama, because Canada lacked suitable schools for advanced students.

A chain - smoking bachelor who likes gardening in his spare time, he has had few leisure moments since classes began in the fall of 1964. His working days — often seven strenuous ones a week—begin at eight in the morning and frequently continue until 11 at night.

"Probably I'm just a bit too busy for a nervous breakdown," he said, skimming through a list of university theatre productions he has planned for the summer months in Edmonton.

Prof. Peacock is quick to recognize the same degree of devotion in advanced students, but few of his pupils reach that stage.

SOON THINNED OUT

What he terms "sifting out processes" usually cull the less enthusiastic.

Only 10 of 233 drama students are enrolled at the third- and fourth-year levels.

His two-hour classes with advanced students are peppered with a scolding, gestures and praise, but seemingly little professorial pomp.

"Acting isn't something a person wants to do. It's something he has to do," Prof. Peacock insists.

"The road to stardom is a lifetime one. The advice we give to young actors is 'Don't do it' because of the effort and heartache involved. If the student persists because he 'has to' act, that carries him through the heartache and the disappointments."

The professor denies that the university is at work turning out movie stars.

A will to succeed is vital, but even with this, and lacking adequate training, success is "one in a million."

What about those who never reach the dizzy opportunities or are taking drama as a sideline to other studies? Prof. Peacock says drama has a value for them, too.

"A doctor, nurse, lawyer or a writer will benefit from a general background in drama."

For the successful drama student, the opportunities open in Canada were never better. There are three times as many professional theatres in the country now as there were 10 years ago.

Lucy Show Will Continue But Without Vivian Vance

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Lucille Ball was looking for a sturdy foundation upon which to build a new TV comedy series, and the ideal building blocks turned up in a funny, semi-autobiographical book called Life Without George by Irene Kampen.

Mrs. Kampen described life after her amicable divorce from her husband. To help out with the household chores, she hired a colored woman, after divorces with a child.

For TV purposes, some changes were made: The ex-husband became Lucy Carmichael, a widow. She was given an extra child. Vivian Vance, Lucy's old comical sidekick from the I Love Lucy days, was cast as her divorcee housemate.

As the successful seasons went by, other changes occurred. A bachelor neighbor — played by comedian Dick Martin — disappeared and hunkies Gale Gordon was added. The Lucy Show rolled along, almost always in Nielsen's top ten.

During the last season, Vivian was appeared in fewer than the season's quota of programs and her absence has been covered by an assortment of guest stars including Ann Sothern and Ethel Merman.

Next season, however, it will be "Life without Vivian" on The Lucy Show. Plans have already been announced that the show's policy will shift to weekly guest stars.

ROUTINE TIRING

This all stems from Miss Vance's determination to stop trying to be, at the same time, a Connecticut housewife and a Hollywood television star. It resulted in tiring weekly commuting between the two coasts and a feeling of being unsettled.

Vivian's husband, John Dodds, is a publisher whose work keeps him in New York most of the time. She has found a real Manhford housewife now since the last Lucy Show of the season and filmed several episodes there. She has never been busier in her life.

"But it's been one of the happiest times of my life," she bubbled. "I've been working on these guest shows which are the greatest thing in the world for performers. They tape them during the day, and then when John gets home at night. The miracle is that you can work about 32 weeks out of the year if you want to—and they like you."

PREFERS STAGE

"I'm essentially a stage actress," she says, "and I think sometimes producers forget it was and always comedy. And, after those I Love Lucy years, I think everybody had the impression I was this dowdy woman Ethel—not that I want to be known as a fashion plate."

During the summer she expects to enjoy life with a business man's holiday—playing some stock.

Whether Lucille Ball will miss the nicely balanced support of her own partner in comedy is still to be discovered.

Phil Hill Le Mans Story Was a Natural TV Special

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A happy ending is one thing a television viewer has come to expect.

So the ending of Sunday night's ABC special Phil Hill: Assault on le Mans, came as a surprise, almost a shock. Phil Hill, a professional racing car driver, triumphed over all sorts of difficulties in last year's famous sports car race. And in the end, he was a loser.

Hill, a three-time Le Mans winner, last year was driving the first American manufacturer's entry in the French auto race. ABC cameras started concentrating on his activities about two days before the start of the run, just in time to record all of his troubles.

The car, designed to travel over 200 miles an hour, developed engine trouble and mechanics could not locate it. A new engine was installed hours before the race. Then the car could not be started at the opening gun. Hill had to stop five times with more engine trouble and when that was finally fixed, he was lost in a field of 55.

WAS KNOCKED OUT

Then, when he had managed to catch up with the leaders in a wild race, he was knocked permanently out of the contest by a broken gear box.

The Hill story was a natural for a TV special.

As one of "the daring American car" series, it would have been perhaps more enlightening and rewarding if it had revealed some of the background and life of this daring driver and "the pressures that lash him."

As it was, we primarily witnessed his angry impatience with engine trouble and bleak disappointment with the car's failure.

If the program did nothing else, it stimulated interest in this year's Le Mans race next Saturday and Sunday. Hill is scheduled to drive the American car again and ABC expects to cover portions of the race live via Early Bird satellite.

Senior Baseball

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Pontiacs retained sole possession of first place in the senior Inter-County Baseball Association standings.

George McGuire, 29-year-old righthander, threw only 83 pitches to subdue Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers 6-1.

The result left the Pontiacs alone on top with a 5-1 record, a half-game ahead of Stratford Chiefs who have won four and lost one.

A crowd of 600, on hand for the first paid-admission Sunday baseball game under Sunday sports were approved by the electorate last December, saw McGuire keep his mates down to 13 pitches in any inning and retire the side on three pitches in the ninth.

Hank Czerwieniec hit his first home run of the season for London.

Stratford gained a share of first in the Chiefs' downing Guelph CJOYs 9-8. Keith Spicer, Doug Kyle and Gary Landers each had a hand in the win here, Spicer making one of his a homer.

In senior Saturday games, Ron Stead struck out 17 and Ted Baker hit two home runs to lead Stratford Red Sox to an 11-3 victory over Listowel Mustangs while Galt Terriers came from behind to down Kitchener-Waterloo 5-2.

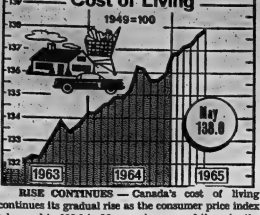
Jury Convicts Two Brothers Of Murder

MONTREAL (CP)—A 12-man jury convicted two brothers late Friday night of capital murder in beating nightclub dancer Margot Turner to death last Aug. 23.

Mr. Justice Andre Sabourin sentenced the brothers to death, setting Nov. 5 as the date for the hanging.

The jury deliberated for 35 minutes before returning the verdict against Roland Poirier, 21, and his brother, Jacques 27. There was no recommendation for clemency.

At the trial, which started last Monday, pathologist Dr. Jean - Paul Valcourt testified that Miss Turner, 36, died of multiple cerebral fractures.



Testimony showed that she was in an east-end night club with Ronald Fishman, 24, a machinist. Both were beaten in the club while more than a dozen patrons watched.

When the beating stopped, the brothers apologized and offered to take Fishman and Miss Turner to hospital. At the hospital they dumped Fishman on but drove off with the woman.

Miss Turner was later found dying in a pool of blood behind a north-end Montreal residence.

RISE CONTINUES — Canada's cost of living continues its gradual rise as the consumer price index advanced to 138.0 in May, an increase of three-tenths of a point from 137.7 in April. The May index a year ago was 135.0.

The increase, based in most categories on prices in early May, appeared in all of the index categories except clothing. The largest increase was in food prices.

Madoc

MADOC — The 40th anniversary of the United Church was observed in Madoc last Sunday in Trinity Church. Congregations from Queensboro, Eldorado, Ivanhoe, Thomasburg and the northern regions of Belleville Presbytery joined together in praise under the leadership of minister and lay supplies. The guest preached was Rev. Sedgwick of Queensboro charge.

His address was followed by the presentation of the pulpit Bible by the Anglican Church, and the United Church of Canada.

MINISTER INDUCTED

The Rev. Vernon Tozer, B.A., B.D., formerly of Grand River, Cape Breton, was inducted as the new minister for St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc. St. Andrew's Church, Tweed, Thursday evening.

Rev. M. C. Young acted as moderator and clerk for the service. Rev. R. G. Russell of Picton, gave the charge. Rev. Wilson, Trenton, gave the narration and charge to the new minister while Fr. William Graham spoke the charge to the congregation.

Mr. Tozer graduated from the Presbyterian College, Montreal, in 1964 and has spent the past year as student at the Presbyterian Church in Grand River, Cape Breton.

Clergy from Kingston, Deseronto, Belleville and Stirling gave the right hand of fellowship. Following the induction service a reception was held in the hall to meet the newly inducted minister and his wife.

Texas Storm Kills Fifteen, Eleven Missing

SANDERSON, Tex. (AP)—"I grabbed a tree, but there was quite on it and I let go.

"I went under five times, maybe 10 times.

"I thought I was going to die."

This was the grim story of 12-year-old Michael Johnson as he told of his brush with death in the sudden flood that temporarily isolated his southwest Texas community Friday.

The slender, blonde youth, speaking from a hospital bed, said: "It just seemed like a dream to me."

He was a boy in a 15-foot wall of water were Mike's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Johnson, and the couple's five other children, ranging in age from five to 14.

Search parties recovered the bodies of all but Johnson.

He is among 11 persons listed as missing.

"We can assume only that all are dead," said Sheriff Bill Cooksey.

Authorities counted 15 dead and 35 injured in the wake of the storm which devastated the southern section of Sanderson, railway centre of 2,350 about mid-way between San Antonio and El Paso.

Ten of the victims were children. Six were five of the listed missing.

In addition to the Johnson family, one couple lost four children and a brother and her four youngsters were among the dead or missing.

The sheriff's office said 54 homes, mostly low-cost frame dwellings, were destroyed. An additional 30 homes received major damage and 106 others had minor damage.

A building damage estimate exists, U.S. Representative Richard White estimated losses at $2,000,000.

RCMP Finds Dynamite Bomb On Verandah

QUEBEC (CP) — Officers of the RCMP today found a homemade bomb on the verandah of their building on Grande Allee in Quebec's Upper Town.

An officer of the municipal police dismantled it. The bomb was said to have contained three sticks of dynamite.

RCMP had city police detour traffic around the area until the bomb was dismantled.

RCMP, provincial and city police began an investigation.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — Fred Spencer received word that he was successful in his first year of the course in architecture at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, Toronto.

Agnes McKeown has returned to her duties at Belleville General Hospital, after spending the past month confined with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKeown at Rylstone and her brother Bill and sister-in-law his wife and son Mark, in Hamilton.

Arthur Turner, Jr., of Toronto, called on his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Dunk and family, enroute to their stock car races at Deseronto.

Early Monday morning a trailer truck, owned by the Campbellford Dils Plant, overturned in the ditch near the home of Mr. Raymond Finch, on the tenth line. Fortunately the driver was unhurt.

Those attending the annual meeting of the North Hastings District Women's Institute at Hazard's were Mrs. Ernest Irwin, Mrs. Stanley Kerr and Mrs. Don Kerr.

Work has been started on the centennial project of Rylstone Women's Institute, the Barnum Memorial park at the junction of the Seymour-Rawdon township line and the Northumberland county road. Some of the maple trees have been trimmed and underbrush and a rail fence cleared away.

Beatles Never Dreamed of Being Honored

LONDON (Reuters) — Beatle John Lennon never dreamed he and his four mop-top band partners would sing their way to fame and fortune, he says.

"I thought you had to drive tanks and win wars," said the 24-year-old rock n roll singer when told the Beatles had been made members of the Order of the British Empire.

"I didn't think you got this sort of thing for playing rock and roll music," said lead guitarist George Harrison, 22.

Drummer Ringo Starr, 24, was worried about the tangible evidence of the honor.

"There's a proper medal as well as the badge, isn't there?" he asked. "I will keep it to wear when I'm old. It's the sort of thing you want to leave to it?"

The Beatles, accustomed to holding down top spot on the pop charts, took a minor placing in the honors list. They are M.B.E. is the lowest grade in an order of chivalry founded in 1917 by King George V.

Although the value of an M.B.E. means nothing in the competitive haven of pop singers where millionaires are made overnight, it prestige far outweighs any number of charitable records.

Paul McCartney, the fourth Beatle, said on arrival here from Portugal: "I think it is marvellous. What a great surprise to come home to."

He added with a grin: "What does this make my dad?"

Successful Living

Ruckus Over TV Watching May Be Trouble Symptom

DEAR DORIS — My husband is a TV addict. I personally dislike TV. I enjoy cooking and baking very much and like to make nice dinners on my weekends.

Trouble is, he keeps calling me to watch it with him. Sunday I was glazing a ham when a program on heart surgery came on and he yelled at me to come and watch; that it was important. Doris, this is not important. Interesting, yes. Important to me — No!

When I sit there I get so wound up I could scream. He doesn't understand this. He used to read a great deal and never bothered about what I was doing while he read. — FIT TO BE TIED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR FIT — Compromise. You'll watch one of his programs if he'll help you with one of yours. My suspicion is that the ruckus over TV is just a symptom of a lack of communication between you.

Has he any reason for thinking that you like and need his company?

* * *

Deseronto

DESERONTO — The grade eighth pupils will visit Napanee and District High School for orientation day on the afternoon of June 17.

A request for an extra half day of teaching time, by the music teacher, Mrs. I. McTavish was turned down as the board felt the time was needed for other subjects.

Mr. J. Mayfield was given consent again this year to have accident insurance available to the students of the public school.

It is learned in a letter from K. G. M. Ross that the deed for the High School is now registered and he will proceed to transfer it to the public school property. All these years negotiations have been pending as the deed of the high school was never registered until this year.

REPRESENTATIVE APPOINTED

A copy of a letter, from Mr. H. Topping to the reeve, was received containing his resignation as County representative on the Board of Education. Mr. Topping, being a local worker found he was forced to miss many meetings and felt this was not fair to the taxpayers, that someone should be appointed who could attend regularly.

A report was received from the nurse re immunization needles for the pupils. It was put in the hands of the managment committee to hire Dr. McVicar or any Medical Unit to perform this service as the town has no Medical Officer of Health.

The board will call for tenders for janitor, oil and school duties.

Trustee McVicker questioned the repairing of the fence by the Separate School. It was noted that the fence was damaged after being struck by a rolling log belonging to Mr. H. Topping.

It was learned the property purchasing agent was under no circumstances due to the absence of Mr. Topping from the meetings when this was discussed. When Mr. Topping learned that the fence was being repaired he assisted with his truck as well as the installation of playground equipment at no cost to the board. The board felt this was satisfactory to all concerned.

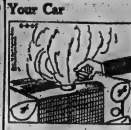
Madoc

ATTEND MISSION SERVICES



MADOC — Rev. James H. Thompson, Miss Leola Phillips and Mrs. Alice Mitts attended the Anglican world mission service held in the St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, on Sunday.

The guest preacher was the Rt. Rev. John R. W. Poole-Hughes, Lord Bishop of the South-West Diocese of Tanganyika, Africa. In his sermon, he likened Africa to a young maryring woman. Everyone was out to court her by giving her gifts. Nationalism, Islam, Communism, Materialism and Christianity, all were seeking to win Africa's soul. The Christ-ian church had something far better to offer, the love of Jesus Christ. He called upon the large congregation, who came from all parishes throughout the Diocese to spend time in prayer and to remember Africa.

NEW CLERK APPOINTED

Miss Olive Ashe is the new clerk of Madoc village. There were four applications for the position, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Jack Kincaid who recently took a position of a provincial meat inspector under the meat inspection act of Ontario. Miss Ashe's application was received at a special meeting of the Council held last week. Miss Ashe, a member of this year's council, resigned as councillor and the vacancy on the council will be filled by appointment for the balance of Miss Ashe's term.

Keep Watch On Radiator Pressure Cap

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

With a hot-running engine, radiator boil-over sometimes occurs when the pressure cap is defective or has been seated loosely.

This would defeat the purpose of the cap, which, via pressure, raises the boiling point of the water (or coolant) and thus prevents — or minimizes — the chance of overheating. If a wky the pressure cap tested before torrid temperatures prove it loosely replacing — and always be sure it's screwed on tightly.

Be especially careful about removing the radiator pressure cap while the engine is hot. When the cap is removed the boiling point of the water drops. This means that the water may boil instantly and splash over you with scalding effect, inflicting serious burns.

Always wrap a heavy cloth around the cap and loosen it very slowly . . . just enough to allow the steam to escape gradually and safely before you actually remove the cap.

E. G. writes: "There's a slight oil leak from the oil pan of my '60 sedan. Could this be due to a loosened or stripped drain plug?"

Yes — or to a defective gasket, loose screws or a crack or hole in the pan itself.

From I.S.: "I bought a '64 standard sedan with just 8,600 miles on it. The engine is quick, lively and runs beautifully smooth. I've never had one moment's trouble with it since we got it (two months ago), but I just can't get any better than 25 m.p.h. from it."

This might be due to poor throttle linkage adjustment — causing the gas pedal to hit the floorboard before the throttle is fully open.

S. L. writes: "After comparing notes, a few neighbors and I have arrived at the conclusion that the local station mechanic has a fetish for extra - rich adjustments choke adjustments. . . or is quite anxious to sell more gas. Does this make sense?"

A policy such as this doesn't . . . but it's a fact that an extra-rich choke-setting will burn more gas, and will also promote carbon formation and plug fouling.

M. W. asks: "When you speak of hard starting due to the ignition system, do you also mean the points?"

Since the battery is the source of power for the ignition system it must be considered a prime factor too.

FLOWN TO MANOEUVRES

Missouri University Club Cave Rescue Specialists

ROLLA, Mo. (AP)—The most that can happen to you in cave-exploring, perhaps the world's only underground sport, is that you can get lost, injured or killed.

Dr. James Maxwell's boys can help if you're hurt or lost inside a mud-floored cave where the darkness is so ♦ a light meter would read minus. There isn't much they can do if you've fallen down an almost bottomless pit and broken your neck.

"We'll put up a marker for you outside the cave though," says red-bearded Terral Young.

Young heads the rescue division of the Speleukers Club t the University of Missouri in Rolla — formerly the Rolla School of Mines.

HAS 400 CAVES

Pulaski County, Mo., has about 400 known caves—one of the largest concentrations of holes in the ground in the U.S. Amateur cavers just can't resist taking their flashlights and trying to find out what's inside. Most of the time they come out. Sometimes they don't.

When this happens, the Missouri Highway Patrol calls Maxwell, the faculty advisor for the cavers. He contacts Young and the cave rescue operation begins.

"The first thing people do wrong is use a flashlight," says Art Rehrank of St. Louis, president of the Speleukers Club. "Flashlight batteries last only about two hours in the 100 per cent humidity of the caves. When you lose your light, you're lost."

"A couple of years ago," Rehrank says, "two boys were lost in a cave near Rolla. Everybody grabbed a flashlight and decided they would get them out before we got there.

"Of course, their lights failed and we wound up pulling about 11 out of the cave when we had only started out for two."

USE LAMPS

Experienced spelunkers use carbide lamps for light and they always carry extra carbide and a lamp repair kit with them on exploring trips.

All of the club's members are trained in first aid.

The club is available for cave rescue operations 24 hours a day. But, rescue is only part of the group's program.

Most of its time is spent mapping and exploring the caves in the area and chemical studies of the various cave clays.

"We try never to get in a cave with less than three men," says Young. "That way if one person gets hurt, one can stay with him and the other can go for help."

There is no way to keep from getting wet, muddy and tired during cave exploration. Fatigue is one of the biggest reasons for accidents.

Observes Rehrank: "Maybe the reason people explore caves is that it feels so good when you get out."

Madoc Junction

MADOC JCT. — Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Sills of Roslin were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. H. Ashley.

Glenn Stapley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forde Stapley of Madoc Junction, has been chosen from the Grade XI boys to represent the Stirling-Rawdon District High School on a two weeks' trip to British Columbia. The trip is sponsored by the Canadian Centennial Association.

Glenn will be leaving by train early in July, in company with other selected students from schools in the area.

Miss Isabella Prest, Miss Sharon Reid, Miss Dianne Prest and a friend from Eggleton United Church were among those who attended the special service held at Madoc United Church on Sunday evening, for churches in this area to commemorate the 40th anniversary of Church Union.

CLEANUP WEEK HELD

The annual bee for Eggleton Church cemetery was held last Wednesday. In the morning the men of the community, relatives and interested friends from nearby places met and cut the lawn, trimmed the shrubs and generally improved the appearance of the cemetery grounds.

At the noon hour members of the Eggleton United Church Women served dinner at the church.

The teacher, Mrs. Godden, all the public school children, several pre-school children, a few high school students and a number of adults attended.

Friends were present from Stirling, Belleville, Hampton, Foxboro, Wellman's, Campbellford, Mount Pleasant, West Huntington and the minister, Mr. Aylmer Smith from Thomasburg, also attended.

HASTINGS SOUTH WIPED OUT

Distribution To Eliminate 43 Present Ridings, Create 47 New Ones

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — A new map provided urgent study today for Ontario MPs as the electorate boundaries commission for the province made public a report tearing up the old constituency map and putting it together again with drastic changes.

As part of Canada's first non-political distribution of federal seats, the commission proposed revisions that will wipe out the identities of 43 of the present 85 ridings, create 47 new ones and revise all but two of the others.

(Another Story on Page 25)

Cabinet minister and backbencher alike — not excepting Prime Minister Pearson — were affected as the commissioner under Mr. Justice E. A. Richardson of the Ontario Supreme Court sketched across lines of politics, tradition and geography to fit parliamentary representation more closely to population.

Mr. Pearson's Algoma East riding will disappear as such. So will External Affairs Minister Martin's Essex East. All other ministers except Health Minister Judy LaMarsh in Niagara Falls will see changes in their constituencies. Finance Minister Gordon's Toronto Davenport emerges with little left but the name.

Historic one-party Conservative and Liberal strongholds were torn apart, largely in rural areas where thinly - populated

PROPOSES ELECTORAL BOUNDARY CHANGES — Mr. Justice E. A. Richardson of the Ontario Supreme Court headed the Electoral Boundaries Commission for the province which released its report Tuesday. The commission recommends that 43 of the present 85 federal constituencies in Ontario be eliminated and 46 new ones be created. (CP Photo)

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Cloud cover will continue over southern Ontario today bringing occasional showers in the low 60s, while mainly sunny skies in Northern Ontario will allow afternoon temperatures to climb into the high sixties.

Little change is expected in Ontario weather Wednesday.

Commonwealth Heads Are Testy

LONDON (CP) — Disputes crackled even as Commonwealth leaders arrived today for the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers opening Thursday.

Seventeen prime ministers and presidents and four deputies—representing a record 21 countries—will sit around the table at Marlborough House for the talks which continue to June 25.

Prime ministers' conferences often always to be occasion of pessimistic reflection on the future of the Commonwealth and the new one—judging by some tart remarks—was no exception.

Dr. Hastings Banda, prime minister of Malawi, accused his Commonwealth cousins in Tanzania of backing his outlawed opponents.

"Pakistan and India were still locked in their border dispute over the desolate Rann of Kutch. Donald Saugster, acting premier of Jamaica, said he is "disappointed" at the frosty reception given by Britain to immigrants from his country.

Prime Minister Pearson of Canada and Prime Minister Shastri of India arrived separately from Canada today following their Ottawa talks in which they expressed hope for periods of ceasefire that might

Gordon BusyMan In House

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The longer sitting hours in the Commons made Finance Minister Gordon the busiest politician in the capital Monday as he delivered four lengthy speeches in defence of his financial policies.

After defending legislation affecting Canadian newspapers and periodicals, a bill to prohibit foreign investors buying Canadian banks and his 20-per-cent personal income tax cut, he found time to offer a long lecture against Social Credit monetary theory.

The House used its 7½-hour day — provided it rules reforms approved last week—to give second reading, approval in principle, to the 10-year revision of the Chartered and Quebec Savings Bank Acts.

It also started discussion of the resolutions contained in Mr. Gordon's April 26 budget. The budget address won a vote of confidence several weeks ago, but now each separate tax change must be before the House.

EXTENDS EXPIRY DATE

The Bank Act bills were referred to the standing committee on finance, trade and economic affairs. Because the committee is not expected to report for some time, a bill to extend bank charters to the end of this year from their expiry date this July 1 was passed.

Mr. Gordon said the Commons must accept his much-criticized proposals for maintaining Canadian ownership of newspapers or forget about any action. No suitable alternative had been found, he said.

"In practical terms, we have the alternative of proceeding with the measure which is before the House or of dropping the question altogether. If we were to do the latter and one or more of our more important newspapers or chain of newspapers were in fall into foreign hands, neither the government nor Parliament could shirk responsibility for having allowed this to happen."

The government would disallow as a business expense money spent on advertising in any newspaper or periodical owned by a non-resident.

The finance minister rejected criticisms that the proposal infringes on press freedom.

The "complete freedom" of business to advertise in existing publications or any future publications owned by Canadians was not affected.

"It provides no precedent for

Belleville In Hastings Riding, While Trenton, Sidney, Rawdon Joined To Prince Edward County

The redrawn lines of Ontario's electorial blueprint have crossed out Hastings South.

The constituency has been abolished and its territory divided between two new ridings.

They are the constituencies of Hastings and Prince Edward-Hastings.

The city of Belleville is in the riding of Hastings.

The constituency of Prince Edward - Hastings will include the towns of Trenton and Picton, with their large service votes.

These are the present MPs' seats affected by the change:

Hastings South — Liberal Robert Temple; Northumberland — Liberal Paulline Jewett; Prince Edward Lennox — Conservative Douglas Alkenbrack; Hastings-Frontenac — Conservative Red Webb.

Mr. Webb's constituency of Hastings - Frontenac also has been abolished and split between the three new ridings of Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Victoria - Haliburton.

The riding of Hastings covers an east - west span from Belleville to Deseronto in the south and runs north to the Faraday-Dungannon - Mayo townships line.

Prince Edward - Hastings extends north to include the townships of Rawdon and Seymour — and the town of Stirling.

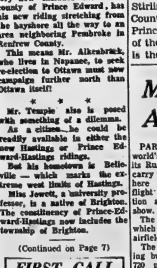
What is left from the present riding of Northumberland has been combined into the new seat, Northumberland-Durham. This abolishes the present riding of Durham, now held by Liberal Russ Hoey, and extends from Haldimand township west to Newmarket.

* * *

In the Quinte bayshore area revised electoral pattern focusses attention on three MPs —Mr. Temple, Miss Jewett and Mr. Alkenbrack.

Mr. Alkenbrack, whose territory now includes the island county of Prince Edward, has his new riding stretching from the bayshore all the way to an area neighboring Pembroke in Renfrew County.

This means that Mr. Alkenbrack, who lives in Napanee, to seek re-election to Ottawa must now campaign further north than Ottawa itself!



* * *

Mr. Temple also is faced with something of a dilemma. As a citizen...he could be readily available in either the new Hastings or Prince Edward-Hastings ridings.

But his hometown is Belleville — which marks the extreme west limits of Hastings.

Miss Jewett, a university professor, is a native of Brighton. The constituency of Prince Edward-Hastings now includes the township of Brighton.

PROPOSED FEDERAL RIDINGS — Above are shown six district federal ridings, as proposed in the redistribution of Ontario seats. Hastings South disappears and Belleville is located in the riding of Hastings (27), which includes all of Hastings County except Trenton, Stirling and five townships. Trenton, Stirling and the townships of Sidney and Rawdon are joined to Prince Edward County and three Northumberland County townships to make the new riding of Prince Edward-Hastings (58). The other three Hastings Townships, in the north of the county, are in the riding of Victoria-Haliburton (75). The area marked 43 is the riding of Northumberland-Durham, while 56 is the riding of Peterborough.

Moscow Sends World's Largest Airplane To Air Show At Paris

The huge, 250-ton Antonov-22 which arrived at Le Bourget airfield today is a cargo plane.

The airliner version, now being built, is designed to carry 720 passengers in a double-decker fuselage.

The Antonov-22 covered the 1,875 miles between here and Moscow in five hours and five minutes.

The plane's designer, Oleg Antonov, had denied as recently as Monday that it even existed.

"Why should anyone want to build such a plane?" was his reply to reporters querying him about reports the Russians planned to put a huge aircraft on display at the Paris show.

Today, after the plane arrived, Antonov was more informative. He said the Antonov-22 has a load capacity of 80 tons.

Previously the biggest cargo plane in the world was the American Lockheed C-141 Starlifter, whose design payload is about 34 tons.

"It can carry anything, even a boat, and particularly any kind of materials for public works, as well as eggs and young chicks," he said.

The AN-22 transport also has a cabin for 28 passengers and an all-weather landing system.

The passenger version of the AN-22 will also be powered by four turbo-prop engines, Antonov said.

"A passenger version is at present being built. With a longer fuselage, it will have 720 seats. Fully loaded it could cover 5,000 kilometres (3,125 miles) at 600 kilometres per hour (430 m.p.h.) cruising speed with a maximum speed of 760 k.p.h. (460 m.p.h.) at a height of 11,600 metres (35,700 feet)."

South Vietnamese Are Reluctant To Use U.S. Troops In Battle

SAIGON (AP)—The battle of Dong Xoai has brought the Vietnamese war to a threshold that many South Vietnamese commanders are not anxious to cross—the first use of American units in battle.

It seems inevitable that U.S. units soon will be out on their own in full-fledged warfare with the guerrilla enemy. They were on the verge of that at Dong Xoai, and part of the U.S. army's 173rd Airborne Brigade moved to within 2 miles of the fight.

They did not go in because South Vietnamese generals did not want them. The brake was applied by Brig.-Gen. Cao Van Vien, commander of the Vietnamese army's 3rd Corps, who was responsible for the operation.

"I think the Viet Cong is deliberately trying to draw American units into this fight," Vien said.

A number of top American officials agreed. It looked as if a primary objective of the Viet Cong at Dong Xoai was to force commitment of the U.S. paratroopers to battle and perhaps inflict enough casualties to make the Americans look bad.

The American commanders seemed ready to take the risk, but the South Vietnamese felt the gamble was not worth making, that it was better to commit their own reserves. Two battalions of South Vietnamese troops were virtually wiped out at Dong Xoai.

At the root of South Vietnamese reluctance to see the American command wield have decide at least some of its control to the fighting ally.

American officers argue that increased American control will improve efficiency and inject a new fighting spirit into the exhausted forces now facing the Viet Cong.

Many South Vietnamese argue that an American army in Viet Nam will become much like a French army and will turn increasing numbers of South Vietnamese away from the government and toward the Viet Cong.

They also feel the South Vietnamese army will tend to shrug its shoulders and say: "Why get killed now? The outcome depends on what the Americans do, not on us!"

Once the Americans commit their own troops, it will be as American war. For all practical purposes, the South Vietnamese command will have to cede at least some of its control to the fighting ally.

Watchful Watching

SAIGON (Reuters) — A period of watchful waiting persisted today on the Dong Xoai front, 60 miles north of here, where some 1,850 American and South Vietnamese troops confront an estimated 8,000 Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

A battalion of U.S. paratroopers with artillery support remained dug in around the Phuoc Vinh airstrip, 20 miles south of Dong Xoai.

Some 20 miles northwest of Dong Xoai more than 3,000 South Vietnamese paratroopers manned the An Loc airstrip.

The Commons debated revision of the Bank Act.

The bill was given second reading—approval in principle—and now will be referred to the standing committee on finance, trade and economic affairs.

It was the first day of debate under new procedural rules adopted by the House Friday, wiping out the dinner recess.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said more procedure for incorporation of banks will lead to patronage.

Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) objected to the prohibition against provincial governments owning bank shares.

And he found time to offer a long lecture against Social Credit monetary theory.

Speaker Seeks Support of United Appeal

The Belleville and District Labor Council held a meeting in the Club Canara last night.

John O'Flynn, campaign chairman of the Belleville United Appeal, spoke briefly concerning the 1965 campaign which begins in the fall. He stressed the necessity of good community services and the need for Labor's support in this area.

"The Labor people are the heart and core of the appeal," he said. "I want to earnestly solicit their support and I feel confident that Labor's wonderful efforts in 1964 will be even more vigorously renewed this year."

Labor Council president Leo Lucciola, reported he had made a donation of $15 on behalf of the council to a student in the vocational training program, plus $2 dues. It was decided the council would offer as annual bursary to a deserving student in the program five re-training school.

A letter from Wayne Woods, secretary of the Belleville Traffic and Light Committee, was received in acknowledgement of a complaint registered through the council about the problem of handling traffic at the Bridge and Coleman Streets intersection.

A council spokesman said, "we do not consider the letter accomplished its purpose, as it only concerned with the initial complaint and offered no remedy."

School Term Organization Chief Business of Board

School organization for the opening of the school term in September was the main item of business at the June meeting of the Belleville Public School Board, held Monday evening.

Principals and vice-principal placements for all thirteen city public schools were approved at the meeting along with one assistant and two probationary appointments for seven teachers.

The report of superintendent L.A. Kells showed enrolment at the end of May to be 8,096 a figure which has remained steady since the opening of the school term last September. Attendance efficiency was 96.35 per cent for the month of May, with the attendance officer reporting 11 visits during the month with but one involving any trouble.

The resignation of Mr. W. Bailey who will enter employment with the Trenton Board of Education was accepted while probationary contracts were granted to Miss Lorraine Boare, Mrs. E. Zanussi, Mrs. J. Bain, G. Irvine, Miss J. Taylor, E. E. Dale and William Latchford.

CARETAKERS TO ATTEND

Business assistant J. Leigh Anderson presented information regarding the Caretakers' School, sponsored by the Ontario Association of School Business Officials, to be held at Quinte Secondary School, Monday and Tuesday, July 5th and 6th. The Board approved registration of all caretakers and maintenance men in its employ.

Special sub-committees of the property committee, Trustee G. H. Discussions on these problems continued over several weeks.

Authorization was given to extend fencing at the Sir Mackenzie Bowell School, and to purchase further land in that area if it become available on suitable terms.

A resolution was adopted supporting a letter from Mr. W. A. Watson regarding the use of the Bible in schools.

At the conclusion of the meeting the Board adjourned until September 30, subject to call if business should otherwise provided in its by-laws, in the event of emergency.

Around the "Cat"

It is really too cold for lawn bowling but the keen interest is shown in the summer game that despite the weather the mixed doubles tournament held at the Belleville greens on Saturday was a huge success.

There were 38 rinks in play and Belleville, Trenton, Madoc, Stirling and Kingston were represented. As usual the greens were in excellent condition and fast, while the competition stiffened up due to the extra games played by the contestants.

The bowlers were welcomed by William Wright, president of the club and Cec. Wilson, who successfully conducted the three draws. A Kingston rink of Hilda Matthews and Mrs. Wilson Matthews won the trophy and accompanying prizes while a Belleville rink of Roy Hall and Mrs. Millie Smith were in second place. Another Kingston rink of Gilbert McGregor and Mrs. Mary Edney were the third three-game winners.

Morley Galt and Mrs. Kitty Owens from Kingston took the two-game high score while Mr. and Mrs. Ted Wilson and Mrs. Madoc won the one-game high score. An eight-ender was scored in the tournament and this is the highest count one can get in an end. A Kingston rink won the lucky draw.

The women's section of the club served light refreshments during the day and did a thriving business especially around the coffee urn.

On Thursday last Mrs. Anne Avery, Mrs. Jessie Hunter with Mrs. Lily Thompson as skip won the afternoon game with a double rink of Mrs. Rita Law, Mrs. Ethel Hall, Mrs. Ed Mason as second place. The tea hostesses were Mrs. Anne Watkin and Mrs. Cela Gilbert.

Entries are now being accepted for participants in the Provincial Playdowns, the start of the Belleville Club on July 17th. The playdowns in the Provincial are progressing and the winners will be declared in plenty of time.

Justice Grant Disagrees With Company Head

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Mr. Justice Campbell Grant said Monday Fairys' Milton Meat Enterprises Co-operative Ltd., departed from co - operative principles when it purchased a Burlington meat packing plant last year.

The Ontario Supreme Court judge told Charles W. McInnis, F.A.M.E.'s founding president, the organization "departed a long way" from co-operative business when it decided to purchase the T. W. Fearman plant and lost a $1,500,000 down payment in the transaction.

It lost the down payment when it failed to meet a $1,000,000 second payment deadline last December.

Mr. McInnis testified for nearly five hours as the royal commission inquiry into the handling of F.A.M.E. finances resumed after a two-week adjournment.

Mr. Justice Grant's comments came after Mr. McInnis said it was the board's intention that the plant would operate on a basis similar to that of wheat pools and co-operative principles.

F.A.M.E. was not built on the principle of wheat pools for a society that is truly co-operative," he said.

F.A.M.E. was organized in 1960 with the aim of raising $10,000,000 through the sale of shares and debentures to finance a chain of seven meat packing and slaughtering plants across the province.
